THESE were the inhabitants of the Rue de la Huchette, a rather mean street off the Boulevard St. Michel, and not far from Ile de la Cite. There, in the Hotel du Caveau he made his home, and there he made the intimate acquaintance of Parisians of every shade of political opinion and of almost every sort of nobility, charm, depravity nad meanness. The Rue de la Huchette was a cross-section of Paris, and no sickness which infected the city and the nation was unfelt there.

ELLIOT PAUL is a romantic, pure and unashamed, but like many romantics he has a firm grasp on reality. To him the Frenchmen and women of the Rue de la Huchette were full of interest and charm, but he was also conscious of their many shortcomings and the shortcomings of the governmental system which helped to make them what they were. They were avaricious and stingy because they were forced to live in continual financial uncertainty, and struggled long to get a bare living in a land where labor was unorganized and undervalued. Many of them were desperately unhappy because the moral and civil code of their nation was rotten. But they were not as individuals, as bad as the forces which moulded their lives. They had wit and kindliness and a sense of the national honor; they could blush for the chicanery of their government, for its feeble truckling to fascism, and for its inescapable baseness and corruption. They would have liked to see France oppose Mussolini; they suspected the legend of the impregnable Maginot Line; they knew what Petain and his Cagoulards were up to and what they would impose upon the people of France if they could ever seize power; they were desolate over the shocking exposures which followed the Stavisky scandal; they knew that France was in the hands of inscrupulous industrialists and crooked politicians, but what could they do? We who make such a din about the democratic way of life should not expect a glad response from the French: democracy as shown in the Third Republic was a stinking mess of corruption, brutality and baseness.

"The Last Time I Saw Paris" is valuable as an indictment and an explanation of an ailing democracy, but it is more. It is written with great wit and understanding and it is certainly one of the most entertaining books to be published this year. Its particularized descriptions of lower middle-class Parisian life are a continual source of delight, though some readers may find them rather strongly flavored. His dissertations on French plumbing, the brothel system, and the peculiar intricacies of marital infidelity are uproarious and instructive. Doubtless there will be many people who will seek to attribute the fall of France to the sexual irregularity of its citizens, but when Paul speaks of moral degradation it is not this which he means; the vileness of a Laval is to him more serious than the pecadilloes of a hundred such houses as Le Panier Fleuri which he describes with so much wit and understanding.

Politics is not everything in the life of a nation. People count too. The political life of France between the wars was despicable, and it brought the nation to ruin. But the people—such as those of the Rue de la Huchette—loved life and, despite their peculiarities, were made of good strong stuff. They are the people who wait for the deliverance of France and, having learned a bitter lesson—indeed, one might almost say that they had died—will live again, better, we hope, and wiser than before

• Japs Swing to Australia ?

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, May 9 (AP)—The true significance of the sea battle that has raged since Monday off Australia cannot be calculated until the circumstances that brought it on are revealed.

There is no question, however, that it represents the onset of the Battle of Australia and that Japan has suffered heavy, if not crippling, naval losses in its first phases.

Conflicting accounts make it impossible at this writing to evaluate the scope of the action accurately. There is the same conflict as to which side was the interceptor and which the intercepted or as to just where the action has been taking place.

Tokyo dubs it the "Battle of the Coral Sea." From Tokyo, also, comes the only intimation that battleships have been engaged. The Tokyo claim that Britain's Warspite had been destroyed was promptly scotched in London by an Admiralty announcement that neither the Warspite nor any other British battleship was sunk or damaged.

FISHING FOR INFORMATION

Tokyo has thus far done more than either Washington or Allied headquarters in Australia to point up the fight as a major sea battle. There is obvious propaganda as well as fishing for information in the naming of the Warspite, an American battleship of the California class and the American plane-carriers Saratoga and Yorktown as casualties. An effort to cover up heavy Japanese losses as well as to elicit information in the form of denials may well be suspected.

There is no doubt, however, that nearly a score of Japanese craft engaged on some offensive mission, including light and heavy cruisers, lesser war craft, transports and supply ships, have been sunk or damaged beyond early repair. That virtually confirms the assumption that an Allied task force of relatively light strength intercepted a well-guarded Japanese invasion convoy near the Solomons and scored heavily in the first clash. The running fight followed, although there is still little to suggest a major fleet action.

That may be in progress or impending. It would depend upon the disposition of the main elements of the Japanese and United States fleets. That Japan is ready to risk her battle fleet far down in the southwest corner of the Pacific, leaving the approaches to Japan itself and her China Sea lifelines screened only by her North and Central Pacific island outposts is hardly believable.

MAIN OBJECTIVE SHIFTED

Whether the intercepted Japanese convoy was headed toward Australia or New Guinea or merely endeavoring to expand southward a chain of island bases designed to cut American-Australian communications remains unknown. That last objective seems the logical Japanese course and a clash for control of those islands that fringe the Coral Sea to the east has been inevitable.

The continuing sea action tends to confirm the impression that the Japanese have shifted their main war effort from the Indian Ocean front to the Pacific. It goes far to warrant previous predictions that with the conquest of Burma complete, Japan must pause there and turn to protection of her vulnerable Pacific flank against an ever-growing Allied threat.

Regardless of its final outcome, that unfinished fight is definite further notice to Tokyo of an expanding American war machine. Taken even at face value, despite their untrustworthiness, the Tokyo claims of ships sunk chalk up against the American reports of enemy ships downed as a further progressive naval attrition for Japan. And British sea power is beginning to close in on her also from the west in the Indian Ocean.

• He Sneaked Into Paris

(American Woman Tells How Adolf Hitler Won Popular Hatred)

NEW YORK, May 8 (Chicago Sun Special)—A description of how the Nazis, from Fuehrer Adolf Hitler down to the common soldier, react to their first contact with Paris has been brought back by an American woman who escaped from occupied France. German soldiers, officers and cabinet ministers are now making themselves at home in hundreds of places which were familiar to Americans before 1939.

Hitler, for instance, she reports, made his first visit to the historic sites of Paris between 3 and 7 a.m. so that his whereabout would not be known to the public. His visit to the Opera House at 4 o'clock one morning almost frightened the watchman out of his wits. Hitler insisted on inspecting every corner of the historic building, from the marble foyer to the dressing rooms back stage. Then he gave an order to have the edifice scrubbed from top to bottom, and issued a statement that it was the finest building in Europe.

"Both acts offended the French," the woman said. "They liked the 'patine' of age-old dirt, and beauty-loving Parisians had always apologized for the Opera House as a baroque monstrosity.

"Hitler's next calls were at the Invalides and the tomb of Napoleon, his patron saint. He has had the tomb raised from the crypt to the ground floor, it is said, and every German soldier is required by military order to visit it. Lines of these troops, 'les touristes,' as the French call them, can be seen daily lining up for blocks to carry out these orders with proper awestruck admiration."

When Hitler visited Paris, according to this informant, who prefers to remain anonymous, he stayed at the Hotel St. Regis, a small hotel at the Rue Jean Goujon which runs off the lower Champs Elysees. But the German occupation forces have taken over all of the big hotels, such as the Meurice, Crillon, Elysees Palace, Prince des Galles and George V. The Gestapo has its headquarters in the Astoria on the Avenue de l'Opera.

Lieutenant General Ernst von Schaumburg, commander of the occupation forces, and his staff, occupy most of that part of the Ritz Hotel facing the Place Vendome. A few foreigners are permitted to live in the Rue Cambon side of the Ritz, where the famous Ritz bar is situated. Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels, Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering and Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop, as well as other high Nazi officials, use the Ritz as their headquarters whenever they visit Paris.

Maxim's, however, is not reserved exclusively for Goering and other cabinet ministers and high officials. Even the ordinary privates may visit this famous establishment, although Albert, the majordomo, goes to some trouble to separate the sheep from the goats.

To The Editor . . .

RENTING OR ROOMS

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—Having just read an article in the Examiner of tonight May 7, entitled "Rooms Available for 1,000 men," I venture to suggest one very definite reason why these same rooms are not being occupied. I will state my own case as an example for perhaps many other housewives are anxious to help but are forbidden to do so by landlord or landlady.

Recently I had a sister from another city as houseguest, her first rest in fifteen years, but when paying my rent in advance for May, was informed that I could not have her in my home because any person who stayed more than two weeks was considered a boarder. I was told that I could not have a third party in the apartment as it had only been rented to me for two people which did not include my soldier husband who was just then home on extended furlough, furthermore, if I insisted on having a third party in the house she would raise my rent. The audacity of this statement caused me much distress especially as my soldier husband had given his consent at the time I rented the place after he had thoroughly investigated the residence. I might add that the rent was raised another five dollars by consent of the rental commission last September.

If this sort of thing is going on all over the city of Peterborough, is it any wonder that homemakers are reluctant to offer their rooms for rent. One is even timid at asking for common necessities for one is told: "If you don't like it you know what you can do.... find another place and move out."

Sure, they've got us where they want us now, but will greed for money or many unkind deeds bring them happiness or health or success? No! And as surely as equality and Christianity develop, the law of compensation will adjust its all powerful effects and brotherly love will shine forth forever.

Could anyone tell me if a landlady has a right to refuse a tenant the privilege of renting a room to someone in distress in war time, provided said landlady is always paid her rent in full in advance every month?

Hard To Believe How Time Flies

MAY 9

1912 The Peterborough Automobile Club is planning an outing at either Cobourg or South Beach on May 24th.

Vice-president Keogh of the International Moulders' Union is here to support the campaign of the local moulders for a nine-hour day.

W. Richardson has been elected president of the Canoe Club organized at the local Y.M.C.A.

The water is all out of Riverside Park and the diamond is being readied for the opening of the professional baseball season.

Y.M.C.A. basketball team defeat a team of Peterborough professional ball players 26 to 22 in an exhibition cage tilt.

1922 Lieut. T. J. Johnston deprecates the reduction in the militia estimates and wonders how the militia units will carry on.

Morgan Lewis, Jack Amys and Lawrence Killaly are leading students in the Easter examinations in the Collegiate local school.

Miss Jennie Stead, provincial organizer of the Federation of Women Teachers pays an official visit to Peterborough.

Rev. Father Costello is elected president and David Ahearne, manager, of the Holy Name baseball club.

The schedule for the Public School Lacrosse League is drawn up by Walter Smaill, P.A.A.A.'s sports director.

1932 Fred S. Brown of Lakefield is fatally injured when pinned by his automobile against the wall of his garage.

James Juby is chosen as president and Dr. A. Moir vice-president of the Peterborough Rotary Club.

Ross Dobbin receives a baby alligator sent from Florida. It will be kept at the filtration plant.

Eight cans of pickerel fry from the Belleville hatchery are to be deposited in Rice Lake.

IN WAR TIME

1917 Word is received that Capt. R. E. Picard of Peterborough was killed in action at Fresnoy on May 3.

Lieut. A. P. Stock, formerly of the 93rd Battalion has been wounded overseas.

Donald Edwards, son of Lieut.-Col. E. B. Edwards, formerly of Peterborough, is visiting in town. He was wounded while serving with the C.E.F.

A survey of the city has shown very few vacant houses and none at all in the south end where they are needed most.

Charles Noyes, veteran Grand Trunk Railway gateman at the Charlotte street crossing is pensioned off. He has been with the company 39 years.

A Bible Message For Today . . .

So Jesus came again into Cana of Galilee, where he made the water wine. And there was a certain nobleman, whose son was sick at Capernaum. When he heard that Jesus was come out of Judaea into Galilee, he went unto him, and besought him that he would come down, and heal his son: for he was at the point of death.

Then said Jesus unto him, Except ye see signs and wonders, ye will not believe. The nobleman saith unto him, Sir, come down ere my child die.

Jesus saith unto him, Go thy way; thy son liveth. And the man believed the word that Jesus had spoken unto him, and he went his way. And as he was now going down, his servants met him, and told him, saying, Thy son liveth. Then enquired he of them the hour when he began to amend. And they said unto him, Yesterday at the seventh hour the fever left him.

So the father knew that it was at the same hour, in the which Jesus said unto him, Thy son liveth: and himself believed, and his whole house. —John iv, 46-53.

Murdock Sick Of Little Senates Does

OTTAWA, May 9 — (CP). — The Senate on Thursday considered its place in Canada's parliamentary system and heard suggestions that study of specific problems should be undertaken by members of the Upper House.

The subject was introduced by the acting Government Leader, Senator J. H. King, British Columbia Liberal.

"It has occurred to us that there is probably an opportunity for the members of the Senate to do more work than we have been doing," Senator King continued. "There is an opinion abroad that Senators have no work to do. It is not so."

The Senate had both the opportunity and a duty to follow proceedings of the House of Commons and study legislation. Such a practice would make discussion in the Senate Chamber "freer and better, and our work more efective," he suggested.

Hon. C. C. Ballantyne, Conservative Senate Leader, expressed agreement with Senator King and said that the non-political nature of the Senate made it possible for that House to deal more effectively than the House of Commons with some legislation.

Senator Ballantyne's appointment as Conservative Leader was confirmed on Wednesday.

Senator James Murdock, Ontario Liberal, said he was "heartily sick and tired of hearing how little we do."

In February the Senate sat for 16 minutes and Senators drew $530, he continued. He said that he thought he could name some members who had been paid at the rate of $100 an hour for the time they had spent in the Chamber during the past five or 10 years.

Senator A. C. Hardy, Ontario Liberal, said there was too much tendency on the part of some Senators to hurry up the work and get home. Bills should be considered in committee of the whole rather than being referred to a special committee, he suggested.

The Senate adjourned to May 26.

12 Big Canadian Freighters Aid U.S. Ore Run

By R. K. CARNEGIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTWA, May 8—(CP).—Canada has answered the call of the United States for help to keep the big American steel mills in the Lake Erie watershed supplied with iron ore from Duluth.

During the past week 12 big Upper Lakers from the Canadian fleet were transferred to the American ore trade at Washington's request, A. L. W. MacCallum, Canada's diector of shipping, announced Thursday, and more will follow within a few days. These ships range in length from 400 to more than 600 feet.

In spite of this considerable inroad into the Canadian lake fleet, shipping board officials here expressed confidence that by severe regulations—such as reducing the time used in loading and unloading to a minimum, elimination of trips without cargoes and forbidding all unessential movements — Canada lake movement of grain will be sufficient for the needs of the trade.

In former years, while the bulk of grain moved by water out of Port Arthur and Fort William went to Georgian Bay ports, a comparatively short trip, many cargoes were carried all the way by water to Lower Lake and St. Lawrence river ports. This means a big saving in shipping.

The unusually early start of navigation this spring has been a great help to the shipping board since vessels were able to move many grain cargoes into bay ports before the date of navigation opened in previous years.

Toronto's Test Blackout Tops London

By HAROLD FAIR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, ay 9 (CP).—Battered old London can't hold a candle to Toronto when it comes to a blackout.

Last night's 45 minutes of law-enforced darkness over the 400-square-miles area, bounded by Leaside and Scarborough on the east and Bronte and Trafalgar on the west, more than reminded me of my 2½ years in Britain where exterior lights at night are something they write songs about.

Toronto's blackout, broken only by light in factories engaged in war work, was more intense because:

1. There, except for three cases, traffic lights were doused when the sirens wailed at 9.15 p.m., EDT, in London, thin vertical and horizontal slits permit light to seep from behind protective discs.

2. Here were missing the small "candle lights" strung at long intervals across many British streets.

3. Here also were lacking the ubiquitous, dimly-lighted big "S" signs that indicate air raid shelters to raid-hardened Britons.

But outside of that it was realistic. From blacked-out Yonge street, untouched by a glare from the Union Station yards where lights were left on so trains could run, the scene appeared worse than Britain after dark.

Tone Under Banshee

And when the sirens moaned—in a tone a shade lower than Churchill's "banshee wailers" — it seemed like London on those countless nights when we prepared for the worst.

There was another point of similarity. The Canadian Press office was just as hot and stuffy behind its blinds and blackout curtains as the London bureau in the hot summers of 1941 and 1942. And it really felt familiar to have a warden come up to complain that a chink of light showed—just like the London bobbies used to do in our Tudor street office after a bomb fell at the front door in September, 1940, and left our blackout blinds in tatters.

Officially, the Toronto district blackout was described as "quite a success" by Judge Ian Macdonell, vice-chairman of the Ontario Civil Defence Committee. He viewed the darkened district from atop the Canadian Bank of Commerce building.

Attorney-General Gordon Conant, chairman of the committee, called the blackout "a distinct advance in civilian defence in the Toronto region."

Mr. Conant said "the necessity for some improvement in the system of sirens is indicated" and promised the matter would be taken up immediately.

"We must have further tests with even less advance notice if we are to be prepared for actual enemy air attacks," he added.

Only three minor accidents were reported during the period of darkness. One ambulance, however, had to make a rush trip through the darkened streets to take a maternity case to Western Hospital.

Special The Examiner By a P.C.V.S. Student

NOTE: Students are asked to stand by for "The Echoes" next week! Optimistic reports in the two Collegiate columns will be realized at last. Don't forget to rush copies to students on war work; if everyone co-operates the curtain can be successfully rung down on the 1942 Echoes.

Cadets' Epilogue

'Neath the scudding clouds of a dark, threatening sky or, if you prefer—'neath the gaunt, foreboding rafters of the cavernous armouries the cadet inspection marched on to rather a dismal climax on Thursday afternoon. Despite the adverse conditions a remarkable showing was made by the 240 cadets on parade and drew a warm eulogy from the inspecting officer—Captain T. C. Holmes. Dr. Kenner's weather forecast failed to materialize as it did last year but hopes were held high until the end that it would be possible to conduct a route march through the city.

At 1:30 the battalion was drawn up in a maze of companies that would confuse the most mathematical mind. After some discussion a system was devised whereby a march past could be managed without the contortions seen in the snake march performed by the Bugle Band. With the assistance of the multitudinous military tacticians present order was finally achieved and the general salute taken by Major R. Bolton of the Prince of Wales Rangers. The stately march of the inspecting officers occupied the next 20 minutes at the expense of two fainting casualties. The march past in column of platoons was dispensed with because of the cramped quarters but the column of route was successfully executed. Company drill was also stricken with an acute case of insufficient room with the exception of "C" Company under Major Max Graham who gave Captain Holmes a satisfactory example for the corps as a whole.

The guard under Major "Tip" Taylor stole the show for a moment with the precision of their closely co-ordinated movements. Their arms drill added much to the display and favourable commentw as heard from the attending officers.

A mass demonstration of knots and lashings, first aid, and signalling was given that drew critical attention from the inspecting officer, R. G. Corneil, L. M. Richardson, and L. H. Collingwood instructed the junior boys in knots and lashings, map reading, field work, and aircraft identification in preparation for the inspection and they certainly did a good job. Due to the conditions of the inspection some of this interesting work was unfortunately left out.

Number 13 on the program was also depleted. This was the T.O.E.T. of B.S.A. .22 rifle (translated T.O.E. T. means Test of Elementary Training).

Did you know that in the P.C.V.S. Bugle Band and Drum Corps the inspecting officer discovered a band that he estimated to be as good as the R.C.A.F. band (reputed to be the best of the lot)? Nobody expressed more surprise at this statement than the members of the band but Captain Holmes evidently knew what he was talking about. The Bugle Band was flawless to a degree that held the onlookers spellbound in amazement. Through the snake march and all their other intricate manoeuvres the band played on. Bus Seals beat the bass drum and paid for his loyalty with several tattered fingers. Drum Major Routly put the boys through every conceivable design but they came out with drumsticks flying. Hit song appeared to be "We're In the Army Now." Never before has the band evoked such enthusiastic praise from an inspecting officer but they deserved all they got this time. Congratulations!

The most eagerly awaited moment at every inspection ended in disappointment this year. The presentation of the I.O.D.E.—57th Regiment Chapter—shield was postponed until a later date, possibly next year, because of the unfairness arising from the inability of Captain Holmes to view each company. Bob Crocker and Bill Hall were the company commanders of the prize-winning companies in the past two years and keen competition was felt this year until it was realized that other arrangements would have to be made.

Teasettes

War sales are still decreasing with a total this week of $335—$275 in War Savings Stamps and $60 in Certificates.

Two new songs were added to the school repertoire "Captains of the Clouds" has been sampled by the whole student body but "Waltzing Matilda" was previewed by the Junior Assembly on Wednesday. Congratulations music committee.

Jack Thompson joins the ranks of students who have enlisted for active service with the R.C.A.F. receiving the preference. Some of Jack's photographic work will be seen in "The Echoes." Look for it.

Alden Gourley was the prizewinner on "The Farmer Asks A Question" quiz over CHEX this week. We didn't know that there are so many future farmers at the Collegiate. Wonder if the school will be represented next week?

George Richardson, Stuart Saunders, and Tom Lillico went to the Lindsay cadet inspection Friday afternoon. Dr. Kenner announced on Friday morning that the inspection this year was the first held indoors in 49 years. You may have noticed that no cups were presented to the officers, that there will be no cadet dance, no officers' picnic, and no church parade this year. Most of the uniforms were turned in on Friday.

The rugby windbreakers are well decorated with crests and numbers and some of them are beginning to look like a patchwork quilt.

The First Aid exams will be held next week. Look for the list on the main bulletin board.

Into War Goods

WASHINGTON, May 9—(AP).—The industry that made $1,000,000,000 worth of wooden and metal furniture last year will be making war goods at the same billion-dollar rae next year, the United States' War Production Board's conversion report showed to-day.

The industry second only to automobile making as a peacetime producer of consumers' durable goods, already holds $500,000,000 worth of war material orders.

Salvage Drive Shaping In Rural Section

HASTINGS, May 9 — (ENS). — Farmers of the Percy district are resurrecting dilapitated farm machinery, old ploughpoints and even horseshoes, in preparation for the monster salvage drive to be staged by the Cobourg Road Red Cross unit, May 11 to 15 inclusive.

All kinds of rags, rubber, paper and metals have been listed as potential salvage — everything except glass bottles and tin cans. It was explained by the secretary, Mrs. Frank Coveney, that those articles comprising the paper category, such as magazines, cardboard, newspapers, etc., should be tied separately in bundles. All salvage should be left at the home of Arthur Beamish on or before Friday, May 15.

Seventeen ladies attended the May meeting of the society held Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Joseph Trotter. Letters acknowledging receipt of parcels sent by the unit recently were received from the following district boys overseas: Phillip Ford, Patrick Doyle, Elmer Richardson, and James Cavanaugh. Material for the six parcels sent overseas during the past month was donated.

It was decided to hold the June meeting at the home of Mrs. Lou Lamey.

McBain Farm Stock Is Sold By Auction

FAIRMOUN, May 9 — (ENS). — Several from the surrounding district attended the auction sale of G. C. McBain on Tuesday afternoon. Most of the implements which were practically new, went very reasonable. The disk seeder, manure spreader, roller and cultivator brought $42 to $48 each, while a sulky plough almost new, $24, and a wagon $22. The highest bid on the three horses was $76, while 10 tons of hay sold for $60.00. Mr. McBain sold all the household furnishings. A couple of three-piece bedroom suites went for $12 and $17, walnut upholstered chairs antiques, $6.00-$16.00; also tables, dishes, pictures, clocks, stoves, and kitchen chairs were in the line-up. A splendid quarter-cut oak sideboard brought $31.00, and one of the bookcases $10.00. It was estimated that the sale would bring upwards of $1,000.

Guard E. Downes, who has been stationed in Lower St. Lawrence, is home on furlough for two weeks.

Mrs. G. Hamilton of Palmerston left yesterday for her home after spending a few days with her father, G. C. McBain.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred McBain of Omemee attended his brother's sale on Tuesday.

See Folly In Hope To Revive Church Interest

TORONTO, May 9 — (CP). — There is no use passing "meaningless resolutions" on surface sins while the hidden layers of national evil play such havoc with the souls of men, Rev. Frank Lawson of Kitchener declared in presenting the report on evangelism at the Presbyterian Synod of Toronto-Kingston at High Park Church.

"In the Presbyterian Church are some of the most conservative and reactionary people," Mr. Lawson said.

He said the church "is like a six-cylinder car with only two cylinders working."

Mr. Lawson argued that it was folly to hope that the war would bring a revival of Christianity and a filling of the churches.

"Good does not result from war. Hitler is no cat's-paw to pull the church's chestnuts out of the fire," he said.

Rev. J. O. Ralston, Parry Sound, said he did not believe that no good ever came out of war.

"After the Napoleonic Wars, missions grew and interest was greatly enhanced," he said. "We may mourn the slaughter and deplore the carnage, but there is going to be something come out of this war."

Week for Evangelism.

Mr. Lawson proposed a week each year be devoted entirely to evangelism in the churches.

Rev. A. Neil Miller of Brampton proposed that General Assembly be asked to give consideration to the question, and that an overture be sent expressing "this court's despair" at the Church's failure.

Toronto Presbytery was reprimanded by Synod for failure to carry out a ruling made in 1940, removing Oshawa to the Presbytery of Lindsay.

A special committee has considered the matter for some time and through its chairman, Rev. J. O. Ralston Synod was asked to "reprimand" the Toronto body.

Rev. Edgar Forman, Clerk of the Toronto Presbytery, immediately announced his intentions of making an appeal to General Assembly.

Toronto did not arrange for the change and the Oshawa congregation is still represented at Toronto Presbytery meetings.

Millions Wasted Educating H.S. Students

ORONTO, May 9 — (CP).—Millions of dollars are wasted annually in Ontario in what he described as a futile attempt to educate high school students, C. C. Carruthers, London, Ont., barrister, told the 11th annual convention of the Associated High School Boards of Ontario yesterday.

He said members of the association faced two problems and one was "to cut off the universities of Ontario from having anything to do with secondary schools," and the other was "to get the Ontario Department of Education away from the idea that the purpose of secondary schools in Ontario is to prepare students for university."

A vocational guidance survey in London, he said, showed 50 per cent of the senior high school students didn't know what they wanted to do. Of London's high school students, 1,000 were in attendance at school merely because the government raised the compulsory school-attendance age from 14 years to 16.

He said he was not criticizing the change in age limit, but he did find fault with the futility of "academic teachings."

He said the city of London wasted several hundred thousand dollars a year in an attempt to teach academics to high school students. He reported that in one large collegiate, in a middle school examination, no more than 30 per cent of the students passed in one subject; 50 per cent passed in five other subjects and in English only 52 per cent passed.

"Not one subject is completed in our secondary schools. The curriculum is planned as ground work for the university and yet only five per cent of the secondary school students go to university. It is a ground work that is useless to the students. How many of you, who studied French at school, can speak French?" he concluded.

Some Experience

CHICAGO, May 9—(AP).—A Red Cross food and nutrition class instructor gave members a questionnaire, on which was this query: "What, if any, educational background in nutrition or home economics have you had?" One woman answered: "Have been eating for many years."

Flags Are Language Of Convoys

A sailor aboard a unit of the U.S. Navy's Atlantic task force is shown chatting by semaphore to ships of a convoy being escorted to its destination. Radios are not used for intership communication except in an extreme emergency, since they might betray positions of ships in the convoy to lurking submarines.

New Pump Unit Boon At Fires

TORONTO, May 9—(CP)—A new type pumping unit developed by the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests may be used by U.S. concerns for air raid precautions work, Hon. N. O. Hipel, Minister of Lands and Forests, announced yesterday. The unit is also being studied in England, with a view to replacing some of the heavier equipment used there.

The pump, driven by a small gasoline motor, weighs less than 100 pounds and was developed by Reg. Johnson and Montague H. Baker of the Department. Baker is now a major with the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps overseas.

"Fighting forest fires on a wide front, a single hose is usually run from the pump for some distance, when a 'siamese' coupling is connected and two lengths of hose run from that to the fire," Johnson explained. "However, this necessitated a man being stationed at the coupling to turn one valve off or on to relieve pressure from either hose as additional lengths needed to be coupled.

"Baker and I figured out a new type of valve actually on the pumping unit which did away with the extra man, and went ahead and made it. This 'relief' valve was something new, and the province has now obtained patent rights on it."

Mission Circle Plans For Refugee Bale

HASTINGS, May 9 — (ENS). — Plans for the completion of the refugee bale and sale of rags to aid the local Red Cross Society were formulated during the business session of the regular Trinity United Church Mission Circle meeting held at the home of Mrs. Walter Dodd.

"Mother's Day" was the timely theme of the worship period under the supervision of Mrs. Clifford M. Baker. Each member answered the roll call by reading an appropriate verse in honor of mother following which Mrs. Baker read the selection, "Mother's Day, 1942."

Mrs. Iden Bonds, Jr., Mrs. Cecil Oliver, Mrs. Grant Sine and Miss Marjorie Sciver discussed the final chapter of the study book. Next meeting of the society will be held June 3 at the home of Mrs. Clarence Lockhart.

CAMPBELLFORD GOLFERS ARE PLANNING TO HAVE 9-HOLE COURSE

Last Year's Ace Loses Form

Bright light of the National League in 1941, Whitlow Wyatt has failed to flicker this season. Winning 22 and losing 10 last season, Wyatt was looked upon by the Dodgers as an ace in the hole, but up to the present he has not regained his form and is complaining of a lame arm.

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

The softball season will be ushered in Monday night when two of the city's four loops will start their long schedules. At Armour Park the Catholic League will begin operations with appropriate ceremonies with a game between St. Peter's and the Cubs starting at 7 o'clock. The two clubs have rounded up strong squads of players and they will both be out gunning for an initial victory so that the opening game should be an interesting battle. Ald. J. E. Sullivan, Max Swanston and Floyd Curtis will take part in the pre-game ceremonies. The other league to start its campaign Monday night is the Church League which has arranged to match the two juvenile finalists of last season, All Saints and St. James in a game at the Ashburnham Bowl, with "Play Ball" sounded at 6.30 o'clock. Dave Leether, Peterborough member of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association executive will assist in getting the 1942 season opened with the proper eclat.

After this column had prepared a paragraph yesterday to the effect that little activity had been reported from the realm of girls' softball along came an announcement from headquarters of the Ladies' Softball League that there will be a re-organization meeting of the league at the Duffus' Bowling Alleys on Monday night at 8.30 o'clock. All clubs interested in girls' softball are cordially invited to have representatives present at this meeting and help get the loop under way for another season. Street reports have it that the C.G.E. may enter two teams instead of one while Westclox are expected to be in line as usual. although Norma Strickland, pitching star of last season is no longer a member of the Big Ben family. Hundreds of new girls are in town as the result of war work demands and it is thought that there should be considerable softball material in the ranks of the newcomers. Monday night's meeting should be well attended so that organization work can be taken up.

Les Burton, defence player with the Peterborough Senior B champions during the past season and one of the best known of Peterborough athletes, starring in hockey, baseball and softball is now Pte. Les Burton of the Canadian Active Service Force. Burton has enlisted with the Prince of Wales Rangers and reported for training at the armouries today. His enlistment means that the Peterborough Hockey Club softball team will be shy a crack outfielder this summer and also means a gap in the hockey team next winter but fans will wish the popular Burton all kinds of luck in the bigger game for which he has signed up. Les had one of his best seasons during the recent campaign that was climaxed with the capture of the Ontario Senior B title by the Petes. Teamed up with Capt. Johnny Godfrey he played steady, sound hockey on the defence all winter and opposing teams found the path to the Petes' nets not an easy one when the Burton-Godfrey combination was in the way.

A Belleville Revival?

A prospect that Belleville may see some baseball this season is hinted at by Ken Colling, Quinte sports scribe who has the following comment in his sport column: "Continuing in baseball we hear there are those sufficiently interested in baseball to organize a team locally. True enough there isn't even the nucleus of a baseball loop in these parts, but games could easily be arranged with Kingston clubs. Down in the Limestone City the ball moguls have disassociated themselves from the Interprovincial loop, but are organizing a strong senior city league backed by such industries as the Canadian Locomotive Company, the Aluminum concern and other industrial plants. There is little doubt but that Oshawa and Peterborough could also muster ball clubs for exhibition games for the time being. Once such teams became active and engaged in competition in holidays or twilight fixtures, a start towards the revival of the game would be assured. Then there are the various district air bases where baseball is engaged, in a mild manner, to consider. The matter of affiliation with any organized body should be left in abeyance until the game in general gains sufficient footing to branch out. The basic success of future baseball lies in the foundation of exhibition games until a principle is established."

* * * * * *

"Locally it was the players who killed the "goose that laid the golden egg" in years past," continues the Colling article. "Players assumed the attitude of being "fed with the proverbial silver spoon." Now the younger element have come to realize that if they wish to play the summer pastime, they must get down and "dig for themselves." Joe Kelleher, Lefty Weeks, "Speedy" St. Louis and a couple of others interested in the diamond pastime have completed a little missionary work towards the re-establishment of baseball in Belleville. Equipment is meagre at the moment, but once the players show sufficient interest in the matter of organization there should be little concern regarding paraphernalia. Insofar as games are concerned we have the assurance of baseball heads in Kingston that ample competition will be assured. The answer now lies in the hands of those desirous of actually participating in the game."

Another Marchildon Masterpiece

Phil Marchildon, the Penetang right-hander with Connie Mack's Athletics, who pitched a two-hit shutout against Detroit a short time ago came back with another twirling master-piece yesterday to hold the hard-hitting Boston Red Sox to five scattered hits and one run as a result the A's scored their first win of the season from the Croninites. The final count was 2 to 1 with Marchildon outpitching an excellent effort by Charley Wagner who yielded only seven blows. Marchildon who will be 27 next October is evidently in for a great season in the American loop. Last year he appeared in 30 games for the A's and finished up with a record of 10 wins and 15 losses. He has opened the current campaign in great style and threatens to leave last year's mark far behind. His triumph yesterday tumbled Boston back into third place, half a game behind Cleveland Indians and a full game off the pace of the New York Yanks. Both Indians and Yanks were idle yesterday.

Brooklyn Dodgers nosed out the New York Giants 7 to 6 yesterday in a Navy Relief Fund game that saw a record crowd and a little of everything in the way of baseball. Whit Wyatt got the credit for the Dodgers' win although he did not finish the argument and the loss was chalked up against Melton. The game was featured by Dolph Camilli's seventh home-run of the season. There were plenty of homers, too, at Cincinnati where the Cards behind steady pitching by Lon Warneke defeated the Reds with Elmer Riddle on the mound 5 to 2. Enos Slaughter and Ray Sanders hit for the circuit for the winners and Ray Lamanno and Frank McCormick had round-trip blows for Cincinnati. Rip Sewell who had beaten the Chicago Cubs six times in a row made it seven victories yesterday when the Pittsburg Pirates won a 6 to 4 decision. Sewell was in the hole frequently and was touched up for eleven hits but he bore down in the pinches.

Sporting Chili Con Carne: Doug Mowry, Peterborough boy who caught for St. Catharines last season has been granted a transfer to Welland.... Phil Marchildon stopped the hitting streak of Bobby Doerr of the Red Sox yesterday....The Penetang boy also shattered the mastery that Charley Wagner the Boston twirler had exercised over the A's. Up to yesterday Wagner had beaten Connie Mack's team nine consecutive times....Incidentally Marchildon who retired the last 19 batters in his previous game against Detroit started out yesterday by getting the first 10 Red Sox to give him a record of 29 men retired in a row....Toronto Maple Leafs have secured the services of Pitcher Nick Strincevich of the Pittsburg Pirates on option....Niagara Falls Furnishers' senior ball club has signed Ralph Hammond, former Toronto Maple Leaf southpaw....Wally Stanowski and Pete Langelle may enlist in the Winnipeg Light Infantry....Final date for entries in Men's City Softball League is Monday night at eight at Duffus' Bowling Alleys....Manager Ab Delahaye of the Westclox girls' team has called a practice of his squad for the Ashburnham Bowl at 6.15 o'clock Monday evening....Only 1163 spectators saw Cincinnati and St. Louis Cards tangle at Cincinnati yesterday. At Brooklyn 42,882 fans paid to see the Bums and Giants battle and contributed nearly $60,000 to the Navy Relief Society's funds.

Nursery Club Will Open Monday, May 25

CAMPBELLFORD, May 9. (ENS) —Plans to inaugurate what they have every reason to believe will be the biggest season they have had in their short, three-year history, were made by the Nursery Golf Club at their annual meeting here Friday. They not only plan a longer season this year (opening date May 25) but also have the assurance of a larger membership and the prospect of two more holes being added to the seven-hole course.

It was not until June of last year that the golfers began for the season and the proposed earlier opening is but one more mark of the enthusiasm with which the local golfers have taken to the game. Their zeal of Friday's meeting was in strong contrast to the annual meeting called a month ago (too early in the opinion of some members) and all but three or four ardents looked at the year's prospects dismally. At that time they viewed the shortage of balls, members and money coupled with what looked like an overwhelming amount of work to be done on the course, as writing finish to golf here for the duration. Now, with weather more conducive to golf and members enthusiastic they are looking for a 36 per cent increase in membership over last year's 55 and plan to add two extra holes at the same time doing some of the preparatory work on the expensive matter of greens for them. Expenses of between $1,100 and $1,200 which disheartened golfers a month ago have now ceased to be a problem and they hope with slightly increased fees to end the year with a possible surplus. The opening dance for the members will be held at Woodlawn Inn on May 20th. There was no change in the executive line up with President P. C. Denyes; vice-president, H. B. Longmore, M.D.; and secretary, J. F. Fink, all being re-elected. W. Peloquin was made chairman of the rules committee and Mrs. R. J. Bale will head the players committee.

CRAFTY BALDY
CHAPTER XXI

"It's like this." Nigel had found out all he could from Baldy before calling a meeting. "She wanted a chance. Baldy thought she was at least as good as average from what he say last night and that there was a possibility she might be better. She wanted a break and he's spotted a job in the chorus line of some dump in New York.

"Did he tell you the name?"

"No. Some cheap place, probably on the East Side."

Fay was thoughtful. "Baldy knows every joint in town, the good as well as the dumps, but I don't see how he could get her anything as easily as that unless it is a hole in the wall. I'll find out about it."

Michael turned to her with a slow smile. "He's after your blood too. Maybe Baldy isn't bad on the surface, but underneath he's just plain parasite."

"You read my thoughts," muttered Myra. Her fact was gloomy. "I knew I was taking a risk when I brought here out of the cotton-wool, but who'd have thought she could find trouble up here?"

"Wait till Danny hears about this," said Michael with a rueful smile. "He'll go after Baldy with a gun."

"And he'll blame me," said Myra. "Danny is the father of the Mack family," she announced to the others. "Noted for his impulsiveness rather than his forethought when it comes to disciplinary action on his family."

"What shall we do?" said Nigel.

"Simple enough," said Nigel. "Spike his guns. Stop him and we stop her. But why shouldn't she have her chance?"

"A chance is all right." Fay's voice was serious. "But she is only a kid and she'll be starting the hard way. Believe me, I've seen so much of it. I was lucky and went the easy way, but I wouldn't want a sister of mine to have the hard road. Baldy is straight enough. He does his best according to his lights. But I don't like his lights. Neither would you.

"The point is," said Nigel, "we ought to solve this things so that nobody is hurt—pleasant feelings all round and all that kind of thing."

Michael grinned at Nigel. "You and I could fix Baldy."

"What about Peggy?"

"She'll have to lump it," said Myra. "Why do I always land in other people's troubles? They chase me even when I'm trying to get a vacation.

'Can't be helped," said Michael. "Any suggestions for a plan?"

In the house Baldy wiped the perspiration from his brow. It gave him a sense of power and fulfilment to be working over an act again, even if it was with the greenest of green kids. The idea was glimmering in his brain that through Peggy he could hold on to Fay. How or why he did not as yet know, but since they all were up here together they must be linked some way—maybe relatives—and if he was going to get Fay over this run-out spell he would have to play every card in his bag of tricks.

"That's swell, kid," he said at last. "In that line-up that Benny's got you'll stick out like green grass in a bunch of dried hay. He'll have to pull you out in your own act or fire you, and that's your funeral. Come on, let's go over that again."

Then Marie came in and Peggy paused. "Have you seen any of the others, Marie?" she asked.

Marie said that she thought she had seen them all going into the rockery.

Peggy stopped. A warning signal flashed in her brain. At home, whenever the family gathered in conference it meant trouble for someone.

"Wait for me, Baldy," she said, and slipped out of the room, through the kitchen and out of the back of the house.

Peggy made her way cautionsly to the back of the rockery which was screened from the house by bushes. Here she looked and listened. She ran back to the house a little later and grabbed a surprised Baldy by the arm.

"Quick, Baldy, let's get out of here into the woods. There's a plot on foot to stop you getting Fay back."

Baldy had begun to acquire a grudging admiration for Peggy's shrewdness and felt that if she didn't start using it too much on him, he might be able to use it to his own advantage.

"I know," she said. "We'll go to the island! They won't be able to see us there and they won't think of looking there."

A quarter of an hour later, Peggy tied up the blue canoe on the farther side of the island, and led Baldy to a shaded rock where he could sit down an smoke one of his long cigars in peace. Then she told him what she had overheard. True to her own nature she only told him the part that applied to Fay, that they were conspiring to cheat him of his legitimate prey. She did not mention that they were apparently much more concerned about preventing Peggy from going to New York. But Baldy was no fool when it came to cunning, and he read between the lines. He gathered that there was probably more to the conference than Peggy had confided and he began to figure that if he could use Peggy as a bargaining point he might be able to persuade Fay to change her mind—on condition that he cancel his offer to Peggy. It was up to him, therefore, to add fuel to the fire of Peggy's enthusiasm for a chance in New York.

He led her on, let her speak, encouraged her with a question here and there, and before long had a fair picture of the situation.

Briefly, it was that they were all against him—not personally, but as an influence; that at all costs, Peggy was not going to New York and that he must be kept away from plaguing Fay until such time as she left. In other words, he was to be strung along and ditched.

Baldy rolled his cigar from one side of his mouth to the other and laughe dto himself. If they could put on an act he was pretty sure that he could put on a better one. They were a nice bunch of kids, but when it came to fooling a man like Baldy Brien, they were upon against something not included in their nursery rhymes.

"That's fine, sweetheart," he said to Peggy, when he had found out all he needed to know. "What we need now is a plan. You want to swim. O.K. You have your swim, and I'll do some thinking."

Winning Teams Given Awards

Members of the championship basketball and volleyball teams of the Y.M.C.A. were guests of honor at an enjoyable dinner Friday night when the season's trophies were presented. Members of the Ministerial Association and the Y.M.C.A. board of directors were among other guests in attendance.

George Scott made the presentations. The Dominion Life trophy, emblematic of the House League championship was received by Jack Craig, captain of the winning Hurricanes and the Chester Kemp Memorial Trophy for the City League championship was handed over to Doug. McPherson, captain of the victorious Quakers. The volleyball trophy was presented to A. Dryland, pilot of the team that won the league title.

The guest speaker was Murray Brooks, Y.M.C.A. secretary at Montreal and formerly "Y" secretary in Ceylon and Burma.

Mr. Brooks, who spent many years in the far east and is thoroughly familiar with conditions there, gave a most informative and interesting address, dealing with Burma and its people, the Burma road and other features of the war situation in that area, including the work done there by the Y.M.C.A. In a few days, Mr. Brooks said, the rainy season would arrive in Burma and for many months war operations would be decidedly difficult and the use of airplanes virtually impossible. The rains were so heavy and the atmosphere so thick that flying was almost out of the question while the dirt roads soon became impassable.

The speaker was introduced by F. E. Johnston. The chairman of the most enjoyable affair was Dr. H. M. Yelland.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SCOTT YOUNG
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

TORONTO, May 9 — (CP). — Greatest day in Canadian sport history probably will come during Army Week, announced yesterday in the Commons by Defence Minister Ralston.

The Army Week program primarily will be to honor the Canadian soldier and our soldiers like a spot of comfort and a dash of entertainment with their homage. So if you think you've ever seen a heavy Canadian sports schedule, wait until every military district branches into a miniature Olympics. There'll be track and field, baseball, boxing—the works.

Few details of Army Week have been announced beyond the dates (June 28-July 5). Most likely choice for sports is Monday, opening day. It has been designated Soldier's Day. There are other possibilities. Lou (Halifax Chronicle) Zwerling hears July 1 has been chosen.

MARCHILDON'S 5-HITTER GIVES A's FIRST WIN OF YEAR OVER SOX

Boston's Defeat Leaves Yanks On Top

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

New York Yankees still are in sole possession of first place in the American League today, but they owe it all to Philadelphia Athletics and Phil Marchildon.

All American League teams were idle yesterday except the Athletics and Boston Red Sox, who charged into Philadelphia with the idea of wiping out the half-game margin between themselvves and the Yanks by slapping down the lowly A's.

But Marchildon, ace of Connie Mack's pitching staff, had an idea of his own. He tossed a five-hitter at the Red Sox to give the Athletics their first victory of the year over the Boston club, 2-1.

Not only did the defeat keep the Sox from grabbing a share of first place, but it knocked them out of a second-place tie with Cleveland and into the third hole, half a game behind the Indians and a full game behind the Yanks.

In fashioning his fourth triumph against two defeats, Marchildon, native of Penetanguishene, Ont., who came up to the A's in 1940 from Toronto of the International league, struck out six men and issued only three bases on balls, two of them to Ted Williams. He picked up where he left off last Sunday, when he retired the last 19 men in order in a two-hitter against Detroit, and set down the first 10 Red Sox to face him before two singles and a walk robbed him of a shutout.

Charlie Wagner, who entered the game with three victories and no losses, yielded only seven hits in going the route for Boston, but the A's pushed over both their runs in the third inning on a pair of singles, a walk and an infield out.

Four Runs In 5th Whip Orioles 6-3 For Leafs

By The Canadian Press

Montreal, which represented the International League in the Little World series last year and developed such players as Ed Head and Chet Kehn for Brooklyn Dodgers, is showing signs of following the style this season.

The Royals have three mound prospects in Joe Hatten, Max Macon, who had trials with St. Louis and the Dodgers, and Ed Spaulding, relief specialist.

Hatten, a southpaw, throttled the heavy-hitting Newark Bears yesterday with three hits to hang up a 6-1 victory. It was Hatten's second three-hit victory of the season.

Leading the 10-hit attack against Al Gerheauser was rookie outfielder Emile Showfety with a home run and a triple.

After four days of inactivity, Buffalo Bisons won their third straight game as they defeated Syracuse Chiefs, 5-3. The triumph moved the herd into sixth place, as Rochester Red Wings lost to Jersey City Giants, 3-0.

It was Andy Sierra's first start of the year for Buffalo and, although relieved by George Barley in the eighth, he received credit for the victory. Dutch Meyer, Bob Garbark, and Ed Kobesky hit homers for the Bisons. All came with the bases empty.

Bobby Coombs of the Giants allowed the Red Wings seven hits, three of which were gathered by Dusty Cooke. Mar Surkont, Rochester starter, was forced to retire in the seventh because of a pulled muscle in his pitching arm.

Toronto Maple Leafs defeated Baltimore Orioles, 6-3, scoring four runs in the fifth inning.

Bill Brandt, Toronto pitcher, nung up his fourth victory of the year although hit freely.

Ruffing Thinks War Ends 300-Game Hopes

NEW YORK, May 9—Charley Ruffing, veteran New York Yankee pitcher who leads active major league hurlers with 247 victories, thinks that the war may end his cherished dream of joining the charmed circle of 300-game winners.

"A couple or three more years might put me within reach of the mark, but I'm afraid that baseball might be washed up for the duration after this season," Ruffing said.

Transportation Difficult

"There isn't any question in my mind but what people will still come out, but the big problem is going to be transportation. Here in New York, with all the subway service, it won't be so bad. But in other cities, where the parks are in outlying sections, it's going to be tough for them to get to the park. Then, too, there's the problem of transporting the ball clubs."

Ruffing has started his eighteenth season in the majors with three victories in four starts, to take a lifetime lead over Ted Lyons of the White Sox. The 41-year-old Chicago veteran has won 246 games, but has been in the majors two years more than Ruffing.

Big Red, a native of Granville, Ill., was up briefly with the Boston Red Sox in 1924 before being optioned to Dover. He came back in 1925 and stuck, serving the Red Sox until he was traded to the Yanks in 1930.

Sox Are Birthday Victims

Red celebrated his thirty-seventh birthday Sunday with a 6-4 victory over the White Sox.

The big, genial soft-spoken redhead, whose hair is thinning just a little, accepts philosophically, however the thought that the war may prevent his going on to 300 victories.

"Should baseball suspend for the duration, I might find it too hard to come back," Ruffing said. "But after all, the only thing of any importance now is the winning of the war."

Derby Winner Confers With Stablemate

Shut Out, RIGHT, Kentucky Derby winner, and his stablemate, Devil Diver, got their heads together as they arrived at Baltimore to go into training for the Preakness at Pimlico today. The pair were shipped from Louisville to Baltimore soon after Shut Out's triumph in the derby.

Shut Out Called 8-5 Favorite In The Preakness

By MASON BRUNSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

BALTIMORE, Md., May 9.—(AP)—Shut Out, the Kentucky Derby winner, will try to make it two in a row today against the best of the three-year-olds but prospects were for a slambang battle in the widest open Preakness Stakes in years.

Shut Out and nine others, including his stablemate, Devil Diver, were named for this 52nd running of the Maryland Jockey Club's historic race, with the winner due to pick up $56,000 or $58,000—the richest purse since Victorian won $60,000 for Harry Payne Whitney in 1928.

A crowd of 40,000 to 45,000 is expected to witness the mile and three sixteenth event at 4:55 p.m. EDT.

There is no Omaha, no Menelech, no War Admiral, no Whirlaway, in this Preakness, leaving the run as wide open as any renewal in the history of the race dating back to 1873.

Mrs. Payne Whitney's entry of Shut Out and Devil Diver was favored at 8-5 in the overnight call-over.

Only one of the 10 probable starters was deemed doubtful. That one is Warren Wright's Sun Again an early favorite for the Derby before Trainer Ben Jones scratched him because he was short in conditioning.

If Sun Again goes there'll be three fresh horses trying to keep Shut Out from repeating. The others are Maryland-bred Colchis owned by R. Sterling Clark the international sportsman, and English-bred Domingo, running for Louis B. Mayer, the movie tycoon.

Colchis won the Chesapeake Trial and the Chesapeake Stakes and never has been out of the money until he faded in the Wood. But this time he'll be ridden by George Woolf, who booted him to his major victories.

If all 10 horses go, the Preakness will have a gross value of $78,310. If Shut Out, Devil Diver, Apache, Sun Again, Alsab or Domingo wins, the victor will get $58,175. The purse for Requested, Fair Call, Valdina Orphan would be $56,810 for they were supplementary entries.

Dodgers Upset Giants 7-6 Before 42,822

NEW YORK, May 9 — (AP). — Three games entertained the fans in the National League and all ran true to form with the Brooklyn Dodgers, Pittsburg Pirates and St. Louis Cardinals—the big three in the standings—coming out on top.

In Brooklyn, the first twilight game in the history of the majors established an Ebbets Field record of 42,822 paid admissions as the Dodgers tripped New York Giants 7-6.

The game, first of 16 to be staged in the two league this season for the benefit of the armed forces, produced $59,859 for the Navy Relief Society.

Two runs behind in the last half of the third inning, the Dodgers knocked Cliff Melton out of the box with a four-run assault and went on to give Whitlow Wyatt his first decision of the season. Wyatt, a 22-game winner in 1941, got through the opening frame for the first time in three starts, but had to have help in the seventh when his control went sour.

Dolph Camilli's seventh home run of the year in the seventh inning turned out to be the margin of victory for the Brooks.

Pittsburg remained a game and a half behind the Dodgers by whipping Chicago Cubs 6-4. Rip Sewell went all the way in pitching his fourth victory against one defeat, although he was tagged for 11 hits, the same number the Bucs collected off three Cub hurlers.

The third-place St. Louis Cardinals cashed in on home runs by Enos Slaughter and Ray Sanders and the eight-hit pitching of Lon Warneke for a 5-2 decision over Cincinnati Reds. Warneke kept the Reds in check except for homers by Frank McCormick and Ray Lamanno.

The Pirates came from behind twice to tie the score, once on a home by Vince DiMaggio, and pushed across the winning runs in the seventh on a double by Jack Barrett, singles by DiMaggio and Jim Wasdell and a sacrifice by Elbie Fletcher.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

Today is Mothers' Day and from all corners of the civilized world this day will be remembered by all true sons and daughters. In all walks of life "mother" plays the most important part, and in our lawn bowling organization Mother takes her place. And so today we pay tribute, not only to the mothers affiliated with our club, but to mothers all over the world.

To Our Mother on Mother's Day

Three cheers for Mother! She's the one
On whom we most depend;
The first to praise us, last to blame—
Our never-failing friend!

And so this comes to tell you—
And to make it very plain—
That you're the one we'll always love
With all our might and main!

Sports Spice

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.,
Associated Press sport writer.

NEW YORK, May 9.—(AP)—Down in Baltimore they'll tell you that last week's little race at Churchill Downs was just a tune-up for today's Preakness—and if you listen long enough they'll almost prove it...For instance, 15 started in the Derby and only seven of them were entered for Preakness (a couple weren't eligible) and you can count on your fingers the Derby winners that have come on to take the big Maryland race...Headline: "Durocher to retire to bench"—the umps done told him.

Today's Guest Star

Deak Morse, St. Johnsbury (Vt.) Caledonian-Record (May 6): "Absurdity of the Day: How can we possibly speak of the 'gallant' Yankees the 'gallant' Shut Out and such when on this day the mighty men of Corregidor, many of them heroes of the Battle of Bataan, have finally given their last ounce of devotion?"

Military Intelligence

Baseball writers can't come right out and say its raining these days so they have figured out some amazing ways of getting the idea over (usually after enough time has passed so it doesn't make any difference)...A Chicago scribe wrote from Philadelphia: "Unusual conditions arose in the second inning and the umpires called time, fearing the loss of a crease in their pants. After a short wait, the crease, umpires and ball players returned to the field, thus revealing no military information to the enemy."...And Gene Kemper of the Topeka (Kans.) Daily Capital put it this way: "There are things which cannot be mentioned in the papers these days which help explain Marty Errante's ineffectiveness at Springfield Tuesday night..He's no spitball pitcher."

Betty Woods Sets High Jump Mark

TORONTO, May 9—A record and an upset were the harvest of last night's women's Ontario indoor track meet at the Coliseum. A "paper" house of around 1,200 soldiers and civilians turned out. Betty Woods lithesome Laurel junior track star, was the lone record-breaker, when she moved the standards to 4 feet 8¾ inches in the high jump. This mark not only bested the junior mark, but toppled the existing senior record held by Joan Davis, St. Catharines, as well. Betty made it a double when she won the standing broad jump.

Viola Myers, Laurels, produced the upset when she came out of the pack in the junior 50-yard event to just nip clubmate Doris Wright, the Canadian junior outdoor champion. Viola's time of 6 6-10 seconds is an automatic Ontario record.

Isabell McKean, St. Clair's, making her first senior indoor appearance since leaving intermediate company, proved equal to the task in winning the 50-yards from Helen Morrison, Lakesides. She also scored a victory in the standing broad jump.

The R.C.A.F. Women's Division, M.D. 6, swept the military events in competition with the Canadian Women's Army Corps, M.D. 2. They won the relay with Bernice Martin, former Canadian 200-metre champion taking down honors in the sprint.

Flight Sergeant Lightfoot, fleet-footed air force speedster, fell by the wayside in the men's military 50-yard sprint. He could do not better than a badly beaten third to the winner, Jack Parry another fast-stepping flier.

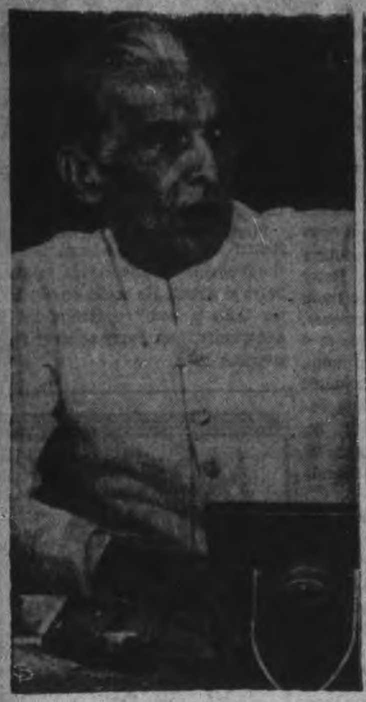
India's Leaders Said "No" But Shells Pour Out



Even though the leaders of India did not accept Sir Stafford Cripps' unity plan, there are many among India's millions who are working in arsenals and machine shops to make war materials for the United Nations. This boy, like many others, was taught by an instructor from England who was sent to India as part of a vast training program. He is making shell casings in a big munitions factory. At LEFT is a new picture of Ali Mohamed Jinnah, head of the Moslem League which fears that the numerically superior Hindoos would leave Moslems as an oppressed minority in an independent India. Jinnah was cool to Sir Stafford's proposals.

Q-Boat Surprises U-Boat Nazi Furious

LONDON, May 9—(CP).—A German submarine commander broadcasting over the Berlin radio said last night that the Allies had launched a Q-boat campaign against Axis U-boats.

Q-boats were developed during the last war to counteract the submarine menace. They were trawlers and other small craft carrying heavy arms but so concealed that the submarines were caught unawares. The commander in Berlin told of having similar experiences in this war.

His crew, the commander said, sighted a small steamship in the Atlantic off the American Coast. So innocent appearing was the cargo boat, he added, that he did not thing it worth while to launch a torpedo. He brought his craft to the surface planning to sink it by gunfire.

"When we approached the enemy to give him his death blow, we were greeted with a hail of gunfire," the German officer said. "Heavy guns and machine-guns which had been hidden by artificial sides and other objects of the cargo boat suddenly came into action. Depth charges were hurled at us.

"So clever had been the manoeuvring of the cargo boat that it caught us unawares, and as it was, our command bridge was hit by shrapnel.

"I was furious when I realized that this trap might have cost us another U-boat. For only by a miracle were we able to crash-dive and escape from the heavy fire without losing our boat."

Viscount Gort Takes Over Rule At Malta

LONDON, May 9—(CP)—Viscount Gort, commander-in-chief of Gibraltar, has been named governor and commander-in-chief of the bomb-battered Island of Malta, it was announced today.

He succeeds Sir William George Sheldon Dobbie, who resigned.

Tiger Gort, 55-yera-old former Chief of the Imperial Staff, commanded the British Expeditionary Force in France at the beginning of the war. He has been at his Gibraltar post since April, 1941.

When Lord Gort goes to Malta he will take the George Cross which King George awarded collectively to the islanders last month for their heroism under continued Axis bombings.

Sir William, 62, has been at Malta since 1940, first as temporary lieutenant-general but since May, 1941, as governor and commander-in-chief.

Sources here said Sir William would return to England for a rest after weathering more than 2,000 Axis air attacks.

Japs Reported Rushing Men Into Manchuria

LONDON, May 9—(CP).—Reuters news agency reported today the Japanese are rushing troops into Manchuria, according to information in Chungking. The Japanese north China garrisons were reported being filled up with troops of the Wang Ching-Wei Chinese puppet regime.

The dispatch said reports from North China indicated the Japanese hoped to be ready to make a move from Manchukuo (Manchuria) against Siberia some time next month.

Wang now is in Tsingking, the Manchukuo capital, on a Japanese-sponsored visit of state to emperor Kang Teh of Manchukuo.

Wang's chief of staff made a detour en route to Hsinking earlier this week to call on Gen. Seishiro Itagaki, commander of the Japanese army in Korea.

When the Hsinking visit was undertaken it was suggested in informed quarters that it might be connected with impending Japanese moves in the north, presumably against Russia.

(The Japanese might make some use of troops of their two puppet regimes, Nanking and Hsinking, for services of supply or other rearguard duties.)

Sees Education A-1 Priority In Winning War

TORONTO, May 9.—If the United Nations are to win the war a three-fold objective must be realized, declared Joseph McCulley, principal of Pickering College, in an address before the Associated High School Boards of Ontario at the King Edward Hotel last night.

The points of the objective outlined by the speaker are (1) survival of the democracies, (2) to save those values which make civilized living worthwhile, and (3) to determine a peace of such character as to guarantee transmission of those values to posterity. All three, he said, must be obtained at the same time.

To accomplish the objective, the speaker asserted that the business of educating youth must be considered as an "A-1 priority. "We must be certain," he said, "that the 'seed corn' is saved, and to do this we must have efficient teachers in our schools."

He appealed to his listeners, members of boards of education from all sections of the Province, "to recognize the task, not as one on which to economize or to be classed as of secondary importance. The obligation is on us to prepare the younger generation for the responsibilities with which they will be faced after the war," he stated.

He referred to the "tremendous increase in juvenile deliquency," for which he blamed the lack of sufficient competent teachers. "All the Mr. Chips" in the country are not capable of replacing the teachers who are enlisting in the forces or taking Government jobs, he declared.

He said that competent teachers were already practically impossible to find, particularly those able to teach mathematics ,science and commerce. Quoting R. A. Butler, president of the Board of Education for Great Britain, Principal McCulley said that a limit had been placed on the number of teachers in Great Britain who could enlist in the forces.

"The teaching profession has contributed to the forces as much of its share as could be safely permitted, and no further inroads are contemplated," he quoted.

Unless we prepare for a better democracy after the war, then we have lost the war no matter what the result of the military war is," he said, declaring that the teaching profession was of more importance at the present time than ever in its history. "What we do today will effect the whole pattern of living for millions of people not yet born," the speaker said.

Ordinary Driver Willing Car Be Taken Over

TORONTO, May 9—If the aCnadian government wishes to commandeer civilian motorists' automobiles for war purposes on a compensation basis—as being heralded in Washington—it can have them, and welcome, a survey yesterday indicated.

You had to get right down to the ordinary chap with a car to get the feeling about such a possibility. Any spokesman for an organization, while assenting that Canadians would not shrink from any sacrifice, was inclined to be too technical—"Who said so?" and "Isn't there over half a million new cars frozen in the United States?" and "The thing is too hypothetical to comment upon."

But not so the ordinary man with the automobile, who came right back with a declaration of concurrence which in many cases was too forceful to permit of verbatim quotation. The question put was: "How much of a kick would you put up if the Government commandeers your car for war purposes on a compensation basis?"

They answered:

No. 1—I would assume they needed it and it would be OK. with me.

No. 2—I would be quite willing they should take the thing. I think we would be better off without cars —spending a whole lot of money running around to nowhere.

No. 3—They can have it any time they want it.

No. 4—I wouldn't care a hang.

No. 5—If they need it I would not give a hoot—so long as there is equality of sacrifice.

No. 6—I wish they would. And they don't need to pay for it until after the war, when the motoring restrictions are off.

Maximum Prices Set On Pulp Across Canada

OTTAWA, May 9—(CP). — The Wartime Prices and Trade Board announced yesterday that maximum prices have been set for pulpwood produced for use in Canada by any farmer, settler or operator in Ontario except in the Kenora and Rainy River districts. Regulations also have been issued defining legitimate charges by operators, licensed brokers or pulpwood dealers.

The regulations were made by order issued by the Timber Administration of the board, headed by Timber Controller A. S. Nicholson.

In District No. 1—All sections of the province south of a line drawn due east from Capreol to the Ottawa River, and to the east of a line due south from Capreol to Georgian Bay, the maximum price f.o.b. cars for rough spruce is $7.50 a cord, peeled spruce $10, and peeled poplar $7.

In District No. 2—The districts of Algoma, Temiskaming and Cochrane, those sections of the districts of Sudbury and Nipissing not included in District No. 1, ceiling prices f.o.b. cars for peeled poplar are $6.50 per cord, rough spruce $6.75 and peeled spruce $9.25. Highest lawful price for rough spruce delivered to pulp mill storage is $7.75 a cord and afloat in main streams $6.75. The ceiling for peeled spruce is $2.50 a cord extra in each case.

Thunder Bay Prices

Thunder Bay is District No. 3 with the ceiling price for popular $6.50 a cord f.o.b. cars or afloat in main streams, and $7 delivered to storages at pulp mills. Rough spruce is set at $6.75 f.o.b. cars, $7 afloat in main streams and $8.50 delivered to storages at mills. The ceiling on peeled spruce is $2.50 per cord more in each case.

Spruce pulpwood is defined in the order as " a mixture of spruce and balsam, the larger percentage of which being spruce, the balsam content permitted being that as established over the years by local trade practice."

Prices for jack pine are set at $1 per cord less than the price for spruce in all cases.

Ceiling prices for large operators, described in the order as "any person carrying on regular timber operations on timber licenses or leases, or on freehold lands in Ontario, and who produces in excess of 200 cords of pulpwood per annum," may not be more than 15 per cent. above the price in the schedules. In every instance such increases must be approved by the timber administrator.

Licensed brokers or dealers are entitled to add to the maximum prices the usual brokerage or fees established by trade practice in the different districts for financing and handling pulpwood for resale.

Similar orders were issued last week covering pulpwood production in Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia.

Stirring Up Fight

New Delhi, May 9 (CP)

THE Government of India launched a vigorous campaign today to create a fighting spirit in this country whose major political group—the Congress party—decided a week ago that the only way to oppose a threatened Japanese invasion would be by "non-violence non-operation."

Morning newspapers carried full-page advertisements warning the public that work, not words, would stop the Japanese.

The same theme will be featured in broadcasts, posters and additional advertisements, a government spokesman said.

Aussie War Minister Tries Garand Rifle

Francis M. Forde, Australian Army Minister, sights a Garand rifle over the shoulder of an American soldier during a visit to a U.S. army camp somewhere in New South Wales. The Garand rifle, with its increased fire power, is perhaps the greatest single innovation in the equipment of the U.S. soldier in the present war.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

CARS DAMAGED.

Two cars were damaged this morning in a collision at Lock and Lansdowne Streets. Fred Carpenter, R.R. 1, Keene, was travelling west on Lansdowne Street and Harry Short north on Lock Street, and the two vehicles came into collision at the intersection. No one was injured.

ENGINEERING PROBLEM

A resident of Wartime Housing recently moved to Peterborough from Toronto ran into a problem this week. She had her piano shipped to the city, and the workmen managed to get it into the kitchen but the door to the living room was too small to admit the piano. A local man dismantled the instrument, moved it into the living room, and set it up again.

Residents in the west end report that a farmer was seen wheeling a tractor out McDonnel street last Sunday, and he was using the tractor to tow a cart loaded with milk can. Maybe the car ran out of gas, and the farmer decided he was aiding the war effort by delivering the milk.

MORE WILD GEESE

Many Peterborough people were awakened this morning by the loud honking of a low flying flock of geese. One woman counted up to 200 in the flock and then gave up. It is believed to be one of the largest flocks seen passing over the district in recent years, and is the third large migration noticed in the past ten days.

DISCHARGE PIN

A soldier from the north country who had been discharged from the Engineers was noticed wearing a discharge button on his civilian clothing on Friday. The button is about the size of the Canadian Legion badge, and has a prominent red Maple Leaf. Written on the bottom of the badge is the statement "Application for Enlistment—Canada."

BOY IS ARRESTED.

The fifteen-year-old boy who made his escape from the Children's Aid Society Shelter at Lindsay after being arrested here, was taken into custody this morning on Highway 7 between Omeme and Lindsay, the Peterborough police department has been informed by Provincial Constable McBrien of Lindsay.

CUTTING OFF SIGNS.

It is practically a sure thing that neon signs will be out off this fall, when the days shorten, and industrial demand for power increases. At that time several large new munitions industries will be going into production, and new power developments will not just meet the increased demand for power.

TULIPS DESTROYE

Vandals destroyed a number of tulips in the beds in Victoria Park overnight. The flowers had evidently been pulled up in sheer wantonness and then tossed away.

GETS NEW SIGN.

Churchill restaurant joined the ranks of the neon sign advertisers this week, with the erection of a huge electric sign outside the building. This will perhaps be the last one to go up for some time.

TWO ARE FINED.

Two young men who indulged too deeply in a paynight celebration were lined up before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning on drunk charges and discovered that they had been working a considerable time during the past week to be in a position to pay a fine of $10 and $7.50 costs.

ADDRESS INCORRECT

A news story from Cobourg published in the Examiner this week, indicated that one Wallace Coombs, who was charged with theft of jewels lived at 283 Park street, Peterborough. This should have read 283½ Park street, Peterborough.

ANOTHER FLIER

Ed Riley, local merchant, whose youthful appearance masks the fact that he is a veteran of the last war, is beginning to think his store is a recruiting office. Now another of his clerks has joined the air force. He is Bun Armstrong, who is training as an observer and was home on leave a few days ago.

INSPECTION MAY 23

Naval cadets at the Grove School, Lakefield will be inspected by Captain T. C. Holmes, district cadet officer on May 23. The cadets rated with the best in Eastern Ontario will put on a show that should make them contenders for the cadet trophies in competition in this military district. Peterborough people are hoping that either the P.C.V.S. or the Grove will win at least one of the awards.

A RURAL VISITOR

Workmen at Gray's garage on Reid street report that a plump partridge found its way into the city on Friday. The bird perched on a tree near the garage unconcerned by the heavy traffic, and after a short rest winged its way in the direction of Jackson Park.

TOO INCLUSIVE REPORT

Dr. J. E. Middleton informed the Examiner this morning that he had not sold his entire ten acres of North Monaghan property to J. G. Wharry. "I have sold the house and the property back of it," he said, "but not the part of it from my house to the road. People who might be interested in building out there would get the idea that I had sold all the lots east of the house."

StageCoachDays Looming For Apsley Run

LAKEFIELD, May 9.—(ENS)—A harkening back to days of a quarter century or more ago in the village has been aroused in reliable reports that the Government has approached Walter Ferguson of the Peterborough-Apsley-Bancroft Bus Line on the question of handling the run with horses.

Along with visions of the old stage coach days it brings out sharply just how serious the rubber and gasoline situation really is when official thoughts turn to reviving use of steel-tired horse-drawn vehicles on a 70-mile run.

There were many who refused to believe it was possible until earlier days were recalled and some older hands remembered when the stage made a run to Apsley—though seldom to Bancroft, another 28 miles.

"Surely before the Government will put horses on a bus line run they'll cut out pleasure driving," said one citizen—adding as an afterthought—"perhaps that is closer than we suspect."

Dr. Michael Kennedy was possibly the last operator of a stage coach line to Apsley, the team pulling out from the village about nine in the morning and reaching the northern hamlet around suppertime. The covered coach handled seven or eight passengers and an assortment of luggage. A fresh relay of horses was swung on at Haultain and the jaunt over the old winding road continued.

Slightly better time might be made these days with an improved highway to travel as one thinks back to the twisting narrow "little-more-than-a-trail" road with its steep hills and solid bush surroundings. But a horse has its limits and with a team on a heavily loaded coach its not much more than four or five miles an hour, compared to the present 40-mile limit, and a time of an hour and a half Peterborough to Apsley.

With this in mind one citizen who apparently had at times waited with impatience and some grumbling if the mail were a few minutes late, thought perhaps he'd be more cheerful about the whole affair in future as long as the mail was coming in under motor power—as apparently the query to the bus owner was regarding the mail contract.

Two of the large livery stable owners of the early 1900's were George Hendren and Jack Madill, the latter who sold out to Dr. Kennedy. The last run was made during the last Great War and it is possible that the old coach is cached away in some forgotten driveshed around the village awaiting a fresh coat of paint and a lively span of horses to revive the rumble of steel tires and the crack of the driver's whip.

Retreat Still On

London, May 9 (CP).

BRITISH military quarters said today that Japanese forces probably had occupied Akyab, important sea and air base on the west coast of Burma 360 miles from Calcutta.

They declared, however they had no information to confirm reports the Japanese had pushed on across the Kaladan River and entered India west of Paletwa.

The British Army in Burma was said to be still retreating up the Chindwin Valley but military commentators expressed confidence in their ability to protect the northern entrance to India.

Legion Total Is Now $716 For War Victims

No single group of citizens are perhaps more conversant with the hazards and consequence of war than those veterans who served during that period 25 years ago, when then, as now, the very existence of the British Empire was at stake, nor did they little dream that the peace they then won would again be ruthlessly broken by the very same forces over which they had then triumphed. Since that time they have many of them continued to feel its effects, for which many appeals for help have been made. With the coming of the present conflict, they fully realized the necessity now of giving help to others much less fortunately situated than themselves, and rising to the situation, the local veterans banded together as Branch 52 of the Canadian Legion, with G. Gimblett as president and P. G. Torrance as treasurer have consistently set aside a definite portion of the net proceeds of their efforts on behalf of their own welfare work, and this they have been steadily turning in, month after month, to the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund, so that to date with their contribution of $41.90 listed in today's list of receipts for the fund, their total has reached the very impressive figure of $716.34, which is something they have justly a right to feel most gratified at.

In the Punch Press department of the Canadian General Electric Company Limited, they pass a box around every Saturday morning, and this is also utilized as a penalty box, from which source, they have once again given help to the fund to help the people in Britain to the extent of $18.44, which was turned in by the foreman in that department, Alf. Griffin.

Almost 700 coins were found in the box at the Regent Theatre, among which were 665 coppers, which adds another $8.15 to the day's list, and makes the second theatre box to be recorded with a nice contribution in four days.

With today's receipts, the fund has now climbed very close to the $41,000 mark, so that it now requires but $22 to put it over the top. On Friday night, Norwich was again attacked from the air, to make the third time in less than two weeks that this centre of historic value, with no military objective has been attacked.

Recreation Is Big Part Of Life Today

Recreation is the biggest part of living today. There are forty hours a week put in at a vocation, which leaves sixty waking hours to be filled in, constructively or destructively. These points were emphasized by Lionel Scott, director of Tenants, War Time Housing Ltd., during the discussion on supervised playgrounds at the Kiwanis meeting Friday.

Recreation work is being carried on extensively in England and the United States and England has found it to be the mainstay in morale through bombings. It is needed to put unity into the community, for there has been a trend of late years for outdoor activities, for sports and handcrafts. Now with the restrictions on gas, a new outlet must be found for these people.

This is the underlying factor in the idea of supervised playgrounds. The city council viewed the idea sympathetically, but felt they lacked the funds to carry out such a project. The Kiwanians feel they would be performing a very worthwhile service for the war effort in sponsoring this.

Staff Of Six Needed

The plan is to have a leader, who must have very special qualities of organization and interest in people, over a staff of six, three men and three women. The supervision would not be simply over playing. There would be classes in handcraft work and other useful training, all as basic as health and education, for drawing the community together.

A man used to start and finish a job by himself. Now he presses a button and the job is done. It was the general feeling among club members that there was a certain emptiness within people who used to be filled with pride at a job well done. This new field can provide something useful to take its place.

During the discussion, it was pointed out that all the three armed services have clubs and organizations looking after their welfare. But what of the fourth service, industry? If the man behind the gun fails, the armed forces are helpless. It was felt that there should be some place for their children too, to relieve the pressure of things at home during the summer months.

It was decided to continue the discussion next week before making any definite decisions.

Cobourg Rotarians Give Red Cross $100

COBOURG, May 9.—(ENS)—Dr. Fred Blackwell was appointed secretary at a meeting of the directors of Cobourg Rotary Club, it was announced yesterday at the weekly luncheon meeting of the club. The date of the annual Rotary Carnival was announced as August 12 and 13 this year. Prizes in the big draw would be furnishings such as furniture, radio and floor lamps. Rotary this year was going to be "all out for war," the directors decided. To start the ball rolling it was authorized that $100 was to be donated to the Red Cross; $75 to the Navy League; $75 to the Kinsmen Club Milk for Britain Club and $50 to the British War Victims Club. The Club will sponsor a local corps of the air cadets and the committee looking after the details is made up of Lester Caughey, John Ewart, R. N. McKenzie, Reuben Freeman, Jack Harrison and Dr. Fred Blackwell. Roy Willmott will be in charge of the air cadets. Dr. Blackwell will be the medical officer.

Oppose Building 250 Homes On Hatton Land

Opposition to Wartime Housing's reported intention to locate another project of 250 houses on the Hatton property north of Charlotte Street extended and west of Walkerfield House has stirred residents of that area into action that included a meeting with the township council at the Court House this afternoon at 1 o'clock.

Municipal mediation has been sought by residents who in recent years have built houses for themselves in the most righly restricted section of the city, and both G. K. Fraser, M.P., and R. M. Glover have been asked to attend the meeting.

"There is all the land elsewhere that Wartime Housing needs, especially to the south," said one suburban dweller.

"And it is just as close to water and sewer mains as that land north of the highway to Port Hope. Residential expansion has been definitely reaching out into the township on the west side of the city, and men like Joseph Piggott, head of Wartime Housing, should require only a glance at that section to realize that with all the other vacant land right on the city's border there should be some sensible consideration given to the proposed Walkerfield occupation."

Another of the citizens who attended a meeting in the west end last night followed by consulting the council of the township at a special session they were holding, said to the Examiner this morning: "We would not say a word about Wartime Housing building over there if other land just as suitable and even more so was not available. I understand that the late Senator Cox and Toronto Savings and Loan Company held the property in the same general neighborhood in the expectation that the city's growth would extend in that direction."

Alderman Glover said he had spent parts of two days in a personal survey of other property, and was impressed by the accessibility and acreage of a property opposite the west end of Lundy's Lane in Monaghan. It was one time the site of a brick company.

"North Monaghan recently asked for a sewer on Lundy's Lane and I understand the Utilities Commission has agreed to lay a water-main down that street," Alderman Glover said. "That means both these services are heading close to this big area where I imagine Wartime Housing could easily locate more houses."

It is understood that Mayor Hamilton and members of the city council have been asked to attend the meeting.

"We are not going to waste time getting mad at this stage," said one of the western residents, "but we do want quick action to show Mr. Piggott that he and his associates are making a mistake in going to the Walkerfield section. They surely are not riding rough-shod over residential property values when they have an alternative housing area further to the south and comparatively close to Peterborough's main industrial ward."

Driver Gets 15 Days For Drunken Driving

CAMPBELLFORD, May 9. — (ENS).—The court was not inclined to show any leniency in giving sentence as the result of a drunk driving charge here on Friday. Sanford Chard, 42, widower, who pleaded guilty on two counts, one of drunk driving and the second, reckless driving, was sentenced to 15 days in jail on the first charge and 10 days on the second, without the option of a fine. When Chard pointed out he had already been a guest of the county for the past seven days Magistrate Langley pointed out the charges against him were very serious, but nevertheless he chopped three days from the first of the two sentences which are to run concurrently.

The accused also had what was left of his car impounded and his license suspended for six months. Provincial Constable D. M. Carruters who laid both charges said Chard was 'very intoxicated' when he arrested him following an accident on May 1st when the car he was driving left the road near Hastings, struck a telephone pole and guy wire, demolishing it almost completely.

Junior Students PresentProgram

A. M. McQuarrie discussed sound equipment in the recording and reproduction of motion pictures, in the junior and students' night program of the Engineering Institute Thursday night. He explained how sound, picked up by microphone, is converted to electrical impulses and transferred to a film by means of modulated beam of light which is controlled by the film sound track, picked up by a photo-electric cell and converted into electrical impulses which are amplified and fed into a system of speakers.

The other paper was a description of the Pickwick Landing project undertaken by the Tennessee Valley authority which will furnish a normal head of 53 feet of water, and a potential of 225,000 h.p. Some twelve cubic miles of water will be retained behind the new dam.

Jules Mercier, junior chairman, presided. Ross Dobbin, in moving a vote of thanks to the two speakers, said their papers were excellent. "so good in fact as to be over the heads of the seniors."

All members were reminded of the annual meeting at the Kawartha Club May 20.

Young Cyclist, Truck Collide

A collision between a bicycle and and a truck Friday night resulted in injuries to a seven-year-old cyclist and the arrest on a traffic charge of an 18-year-old truck driver.

Murray Grafstein, 7, of 623 Homewood avenue, was riding a bicycle west on Hunter street and was making a left turn into Park street when his wheel came into collision with a truck driven south on Park street by G. A. Fitzgerald, 18, of 282 Sherbrooke street.

The boy was knocked off the bicycle and was taken to the Medical Clinic where he was found to have sustained injuries to his head and a deep gash on his leg.

Fitzgerald was arrested after Constables John Morrow and C. J. McGillen investigated the accident and this morning faced a charge in police court of driving without adequate brakes.

After the accused had entered a plea of guilty Inspector James F. Reid explained the circumstances to the court, stating that it had been found that the truck had practically no brakes.

"Have you taken this matter up with the Crown Attorney to see whether or not a reckless driving charge should have been laid?" asked Magistrate Langley.

It was stated that the police had not been in touch with the Crown Attorney in regard to the charge and finally the accused was allowed to withdraw his plea of guilty and the case as adjourned for a week to allow the crown to be consulted as to what charge will be laid.

Car Overturns Five Trapped

BANCROFT, May 9 —(ENS)— A head-on crash between two cars at 10 o'clock Friday night on the Madoc-Bancroft highway trapped five people in a sedan car, after it had plunged out of control over a 10-foot embankment into the swamp.

The five occupants, were released by Provincial Constable F. W. Palmateer who pried the doors open.

Mr. and Mrs. George Boyle of Tonawanda, New York, along with Mr. and Mrs. R. Valiant, and Mrs. E. Valiant all of Toronto were motoring north towards Maynooth to attend the funeral of Mr. Boyle's father when the accident took place. George Hailstone of Gilmour was driving south and both cars met. The Boyle car hurtled off the road into the swamp, and Hailstone's car remained on the road. According to police, the five people were still trapped in the car and Hailstone was comfortable in the front seat of his own vehicle when the police arrived, and had made no effort to release the victims. Hailstone was placed under arrest on a charge of drunk driving and taken to Belleville jail.

George Boyle suffered cracked ribs, contusions of the chest, abrasions of the head and arm, and the other four occupants all suffered lesser injuries. Dr. F. F. Lumb of Bancroft gave first aid at the scene of the accident, and further medical treatment at his office.

Boyle's car was a total wreck, and the accident was investigated by F. W. Palmateer, provincial constable and R. F. Delyes, town constable.

Obituary

FRANK J. EANO

Frank J. Eano, well-known undertaker of this city for many years, died suddenly in St. Joseph's Hospital Friday night, at the age of 71 years, after a short illness.

The late Mr. Eano was the son of Frank Eano and Elizabeth Mulchay, and with the exception of a brief period spent in Chicago, he was a resident of Peterborough all his life. He was a member of St. Peter's Cathedral and also belonged to the Knights of Columbus, the Catholic Order of Foresters, the Ancient Order of Hibernians, and the Holy Name Society.

He is survived by his widow Rose, two daughters, Margaret, of Hamilton and Helen of Peterborough and two sons, Jack of Toronto and William of Peterborough. There are two sisters, Miss Anne Eano and Mrs. Minnie Odette of Chicago, and two brothers, Jack of Saskatoon and Lou of Sudbury.

The funeral will be held Monday morning from the family residence at 189 Brock street. Requiem Mass will be sung at 9 o'clock in St. Peter's Cathedral. Interment will be in St. Peter's Cemetery.

Drunk Disgraces Jury

HILLSBORO, O., May 9 — (AP). —This town, noted as "cradle" of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, is still blushing. A bootlegger's trial was in progress when someone discovered a juror was drunk. Judge George McDowell dismissed the jury, fined the juror $100 for contempt of court and declared: "Never before in my legal career have I heard of such a thing. This court has been insulted, disgraced and embarrassed."

Opera Composer Dies

BERNE, Sitzerland, May 9. — (AP). — Felix von Weingartner, 78, German musician and composer of such operas as "Sakuntala," "Cain and Abel," and "The Apostate,' died on Thursday at a hospital in Winterhur. Since 1927 he had headed the Basel Conservatory.

Big Salvage Drive Planned For Ashburnham On May 14

The Salvage Committee that has for a long time back is systematizing their efforts which they hope will be more effective, and result in the receipt of more salvage material with less effort. The ladies in charge of this department of war work in the city have done a remarkable job with the facilities at their disposal. Shortage of help and shortage of truck capacity for hauling, has hampered their efforts.

A committee named specially for the purpose has undertaken to assist and Ashburnham will be the first section of the city where a systematic effort will be made to clean up all the salvage in one day. Assisting the committee in this effort in Ashburnham are Aldermen Swanston and Curtis and City Engineer Parsons and they are together with other interested citizens across the river most anxious that it be a huge success. Thursday next May 14th is the day set aside for the salvage drive, to be followed on announced dates in other districts of the city.

The residents of Ashburnham are asked to get together between now and Thursday next all the bottles of every type and description, all the old rubber and all the metal of every kind they can scrape up and have it ready for the collection that will be made on Thursday next. The bottles should be in some kind of a container, the rubber if it is small articles or small pieces, should also be in a box or bag of some kind and the metal in a pile.

The regular salvage truck will work all day, and on in the afternoon. Alderman Dutton; chairman of the Board of Works will turn over five trucks from his department and Alderman Curtis one truck from the Parks Committee and they will be on the job until it is cleaned up.

It is the intention of the Salvage Committee to work the city by districts and they are hoping that Ashburnham will set a pace, that every other district in the city will require to work hard to match.

Let every resident of Ashburnham do his utmost to make this, the first of the systematic salvage collections a tremendous success.

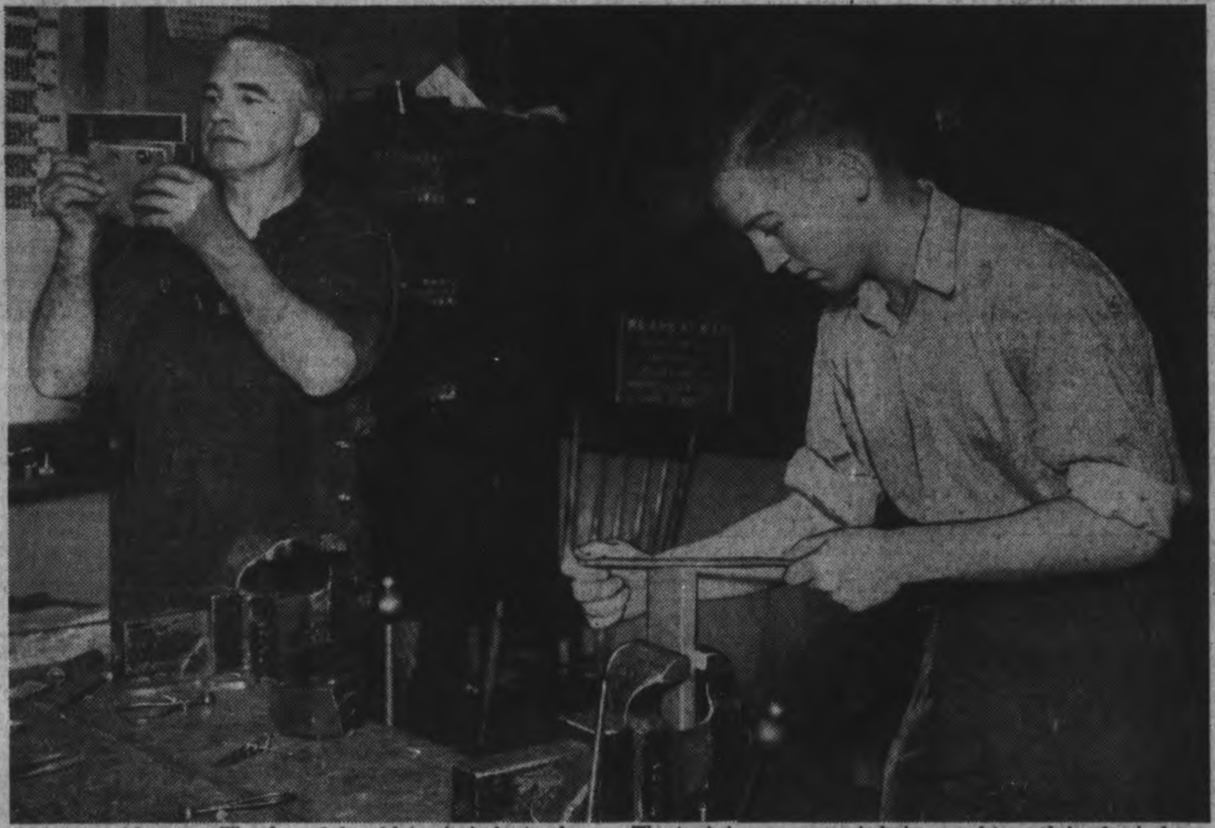
Canada's Technical Schools Humming as Tools of War are Forged

Most recent development in the Department of Labour's War Emergency Training Program is the rapid expansion of classes for women. Women are instructed in nearly all the courses given men, have shown a flare for precision instrument work as shown above.

Army tradesmen are trained by arrangement with the Defence Department. This soldier is learning carpentry, as part of a program which includes metal work, mechanics.

Most training is being done in pre-employment classes, some sponsored by individual manufacturers. Firms select students and send them to school to be trained. This shot of an optical instrument class illustrates how a war-baby industry is being developed.

Industrial chemistry is another specialized course, with most classes sponsored by industry. Women do well in the work. This girl will step from school right into a job.



A contrast in ages. The day of the oldster in industry has come again. The man on the left is brushing up on his trade with a bench-fitting class, regaining forgotten skills. The training program is being used to reclaim for industry many men who have been discharged from the armed services. Records show many young trainees enlist.

A new development is the art of camouflage, of increasing importance in air war. Classes are not yet part of the program, but are carried on experimentally in the schools.

These lads, working under an instructor, will graduate as airframe mechanics and will go straight to industry. As they become of age they will be desirable recruits for the Air Force. Bulk of trainees has been drawn from youths and men outside military ages.

Experienced craftsmen give students like this young girl individual instruction. Here they are checking over the fine points of wing rib construction for aircraft.

As the armbands explain, this is a pre-enlistment class of the Royal Canadian Air Force in radio mechanics. If they pass a trade test after taking the course, these men will be taken into the R.C.A.F. The W.E.T.P. teaches many aeronautical subjects.

Naval Auxiliary

The Peterborough and District Women's Auxiliary to the Navy held its regular meeting Friday evening in the Green Room at the Y.W.C.A., with Mrs. W. E. Dorrington, Sr., president, in the chair. Mr. A. Kittson has resigned as treasurer of the organization and Mrs. E. Ainsley has been elected to that position, with Mrs. W. R. Penrose filling her place on the executive. Mrs. Robert Goheen has donated $5 to the tobacco fund. It was decided at the meeting that the Auxiliary should affiliate with the Local Council of Women and that the members should join with those of the other three wartime auxiliaries for an outing on May 28. Mrs. Pilling was appointed wool convener.

Catherine White Honored

Miss Catharine White, whose marriage to Mr. J. Claire Sullivan will be an event of Monday, has been much entertained recently. Misses Catherine, Margaret and Nora Corkery entertained at their home on Gilmour street at a miscellaneous shower, when the bride-to-be received many lovely gifts. Mrs. C. A. Moore was hostess at a delightfully arranged linen shower at her home on Stewart street. A group of young friends of Miss White and Mr. Sullivan arranged a party at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club, at which the young couple were presented with a complete set of kitchen utensils. Mrs. J. E. Sullivan entertained at tea for her son's fiancee. Mrs. Stanley White was hostess at a trousseau tea last evening in honor of her daughter.

Guiry—LaPlante

Sacred Heart Church was the scene of a pretty wedding when Margaret LaPlante and James Guiry pledged their nuptial vows. Rev. Father Houlihan officiated and Mass was served by Master Leo PaPlante and Carl Brioux, cousins of the bride. During the nuptial mass Edward Bartley, cousin of the bride, sang several hymns, including Saintly's "Ave Maria."

Given in marriage by her father, Armande LaPlante, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white peau de soie with full skirt and long full sleeves and a waist-length veil caught with a halo. She carried a shower bouquet of bettertime roses and white sweet peas. She was attended by her sister, Yvonne LaPlante, who wore blue silk jersey with knife-pleated skirt and sleeves and hood of the same material caught with shell pink roses. She carried a nosegay of pink roses and sweet peas. Mr. Steven Clancy attended the groom and the ushers were Armand and Dorian LaPlante, brothers of the bride.

A reception was held at the Kawartha Club, where the bride's mother received in a dress of navy and powder blue with matching hat and accessories and a corsage of talisman roses. She was assisted by the groom's mother, who were powder blue crepe dress and redingote and navy accessories and a corsage of talisman roses.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Guiry left on a trip to Toronto and Western Ontario, the bride wearing a printed silk dress and beige redingote with brown accessories. On their return they will live at 552 Homewood avenue.

Leta E. Dixon Bride Of W. "Bud" Throop

The personage at Keene was the scene on Saturday of a lovely wedding, when Leta Elizabeth, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Dixon, became the bride of W. Wand (Bud) Throop, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Throop of Peterborough.

The bride looked charming in a street-length dress of heavenly blue crepe with matching turban and wearing a corsage of sweetheart roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Lillie Dixon, who wore a street-length dress of yellow crepe with matching turban and a corsage of talisman roses. The groom was attended by Mr. Roy Elmhurst of Toronto.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's mother received, wearing a dress of navy blue triple-sheer and a corsage of better time roses. The groom's mother, who also received, wore a powder blue triple sheer dress and a corsage of butterfly roses.

Later the happy couple left on a motor trip to points west, the bride wearing a black tailored suit with matching accessories. They will live in Toronto.

For Sunday, May 10

Sunday's horoscope is a very intriguing one, despite many irregularities and conflicts. There is need of caution in dealings with professional people and with large corporations, where there is danger of peculiar, confusing and subtle involvements of a sinister nature. A strong tendency to impetuous, easy and excessive outlay of funds, in gambling or long chances, or in personal indulgence would be regrettable.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of much intrigue, treachery, subtle, peculiar and sinister relations, probably owing to an easy tendency to gamble, spend or be victimized, by professional persons or those in power. Also the proclivity to excess, self-indulgence and general prodigality and over-lavishness may produce regrettable entanglements. With precaution and good sense there might be enduring benefits.

A child born on this day may have many conflicting traits of character, with lavish, prodigal and indulgent habits. Yet it has sound talents and originality.

For Monday, May 11

Monday's astrological forecast is for a lively and progressive day, with much moving to major operations under high pressure. However, this tempo may prove menacing, since there may be danger of agitation, strife, and rash and impulsive action, with rancor and ill feeling. Secret enmity and deceit also pervade the domestic, affectional or social relations, although public or community interests push on to gratifying culmin-

Charles Renaud's Pupils Give Pleasing Recital

The vocal pupils of Mr. Charles Renaud, assisted by the Lakefield High School Girls' Glee Club and Miss Lenore Skitch at the organ, gave an interesting and entertaining recital in George street church on Friday evening, with Mrs. Charles Renaud as accompanist.

Mr. Renaud's pupils sing with careful technique born of conscientious practice and good teaching, but as soloists, with one or two exceptions, there seemed to be a slight lack of confidence. All showed by their absorption in their numbers, a very real interest in and love of music. In the trios and the quartette the pupils sang with more confidence and with equal technique. The organ solos of Miss Lenore Skitch, already well-known as an able accompanist and accomplished pianist, were a pleasant surprise. Her solos, 'Offertoire in B Flat,' 'I Waited for the Lord' and 'The Rosary,' did credit to Mr. Renaud's teaching.

It is in choir work, however, that Mr. Renaud's teaching ability is shown at its best. The Lakefield High School Girls' Glee Club sang clearly and sweetly, with the careful, clear-cut phrasing that always marks this teacher's work. More than that, however, they sang with gay enthusiasm, obviously enjoying it, and taking pride in doing their best. A choirmaster or music teacher has done a great deal of lasting good when he instilled such a spirit into his pupils. The Glee Club's outstanding performance was an arrangement of the nursery rhyme, 'Sing a Song of Sixpence,' gay, charming, and suited to a choir of young voices. Their other numbers were 'Spirits of the Air,' and 'Lullabye.'

Barbara Kerneghan's 'I Know a Lovely Garden' was sweetly sung and 'Passing By,' sung by Art Marshall, was carefully executed. Margaret Hooper has a voice of pleasant quality, with particular sweetness and purity in its upper register, that made her 'Rest Thee, Sad Heart,' pleasing to listen to. Claude Shewen, who sang 'If I Were King,' has a voice of depth and power. Mrs. Leslie Groombridge sang 'Down the Vale,' with skill and feeling, in a voice of sweetness and clarity.

Dewart McNeely, who sang 'The Wanderer' and 'Shipmates of Mine,' seems to attack his songs with grim determination, but the result is a remarkably able rendition, with a fine feeling for the dramatic effect. His voice is rich and deep and his technique excellent. Joy Walker also sings with fine dramatic expression and her voice, though limited in range, is remarkably clear and true and very pleasant indeed to listen to. She sang 'The Asra' and 'Do Not Go, My Love.'

Leslie Graham, who seems to be an all round musician, now blossoms forth as a singer of considerable merit. His voice is clear and powerful and he sings with a certain effortless grace unmarred by any carelessness of technique. Mr. Graham is a promising young singer. His numbers were ''Tis Not True' and 'Nita Gitana.' Jean Sarginson sang her two numbers, 'Down in the Forest' and 'At Parting' very capably but her enunciation is not quite so clear as that of the other pupils. Marion Biggs chose rather ambitious numbers, 'The Spirit's Song' and 'Sometimes I Feel Like a Motherless Child,' and gave a very creditable performance. The second piece was particularly good.

A quartette composed of Misses B. Kerneghan, and M. Biggs and Messrs. L. Graham and D. McNeely sang 'Time of Roses.' Miss Sarginson, Mrs. Groombridge and Mr. McNeely sang 'Trees.' Misses J. Sarginson M. Hooper and M. Biggs sang 'Good Night.' Pupils and chorus joined together for a fine rendition of 'Abide With Me.'

Provincial Conference Of I.O.D.E. Hears Reports of Work

The annual convention of the provincial chapter of the I.O.D.E. which took place at the Royal Connaught Hotel in Hamilton in April, was ably reported for the Otonabee Chapter by Mrs. A. Leach, the chapter's delegate.

The march of the standard bearers, followed by Mrs. Matthews, wife of the Lieutenant-Governor, Mayor Morrison of Hamilton and Archdeacon W. F. Wallace and the Regent, Mrs. Ryland New, opened the conference. Mrs. New gave an inspiring address in which she said, "Let us discard a way of living that was casual and careless and let us look forward to a new era that will mean continual watchfulness and see that we go forward and not backward and build up a country that will find its people on their knees in their churches on Sunday morning." She congratulated all the chapters on the wonderful work they had done through the year and thought that the most encouraging factor was the way in which chapters were maintaining the standard of peace-time activities in addition to the tremendous war work being done.

The provincial chapter has done a tremendous work. The Endowment Fund has fallen a little short although there has been an increase in the number of chapters subscribing. About $44,000 has been spent in Public Welfare work during the year and it is the conviction of those engaged in it that more public health service in preventive medicine should be established.

Mrs. Sommers of Tillsonburg, the organizing secretary told of the encouraging growth of the Order during the past year. There are now a total of 368 Chapters in the province, and Mrs. Sommers expressed in closing, her conviction that more members and more chapters were needed in many localities.

The report on the work done for ex-service men showed that this work had been carried on as usual but expressed the opinion that the pensions were insufficient. The chapters were advised to appoint a convener for this work and also to be sure and state the amount of money spent. A report on the work done by the Girl Guide Chapters was also very interesting.

The speaker on immigration and Canadianization thought that this subject was not taken seriously enough. We are incline to look down on foreigners, and Mrs. Jarmaine, who was giving this report, said that many had proved to be fine citizens and that we must cast off all hatreds and make at least one foreign friend each.

A fine tribute was paid to Mrs. McKendrie, who was educational secretary. She compiled most of her report while in hospital but did not live to read it. Read by Mrs. S. Luce of Milton, the report showed the total amount spent during the year to be $16,387; the number of schools adopted was 308, and scholarships and bursaries have been given out. The speaker on Empire study expressed a wish that some time be devoted to this subject at all meetings.

Mrs. Horkins, National Regent, gave a wonderful address in which she outlined the three stages of the history of the I.O.D.E. The stage from 1900 to 1914 she called the experimental stage; that from 1914 to 1918 the war work stage and the present stage the expansive. She said that we must give everything we possess to see that e win. We must guard our tongues as the world is full of spies.

Mrs. Hickey, in her war work report, said that a monthly contribution from each chapter for shipping purpose would be most acceptable. She also expressed the belief that wool would soon be rationed. The chief needs of the overseas shipments at present are shoes, blankets, new clothing and underwear for older people and babies layettes.

The hospitality report, read by Mrs. McFall of Hamilton showed work done for men in the services and their wives. Members go to the camps and mend and darn for the soldiers and go to the homes and help wives with the sewing and mending. Members were reminded not to let the salvage collection lag, and also not to forget the fund to buy a Hurricane for Australia.

The National Regent said the following: "Let us have spiritual unity. Let us have wisdom to overcome our mistakes. Let us never forget that we are an Imperial Order and let us have love, work, security and peace."

Women's Friendly Bible Class

The meeting of the W.F.B.C. was held Thursday evening in the parish hall, the president, Mrs. H. Howell, in the chair.

Miss A. Jenkinson and Miss H. Ward, reporting the making of children's and knitted wear for the overseas bale, were progressing.

Mrs. G. Groombridge, sewing convener, said six quilts were completed and the bale to be sent overseas would be shown at a tea in the parish hall, June 17.

The bowling league president, Mrs. C. Willison turned the proceeds in from the bowling league. Half of the amount to be sent to the British War Victims Fund.

Plans were made for a boat trip to be held sometime in July.

The class is having a social evening of euchre and whist, in the parish hall, Thursday, May 21, the public cordially invited to attend. The monthly collection for the War Victims Fund being taken, the president closed the meeting with prayer.

May Meeting Held By W. M. S. At Knox Church

The members of the Women's Missionary Society of Knox United church met on Thursday afternoon in the church parlors for the May meeting.

A worshipful atmosphere was created by the quiet music of a well known hymn played by Mrs. Lewis, the pianist.

Mrs. F. English assumed leadership of the worship service. With the theme for the month in mind, 'The Church, the Household of Faith,' scripture selections revealing the characteristics of the early church were read by several members, appropriate hymns sung and prayer offered by Mrs. J. F. Morrison.

Mrs. Gerard presided over the business period when the usual reports were given Mrs. Long, supply secretary, announced contributions of war used clothing might be received at any time. Details of the mother and daughter banquet were discussed. The secretary of Christian stewardship brought a brief message, explaining the need of sacrificial giving to the missionary cause at the present time.

The final study on China for the year proved a very interesting one. Chapter VI, 'The Tide Is In,' was presented in the form of a travelogue by a group of four. Mrs. H. Clegg taking the part of a Canadian business woman, who was amazed not only at the remarkable commercial developments but at the work of the church of Christ in China. Mrs. K. Fairburn, a leader in the Farm Women's Association of the province, told of the industrial co-operatives.

Mrs. V. E. R. Zufelt, a member of the teaching staff of a western university, was keenly interested in the West China Union University, which has to-day many professors and students from occupied China.

The concluding picture in the travelogue was given by Mrs. W. Pattee, a graduate in theology, who described two great Chinese christian rural leaders.

This very fine program was brought to a close by the repetition of the Lord's prayer.

DOROTHY DIX

WOMEN'S GREATEST DUTY IS TO BUILD UP MORALE.

Those Who Keep the Home Fires Burning Entitled to Nation's Gratitude.

Dear Dorothy Dix: The Women's Volunteer Organizations tell us to knit, to roll bandages, to make needlework to sell to raise money. I am not discrediting this, but to me there is, in addition to these prescribed duties, one that is more worthwhile than any of these. That is to keep up the morale of our own families, not with patriotic stories alone, but by keeping ourselves calm, by giving out courage, by being sweet and considerate as never before of our own, and by looking out for their physical welfare.

As any wise woman knows men need more cheering than women do at all times, and particularly now. So let us all spare no effort to be kind and sympathetic to our husbands and to go out of our way to forget ourselves and make the man of the house feel that he is ruler of all that he surveys. When he reaches for his house slippers when he comes home, let him find them by his favorite chair. Let him have the best dinner the wife can preparet. Let her show a greater interest in what he has been doing during his working day. Or, if he is a quiet man, let him relax in peace and silence.

The home and all that it means has never been so important as it is now. Fill it with good cheer, simple pleasure, words of wisdom and courage. This is what we women have to contribute to the National Defence. The men can do the rest.

MRS. MARVIN C.

ANSWER: I have that every woman who reads this fine, brave, wise letter will cut it out and paste it on her mirror when she will see it every time she puts on her complexion. And I hope it will inspire her to dip a little heavier into the rouge pot if she sees htat the war is getting her down and she is looking pale and tired, and htat she will make her mouth a little more kissable, and put on something gay and cheerful so that when her tired husband comes home, worn out with fighting over priorities, and sick with anxiety about how he is going to keep his little business going, he will have something pleasant to look at that will take his mind off of his troubles for a little while, at any rate.

And I hope that instead of discussing the war with him on an empty stomach she will have a funny story to tell him and a budget of cheerful news that she has picked up during the day.

With Peterborough Red Cross Branch

The local branch of the Red Cross is arranging to maintain a register for housekeeping and practical nursing service.

There are at the present time many families in town who find it difficult in case of illness, to procure capable help to keep the household functioning. Particularly is this true in the case of a mother's illness.

The difficulty in such a case is not necessarily lack of funds, but is due to the fact that housekeepers and practical nurses are so scarce, owing to war-time industry.

On account of this, there is many a home where the mother's recovery is retarded due to anxiety for her children, who have no responsible person to care for them. The children are apt to be on the street or in places of danger and they are constantly on the mother's mind. Because of the scarcity of trained help, they are forced to take very young girls, who have no knowledge of housework or the care of children.

For this reason the Red Cross is appealing to competent women, who are not otherwise employed, to offer their service in emergency cases for a reasonable fee, which can be paid by a person with an average salary.

There are local services which will care for the patients, but are not in a position to remains throughout the day to care for the children and household.

It is for this reason, the Red Cross wishes to enlist the services of patriotic women, who are not otherwise employed, and who wish to be of practical service at this time. Any woman who would be available for such a service and who wishes further information regarding the same, will please get in touch with the committee in charge. Phones: 7538, 6254, or 3877.

Help the Young People To Health - Happiness

What a common sight to see a young person whose bloodless face and feeble frame are evidences of poor circulation and weakness where bounding health and rosy cheeks should reign.

Young people in such a condition are generally of an anaemic nature and require a preparation containing iron to improve the blood content.

Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills meet this requirement, as they contain three concentrated forms of iron of an easily assimilated nature together with other valuable ingredients indicated for building up the system and helping to improve the blood content.

Price 50c a box, 65 pills, at all drug counters.

MOTHER'S DAY

"Now I Believe that I am Going to Pass"

Three weeks ago her nerves were all upset, she was cross and irritable, had no appetite, quarrelled with her school pals and worried her parents.

Her teacher said "Whatever is wrong with you. You know your school work during the term and then when examinations come you seem to go all to pieces and tremble with nervousness."

But, Oh boy, you should see her now since her mother has been giving her Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. New pep and energy give her courage and confidence and she is ready to tackle anything.

In fact, Dad says "I think it is about time to stop that Nerve Food treatment for she is getting so peppy that she keeps us all on the hop."

But Mother says, "No, she is of the nervous type and I want her to keep on using it so as to escape the tired spring feelings and be in good condition for her examinations. There was some trouble with her eyes but that seems to have cleared up now that she is in good physical condition."

Young people, boys and girls, respond quickly to the upbuilding influence of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Many of them need just such help at the critical time when they are growing fast, undergoing physiological changes and are most tried by school work.

The above experience takes place in many homes at this time of year. Ask your friends about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for children of ten years and older. You'll be surprised how generally this Nerve Food is used for children who are nervous and irritable or in an anaemic condition.

Vitamin B_1 and the minerals found in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food seem to be exactly what is needed to help restore pep, energy and good health.

Some have written us that they buy the new, large size bottle of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and keep it on the table with the salt and pepper shakers, so that the members of the family who need it, will not miss a single dose after meals.

You may like to try out this suggestion. Just ask your druggist for the new, economy size Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and fortify your system against the ills which thrive when vitality is running low, and, remember Dr. Chase's Nerve Food contains Vitamin B_1 and the essential minerals in sufficient quantities to help restore health and vigor.

The Stars Say

ations. It is wise to deal with groups and agencies rather than hazardous personal contact. Safeguard love affairs.

Those whose birthday it is may have a lively year, with much success and satisfaction if turbulent, violent and impetuous conduct be avoided by dealing through public channels or agencies where there might be strife or contention in private contacts. Intimate affiliations are under baneful vibrations.

A child born this day should be clever and versatile but its nature may be impetuous, turbulent and difficult especially in its private relations.

Borrowing Trouble Lessens Resistance.

Certainly in this time "sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof," as the Good Book says, and no worthy purpose is served by dragging it out through our evenings at home and filling them with battle and murder and horrible forebodings of the future. When the time comes, we will stand up and take whatever Fate sends us without whining and complaining, and we will be all the better able to do this if we have not worn our resistance by borrowing trouble.

With you, I take off my hat to the women who are doing public service. They deserve our admiration and our thanks. But the women behind the lines, who keep the home fires burning, are serving their country just as well and are equally entitled to our gratitude. They keep up the public morale not by making pep talks from platforms, but by keeping their families well-fed and comfortable, by bucking up their husbands when their courage falters so that they can go on with the work that feeds and clothes an army and gives it the planes and tanks and bombs to fight with and who by their own uncomplaining attitude, make everyone with whom they come in contact feel that God's still in His Heaven and that some day, somehow, all will be well with the world.

When you read in the newspapers, as I did the other day, about women advertising for school girls to take care of their children because they were so busy with war work that they did not have time to look after their youngsters themselves, you feel that among the bravest soldiers of the war are these unsung women who are doing their part in helping to win the war by peeling their potatoes a little thinner, patching Johnny's trousers a little oftener, finding new ways to turn stew meat into a ragout, and writing brave letters to their boys at the front, and doing their weeping and their praying in the silence of the night when none but their God can know how tired they are, or how their hearts break with anxiety.

The bungalow apron covers just as many a hero's breast as does the general's uniform.

JEALOUSY MAKES ITS OWN POISON.

Dear Miss Dix: I am a youth of 21 and realize that life is too short for petty quarrels arising from jealousy, yet when I grow to like someone a lot I go insane if they show affection for anyone else. If I have a close pal and he chums around with another fellow, I get furious. And if I have a girl and she steps out with another fellow, I leave her for good.

The only cure I have found for my jealousy is not to allow myself to like anyone especially, but some day I want to get married and I will want to love my wife a great deal, so what then?

GREEN-EYED.

ANSWER: I do not know of any greater affliction that anyone can have than to be of a jealous nature. Nor do I know of any greater misfortune that can befall anyone than to marry a jealous man or woman. For jealousy does not have to have any excuse for being. It makes its own poison, and no husband or wife can be so devoted or so discreet that their green-eyed mates will not always be suspicious of them and accuse them of acts that they never dreamed of committing.

Jealousy is the ultimate expression of selfishness, because the jealous man or woman expects to be all-in-all to the object of his or her affections. He or she must have no other interests, no other friends, no other amusements, nothing but the colossal egotist who desires to monopolize him or her.

Of course, common sense is the cure for jealousy, but as the jealous never have it, knowing the remedy is no good.

PHILANDERER'S LOVE IS MAKE-BELIEVE.

Dear Dorothy Dix: What I am anxious to know is this: Does the man who philanders love his wife? I know one man who is forever telling his wife that he loves her, yet he is always flirting with any woman who will let him. What about it?

ANXIOUS READER.

ANSWER: I don't think that any philanderer really loves his wife, otherwise he would be satisfied with her. No doubt many philanderers really give whatever affection they are capable of to their wives, but there is no pure gold in their love. It is just pinchbeck make-believe stuff that is worth no woman having. The only sincere love that a philanderer has is for himself. No consideration for his wife's feelings keeps him from amusing himself by carrying on affairs with other women.

Gestapo Killer Is Sent To Paris

VICHY, May 9 — Major-General Oberg, brigade leader of Hitler's Elite Guard, took over full responsibility for repression of terrorism in Occupied France yesterday with the title of "Police Leader."

To install him as the first police dictator in the German-held zone, Heinrich Himmler, head of the Gestapo, sent to Paris his most important lieutenant, Reinhard Heydrich, protector of Bohemia and Moravia.

(The London radio, commenting on Heydrich's presence in Paris, recalled that during his stay in Prague as "protector" more than 500 executions have been ordered. Thirty-four Czech civilians were shot last week alone, it said.

This Week In Radio

In recognition of Mother's Day there will be special broadcasts in tribute to mothers through the land. CBL at 3:30 p.m. will carry Mother's Day at the Beaver Club, the famous club for Canadian boys in London; WJZ will also have a special tribute at 6.15 p.m. "The Americas Speak" the broadcasts arranged by Rotary International in the cause of better understanding between the Americas have previously been devoted to countries of South America but this week the program will originate in Canada with prominent speakers from Toronto and Ottawa and special music composed by Dr. Healey Willan especially for this broadcast, Sunday, CBL at 3.00 p.m.

At 8. 30 p.m. Sunday, CBL will present a program in cooperation with the Canadian Red Cross and will be entitled "Humanity In War". It will include Claudette Colbert, speaking from Hollywood—A variety show originating in New York will also be heard on Monday at 10.15 CBL in connection with the same appeal.

Throughout the years, the thrilling dramas of the old West have appealed to old and young; thus starting this week over WJZ at 7.30 p.m. the Lone Ranger will ride over the air lanes Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

Pope Pius will broadcast a message to the war-torn world over WEAF at 1:00 p.m. on Wednesday and rebroadcast over CBL at 4:30. Powerhouse and Raymond Scott returns to CFRB on Tuesday at 10 p.m. . . . the CBC national news changes times this week and will be heard daily at 10 p.m. instead of 11 p.m.

Miss Beverly Roberts, stage and motion picture actress, presents a cheque to Mr. W. R. Blight, for $1,000,000 on behalf of O'Keefe's to purchase uniforms for the Toronto East 61st Squadron Air Cadets League of Canada.

Follow Simple Menu Plan

Radiant as a picture, this young woman likely knows her daily vitamin requirements and gets them.

She knows, for instance, that for pep, steady nerves, and good appetite she needs 1,500 units a day of Vitamin B1. So a typical day's meals for her include a slice of whole-wheat bread, an orange, an egg, a lamb chop, a potato and a portion of peas.

She doesn't have to peer awkwardly in dimly-lighted rooms or blink on suddenly emerging into bright light, for Vitamin A keeps her eye adjustments normal. She easily gets her 5,000 units a day from rich sources like spinach, carrots. Such everyday foods also give C and G.

Follow a simple menu plan and you'll get enough vitamins, too! Our 32-page booklet suggests vitamin-rich menus, gives a minimum "Keep Fit Diet," a vitamin requirement table and a list showing vitamin units in everyday foods. Explains what each vitamin does for you, tells 10 ways to preserve them in cooking.

VITAMINS PROTECT HEALTH, KEEP YOU RADIANT

For your copy of "Vitamins To Keep You Fit" send 15 cents in coins or stamps to Examiner Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

MAKE THE TRY AT ONCE

ONE COMBINATION of cards which is frequently misplayed, by a No Trump declarer of fair ability, is composed of a singly guarded queen in the dummy, opposite the ace and one or two little cards of the suit, when the opening leader has clearly chosen a fourth best. If the opponents had done no bidding to disclose the situation, it is nearly always best to play the queen at once. The reason is simple. That is practically its only chance to win, the chance that the king had been underled. If the king is held by the partner of the leader, the queen is as good as gone, whether it is played or not. If the small card is called, the next opponent should cover it with a high intermediate card and keep his king to knock off the queen later

West: ♠ K Q 10 6 5; ♥ Q 5; ♦ 4 2; ♣ A 8 4 2

East: ♠ J 7; ♥ A 3; ♦ A J 10 9 6; ♣ K J 7 6

South: ♠ A 9 4 3; ♥ K 7 4 2; ♦ K 8; ♣ Q 9 5

(Dealer West. North-South vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1♦	Pass
1♠	Pass	2♣	Pass
3♣	Pass	3 NT

It was a shame to see East fail to make his contract on this deal in a rubber bridge game. After South led the heart 2, he reflected briefly and decided that North probably had the K. Hence he played the 5, and the 8 was put on by North. East let that win, but then took the heart J with the A. His contract was wrecked right there for, as soon as he led the spade J, the A came in, and three more hearts put him down one.

If East had come in with the heart Q on the opening lead, he would have held the trick. When he then lost to the spade A, he still would have possessed the heart A as a stopper. Two tricks in hearts, plus four in spades, one in diamonds and two in clubs would have given him his game.

Your Week-End Lesson

What should be the very first lesson given by a sound teacher to someone who "plays at" bridge but has never studied it? Is it to use his thinking ability the best he can at all stages? Or does something still more fundamental than that come first?

British Feelers Out

ROME (From Italian Broadcasts), May 9—(AP). — The Italian high command claimed to-day that British armored units had been driven back by Italian artillery east of El Mechili, which is about 100 miles west of Tobruk.

(The Italian announcement indicated one of the deepest westward thrusts by British patrols since the withdrawal to positions before Tobruk last February.)

The Italian high command said that Axis air formations again raided Malta yesterday.

Dies Over Malta

WINDSOR, Ont., May 9 — (CP). —Pilot Officer J. W. S. Fletcher, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Fletcher, Windsor, is the second Windsor pilot in as many days reported to have given his life in the defence of the Island of Malta

His parents were notified over the week-end he was killed in action against the enemy on April 28.

Pilot Officer Jack McFarlane, 23, died in hospital in Malta of injuries received on April 25, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. McFarlane, Windsor, were advised Saturday.

Gas, Tire Rations Slashing Accident Toll

By The Canadian Press

Gasoline rationing and scarcity of tires have resulted in a general decrease in the number of automobile accidents throughout Canada, a survey by The Canadian Press discolsed today.

On the basis of incomplete and in some cases unofficial reports from five provinces from which comprehensive figures are available—Prince Edward Island, Ontario, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia —there were 1,100 traffic accidents in April compared with 1,892 in March and 1,769 in April 1941. Fatalities showed a like decrease—44 last month against 63 in March and 57 the previous April. In April, 1940, there were 1,534 accidents with 59 fatalities.

Gasoline rationing went into effect April 1 and new tire stocks were frozen in December. Later a government order set priority ratings for sale of new tires and tubes, leaving the used tire and retread business unrestricted.

Big Drop In Ontario

Of the five provinces concerned, Ontario provided the most conclusive evidence of a decreasing accident rate. With approximately 47 per cent of Canada's registered motor vehicles travelling the province's highways, Ontario's accident rate showed a drop to 576 mishaps and 30 fatalities in April compared with 1,233 accidents and 50 fatalities in March. In April, 1941, the figures were 1,142 and 41 and in April, 1940, 892 and 433.

Nine fatalities resulted from an undetermined number of accidents in Quebec in April compared with seven in 306 accidents in March and 12 in 651 mishaps in April, 1941. Twenty-four persons were killed in Quebec in 512 accidents in April, 1940.

Commenting upon the results of The Canadian Press survey, R. B. Morley, vice-president and secretary of the Safety League of Canada, said gasoline rationing and scarcity of tires were bound to have to have "a considerable effect" in decreasing the number of automobile accidents.

He added a decrease would be noted in accidents involving commerical vehicles because of employment of an increased number of women drivers. He said that while women were not better drivers than men they were more careful and more conservative.

Also indicating a general decrease in motor vehicle accidents was a general drop in public liability and property damage insurance rates announced by the Canadian Underwriters Association recently.

Conscription

Following Mr. King's announcement of the move to amend the Act Conservative House Leader Hanson said the country expected something more than that Mr. King told him. to wait and see what the Bill contained.

Whatever form the Bill takes, it will affect section three of the short Act which gives the Government supreme power over the lives and properties of Canadians in wartime. That section prohibits the use of such powers to require persons to serve in the forces outside Canada or Canadian territorial waters.

It is the only restriction on the sweeping powers Parliament granted the Government in the dark days of June, 1940, when France—till then regarded as one of the chief pillars of Allied resistance to Hitlerism—was being knocked out of the war by the hammer-blows of German panzer divisions.

By inserting that clause in the Act the Government considered that it complied with its pre-election pledge not to impose overseas conscription.

At the manpower plebiscite last month a majority of the Canadian electorate voted to release the Government from commitments restricting methods of raising men for the armed forces.

New Policy Due.

The bill now to come before the House is expected to embody the Government's new policy, decided upon in the light of the plebiscite vote.

It may either strike Section three from the Act altogether, or replace the section with another or give the Government power to strike the section out by executive act.

Nothing less than complete elimination of the section is likely to satisfy proponents of conscription. Whatever action is taken is likely to meet with disapproval from the group of Quebec members, mostly Liberals, who opposed the holding of the plebiscite.

There were also indications that the Conservative party may press for either the inclusion in the Act of the whole law relating to compulsory service, dealt with now by Order-in-Council under the Act, or submission of the orders made under the Act to parliament for approval.

Cabinet source—while declining to comment on the exact terms of the bill—said it would not mean immediate conscription.

This might mean that with the restricting clause removed the Government could proceed to change the present compulsory service system, placed in effect by Order-in-Council under the Act, when and if it deemed such action "necessary or expedient."

"I find no one (in the Cabinet) who says we need conscription immediately," this source said. "Most people are agreed the voluntary system is best as long as it works."

No Division On Bill

The same authority said there is no division in the cabinet on the bill to be introduced. The stand was much the same as on the plebiscite bill which had the backing of all ministers. While the bill did not mean immediate conscription, he said he thought it likely that it would occasion a debate on conscription in the House.

More than 120,000 men have been called into military training under the Act as it stands. For the first few months of compulsion men were called up for a 30-day training period and afterwards permitted to return to civilian life, as members of the reserve army and subject to further call.

Later the training period was extended to four months and the men called were retained in the army for home defence service. Considerable numbers—about 36 per cent—of them vounteered for "general service "with the army or transferred to the Navy or Air Force in which services they are requirel to serve anywhere.

The men still in the army who have not so volunteered or transferred would, presumably become liable for service anywhere when changes in the act and the regulations were made pursuant to the act become effective.

Recently Defence Minister Ralston said there are about 15,000 such men in army units stationed in Canada, in addition to those still undergoing four months' training.

Service Anywhere

Under such a change, also, all men called up for service in future would also be liable for service wherever ordered.

Mr. King's bald announcement was the centre of interest in the House yesterday although the short sitting was devoted to consideration of the Navy's share of the $2,000,000,000 war appropriation bill.

Navy Minister MacDonald answered questions through most of the sitting and deferred some answers until Monday when War Services Minister Thorson and Munitions Minister Howe be available for questioning on the activities of their departments if the members don't think up more questions for Mr. MacDonald.

The minister announced allowances for wives and children of men in the Navy are being placed on a parity with those for dependents of soldiers and airmen as from April 1. This means a higher scale for naval men's dependents but also means the sailors will have to forego certain advantages they enjoyed in other respects over the soldiers and airmen.

Longshoremen Complaint

Mr. Hanson, supported by John Diefenbaker (Con. Lake Centre) and Angus MacInnis (C.C.F. Vancouver East) raised a complaint about an order-in-council appointing a controller of longshoremen at Halifax.

Mr. Hanson said "This is a direct regimentation of labor, mandatory in its character and punishable on summary conviction by fine or imprisonment or both."

He said he was not passing judgment but wanted to know the reason. If labor had failed the nation in the emergency, thus necessitating such action, the House should be told.

"I hold no brief for labor but I want to see fair play for labor," he said.

Labor Minister Mitchell was not in the House when Mr. Hanson started speaking but came in later and said the order was considered necessary and was placed in effect after consultation with the longshoremen themselves.

Munitions Minister Howe said he was surprised that Mr. Hanson, who advocated immediate conscription should object to the measure of compulsion contained in the order.

On Thursday Mr. MacDonald was asked for whatever statement he could make on the Battle of the Atlantic and yesterday he gave a general statement. He said sinkings of ships during the crossing of the Atlantic are not particularly serious at the moment but losses by submarine attack on North-South American coastwise traffic are heavy.

Armada Fails

"our attacks will continue" indicated that Allied ships and planes are chasing the Japanese, seeking to bring them back into action or to scatter and destroy them.

Up to the moment of the halt announced by the communique, Allied headquarters had listed these sunken Japanese ships:

One aircraft carrier, one heavy cruiser, one light cruiser, two destroyers four gunboats, one supply vessel, and one tansport.

These had been announced as damaged:

One aircraft carrier (presumably disabled), one heavy cruiser, one light cruiser, one 9,000-ton seaplane tender, one cargo vessel, and one transport.

Although unofficial reports had said the damaged aircraft carrier burst into flames after torpedo hits and ultimately sank, a Government spokesman said there is no confirmation of this.

Against these Japanese losses, Tokyo broadcasts claimed the Allies lost one U.S. battleship and two U.S. aircraft carriers sunk, and a British battleship and British (Australian) cruiser damaged.

The only comment on these claims was the prompt assertion of the Admiralty in London that no British battleship had been sunk or damaged in the action.

The Australian press wrote joyously of the battle, the Sydney Daily Telegraph declaring that "all the news smacks strongly of a big victory."

Prime Minister John Curtin, who spoke portentiously yesterday of a "sterner ordeal and greater and graver responsibilities" if the tide of battle should run with the enemy, today addressed his gratitude to the fighting men in a relieved though still conservative mood.

Yesterday Mr. Curtn had said: "If it should go advantageously we will have cause for great gratitude and our position will be clearer."

Grateful For Victory.

Today he declared: "We can be proud of what has been done. More than that, we can be grateful for it."

Cautioning, however that no doubt "other battles have yet to be fought," the Prime Minister commented htat "great sacrifices have been made by our fellow men wearing the uniforms of our forces," and exhorted the people of Australia to taken as their pattern "the heroic personnel which this week stood between Australia and stark tragedy."

Evidence of confidence came also from New Zealand where it was disclosed that. despite the imminent threat of Japanese invasion, the Dominion's troops would remain at their stations on distant land, sea and air fronts.

Despite the advantage of having New Zealand's own battle-hardened men defending their native soil, the War Cabinet has decided to rely on the manpower now available there rather than tax Allied shipping by calling home its youngest, fittest men already fighting the Axis in England and Africa.

Emergency War Training Program To Handle More Women Than Men

OTTAWA, May 9—(CP).—R. F. Thompson, supervisor of training for the labor department, told the House of Commons committee on vocational training yesterday that more women than men will be enrolled under the war emergency program before the end of the summer

During the last two months, in some provinces, more women than men had been placed in positions.

Difficulty in obtaining skilled instructors had been experienced.

Figures given the committee showed disbursements under the Training Act in the fiscal year 1941-42 totalled $215,484, divided as follows: Prince Edward Island $2,699, Nova Scotia $8,519, New Brunswick $8,729, Quebec $108,585, Ontario $928, Manitoba $21,645, Saskatchewan $5,460; Alberta $37,461, and British Columbia $21,454.

These payments were made primarily for the training of youth.

Under the Dominion-Provincial war emergency training program, Dominion disbursements for the fiscal years 1940-41 and 1941-42 were as follows:

Nova Scotia $236,000; New Brunswick $318,113; Quebec $1,043,210; Ontario $2,685,746; Manitoba $315,445; Saskatchewan $542,460; Alberta $815,531 and British Columbia $475,272.

Mr. Thompson said the training program developed in peacetime had been expanded to meet war needs by providing tradesmen for the armed services and workers for war industry. In the last fiscal year it had been expected about 50,000 would be taken in for training, but the actual number was 73,000.

Refresher Courses

Air crew educational refresher courses had been established to bring boys up to required standards in English mathematics and similar subjects, and about 1,300 now attended such refresher courses, Mr. Thompson said.

Labor Minister Mitchell said the speedy development of Canadian war industries had demonstrated the ability and resourcefulness of Canadians was beyond that found in Europe, and the training given people to prepare them for industrial employment under the Dominion-Provincial program had been of the utmost value. Canadian achievements in production of war materials would "stagger the imagination" when the story was told.

Dealing with industrial developments, Mr. Mitchell said that if Canada wanted to maintain its shipbuilding industry after the war it must be established on a permanent foundation. Canada should seek to build ships as well as other countries and at a price comparable to that in other countries.

YOU CAN STILL BUILD!

Essential Building Materials Are Still Available—

Building Costs Are Only Slightly Increased

Over recent months there has been a great deal of mis-information circulated about the cost of building and whether or not contractors can complete houses for civilian occupation—

HERE ARE THE FACTS—

1—You can still build homes under $5,000 without a license from the Controller of Construction— over $5,000 a license is necessary.

2—A contractor can still get all materials necessary for home construction

In addition to the foregoing, any building which you do will help to relieve the housing shortage and thus allow out-of-town workers to find accommodations.

KING MOVES BILL TO LIFT BAN ON FORCED SERVICE

Wavell Poises Three Indian Armies

Chinese Rout Jap Army Slay 4,500

Hold Reinforcement Sent To Save Trapped Remnants

By SPENCER MOOSA
Associated Press Staff Writer

CHUNGKING, May 11—(AP).—Japanese reinforcements rushed to the aid of a trapped column of their comrades in western Yunnan Province were intercepted today at Chefang, 25 miles inside China, on the Burma Road, precipitating heavy fighting, a communique said.

The original Japanese invasion force—of which the Chinese previously reported they had killed 4,500—was said to be still surrounded by the Chinese army.

The American volunteer group shot down two Japanese planes in western Yunnan Province yesterday, it was announced.

Earlier reports had indicated the Japanese in Yunnan Province had been lured into a Ch..ese trap, and that the defenders had slaughtered 4,500 of the invading shock troops. The Japanese had b..en reported reeling back from the invasion of China, closely pursued and in peril of annihilation.

The Chinese announced last night that they had deliberately allowed the enemy to rush headlong up the Burma Road into China's Yunnan Province, then suddenly had smashed the enemy's wings and pounced on the main body of the invading force with an artillery blast which left 3,000 enemy soldiers dead and the remnants in flight.

Now, they said, the routed Japanese are facing certain annihilation, sandwiched between their pursuers on the north and another Chinese force, to the south in eastern Burma, which already has recaptured Maymyo, former Allied headquarters, and is pressing toward both Lashio and Mandalay.

Despite heavy Japanese shelling and bombing, the Chinese are said to have reached the outskirts of Mandalay on the east and west and to be aiming also at recapture of Sinwun, a railroad point just to the south, and Myinmu, 30 30 miles to the west.

Giraud Reported Still In Vichy

NEW YORK, May 11—(AP). — Private advices reaching The Associated Press in New York today said that according to the best available information, Gen. Henri Giraud, the French soldier who presented Pierre Laval with a dilemma by escaping from a German war prison, is still in Vichy, France.

This was the latest word of the whereabout of the General who on Saturday was said in private reports to The New York Times to have been arrested in Geneva, Switzerland, while travelling with false papers under circumstances which seemed to indicate he was attempting to escape to Lisbon, Portugal.

Berlin Denies Nazi Troops Using Poison Gas Claims Pledge Against It "Good As Ever"

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts), May 11—(AP).—Berlin broadcasts commenting on Prime Minister Churchill's Sunday speech denied today that German troops have used poison gas and recalled pledges by Hitler that Germany would refrain from using it.

German newspapers carried no mention of Mr. Churchill's speech. The authoritative commentary, Dienst Aus Deutschland, however, said official assurances that Germany would not use poison gas "hold as good today as ever."

"The manner and method with which Churchill dealt with the problem is, however, extremely significant," Dienst added. "The matter without doubt concerns primarily competent military authorities in Germany.

"If, however, Churchill wants to turn his threat to use gas into political effect on the Reich, he would do well to realize that such an expectation is based on complete ignorance of the German mind and, therefore, is doomed to failure from the very outset."

R.A.F. Ready With Terrible Answer If Hitler Lets Loose A Gas War

By DREW MIDDLETON
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, May 11—(AP).—Observers who have seen some of the preparations in the past three years believe a gas offensive on a scale undreamed of in the First Great War will be this country's swift and terrible answer if Germany resorts to that weapon in a desperate bid for victory in Russia.

If the Germans start using gas the formidable preparations of which Prime Minister Churchill spoke yesterday would permit Britain to retaliate within a few hours if conditions were right, and observers believe Britain would have a tremendous advantage.

New gases and new techniques have been developed by British scientists. According to one well-informed source reserves of "some of the most deadly gases yet discovered" have been built up.

The deadly partnership of the bomber and gas has been developed. Any liquid gas can be sprayed from the ai by replacing the bomb racks with a tank of the chemical.

Ejected at an altitude of five miles the gas reaches the ground as a fine r 'st. Experts say that mustard gas used in this way by the R. A. F. would make useless entire sections of industrial towns such as Stuttgart, deny to the German navy the use of Kiel's shore installations and close railroad centres and roads to the army until the decontamination squads had finished their work—no small job.

Presumably several hundred bombers would be required, however, to spray Berlin or Hamburg effectively.

Up To Governor In By-Elections

TORONTO, May 11.—(CP)—C. F. Bulmer, clerk of the Crown in Chancery, said today "I am governed by the secton of the Elections Act which requires the lieutenant-governor-in-council to set a date for by-elections." He was commenting on the action of the Provincial C.C.F. election commitee in threatening to force by-elections for six vacant Ontario Legislature seats on the basis of a 1904 amendment to the Legislative Assembly Act.

The last Ontario general election was held Oct. 6, 1937.

Mr. Bulmer said he had received letters from Allan Schroeder, St. Catharines, and W. H. Tample, Toronto, asking him to issue writs for by-election by fill legislative vacancies. F. A. Brewin, chairman of the C.C.F. committee had announced that if by-elections were not called by May 18 the C.C.F. would apply to the Supreme Court of Ontario for a mandamus order.

Major Alex Lewis, clerk of the Legislature and chief provincial electoral officer, said the Supreme Court might order the clerk of the crown in chancery to issue the writs, "but to who will writs be issued? That rests entirely on the lieutenant-governor-in-council, who must name returning officers?

When the C.C.F.'s action was announced Saturday E. B. Jolliffe, provincial C.C.F. leader, said five of the six seats had been vacant for two years or more and "there is going to be a showdown."

Offer $1,000 In London Kidnap Case

Three Days Go Past Without Clues As To Missing Baby

LONDON, Ont., May 11—(CP).—Chief of Police Earl Knight today issued a public appeal to the kidnappers of six-months-old Barbara Wood to leave the child in a public place "so it may be restored to its suffering parents."

With no clues yet discovered in the three days since the baby was taken from her carriage outside a London store where her mother was shopping, the chief issued the appeal after a conference with Crown Attorney Norman Newton and Provincial Constable Eric MacMillan.

"The baby could be left in a spot where it would be discovered quickly, and not exposed to the elements," he said. "Afterwards, the party could telephone the police or anyone and tell the location of the baby."

The Ontario Government has announced a reward of $1,000 for the arrest of the kidnapper or kidnappers. Premier Mtichell Hepburn has said the Government will take every step possible to stamp out kidnapping despite the cost to the state.

Wide and detailed search by police and boy scouts so far has proved fruitless and dozens of clues of women seen running with babies in their arms have been checked without result.

Force Feeding

Kingston, Ont., May 11 (CP)

RUSSELL KNOWLES, confessed kidnapper of John Labatt, wealthy London, Ont., brewer and now serving a 15-year sentence in the Kingston Penitentiary, is being forcibly fed as the result of a hunger strike, it was reported today. Labatt was kidnapped in 1934 but released unharmed.

While officials of the penitentiary refuse to discuss the matter with the press, the confessed kidnapper, who had been on a hunger strike for about three weeks, is now being forcibly fed under the supervision of the prison surgeon, according to usually reliable sources.

Radio Paris Ends

NEW YORK, May 11 (AP)—Dynamiters have damaged the station of Radio Paris and the famous Parisian restaurant of Marguerys, trustworthy advices to The Associated Press from Europe said today. The extent of the damage was not fully known but several persons were reported killed in the restaurant. The B.B.C., in a broadcast heard by C.B.S., said that the main broadcasting station of Radio Paris, located 130 miles south of the capital at Bourges, had been blown up and the aerial had been downed. It has not been heard since Saturday night.

Malta AA's Down Damage 41 Raiders, 36 Hrs.

VALETTA, May 11—(CP).—Amid the thunder of bursting bombs and the chatter of machine guns, Lord Gort was sworn in as governor and commander in chief of Malta yesterday while Royal Air Force fighters battled Axis air raiders over this battered island stronghold.

The former chief of the Imperial staff took the oath of office in a bomb-scarred building before a chief justice whose hand was bleeding from cuts suffered as the result of a bomb blast only a few minutes before.

Once during the ceremony high officials present flattened themselves on the floor as a bomb whistled down and exploded with a deafening roar nearby.

The intensity of the attack was indicated by an announcement last night that 41 enemy aircraft had been destroyed or damaged during the day and the preceding night. Thirty-three of the total were bombers and the rest fighters.

Twelve of the bombers and one fighter were definitely listed as shot down, and many others were believed so badly damaged they did not regain their bases.

Official estimates, meanwhile, are that, as a result of almost daily raids, 75 per cent of the property in Valetta

Ready As Japs Near Burma Border; R.A.F Rakes Fleet Base

NEW DELHI, India, May 11 (CP)—Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell posed three reorganized Indian armies to smash at Japanese invaders today as the Nipponese pushed northwestward toward the frontier in Burma and continued to gather an invasion fleet at Rangoon for a descent on Bengal.

The R.A.F., following up blows of the United States Air Force, which has sought to smash Japanese bases around Rangoon, struck again at Magwe, just south of the Yenangyaung, oil fields in Burma where the Japanese have occupied an airdrome. Blenheim bombers scored hits on the runways, a communique said.

Reorganizing his armies, Gen. Wavell announced that three military commands in India had been changed from static bases of administration to fighting headquarters prepared to move wherever the enemy strikes.

What formerly were the northern, northeastern and southern commands have been changed to the northwestern, eastern and southern armies.

T..e bulk of armies probably will be gathered into the last two, since those areas are the most threatened. This marks an abrupt change from a 100-year-old organization which assigned the strongest forces to the northwest to guard against raids by tribesmen from north of Khyber Pass.

The raid on Magwe was the second in two days.

Hold 3 Gypsies In $20,000 Theft

TORONTO, May 11 — (CP). — Three gypsies, two man and a woman, were held by police today on a charge of stealing bonds valued at $20,000 from an 80-year-old farmer of Raleigh Township, following investigation by city and provincial police extending over the past three weeks.

The arrests were made at a gypsy encampment on the ouskirts of Whitby, 25 miles east of Toronto, over the week-end. Those taken into custody were Frank Demitro, 60; Ephraim Butch, 22, and Mary Demitro, 32. Police claimed to have recovered $12,000 worth of the bonds.

Police stated that the farmer complained on March 25 that two women had called at his house selling pots and pans, and when they left $12,000 in bonds was missing. The next day the farmer said three persons entered his house and took another $8,000 in bonds.

Wants Freedom Of Decision To Raise Overseas Army As Plebiscite Requested

Transport Minister Cardin 1st To Resign Differing With Premier's Action In Calling For Conscription So Soon

OTTAWA, May 11—(CP).— A Bill to amend the National Resources Mobilization Act, removing the ban on compulsory service outside the Dominion, was introduced in the House of Commons today by Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

There was a full atendance of members on the floors of the House, and the galleries were well filled as the Prime Minister announced the first resignation from his Cabinet on a difference of opinio.

...Purpose of the amedment, Mr King said, was to give the Government "the same freedom of decision and action with respect to the method of raising men for military service overseas, which, in the recent plebiscite, the people requested, and which they said they desired the Government to possess."

The amendment deletes Sectiin 3 of the Act which contains the clause which restricted the Govrnment from calling up men for military service in any theatre of war outside the dominion.

When the Prime Minister had finished his statement on the Bill, Karl Homuth (Con Waterloo South) said: "Then the Government takes full responsibility for it."

Mr. King made no reply.

When Speaker Glen called the Bill for first reading Ligouri Lacombe (Con. Laval-Two Mountains) called. "On division."

Section three contains the one remaining restriction on the Government's freedom of action in all respects of the Government's war effort," the Prime Minister said.

Mr. King said the National Resources Mobilization Act was "enabling legislation," and its use had been the prerogative of the Government in the light of relevant circumstancs.

"This will remain true of the unrestricted powers which the amendment, if enacted, would afford," the Prime Minister added.

He said the government could have proceeded by order-in-council under the War Measure Act "to bring existing legislation into conformity with the will of the people as expressed in the vote on the (manpower) plebiscite."

But by proceeding with a Bill "the Government is providing members of Parliament, before any amendment to the National Resources MobilizationAct is made, the fullest opportunity of considering the effect of every aspect of the amendment "

Mr. King recalled that when he placed the plebiscite policy before the people he had emphasized that it was desirable to remove any restriction or any appearance of restriction upon the powers of the Government to effect a total war effort.

Section 3 was included in the Mobilization Act when it was passed in 1940 because of the pledges given the people that there would be no conscription for service overseas.

After Mr. King finished reading the exchange of letters with Mr. Cardin, Conservative House Leader Hanson asked:

"Will the Prime Minister table the corresepondence and when will he announce the next resignation?"

"I regret I must take exception to my friend's last question," said Mr. King. "I think when he reflects on it no one will regret it more than he will.

"I will be glad to table the correspondence."

The veteran French-speaking minister was not in the House when Mr. King announced the resignation and read the exchange of letters, which showed the Prime Minister made a final ffort to induce Mr. Cardin to change his mind.

"The presentation at this time of an amendment to abrogate clause 3 of the National Mobilization Act is not, in my judgment in accordance with the attitude taken and the views expressed in the speeches and dclarations made soliciting an affirmative vote on the plebiscite," Mr. Cardin wrote in his letter of resignation which was dated May 9.

Famed Regiments There

London Reveals Names Of 6 In Madagascar Stroke

LONDON, May 11.— (CP).— A military commentator to-day revealed the names of six regiments, battalions of which took part in last week's fighting around the Vichy naval base of Diego Suarez, on Madagascar

The regiments were the Royal Scots Fusiliers, the South Lancashire Regiment, the East Lancashire Regiment, the Seaforth Highlanders, the Royal Welsh Fusiliers and the Northamptonshire Regiment

There were also "some tanks, special service (Commandos) troops and Royal Marines participating," he saaid.

There has been no further news from Madagascar, the commentator said, following last week's announcement that the base is firmly in British control.

Reuters heard the German-controlled Paris radio broadcast a report that British forces on Madagascar "have come to a standstill and are apparently awaiting the arrival of reinforcements."

1,000 Died In Mass Murder Raid Yr. Ago—New Death Dealers Wait Vengeance

By FOSTER BARCLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, May 11—(CP)—A year ago London, veteran of day and night air raids, st ggered under a series of thumping Nazi punches.

Year ago London reeled, fought for breath and more than 1,000 of her people died during the night of May 10 in the fiercest raid of the war.

Today, virtually raid-free since last mid-summer, London stands bulwarked as never before to face Nazi bombers whose last bit of mass murder in this Empire capital was less than 100 killed on the night of July 27.

..ow, whenever two or more people gather talk eventually comes around to possible resumption of raids. If they do, greatly improved defences will meet the bombers but for the time being at least the tension and agony London knew a year ago is gone as people stroll Piccadilly Circus, Leicester Square, Regent Street, the Strand and Charing Cross Road.

Meantime London bristles with anti-aircraft guns and various secret defence devices, some of them manned by Canadi..ns. Each gun site is a small fort with guns in steel and concrete emplacements which look like slices of a miniature Maginot line.

Fire-fighting services have been reorganized, surface and underground shelters enlarged, strengthened and made more comfortable, immense water reservoirs erected at strategic points, rest centres requipped, hospital services broadened.

Special attention has been paid to air raid shelters. Hundreds of unsatisfactory shelters have been pulled down or closed and new-type shelters, equipped to withstand blast, erected.

Ventilation, heating and sanitary arrangements have been improved and first aid facilities installed against the day when Londoners may have to once more move underground in force. There are 7,700 shelters in the London area with at least one-third of them equipped with canteens.

In the rebuilding of fire-fighting services 1,400 local authority brigades in Britain have been reconstituted as a national fire service, composed of 33 forces operating under a new code of discipline, and a new system of control.

Every civilian has been enrolled in a fire-guard, an organization incorporated in the air raid wardens service, intended to defeat incendiaries by dealing with fire bombs as they fall.

New War of Nerves

The "blitz anniversary" of May 10, a fateful day in the war calendar of Hitler, was marked yesterday by what appeared to be a new Nazi war of nerves aimed at Sweden or France.

Especially acute seemed the problem of France, faced with insistent interest of the United States in the neutrality of the Island of Martinique and the question of the French fleet which Hitler wants.

Not to be dismissed, however, was the possibility that Hitler was a victim of his own nerves as the result of increasing talk of Allied invasion of the continent.

The tension became most acute when telephone communications between Sweden and Germany were suddenly cut without explanation for several hours.

Asama-Yama Scares Japan

Catastrophe, Berlin Says Of Volcano's Upheaval

LONDON, May 11—(CP)—Asama-Yama, the largest active volcano in Japan, about 100 miles northwest of Tokyo, erupted with great violence Saturday night, doing unestimated damaged, according to the Berlin radio.

The broadcast, quoting dispatches from Japan, said the eruption was the worst in many years and the German-controlled Brussels radio characterized it as "a catastrophe." A thick rain of ashes blanketed the countryside for miles around, the Brussels version added.

Asama-Yama, regarded as the most treacherous volcano in Japan, has a long history of eruptions, the worst of which occurred in 1783, lasting 88 days and killing thousands.

Following this outburst the volcano was comparatively quiet until 1908 when it awoke to renewed violence. Parties of sightseers were killed by sudden eruptions in 1911 and 1912.

Since then its activity has been manifested largely in occasional showers of stones and ashes. The mountain is 8,280 feet high and has a crater three-quarters of a mile in diameter.

GAS WAR YOUR TRAGEDY IF YOU GAS RUSSIANS HITLER WARNED

Dire Warning Issued By Churchill

Britain Ready To Act; War Balance Turning Says Premier

LONDON, May 11—(CP)—Prime Minister Churchill's brightest war report so far was overshadowed today by the terrible prospect of gas warfare which he raised yesterday with his warning to Germany that Britain could, and would strike back formidably if the Nazis dared to start it.

The British attitude was one of abhorence for the use of gas but of confidence that Germany would invite disaster for her cities and people by starting it—and had better think twice if, as Russia already reported, she is testing it on the Crimean front.

British newspapers, recalling that Mr. Churchill accurately had foreseen "events at hand" in the past, took for granted he spoke of an imminent possibility. They renewed warnings to civilians to carry gas masks and their military writers dwelt on Britain's capacity to wage such warefare.

The Daily Mail's air correspondent said "no power" is better equipped than Britain for it and that the Nazis' knowledge of that "so far has dissuaded Germany from courting even more disastrous reprisal than that which has answered her introduction of bombing towns and merchant ships."

Speaking two years after the Germans had stormed across France to Dunkirk, 20 miles from England's shore, when he could promise nothing but "blood, sweat and tears" amid the darkness of western Europe's collapse, Mr. Churchill gave Britain and her allies what he called a well-earned "message of good cheer." It was his second anniversary as Prime Minister.

He declared the "awful balances" finally had turned and now "we have only to endure and persevere to conquer."

Contrasted even with his last message, when he informed the British Empire that Singapore had fallen, Mr. Churchill yesterday gave it heartening news from all continents—of an impending mighty British-American bombing offensive against Germany, of the stalwart defence and growing strength of "our Russian ally," of the occupation of Madagascar, of British and American seapower in the Pacific

BombersChange Jap Boasting In Slap At Tokyo

WASHINGTON, May 11 —(AP)— One moment the radio announcer in Tokyo was "detailing the pleasures of life in Japan and the freedom from fear of bombing."

And the next:—

"A warning was broadcast in Japanese to the effect that Tokyo was then being bombed by a great number of low-flying airplanes. . . ."

And then an hour or so later:—

"There were between 3,000 and 4,000 casualties. The Japanese people were asked to pray for rain to extinguish the fires and to decrease the chance for further air raids."

That was what United States army bombers reported hearing in their earphones as they approached and left Japan April 18.

"Forty-ight hours later the Tokyo broadcaster reported that the fires started during the raid were then under control."

In its first communique giving "Japan" as the scene of action, the war department yesterday broke a three-week silence on the raids that brought a welter of panicky and contradictory reports from Japan.

The question that has been haunt-

In addtiion to the spraying method, it is believed that numbers of small bombs, filled with choking gas, such as phosogene, would be used.

Over the Key Areas.

The enormous expansion of the R.A.F. has extended the gas target area to the very rail centres and depots from which German men and supplies are dispatched to the Russian theatre.

The fighting services and home security department have built up Europe's most complete protection against enemy gas. About 78,000,000 gas masks have been distributed.

Squads in each battalion of the British army train the soldiers in the use of gas masks, capes, anti-gas ointments and eye shields.

Gas schools have been instituted for the fighting services. Troops on manouevre are prayed wth a mixture timulating mustard gas from aircraft out of sight. 'Gas batteries' have hurled tons of bomb-like gas containers manouevring infantry and tanks.

Gas, a three letter word which spelled terror for the British nation in he first year of the war, appears to have lost its grip on British imaginatons. Only one in several hundreds were carrying their masks to-day. The home office has warned everyone should have his gas mask 'readily available' at all times.

An Appeal Sign

NEW YORK, May 11 (AP).—The Wrigley sign on Times Square which was blacked out for duration of the war, will flicker again next week with an appeal for United States Army and Navy emergency relief. The 5,000-bulbed sign will be illuminated daily until dusk, when it will be darkened to comply with dimout orders.

Soldier Rescued From Otonabee

Dougall Morrisson, visiting friends near the river Sunday, picked up a young soldier who had somehow managed to upset his canoe.

Morrison and some of his friends were sitting in the yard of Mrs. Karl Harrison, 168 Perry street, when they heard cries for help. They ran to the shore and saw the soldier trying to climb on top of the boat. Two boys gave their canoe to Morrison, who paddled out and got him into the boat.

The soldier was brought into the Crescent street wharf where another soldier took him in charge and notified the proper authorities.

Horse Call On Apsley Run Brings Rumors As Ferguson Henchmen Round Into Shape

Reports from the stage coach front lately known as the Peterborough-Apsley-Bancroft Bus Line, show some activity on this matter of a switch to horses as suggested by the powers-that-be.

Seems the morning coach southbound out of Apsley was acting queerly and one of the passengers, tapping the driver, Jim Reid, one of Walter Ferguson's henchmen, on the shoulder asked what was causing the galloping motion. "Well," says Jim, "It's these spurs, they keep getting tangled up with the accelerator." On getting out of the sedan at the Market Square another sign was evidenced when a curry comb and brush is reported to have fallen out of Jim's hip pocket.

George Hutt, Walter's other right hand man is also said to be getting in shape—Sunday, rumors have it, George was seen heaving a rope at a post in his Lakefield back yard, and when one of the neighbors asked why the lariat practise when it was customary to use livery horses on stage coaches, George mumbled something about having to use cayuses on a run like that if he was to get home in time for supper.

George wasn't too spry on the 7.15 a.m. run either, sitting in a seat while the owner drove, and it is suspected he was out practising driving on some of the nearby farm Clydes.

The whole affair is telling on Walter, too, so much in fact that it is alleged he gave Mrs. Ferguson quite a fright last night in the midst of a nightmare—shouts of "Whoa, whoa" wakened her—and there was Walter with his feet braced against the foot of the bed-dashboard heaving back in a death-grip on a pair of imaginary reins, yelling "everybody lean on this next curve—no madam, it won't upset—all out for the next grade—sorry miss, no rebates for broken legs—Jim, don't forget an extra span for Twin Hills and if you should get thrown out make arrangements for Norm Lean to take over, he's an old hand—George, you'll have to take the other coach, that ornery sorel kicked the dashboard out again last night—yes, sir—just tie them on behind with the spare axle—whoa Donder, whoa boy—"

Woman Is Charged With Shop Lifting

"It would not have happened if I had not been drinking," Mrs. Mildred Hunt of Campbellford told Magistrate Langley, K.C., in police court this morning after she had pleaded guilty to a charge of shop-lifting from the C.D.S. store on Saturday.

The woman admitted taking a silk blouse, a slip and a night gown.

Constable C. J. McGillen testified that when he saw Mrs. Hunt in the office of the store she had confessed to the theft of the articles. "She had had a drink or two but she was a long way from drunk," the officer said.

"I had had five or six glasses of beer and then quite a bit out of a 40-ounce bottle of wine," Mrs. Hunt told the court. She was remanded until tomorrow morning for sentence.

Gets His Cake

Port Hope, May 11 (CP)

ONE of Port Hope's constables helped a lady who was having trouble with her car recently.

Said she "I'd like to do something to thank you." The constable said "That is very kind of you. A lady promised me a chocolate cake one day for helping her, but it never came."

The sequel of Saturday a parcel arrived for that constable. He opened, so the story goes, and inside there was a chocolate cake.

Engineer Dies

SUDBURY, Ont., May 11 (CP).—Frank Hughes engineer at Falconbridge Mine, died in hospital here yesterday. He had been ill only one day.

He was born at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and lived in Eastern Ontario, Brockville, and Belleville, for a number of years. He is survived by his widow and a seven-year-old daughter Phyllis. His mother, Mrs. Frank L. Hughes, resides at Brockville.

Dr. Richard Hughes of Toronto is a brother.

Obituaries

WILLIAM J. HEFFERNAN

The esteem and respect for the late William J. Heffernan of Douro and the deep sympathy of the entire community, was expressed to his bereaved wife, the members of his family and his many friends and relatives, by the hundreds of people from Peterborough, Douro, Lakefield, Otonabee and Asphodel, who visited his late home and attended the funeral which was the largest that has been held in the Township of Douro for many years.

The exceptionally large number of spiritual offerings were greatly appreciated by Mrs. Heffernan and her family.

The late Mr. Heffernan, who owned 400 acres of land, was a most successful farmer and a large producer of live stock and dairy products.

He was a Christian gentleman, a devout and faithful member of St. Joseph's Church, and an ardent worker in the Holy Name Society. He took a deep interest in public affairs, although his humble disposition and exceptionally close attention to his home, family and farm, deterred him from entering public life.

The funeral was held on Friday morning to St. Joseph's Church. High mass of requiem was offered for the reposed of his soul by Rev. J. J. McCarthy, who also preached the sermon, referring in eloquent terms to the exemplary life of the deceased, admonishing all to emulate his Christian characteristics.

Burial service was conducted by Rev. Father McCarthy in St. Joseph's Cemetery.

The casket bearers were three brothers of the deceased, Robert, Thomas and Francis Heffernan; two brothers-in-law, Francis O'Brien and Harold Cranley, and a cousin, Thomas Heffernan.

CECILIA CLEMENTI

Cecilia Clementi, 86 Albertus avenue, Toronto, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hamilton Clementi, and a member of the staff of the Department of Health, Parliament Buildings, Toronto, died after a short illness on Saturday.

The late Miss Clementi was born in Peterborough and resided here for many years, and was a member of the Anglican Church.

She is survived by four sisters, Mrs. Gilbert Bayly of Ottawa, Mrs. Leonard Patrick of Belleville, Mrs. D. Wainwright of Bermuda, and Mrs. John Bertram of Peterborough.

The remains are resting at the home of her sister, Mrs. John Bertram, 456 Monaghan Road. The funeral service will be held Tuesday, at 10 a.m. from St. John's Anglican Church. Canon W. P. Robertson will officiate and interment will be in Little Lake Cemetery.

MRS. JOHN CUPOLI

There was a very large attendance at St. Peter's Cathedral on Thursday morning to express their sorrow, sympathy and deep respect by assisting at the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass offered for the repose of the soul of the late Mrs. John Cupoli by Reverend J. T. Finn, who also preached the funeral sermon, in which he referred to her zealous piety and devotion in the practice of her religion, and as a devoted member of the Gatholic Women's League and Altar Society.

The large number of spiritual offerings and floral tributes were accepted by the late Mrs. Cupoli's husband, sons and daughters with profound appreciation.

Friends who attended from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. L. Marcotuillio (Mary), Windsor, Ontario; Mrs. Frank Bertotte (Lucy), Detroit, U.S.A.; Mr. and Mrs. B. Iannicello (Alice), Detroit, U.S.A.; John Cupoli, R.C.A.F., Camp Borden; Mr. Anthony Vecchio, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. L. Browld, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Vecchio and family, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Vecchio, Mr. A. P. Vecchio, Mrs. M. Giannini and Mrs. John Marcotullio, all of Toronto; Mrs. Margaret Sabatino, Mrs. P. White, and Mrs. J. Sabatino of Lakefield.

Burial service at St. Peter's Cemetery was conducted by Reverend G. Wolffe.

The bearers were Messrs. B. R. Strano, Joseph Ahern, David Ahern, Joseph Vitarelli, and Anthony Pepe.

Veteran Radio Announcer McNamee, Dies

NEW YORK, May 11 — (AP). — Graham McNamee, 53, veteran radio announcer who once estimated that during his career he used more than ten time the number of words in the unabridged dictionary, died in hospital here Saturday night.

McNamee, who entered hospital two weeks ago for a general check-up, was discovered to be suffering from a chronic heart ailment. Death came, his doctors said, after he suffered embolism of the brain and lost consciousness during the day.

A native of Washington, D.C., McNamee was once regarded as the dean of sports announcers.

In 1926, he radio reported the first Rose Bowl game to be heard over a coast-to-coast hookup. From then on his voice was familiar to persons who listened to radio accounts of big-time sports. For years his voice accompanied news-reel movies.

In 1941, McNamee, who was a singer before entering radio in 1923, was awarded a plaque by the Tournament of Roses Committee at the Rose Bowl game, in commemoration of the fifteenth anniversary of his first network broadcast of the classic.

McNamee, whose career was crammed with adventure and seconds-to-go episodes in his coverage of sports and general news, attended schools in St. Paul, Minn.

In addition to radio reporting and singing in choirs, McNamee's career ranged from pitching baseball to selling meat.

He wrote "You're on the Air" in 1928 and was a contributor to magazines.

His first sports assignment came in Aug. 21, 1923, when he gave a blow-by-blow description of the Greb-Wilson prize-fight. A few weeks later, he reported the world series and that fall gave a play-by-play account of a football game.

After that he considered championship fights, world series and top football contests all in a day's work.

He painted word pictures of Republican and Democratic conventions, inaugurations of Presidents, disasters and the full gamut of what makes news.

McNamee and his first wife, the former Josephine Garrett, were divorced in 1932. In 1934 he married the former Ann Lee Sims.

CAR DAMAGED.

A short circuit in the switch resulted in a fire in a car belonging to R. Miller, Douro, Sunday afternoon. The car was parked in front of 582 Water street and the Fire Department reported there was very little damage done.

CAN HAVE HIS LOT

"They can have it any time they want it," was Alderman Glover's reply to a good humored question Saturday afternoon about turning the lot adjoining his home into a site for a wartime house. H. J. McCannan said there were only fifty or sixty vacant lots owned by the city that could be considered in a temporary housing scheme.

A Job For Ashburnham

WHEN citizens hear that volunteers for war work are badly wanted, and then look out their windows and see no work at all rolling up to their front doors, they are apt to feel rather hurt and say: "I am ready to do my share, but if no one gives me anything to do I can't do anything."

Well here is something to do and it is no small part of the war effort. Residents of Ashburnham can get right into war work by getting together between now and Thursday next all the bottles, rubber and scrap metal, rags and papers they can find around their premises and put it out for the collectors to pick up Thursday, if you have made a good job of it, you can go to bed Thursday night and rest contented that on this occasion you have done something along war work lines that is very necessary and very much appreciated by those who have charge of salvage work in the city. Make this salvage collection a huge success. It is an important war job.

LAKEFIELD

Hazel Northey Again Heads Junior WI Group

LAKEFIELD, May 11—(ENS). — Miss Hazel Northey was again chosen president of the Lakefield Junior Institute at the annual meeting held in the Town Hall on Thursday afternoon.

Two excellent reports were given. The flower fund by Miss Minnie Charlton, and the report on the directors' meeting held at Warsaw, by Miss Eva Higgins.

Roll call for the meeting was the payment of fees. Miss Minnie Charlton was appointed delegate for the Institute district annual meeting to be held in Warsaw on May 26.

Other officers elected were: 1st Vice-President, Mrs. Gilbert Bullock; 2nd Vice, Mrs. Allen Gill; Secretary-Treasurer, Miss Minnie Charlton; Directors: Misses Doreen Northey, Fern Mullen and Frayn Johns; District Director, Miss Eva Higgins; Auditors, Misses Fern Mullen and Doreen Northey; Flower convener, Miss Doreen Northey; Agriculture convener, Miss Dorothy Tully; Health and Child Welfare, Miss Marjorie Frankish; Social conveners, Misses Frayn Johns and Eva Higgins; Home Economics, Mrs. Allen Gill; Junior Community Activities, Miss Fern Mullen.

The next meeting will be held in Memorial Hall and members are asked to bring suggestions for new programs in the following year.

Miss Hazel Crawford, Toronto, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Crawford.

Misses Mildred and Jean Garbutt of Peterborough spent over Sunday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Garbutt.

L.A.C. Allan Dawe, of Guelph, spent the week-end with his wife, Ann and son Michael at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. Crawford.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Gill returned to the village on Sunday after their wedding trip through Western Ontario.

Stay Ordered In Selecting Housing Site

Wartime Housing Limited acceded today to the North Monaghan petition Saturday for a stay of action in acquiring the Hatton farm as a site for 250 temporry houses.

G. K. Fraser, M.P., telephoned from Ottawa this morning to H. S. Longhurst, administrator of the local Wartime houses, that Kent Hamilton, Toronto, who is in charge of locations of land for the company, would come to Peterborough to meet the committee which the township council appointed Saturday to make a survey of other properties from which it was hoped they could recommend one that would meet the requirements of the company and obviate the use of the west-end acres in Monaghan.

"Mr. Fraser returned to Ottawa Sunday afternoon and this morning he telephone to Victor Goggin, Toronto, general manager of Wartime Housing," Mr. Longhurst said. "As a result of that conversation, Mr. Hamilton will be here Wednesday. In the meantime I carried out the wishes of the committee Saturday afternoon by telephoning to Mr. Hamilton about the request of the township committee."

City Engineer Parsons said this morning that he had enquired into the possibilities of using the old brick company property west of High street when it was first mentioned last year.

"The sewer on Romaine street westerly from Park street was not laid deep enough for its extension west of Monaghan Road," Mr. Parsons said. "There is now a sewer on Romaine to Monaghan road, turning south as far as the office of the Peterborough Lumber Company.

The City Council for years was of the opinion that in any future development to the southwest, a main sewer would some time be laid on High street for connections from streets to the east of it; and that Park street would serve the lateral streets reaching over to Monaghan Road. There is a little rise in the land west of Monaghan road, and that would bring a projected sewer too close to the surface for safety in cold weather."

Alderman Bradburn suggested to a reporter this morning that property on Braidwood avenue should get some consideration. Houses in that area could be accommodated with a sewer from Park street, and the entire property was within walking distance from the C.G.E. plant.

Rev. H. Bracken Is Ordained

TORONTO, May 11.—Seven ordinands were ordained in the priesthood of the Church of England and nine young men ordained deacons Sunday morning at an impressive service in St. James' Cathedral. Rev. Derwyn Randolph Grier Owen, one of the ordinands for priesthood, was the son of Archbishop Derwyn T. Owen, Primate of All Canada, who was in charge of the service, and Rev. Henry Newman Woodling Bracken, of St. John's church, Peterborough, the son of Rev. H. A. Bracken, rector of St. David's Anglican Church, who was present in the sanctuary.

Other clergy in the sanctuary included: Dean C. E. Riley, rector of St. James' Cathedral; Dr. F. S. Cotton, Dr. C. H. Shortt, Dr. Ramsay Armitage, princial of Wycliffe College; Provost F. H. Corgrave, Trinity College; Canon F. J. Sawers, Archdeacon G. Warren, Dr. T. Stannage Boyle, Prof. F. W. Dillistone, Dr. W. K. Taylor, Prof. F. D. Coggan, Rev. F. T. Ongley and Canon H. P. Plumptre. The sermon was preached by Rev. K. C. Evans of Trinity College.

Other cardinals to the priesthood were Rev. Lloyd Jackson Delaney, Rev. Reginald John Kerr, Rev. John Frederick Hudson Stewart, Rev. Vershcoyle Dudley Wigmore, and Rev. Thomas Arnold Wilkinson. Rev. Charles Coster Scovil was ordained priest last Sunday at Guelph. The following were ordained deacons: Vincent Rees Browne, Thomas Mitchell Dustan Desmond Charles Hunt, Mansel Rupert Hunt, Albert Edwin Alexander Ongley, Gerald Early Moffatt, John Russell Flagler (for the Bishop of Brandon), James Charley Jolly (for the Bishop of Saskatoon), and Douglas Earl Noel (for the Archbishop of Nova Scotia).

ANOTHER "V"

Walter Thompson of Bethany discovered an egg that has a "V" somewhat different to the samples brought into the Examiner office since the campaign started. The egg was laid by a buff orpington, and the "V" is black; and has a period after it. Instead of being on the end of the egg, the letter is on the side.

HOME FROM THE WEST COAST.

Home from a two weeks' special duty trip to the Pacific Coast, J. R. Hall of the C.P.R. telegraph office said this morning that the season is much further ahead in Ontario than throughout the west to the mountains "Most of that country looks brown, especially across Manitoba where, I was told, the weather has been too wet for seeding. Saskatchewan looked better. People I was talking to in Victoria estimated that they ought to have a million soldiers on the west coast. That is only the average man's view of it, but they seem to be convinced that Japan will attack the west coast before long."

AT BROCKVILLE

Captain Herb Cardwell of Wallace Point, who has been serving with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders overseas, has been posted to the Brockville Rifles in Canada for the time being, to give advanced training to this active service unit.

GRENFELL BALE

Kindly send good used clothing, suitable for life on the Labrador coast, to Grafton's Store, for the Grenfell bale.

FROST DAMAGE LIGHT.

"We're twenty-five years married to-morrow," was Herb Doig's answer to the Examiner question this morning as to whether the frosty dip of the overnight weather of the week-end had done any garden damage. "What I mean is that we have a great deal to be thankful for. There was a little damage from frost, but nothing to speak of. The Good Man above has been treating us very kindly, and we have nothing but gratitude for everything."

TAG DAY SUCCESSFUL

A very successful tag day was held under the auspices of the Humane Society, Saturday. Girls from all the public schools in the city took part and the public made a gratifying response. Three of the girls had their pets, a spaniel, a scottie and a Newfoundland, with them. The total sum realized amounted to about $429, and while a little below that of last year, was considered a fine response in war time.

Allied Planes Get 2 Subs In Coral Sea

Toll Of Japs Now 21 As Hunt Goes On For Routed Fleet

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, May 11 — (CP). — In a sequel to the Battle of the Coral Sea, Allied bombers dealt another blow to Japanese naval power yesterday by sinking or damaging two enemy submarines off North-eastern Australia. Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Headquarters announced to-day.

The number of Japanese vessels officially reported knocked out of action or badly crippled in this theatre of war in the last seven days thus was raised to a total of 21.

Whether the submarines were a part of the enemy fleet repulsed by Allied forces last week in the Coral Sea is not clear, but it is evident Allied Air Force continuously patrolled those waters in search of scattered remnants of the Japanese armada.

First indication of this was given yesterday in a communique announcing that Allied planes had damaged another Japanese seaplane tender and a tanker in the Coral Sea.

That communique definitely declared, however, that no further contact had been made between the Japanese and Allied naval units on Saturday and no further mention of naval action was made by Headquarters to-day in reporting on Sunday's developments.

Official quarters declined to elaborate on the situation, and it still is uncertain whether the Coral Sea action definitely has been broken off or whether the opposing fleets are manoeuvring to resume the battle which a Saturday communique said had "ceased temporarily."

Over $41,000 Now Raised For War Victims

Saturday's receipts for the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund put the fund over the $41,000 mark, and since the fund has now been in operation for about seventeen months, it makes an average of approximately $2,400 per month that the generous and sympathetic people of this city and district have been contributing to help those people in Britain whose homes and persons have received the weight of German barbarism from the skies.

For the fifth time since the turn of the year, two good neighbors, Mrs. P. Kitchen and Mrs. W. Townsley of 56 and 60 Ware Street, have contributed towards the fund, heading a group who put on euchre parties to raise money, and this time the amount is $16.00, bringing their total to date up to $126, a wonderful return through their efforts for the victims of air raids which will ever stand to their credit. This money represents returns from parties held at the homes of Mrs. J. Reynolds on George Street, and Mrs. Sproule on Stewart Street, and there will be no let-up in their labor of love for others for they are now starting to sell tickets for a draw on a pair of pillow cases, hand-embroidered by members of the group.

A young boy of some 12 summers and his four-year-old sister are credited with a fine donation of $5.56, which they made by gathering salvage which the boy termed junk, and who was very emphatic in not wishing his name to appear, but their effort could hardly be allowed to escape notice, for it showed he had quite some business ability, and had done this in the true spirit of wanting to be of some help.

Two personal donations are listed, both of them from donors who have previously helped the fund, one of them representing a third donation, all for the same amount of $25.00, which gives the fund a boost.

Norwood Dance May 20.

Owihg to other conflicting events, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Parker of Norwood, have changed the date of the dance they were sponsoring on May 15, to take place instead on Wednesday, May 20, in the Norwood Town Ha'l. The draw for the three prizes for which they have been selling tickets, will be made that night to wind up a long record of successful efforts this couple have sponsored on behalf of the fund.

Church Parade Held At Port Hope

PORT HOPE, May 11.—(ENS). — The annual church parade of the Port Hope High school cadets took place on Sunday morning, May 10th, to the United church, where Rev. J. W. Gordon, M.A., B.D., welcomed them most cordially and made them the centre of his sermon on 'An Athlete's Ideal,' with the text taken from 1 Corinthians, chapter 9, verses 25-27 Mr. Gorodn in his remarks congratulated the cadets upon the smartness of their appearance and upon the words of high commendation bestowed on them by Inspecting Officer Captain T. C. Holmes last Tuesday.

As this church service was also Mother's Sunday a solo, 'That Wonderful Mother of Mine' was sung by Miss Evelyn McBride.

A special Mother's Day service was held in the afternoon at 3 o'clock, all the students of the United church Sunday school marching into the body of the church, where a special service was held entitled 'The Church and Home Together.'

Mr. Elwin Brown acted as chairman and different selections from the various departments of the Sunday school were given.

The members of the beginners' department gave a group of songs with gestures.

The sacrament of Baptism was administered to four babies, who were welcomed into the Sunday school by Mr. Brown.

Misses Marie Abrams and Janet Dayman sang a duet folowed by a recitation given by Shirley Stephenson, 'I Love You Mother.'

The platform was beautifully decorated with flowers contributed by the Young Men's Bible Class.

Marion and Alex Kellough sang a duet, 'When Mother Prayed.' A harmonica solo was played by Ellis Wilson, 'Land of Hope and Glory.'

Miss Doris Inch and Elizabeth Winn sang a duet.. Alan McCarthey, leader of the P.H.H.S. cadet band gave a cornet solo, accompanied by Miss Helen Stephenson. This was 'One Sweetly Solemn Thought' by R. S. Ambrose.

After a solo by Gordon Wanner and several selections by the primary department, Mr. K. J. Hodgert conducted a quiz contest arranged by Mrs. Odlum on the mothers of the Bible.

At the close of the quiz Mr. Jim Morquay was introduced to the scholars of the Sunday school as their student missionary from Victoria College who the S. S. help to support with their missionary givings. Mr. Marquay leaves shortly to spend the summer in western Canada.

Mr. Morquay was the speaker at the evening service, using colored moving pictures to illustrate the work done by student missionaries in western Canada.

Death Leap

A few seconds after this photo was made, the woman you see perched on the ledge at the eighth floor of the Genesee Hotel in Buffalo leaped to her death before the horrified eyes of a crowd that had gathered on the street below. She was identified as "M. Miller, of Chicago." A policeman who rushed into the hotel in an attempt to stop the woman was too late.

Ferry Command Leader Inspects Cadets

PORT HOPE, May 11.—(ENS).—Trinity College school cadets were inspected on Saturday. The school's lawns were in perfect condition, lending a beautiful background for the drill, while the flower gardens were a picture of color with tulips, daffodils and narcisses in full bloom. Capt. T. C. Holmes, district cadet officer, was the inspecting officer.

The inspection of military studies took place at 9.15 by Capt. Holmes and included signalling, aeronautics and meteorology. The first aid classes showed fine work, the classes of which had been conducted by Dr. V. P. Vivian. They also showed proficiency in map reading, knots and lashings, and aircraft recognition.

At 11.15 the general inspection was held with Air Chief Marshal Sir Frederick Bowhill, C.B.E., K. O.K.., C.M.G., D.S.O., commander of the R.A.F. Ferry Command, taking the salute.

Accompanying Sir Frederick Bowhill was Lady Bowhill, in the smart R.C.AF. W.D., uniform, to whom the honor was given of placing the wreath at the foot of the memorial cross.

The C.C.S. cadets made a fine showing in their R.C.A.F. uniforms, while the onlookers were reminded of the school's affiliation with the air force training school by four Harvard trainer airplanes circling over the school campus during the inspection.

The cadet corps was under Squadron Leader German and Squadron Adjt. Le Mesurier. The inter-house drill competition was under Number One Flight Leader Flemming, Number Two Flight Leader Lambert and Number Three Flight Leader Campbell.

The honor of winning the squadron drill competition went to Bethune House. The cup was presented by Capt. T. C. Holmes who, in his remarks paid very high tribute to the excellent training these cadets showed in their smart R.C.A.F. uniforms, while the band received special mention for its fine work.

After luncheon a splendid display of physical training and gymnastics was put on, consisting of a horizontal bar team of eight students, while sixteen students comprised the demonstration class. Thirty-two students of the junior school gave a display of club swinging. Sixteen students worked on the parallel bar and the junior school showed several brain stimulating games. Vaulting horse team of thirty-six students and a roller skating team of twenty-four junior school students showed the art of roller skating gracefully as well as many stunts. A total of one hundred and eight students worked in the physical training class.

A splendid address was then given by Sir Frederick Bowhill on 'The Birth of the Ferry Command,' how up till quite recently the manufacturer selected their own pilots to ferry the airplanes to Britain, but how he was sent from England to represent the government and put in charge of the R.A.F. Ferry Command, who now ferry all planes to Britain in charge of R.A.F. officers.

Lieut. Batt was highly congratulated by the visitors on the splendid showing of brain stimulating games and the wonderful co-ordination of muscles.

The T.C.S. cadet corps were highly commended for winning the Empire Challenge Shield for being the best shots in Canada, and forty cadets were presented with the D. C.R.A. medals for cadet competition, all having scored over 90 p.c. Thirty certificates were also presented to students for their first aid work taken under the direction of Dr. Vivian.

The physical training and gymnastic work is under the capable direction of Lieut. S. J. Batt.

G.O.C. Uses Mobile Headquarters

Lieut.-Gen. Ritchie, G.O.C., Eighth Army, is one of the most active men in the Libyan campaign. He lives in a big caravan made from a Leyland truck, but spends much of his time visiting his troops in the forward areas. He uses a special Blenheim plane for many of his journeys.

Mother's Day Auxiliary Theme

CAMPBELLFORD, May 11. — (ENS). — Theme of the program of St. John's Evening Auxiliary which met in the church on Thursday was Mother's Day, and as one of the distinctly appropriate features Mrs. C. W. Turner gave a talk on the origin of this celebration. The president, Mrs. Carl Johnston, presided for the opening and during the business reports were heard from the secretary, treasurer, and flower fund convener. Mrs. Shaw read several "thank you" letters in which appreciation for various kindnesses extended by the group was expressed. The program was in charge of Mrs. E. Sloggett's group with Mrs. S. Nelson offering prayer and Miss Grace Payne giving the Scripture reading and a very interesting Bible contest. Following prayer by Mrs. A. E. Burgiss, Miss Dorothy Kingston gave a splendid talk on China. Miss Jean Tubbs rendered a lovely vocal solo as the closing number, and Mrs. M. Petherick then conducted a Shakespeare contest which all of the ladies enjoyed. Mrs. Sloggett's group served the refreshments.

Special Service Held In Bridgenorth Church

BRIDGENORTH, May 11—(ENS).—A large congregation attended the special Mother's Day service held on Sunday evening in the United Church. The service was taken by Rev. J. R. Trumpour, and Mr. W. A. Sidey, superintendent of the Sunday School,, assisted by Mrs Trumpour, June Robinson, Hazel Forsythe and Shirley Connors.

During the service there were eight children baptized. They were: Robert, Marjorie, James and Reginald, children of Mr. and Mrs. Lombard; Rodger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Burrett Jopling; Richard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jopling; Sally Ann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Hartman, and Margaret Rose, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfrid Connors.

Judge O'Connor Of Cobourg Dies Suddenly

COBOURG, Ont., May 11.—(CP)—Judge L. V. O'Connor of Cobourg died suddenly at his home here this morning following a heart attack. He was not very well last night and was attended by his physician.

An ardent lawn bowler and curler, Judge O'Connor was one of the town's most popular citizens. He is survived by his widow, two daughters, Constance and Frances, and a son, Pte. Larry O'Connor, Camp Borden. Judge O'Connor was 72 years of age.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

He was appointed county judge for Northumberland and Durham counties on Jan. 10, 1928, succeeding Judge F. E. McGlade and was sworn in on Jan. 25 in the same year.

He was at one time president of the Ontario Curling Association and was recognized as one of the best curlers in the province. He was also a former president of Cobourg Curling Club.

Judge O'Connor was president of Cobourg Hospital Board and was a member of Cobourg Rotary Club and Cobourg Lawn Bowling Club. As county judge he was recognized as a jurist of marked ability. Before coming to Cobourg he practised law at Lindsay where he was born. He was a graduate of the University of Toronto, being called to the Bar in 1896 and for a period of two years practised in Peterborough with Daniel O'Connell.

While a resident of Lindsay he was president of Victoria County Liberal Association, president of Lindsay Rotary Club and was an Ontario state deputy of the Knights

Had Local Office

F. D. Kerr, K.C., told the Examiner that he had heard with deep regret the news of Judge O'Connor's death this morning. "He was a splendid man in every possible way. Years ago he practiced law in Peterborough with Daniel O'Connell, later Judge O'Connell of Toronto. Their offices were on the second floor over the hardware store of Campbell and Best. Further back on that same floor I had my own office and for a time it was known as Kerr and Gladman.

"Judge O'Connor stayed here about a year and a half and then went back to his home town, Lindsay, where his father as a very well known citizen.

"Judge O'Connor had not only the affection but also the confidence of the members of the Bar of this district to a supreme degree. His impartiality and fairness and his determination to deal justly by people made a lasting impression on the members of the Bar and especially the people of this community, especially of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham."

On Flavelle Rink

"Larry O'Connor, as he as known among the curlers of this province, was one of the best," said Alex C. Kay, former president of the Peterborough Curling Club.

"He was a member of that famous Lindsay rink that was skipped by the late J. D. Flavelle. Older curlers will generally agree that the Flavelle rink was probably the greatest in the records of curling in this country. Mr. Flavelle was a grand skip and O'Connor was one of his aces. For years they were an outstanding name in curling not only in Ontario but also in the west. They cleaned up bonspiels in Winnipeg.

"There never was any squarer sportsman than Judge O'Connor, and in his own right he was a great curler and skip. His name appears more than once in the Tankard records of the Ontario Curling Association. Peterborough curlers had a great respect for Larry. He really belonged to that generation of curlers such as Bob Neill, Jim Connal, George Morrow, Bill Taylor, George Giroux Archie Moore and so on, but we all knew him and had many a game with him. Judge O'Connor was one of the very few skips who won the Morrow and Matthews-Blackwell cups in the same year at the Peterborough bonspiel in its heyday. Crown Attorney Anderson of Lindsay was another."

Sheep To Crop Grass Port Hope Cemetery

PORT HOPE, Ont., May 11 (CP)—Because of the shortage of labor, the Port Hope Cemetery Board announced today it had purchased a flock of 40 sheep to crop grass in the Union, St. John's and Catholic cemeteries here. The board is responsible for the maintenance of all three cemeteries and could not find men to cut the grass.

Langstone Arrives

OTTAWA, May 11—(CP).—Hon. Frank Langstone, first New Zealand High Commissioner to Canada, arrived in Ottawa Friday to take over his duties and to hear good news of Japanese naval losses in a battle in the Far East.

A stocky, smiling man, Mr. Langstone chuckled as a representative of The Canadian Press read him the list of Japanese losses in the furious battle with an Allied fleet.

The Pulitzer Prize

Every year the name of Joseph Pulitzer, the Hungarian-Jewish newspaper publisher who died in 1911, is brought before the world by the ward of the Pulitzer prizes for distinguished work in drama, letters, music and newspaper work. But the Pulitzer prizes suffer for the frequency with which they are awarded; it is not possible every year to find truly distinguished work in all these fields and sometimes the awards provoke bitter argument or, even worse, derision. As usual, this year brings a mixed bag.

The prize for Reporting of National Affairs goes to Louis Stark, of the New York Times and the general feeling seems to be that the award is well deserved. For reporting of International Affairs, the prize-winner is Larry Allen of the Associated Press. Geoffrey Parsons, of the New York Herald Tribune, receives the award for editorial writing; the committee "wished to recognize an outstanding instance where political affiliation was completely subordinated to the national welfare and a newspaper firmly led its party to higher grounds." The newspaper prize goes to the Los Angeles Times for its spirited defence of the freedom of the press. Interesting also in the journalistic field is the ward to Herbert L. Block of the NEA service for the best cartoon of the year. It is very simple, but it has all the wealth of suggestion which a good cartoon must have, and it has a deep humor as well. It is called "The British Plane," and it shows a street in Occupied France, where a German soldier is glaring angrily up at the sky; leaning on a wall behind him are three French citizens, two men and an old woman, and their faces wear meaning smiles.

No award was made for drama this year, as the judges could not reach a decision as to the best American play to be produced in the specified period. But the novel prize goes to Ellen Glasgow for In This Our Life, one of her beautifully-written, closely observed studies of life in the South. William Rose Benet receives the poetry prize for The Dust Which Is God, a long narrative poem. Forrest Wilson, for his life of Harriet Beecher Stowe called Crusader In Crinoline, is given the biography prize, an award which suggests that the judges had no first-rate biographies to choose from. Margaret Leech gets the prize for history, for her brilliant study of Civil War America called Reveille In Washington.

Each of the prizes consists of a cash award of $500, except the newspaper prize which is a gold medal valued at that amount. Most people who are interested in the matter will agree that the awards this year are up to the general level, rising to distinction in the cases of Margaret Leech and Ellen Glasgow. True greatness is elusive, and cannot be coaxed out of its retirement every calendar year, even by the temptation of a $500 award.

Bicycles Return To Popularity

The difficulties which now surround the use of motor cars have done much to bring the bicycle back into popularity, and there have been some lively discussions of this in the press. Some people have criticized cyclists severely for the way in which they conduct themselves on the roads, and cyclists have replied with great spirit, saying that they are guilty of none of the crimes mentioned, and asserting with vigor their right to use the roads as freely as motorists do.

The Traffic Division of the Toronto Police Force has dealt with the problem in its own way by issuing a list of things about which it wants cyclists to take special care. The worst and most common offenders, according to this source, are those who ride on the wrong side of the road; it appears that some cyclists like to face oncoming traffic, and in doing so they run serious risk of injury. Bicycles must also have proper lights, fore and aft; however great a cyclist's consciousness of his own identity may be, he is rarely visible to a motorist until he is in danger of being hit. Don't dodge in and out of traffic, says this authority; a bicycle is a supple creature, capable of weaving tortuously in and out among cars and buses, but it should not do so, all the same. In this category is the injunction to heed stop lights; cyclists frequently offend in this respect.

Cyclists are also asked not to ride more than two abreast. Cavalcades of cycles bearing down upon motorists, or approached by them from behind, are more confusing than a flock of sheep; they scatter and close in a most confusing manner. Finally, cyclists must not hang on to motor vehicles for free locomotion; this may lead to all kinds of accidents.

Bicycles are subject to the same rules as other wheeled traffic, and violations of the rules upset the police and the drivers of heavier vehicles on the roads. In this respect it would be well for cyclists to give up their jaunty habit of riding on the sidewalks, and their equally disagreeable custom of coming as close as they can to pedestrians. A bicycle can hurt, and running over pedestrians is bad for tires.

The bicycle is a cheap and convenient form of transport and we are glad to see it increasing in popularity. We would like to see cyclists a little more conscious of their responsibility, however.

For Canadians In England

The Canadians who are now in England in the armed services appear to like the Mother Country very well, but they have one vigorous complaint: they get no Canadian news. Even in times of peace the British newspapers confine their Canadian news to reports of major political moves, and now that they are forced to conserve paper and reduce their bulk drastically, their reports are terse indeed. The majority of the Canadians in the army want to know about sports, crop conditions, and the matters which were of most interest to them in civil life. At last a way has been found to meet their wishes.

A weekly newspaper will now be published in England devoted exclusively to Canadian news, and it will be distributed among the troops there. Because of the paper shortage it will not be possible for every man to have a copy, but there will be a paper for about every six men. This, it may be explained, is not unknown in Britain now where newspapers have to be shared. The Canadian paper is cabled across the ocean by The Canadian Press, and is set up and printed on the spot. It is possible to perform the remarkable feat of sending the whole contents of a paper by cable because of the very advantageous penny press rate which came into effect last October as the result of several years of negotiation.

The first issue of this paper, which is called The Canadian Press News, has already appeared and has met with an enthusiastic reception. The selection of matter to be included in it, and the editorial work generally, is under the supervision of Gillis Purcell, the general superintendent of Canadian Press, who spent several months in Britain with the Canadian army as its public relations officer. He knows better than most men what the boys on the other side want to hear about.

This paper, The Canadian Press News, is published and distributed at the expense of the Government, but it is in no sense a Government organ. It is under the direct supervision of The Canadian Press, the co-operative news-gathering service operated by Canada's newspapers, and that organization is entirely responsible for what is published in its columns. As the membership of The Canadian Press includes newspapers of every shade of opinion it is quite impossible that The Canadian Press News should be charged with propagandizing.

No; the paper is being produced with only one object in view, and that is to keep the soldiers overseas acquainted with what is going on in Canada. The C.B.C. has hitherto done its utmost for this important work, and has done a fine job, but as a means of news dissemination radio is never as completely satisfactory as the printed word. The newspapers of Canada unite in wishing The Canadian Press News the very best of luck.

Souls, Altars And Morality

The Province of Quebec is one of the last strongholds of old-time political oratory; our French compatriots still have the ability to turn a phrase which is like music to the ear, and to dress up an argument until it glitters like a crystal chandelier.

But the gift is one which must be employed with discretion. A humble object, such as a sausage—let us call it a piece of boloney, just for the interest of the thing—is not improved by being wrapped in a jeweller's box tied with gilt ribbon. Neither is a piece of doubtful thinking made any more convincing by decking it with gaudy verbiage. French-Canadian oratory, as practised by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, was an art comparable to the best acting; French-Canadian oratory, in some of its other manifestations is more reminiscent of the spieler at an old-time medicine show.

The Legislative Assembly of Quebec has petitioned the Federal Government not to "intensify the recruiting of women beyond the limit of family requirements, and particularly to do nothing of a nature to injure the Canadian home." This sounds good but what, precisely, does it mean? Is the meaning to be found in the words of M. Albini Paquette, who sponsored the motion? He is an orator in the richly ornate French-Canadian tradition, and he is reported by Canadian Press to have addressed the Assembly as follows: "The soul of our Canadian homes should not be sacrificed on the altar of imperialism. It is still the most precious thing we own. Let us keep it intact. A country has not the right to destroy that which makes its strength, its moral value and its reason of existence." Souls and altars are always useful oratorical ornaments and M. Paquette has skillfully managed to work them both into one paragraph. And when an altar is one of imperialism the effect is much better. But the speaker continues with a graver note in his voice: "When the mother of a home is absent or disappears the atmosphere of the home changes and morality decreases. And what must be said of the thousands of young girls who are pushed by coercion to abandon their regular life to serve either in canteens, in the army or auxiliary services? Do you believe their moral state will be improved? Public morality is decreasing fast enough and we should not support any move that would cause a further loosening of morals."

We admire the fervor of M. Paquette's style but we think that he is quite mistaken all the same. The Government has not shown any sign of taking mothers away from their children, and certainly will not do so if they can get labor in any other way; if it should be necessary for them to do so we may be sure that provision will be made to look after the children. M. Paquette apparently does not know that even the best mothers sometimes like a rest from their children and that affectionate children often appreciate a change from their mothers. If the Government has to call upon married women we do not anticipate any sudden drop in morality.

And what does M. Paquette mean when he insinuates that the moral state of girls in canteens, army and auxiliary services suffers a decline? We had received the impression that these girls were proud to be doing a good job and were, upon the whole, having a good time. If M. Paquette thinks that the effect of national service is deleterious, ought he not to be more explicit in his charges? What does he imply when he speaks of "a further loosening of morals?"

It is speeches of this sort, full of figures of speech, resounding periods and vague apprehensions and, even vaguer charges, which make for misunderstanding between Quebec and the rest of Canada. We think that M. Paquette's fears are without grounds and the petition an unnecessary one. And may we suggest that women are quite capable of defending their own rights nowadays? They are glad to have a chance to help in the nation's war effort, and they do not think that the struggle of the United Nations has anything to do with "the altar of imperialism." When they want to be defended they will make their wishes known, or perhaps they will defend themselves.

NOTE AND COMMENT

If a girl is going to keep her eyebrows in order she needs plenty of pluck.

The beef shortage is reported to be less acute. Probably as a result of the "beefing" which it created.

Toronto reports that no babies were born during its recent blackout. Children are getting harder to please every day.

A clergyman complains that the C.B.C. discriminates between religious denominations. People do not usually complain when they are not given the air.

It has been noted that wild geese do not seem to be flying in their characteristic V shape recently. Probably they realize that the R.A.F. is doing all the V flying that is necessary at present.

SHOULD THAT DAY COME

Should that day ever come when freedom's fire
By dastard tyrant momently is quenched,
In spite of passionate desire
And battlefields with patriots' red blood drenched,
There would arise in but a little space
Of time, from that same blood-soaked sod,
A stancher spirit in a hardier race
To fight again for liberty—and God!

Farming News And Views for Ontario Farmer

By HON. DUNCAN MARSHALL

THE very early spring is naturally puzzling a lot of farmers particularly in the districts where it has been dry up to the time of writing. Around Toronto there has been practically no moisture since the last fall of snow. In talking to W. A. Dryden he informs me they had good rains in his district and the grass is coming on very well. I saw 50 steers turned out to grass in York County on April 28th. They were going on to a pasture that had a good growth of alfalfa in it and this deep rooted perennial plant stands a farmer in good stead in a year like this. They had plenty to eat on this field and were busy at their job. The farmer had paid 10 cents a lb. for them on the Toronto market and, being Scotch, he was wondering whether he was going to get it back or not. I would not be worrying much about him because I think cattle are going to remain strong and these steers are going to put on flesh right along.

The value of a good mixture of alfalfa in pastures this spring is very substantial. Every once in a while we are brought up against the fact that alfalfa has been one of the finest plants that has assisted Ontario farming, if not perhaps the very leading one.

There has been so much warm weather in April that farmers are naturally fearful of a later frost but I would not worry too much about that. In the conversation that I mentioned having with Mr. Dryden, he said he remembered a good few years ago when he got one 14 acre field seeded towards the end of March, and then it was so wet and cold that he got nothing more sown until on in May, and the comment was that his first field could not possibly amount to anything, but the result was that this was the only good crop he had and was the best crop in the neighborhood, all of which is additional proof that early seeding is good farming practice in Ontario in the spring or, in fact, in any one of the provinces.

Some of the hay fields that are not strong in alfalfa are looking a bit backward, and there is not much old hay in Ontario barns this year. Farmers who are liable to be short of feed in that way must of necessity make some plans for additional crops and there are a good many forage crops which can be used to supplement what they normally have.

I saw some fall wheat out in Peel County during the last days of April that was practically in the shot blade and naturally not too long. If it gets a good soaking of rain one of these days the situation may be saved otherwise the heads will not likely be much longer in proportion than the straw. The farmer also remarked to me that he had never seen cherry trees in full bloom in the month of April before, and he had lived a good many years in the County of Peel, up in the Brampton district. The white blossoms of cherries were pretty profuse the last few days of April, and it has been announced that the first Sunday in May, which is the 3rd, is going to be the day for cherry blossoms in the Niagara Peninsula.

Farmers who harrowed their pastures in hay as well as fall wheat this spring will reap an unusual benefit from stirring up the top soil. There is no doubt about the fact that the Ontario farmer is doing a good job under the present emergency. The quota of pigs is going to be over-supplied in Canada, Alberta rather taking the lead in increases. There is one thing we must be very careful about, that we do not let the quality down. No friend of continued farming in Ontario can be an advocate of sending fat pigs rather than choice bacon to Britain even in the middle of a war. The war will stop some day and if we are left with a quantity of bacon on our hands which is not up to the standard Britain demands, it will be just too bad for us, and all to the good for any of the continental countries that can go into pig production of choice bacon type pretty quickly. We know over a long period of years the Britisher is particular about his breakfast bacon, and also that we had reached a point in its production in Canada where he was getting quite well satisfied with what we were supplying him. When this war is over quality will be a matter of great consideration than it ever was before, and we should be as careful to maintain our quality of food products as we are to maintain the fertility of our soil to produce them.

There never was quite so good a time to get rid of dairy cows that are not up to a high production of milk, and replace them with something better. The fat cow is bringing a high price now. In fact, I think it will bring enough if well fattened to buy a really choice heifer that will be of more value in the dairy barn. Not only is it important to make these changes for the dairy production on our own farms, but Ontario is a substantial producer of excess dairy stock which must be marketed in the United States or Great Britain after the war, and this will make it highly profitable for every farmer to carefully and systematically improve his dairy herd at the present time.

A special committee of the Canadian House of Commons is to be appointed to take into consideration the agricultural settlement of war veterans at the close of hostilities. The Commons is fortunate in having secured the services of Dr. Cyrus McMillan, M.P., for the County of Queens in Prince Edward Island, has been closely in touch with the land all his life, and is one of the Deans of McGill University. As Chairman of the Pensions Committee last year he made an enviable record for himself, and I know that every member of that committee with whom I talked said that Dr. McMillan's chairmanship had been of tremendous help to the work of the committee. He thoroughly informed himself before he began his work as presiding officer and was a guide and a director of the committee in matters of very great importance. There is no doubt that the work of the Land Settlement Committee will be even a more difficult one because, while pensions is a matter of simply appropriating so much money to be paid out monthly, the land settlement is a business of establishing men on farms under conditions and circumstances that will give them useful and remunerative employment, and if Dr. McMillan can guide this committee through that he will have served Canada well.

England has made some important progress with respect to potato diseases since the war began. England has for some years looked to Scotland and Ireland for seed potatoes of similar freedom from diseases as our certified seed in Canada. Scotland and Ireland have produced a substantial supply of sound seed potatoes, but with the increased acreage of potatoes in England and the greater difficulties of shipping even from Scotland and Ireland, it was considered advisable to look into the possibility of producing clean seed in England.

The necessary investigation work was entrusted to the Potato Disease Research Station, at Cambridge, and the result of the work already done seems to have born fruit. The discovery was made that virus diseases of potatoes such as Leaf Roll and Mosaic, are kept in check by the climate of certain districts where high winds and high humidity prevail. Surveys have been made of such localities on the northwest coast of the counties of Devon and Cornwall, these two counties are at the southwest extremity of England, sometimes called the toe of the boot-like shape of the Island of Great Britain. These surveyed areas in the two counties amount to 1,000 acres.

Devon and Cornwall have been two important potato producing counties, and large yields are frequently harvested in these counties. It will not be very troublesome to clean up and keep clean these additional areas, where sound seed potatoes can be produced.

Some of the choicest and best yielding varieties of potatoes are to be multiplied in Devon and Cornwall and the Cambridge Research Station has enough virus-free potato stocks to begin their commercial increase on selected farms. Arran Pilot, a potato regarded as one of the best ever produced anywhere, is one of the varieties of which the Research Station has a substantial stock. In trials at the Midland Agricultural College in England Arran Pilot potatoes yielded at the rate of 784 bushels to the acre.

The Island of Arran, off the shores in the Firth of Clyde, Scotland, is one of the world's most renowned potato districts, and on this island a number of very fine new varieties of potatoes have been produced.

A recent top for heavy steers in the Toronto stockyards ran up to $11.50 per cwt. and feeder calves sold for the same price. Price ceilings are a hot subject for debate in the yards these days and considering the difficulties in the way this business has been handled in a quite satisfactory manner.

• Hitler's Schedule Lagging

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, May 11 (AP)—Dramatic war developments in the Indian Ocean and the Coral Sea had tended to obscure a significant change in tone in Moscow and London comment as to the probabilities of the immediate future on the Russian and Libyan fronts.

The long-range importance of the Coral Sea naval battle cannot yet be fully assessed. But there is no longer any doubt Hitler's "victory" offensive in Russia is badly off schedule. Weather conditions, even in the Leningrad area, are no longer an insurmountable obstacle to mechanized attack. The snow is disappearing even that far north and the roads are beginning to dry out. Yet there is no sign of the opening of Hitler's promised annihilation drive anywhere along the vast front.

Out of that Russian commentators are increasingly advancing the possibility that Hitler has been beaten to the punch by the Red Army's winter offensive. One Moscow radio voice says that "spring is more likely to see a general offensive opened by the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union on all fronts than any particular German offensive."

LIBYA OFFENSIVE OUT

London assessment of the strategic effect of British occupation of Madagascar Island is that it removes the possibility of an Axis offensive of major consequence in Libya in the near future.

An informed British observer is quoted as saying Britain's position in Libya had been "secured for the summer" by the Madagascar coup, Axis failure to snuff out Malta in more than 2,000 bombing raids, and the steady toll being taken in the Mediterranean of Libya-bound Axis troops and supply ships. General Sir Claude Auchinleck, he added, is strong enough now on the ground and in the air "to halt anything Rommel (the German general in North Africa) can throw at him."

"Hot weather has started (in Libya) and unless Rommel disregards all rules and attacks a superior force under bad conditions, there will be no (Axis offensive) campaign this summer," he predicted.

The British authority was careful to add that his conclusion did not cover a possible Nazi surge through Turkey to reach oil sources in Iraq and Iran or effect a "juncture" somewhere with Japan. He obviously regarded, however, the Madagascar operations as having made remote the possibility of any such German-Japanese contact, as well as having fortified Allied supply lines in the Indian Ocean and helped forestall an Axis drive in Libya.

NOTEWORTHY CHANGE OF TONE

Whether these Russian and British analyses are well founded or not time alone will tell. They certainly mark so decided a change of tone as to be noteworthy.

London also discloses that simultaneously with the Madagascar operation strong reinforcements were landed in Ceylon.

Just where the British troops in the Madagascar operation or those despatched to Ceylon came from is unrevealed. Some probably were direct from the United Kingdom where the American force in North Ireland has made possible the release of British troops for duty elsewhere.

The bulk of both expeditions, however, probably came from the British Command in Egypt and the Middle East and represents factually the same conclusion stated by the London authority, that there is no longer serious danger threatening Egypt from Libya; that the Axis effort to build up a major offensive or even an important diversion front there has definitely failed.

A Bit of Nonsense

Still Proves It

"Does your husband always live up to his promise of his courtship days?"

"Always. In those days he said he was not good enough for me, and he has been proving it ever since."

BIGGEST CROOK

LORD VANSITTART, at that time Permanent Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, regards the fall of Austria into Hitler's hands as directly due to the sinister part played by Laval.

"He is the greatest crook I have ever met in a long experience of international politics," Lord Vansittart told me yesterday.—G. Ward Price in London Daily Mail.

A Bible Message For Today . . .

Ye have heard that it was said by them of old time, Thou shalt not kill; and whosoever shall kill shall be in danger of the judgment: but I say unto you, That whosoever is angry with his brother without a cause shall be in danger of the judgment: and whosoever shall say to his brother, Raca, shall be in danger of the council: but whosoever shall say, Thou fool, shall be in danger of hell fire.

Therefore if thou bring thy gift to the altar, and there rememberest that thy brother hath ought against thee; leave there thy gift before the altar, and go thy way; first be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift.

Ye have heard that it was said by them of old time, Thou shalt not commit adultery. But I say unto you, That whosoever looketh on a woman to lust after her hath committed adultery with her already in his heart.

And if thy right eye offend thee, pluck it out, and cast it from thee: for it is profitable for thee that one of thy members should perish, and not that thy whole body should be cast into hell. And if thy right hand offend thee, cut it off, and cast it from thee; for it is profitably for thee that one of thy members should perish, and not that thy whole body should be cast into hell.—Matt. v. 21-24, 27-30.

For if ye live after the flesh, ye shall die; but if ye through the Spirit do mortify the deeds of the body, ye shall live. For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God.—Rom. viii, 13, 14.

MOST UN-NEUTRAL!

BELGIAN refugees feel pained by the way in which the efforts of their country in this war are overlooked. It was customary in Europe to describe the French as gentlemen with decorations, but no knowledge of geography. The same description could be applied to the editors of a widely circulated weekly magazine which last week published a map of Africa on which the Belgian Congo, whose troops have taken such an important part in the conquest of Ethiopia, capturing almost 20,000 prisoners and a round dozen Italian generals (which is not much to say after all), was listed as neutral territory in the present conflict.—News From Belgium.

GROVE SCHOOL DEFEATS PETERBORO CRICKET CLUB BY 74 RUNS

"Jumpin' Joe" Is Tagged At Home Plate

DiMaggio, of the New York Yankees, is out at home, with Catcher Turner of the Chicago White Sox putting the ball on him for the out. The Yankees tried a double steal as the man up struck out. Turner heaved to second, and got the throw back in time to nab DiMag. Even without this run the Yankees drubbed the Sox by 6 to 1 score.

FRANTIC WEEKEND

MAROONED AGAIN

CHAPTER XXII

Peggy, pleased with her brilliant staff work, slid into the water in her Hawaiian swimming suit. To the average man she would have been a perfect completion of the morning scene on that quiet lake, but Baldy closed his eyes. It was all like the cover of a travel folder —Peggy the inevitable pretty girl with an attractive figure. All his life he had been plagued with pretty girls and sentimental scenery in the show business. He lay back and shut his eyes to forget it.

If it had been Peggy's sister, Baldy mused, he might have kept his eyes open. In these days of fancy make-up and beauty business it was seldom one saw an honest-to-goodness homely face, one that had no nonsense behind it. Yes, she was quite a girl, without all that alimony to pay, he'd pick a girl like that.

Yes, a man could go places with a girl like Myra and not be afraid to leave her alone for fear of having tall, dark and handsomes hanging around while he was away. That was the trouble with Blossom. That was the trouble with Maisie and Rngela. He'd picked 'em from the show business when he still thought a pretty face was a fortune and good figures added up to something. But a man learned even if he had to pay and keep on paying for it.

Baldy's thoughts drifted until he dozed off into quiet slumber. When Peggy came out of the water she covered his open mouth with his handkerchief to keep the flies out, and lay down to dry in the sun and dream of her swift flight to fame. When she was at the top she would come back to Montreal in beautiful clothes. Then some faces she knew would go green with envy. With this unworthy thought she drifted into a complicated daydream.

Neither of them saw the reconnaissance patrol in the woods on the shore of the lake. Neither saw the two soldiers with the skill of trained campaigners put off in the other canoe, approach the island silently, land and creep around to the blue canoe. Neither heard a sound and neither noticed the blue canoe drift lazily out into the lake, aided by a gentle push.

When Peggy sat up, the blue canoe was almost 50 yards from the island, just about to drift out of sight. She looked at Baldy. He was asleep. She could swim out and get the canoe and bring it back. Peggy ran around the island and dived into the water, cutting through it with the clean strokes of a good swimmer, but the canoe seemed to be moving steadily away.

Slowly she reduced the distance but it was a long pull. She was getting tired when Nigel swam around the end of the canoe and with careful skill hoisted himself aboard.

Peggy paddled the water with a look of surprise on her face. Only then did she suspect a trap.

Nigel grinned down at her and paddled the canoe by her side.

"Want a lift?" he offered with a broad smile.

She clambered aboard, suppressing a sudden desire to tip Nigel out of the canoe, restrained by a realization that she was too tired for fooling. She looked at Nigel, her green eyes calculating the proper reply to his obvious grin of triumph.

"Paddle back to pick Baldy up," she said at last.

"Nothing doing," said Nigel. "Let's swim back."

Peggy's temper flared. "You... you beast! I know what this is! It's all part of a plot to cheat Baldy and cheat me. Beasts! All of you! I hate them and you too! I loathe you! I never want to see you again!"

A man in love, Nigel should have been disturbed by this burst of passion, but he had had the most of the morning to think about it and had been warned of Peggy's violent temper by Myra. He rediscovered that in Peggy's company he felt stimulated in some inexplicalbe but very pleasant way. Her burst of anger made him laugh with pleasure and his laugh only made her temper worst. What she said in the next few minutes as they pulled to the shore should have withered him and cast his spirits to the depths. She made it quite clear, and in biting language, that his face, his person, his character, and everything about him in minutest detail, was the most hateful and most despicable traits she had yet met with. Furthermore, she was going to take good care that she never saw anything of him again.

This made him laugh more than ever, delighted to see how vital and attractive her face was when she was angry.

His laughter was the last straw to her impatience and as he threw back his head in delight she jumped up on the side of the canoe, overturning it, pitching both of them into the water.

Nigel swallowed more water than was good for his comfort and came up spluttering and gasping. Peggy wrenched at his hand and pushed him under again. He came up again flailing and gasping. She put her foot in his face and pushed hard. She felt it was a very satisfying climax.

Nigel came up the third time, thoroughly disconcerted, and when he got his breath he saw Peggy clinging to the canoe, convulsed with laughter at him. His eyes took on a determination that sent her with a plunge and a fast stroke towards the shore. Nigel was after her, gaining on her. She stretched every ounce of strength to beat him and had just touched the wooden wharf when his hand wrenched her away. In a moment his strong arms had turned her around to revenge his ducking when a sudden twist of emotion as they touched one another crushed their lips together.

With a frightened gasp, fearful of her own inner turmoil, Peggy pushed him away, clambered to the wharf and ran to the boathouse.

He watched her go with strangely still eyes. She turned as she stopped by the door of the boathouse.

"I still hate you," she cried.

Then he began to smile again.

Curlers And Bowlers Mourn Death Judge L. V. O'Connor Of Cobourg

By HERB MARTIN

With the sudden death this morning of Judge L. V. O'Connor of Cobourg, the Lawn Bowling and Curling Associations have lost a most valuable member.

The late Judge O'Connor was active in these two sports for a great number of years and was well and favorably known all over the province.

In curling circles he represented the Lindsay Curling Club in the Ontario Tankard and he was instrumental in helping to bring to Lindsay, many times, the premier event of Ontario curling. He was past president of the Lindsay club and also of the Cobourg Curling Club. He was a member of the executive committee of the Ontario Curling Association and was finally elected president of that body, a tribute he so greatly deserved.

He was one of those curlers who loved any game that was on the up and up. He took a great interest in younger players. He was a real opponent and yet he never took advantage. He was a gentleman on and off the ice. He was always ready to give advice and his counsel was greatly appreciated by all.

Although he did not take up lawn bowling until he moved to Cobourg, yet the experience he gained at curling stood in his stead and he soon became almost as famous in this sport as he did in curling. He was past president of the Cobourg Lawn Bowling Club and he was quite active in the Cobourg Curling Club.

He will be greatly missed by all, on the ice and on the green. Great was the late Judge O'Connor. Many friends from Peterborough curling and bowling clubs will motor to Cobourg to pay their last respects to one who was loved and honored by all.

Leader Here For It, Too

By only a fraction of a foot does Sherwood Finley, Yale soph, SECOND from the BOTTOM, lead at this stage of the 120-yard high hurdles event at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, but he went on to take the event during the Yale-Pennsylvania track meet.

What Is "Burley" Tobacco?

The name "burley" designates a certain type of tobacco, grown in sunny southwestern Ontario, that is noted for its mildness and smooth smoking qualities. This is the new type of tobacco used in the manufacture of "SKYWAYS"—a new brand of pipe tobacco that has made a big hit with the public wherever it has been introduced. Just try a pouch of "SKYWAYS" at 15 cents and see for yourself how cool and smooth and flavorful "burley" tobacco can be.

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

The opening of the season of summer sports is at hand. Tonight will see two of the city's softball leagues get under way and another loop organize for the season and a week from tonight the City Softball Loop is due to open. Softball will of course be the major summer sport. There is no baseball in sight and lacrosse has folded until after the war at least. With the transportation problem looming larger all the time there would be little chance to operate a lacrosse squad and local enthusiasts have abandoned any idea of a revival of the game until the conditions come back to normal. And so with the two sports that used to grab off most of the limelight out of the picture for the time being softball is the king of summer games. It will have to supply most of the entertainment until the cold breezes blow in the fall.

* * * * * *

And at that the outlook is not as bright as might be wished. The City League which had five teams lined up last week is now likely to have to open the season with four, in view of the probability that Hastings will drop out of the loop because of player trouble. Some of the reinforcements the Jones boys were counting on have thrown in their lot with the Adam Hat Royals and as a result the Hastings management has about decided to toss in the sponge. In that event the Peterborough Hockey Club team expects to land Pitcher Dave Wilson and Julian, Joe Jones and Scriver of the Hastings club. A four-team loop will be the smallest roster the City League has had in years. Tonight will decide the prospects for the Ladies' League. The organization meeting of the league is called for the Duffus' Bowling Alleys at 8.30 tonight (the men meet at 8.00) and it is hoped that as a result that at least two new teams will be available. The loop operated with only two clubs last season and the experiment was not very satisfactory. As a contrast to the present situation it is interesting to remember that ten years ago there were eight clubs in the running for the Girls' League honors.

* * * * * *

Some Surprises

There was plenty of baseball under the big top over the week-end and a few surprises were dished out, especially in the case of the Boston Red Sox who dropped two games to the lowly Philadelphia A's yesterday and as a result find themselves today a little further off the pace. The A's in taking both ends of the double bill stopped two of Joe Cronin's best pitchers. In the first game which Connie Mack's team won 4 to 2 they handed Heber Newsome his first defeat of the season with Roger Wolff getting the credit and in the second battle Christopher, another young A twirler was the winner, with Lefty Judd getting the loss, although he did not start the game. Ted Williams tied up the contest in the first part of the ninth with a homer with one on but the A's came back with a run in their half to take the decision. Cleveland Indians after dropping their fifth game in a row Saturday to the Detroit Tigers absorbed their sixth loss in the first game Sunday when Tommy Bridges held them to five hits and the Bengals won 5 to 1 but in the second game the Indians after being down 5 to 0 finally rallied and won out in the tenth 6 to 5. New York Yanks did not play Saturday but they took the first half of a double feature Sunday from Washington 4 to 3, thanks to homers by Joe DiMaggio and Charlie Keller and the second on a wild pitch that sent in the winning run.

* * * * * *

St. Louis Browns lost a close one to the Chicago White Sox Saturday afternoon 2 to 1. The Pale Hose got both their runs and all their three hits in the first inning off Johnny Niggeling and after that were helpless. Sunday however they got revenge with Eldon Auker on the rubber, defeating the White Sox 5 to 2. Edgar Smith was the starting pitcher for the Chicgao outfit and sustained his fifth straight loss this season. He is one of many pitchers in the two big leagues who seem to be having an unusually tough time getting things under control.

* * * * * *

Speaking of pitching, there was nothing particularly wrong with the brand the Cincinnati Reds got yesterday in grabbing off both ends of a double-header from the St. Louis Cards. The Reds took both games by the shutout route. With Starr pitching they defeated the Cards 1 to 0 in the first fixture, Mort Cooper being the losing tosser and came back in the second to win 3 to 0 against Beazley with Bucky Walters pitching a four-hitter to get the second shutout of the day. The Reds also defeated the Cards Saturday with Johnny VanderMeer handing Harry Gumbert his first defeat of the season. The final count was 5 to 2. Brooklyn Dodgers who beat the Giants yesterday 5 to 3 with Ed Head the winning pitcher improved their position materially over the week-end with the Cards dropping three in a row and Pittsburg Pirates having their flag lowered twice by the Chicago Cubs. It was a bad two days for both the Dodgers' closest opponents.

* * * * * *

May Be Way Out

The changing situation in the sporting scene is indicated by a couple of developments over the week-end. The Ontario Lawn Tennis Association has found it desirable to cancel its annual Ontario championships this summer and the Canadian Canoe Association has abandoned its annual Dominion regatta until the war is over. Thus the world conflict is gradually cutting in on sport generally. With the demands of the army and of war industry increasing and transportation becoming more difficult because of the gas and tire crisis it is inevitable that sporting activities will have to be curtailed. This column believes that sport has a real job to perform in wartime to build up morale and ease worn-threatened nerves and with provincial competitions disappearing it may be that the solution of keeping games alive will depend upon city and town leagues where no travelling is involved. At all events it is the only plan in sight that seems to have a chance to succeed.

The Peterborough-Whitaker Cricket Club ran into an unexpectedly decisive defeat at the hands of Grove School, Lakefield, on Saturday, the school team winning from the combined local eleven by 120 runs to 46. The Grove team had the services of two masters but the real scoring punch did not come from them but from two of the pupils, B. Dobbin, who was high-scorer for the day with 43 runs and P. Carr-Harris—there is a name to conjure with in Ontario sport—who carried his bat for a total of 32. Fred Smith who was the leading batter for Peterborough-Whitakers at Port Hope the week before contributd 25 runs, not out, to the slender Peterborough total Saturday. The P.-W. team will play its first home game here Victoria Day when Trinity College School will be here.

Southpaws Are Missing In Big Bowling

By ROBERT CLARKE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL, May 11.—(CP). — What's happened to those left-handed bowlers?....Harry Brown, president of the Montreal Bowling Association, can remember when there used to be plenty.

Harry will tell you of the time when there used to be three southpaws on a team, sponsored by Jimmy Strachan, that bowled at the American Bowling Congress at Toledo, Ohio....But that was 20 years ago and the southpaws have been on the decline ever since.

The M.B.A. president figures that there are 250,000 bowlers, male and female, in the city of Montreal at present....and he estimates that about 55 per cent. of them are of the so-called weaker sex....But Harry can't figure where the lefties have gone....Fifteen or 20 years ago Harry says there were a thousand or so in Montreal....But now he thinks that there must be less than 500 among the quarter million bowlers in the city.

And listen to what Harry has to say about the rubber shortage, you bowlers....Those one-inch bands on the pins eat up a lot of rubber.... And Harry says that the manufacturers will be hard-pressed when another bowling season rolls around ....The pin-makers, however, are likely to use rubber from old pins for the next season.

Incidentally

Frankie Eddolls, star defenceman with Hershey Bears of the American Hockey League, intends to apply for enlistment in the Royal Canadian Air Force shortly.... Eddolls, voted the most valuable player to his team, will be 21 years of age in July....And by the way, Frankie says that three or four more members of the Oshawa junior team that he played on two years ago intend to join the R.C.A.F. en masse.

Hoop Stuff.

Vancouver boasts a cage coach of no mean repute in Gordon Dowling, who piloted his intermediate A' Sparlings Club through 11 straight playoff games to a provincial championship without defeat ....He had the same kids for four straight years and for the past three seasons had won 66 games in 77 starts.

Peanuts.

The only thing the baseball fans will miss at the old ball park in Vancouver this year are the peanuts. The war has made them almost impossible to obtain....But there's no scarcity of gubbers in Toronto and Montreal for the International baseball games....As one wag put it, they intend to put in a peanut as a pinch-hitter for the Leafs any day.

School Runs Up 120 Runs To Visitors 46

The Peterborough Whitaker C.C. travelled to Lakefield to play one of the long established matches against Grove School and experienced a decisive and unexpected defeat by 74 runs, the final score being Grove 120, P.W. 46.

The school, who batted first, had the services of three masters, Messrs. G. W. Smith, H. Ketchum and Taggart, but the stars of the afternoon's play were two of the boys, B. Dobbin 43 and P. Carr-Harris 32 not out. Coming partners with the score at 30 for 5, they mastered the local bowlers and quickly added 50 before Dobbin was out for a freely-hit 43, which included two sixes. Wickets then fell quickly until Roy (10) the last man partnered Carr-Harris and they took the total to 120, leaving Carr-Harris not out for a well-played innings of 32. Bowling honors were shared by Dyer 5 for 47, Colbran 4 for 21, and Wild 2 for 32.

The P.-W. men made a feeble response. As at Port Hope on the previous Saturday the only player to make a good showing was Fred Smith, who, going in first wicket down, with the total at 5, played through the inning and was not out for a confident and freely hit innings of 25, more than half the side's total. The nature of his batting is shown by the fact that his 25 included four singles. Six wickets were down for 19, but Smith with some help from W. Dyer and Busby took it to 46. When Urquhart was put on to bowl and in 4 balls took 3 wickets without conceding a run. Ketchum took 4 wickets for 20, Taggart 1 for 9, Roy 1 for 6 and the other two batsmen were run out.

Next Saturday the teams play a return match at Nicholls Oval and the local men will be keen to avenge Saturday's defeat.

TORONTO MAPLE LEAFS WIN THREE OF FOUR WEEKEND CONTESTS

Baltimore Drops Two Games To Toronto Team

By The Associated Press.

The International Baseball League season, less than a month old, Newark Bears today hold a full three-game lead over Montreal Royals, although Manager Bill Meyer has seen his starting pitcher around at the finish in only seven of the 21 games played.

If and when the Newark mound staff rounds into shape, the 1942 edition of the Bears may equal the achievements of the great teams of the mid-thirties.

Neither of the Bear pitching choices was able to finish yesterday as the club divided a twin bill with Syracuse Chiefs. Tom Byrne, young southpaw, stayed around until the ninth frame of the opener before being relieved but he was the victor in the 4-3 melee. Milo Candini was replaced by Randy Gumpert in the fourth frame of the nightcap which the Chiefs won, 6-4.

Dividing twin bills was the order of the day in the circuit. Buffalo trimmed Toronto 7 4 in the opener and then lost, 8-6; Montreal measured Baltimore 5-1, before losing 7-2, and Jersey City edged out Rochester ?-2 in the opener only to drop the finale, 7-2.

Monareal's triumph over Baltimore was the result of some high-powered hitting by Les Burge and Eddie Morgan and six-hit pitching by Jack Kraus. Burge and Morgan each got a homer and a single. Lester McCrabb was the victim of a five-run outburst in the fourth of the second game, Bob Lemon driving in three runs with a triple.

Dutch Meyer and Ed Kobesky continued their slugging orgy in Buffalo's triumph over Toronto but the Leafs came back to win their first game since 1940 on the Bison field in the abbreviated nightcap on Jack Wyrostek's homer with two mates on base.

Hugh East, sent down from New York Giants last week, hurled Jersey City Giants to their triumph as Johnny Rucker showed signs of coming out of his hitting slump by belting a home run. In the second contest, Ed Wissman registered his third win of the season.

Toronto won three of its four week-end games. Playing at home Saturday, the Leafs defeated Baltimore 6-2 in the opening and then took a 3-2 decision in 12 innings in the nightcap. In other Saturday games, Buffalo downed Syracuse 5-1, Newark walloped Montreal 12-3, and Rochester made it 8-6 over Jersey City.

Dodgers, Yanks Strengthen Leads In Leagues

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's a long way to the world series, but New York Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers appear to be heading toward a return engagement in that October classic under a full head of steam.

Both teams strengthened their positions at the head of their respective pennant races Sunday while their closest pursuers were knocking each other off or being kicked around by upstarts from the second division.

The accent was on pitching in the day's 15-game program and a total of 16 hurlers went the distance as if to show appreciation for the huge Sunday crowds which kept the turnstiles working overtime.

Among major league parks open for business, all except St. Louis drew at least 20,000 fans. New York's Yankee Stadium topped the list with 40,744. Paid attendance for the day was 184,879, with the American League playing to 95,928 and the National 88,951.

Giants Beaten 5-3

In the only singleton of the afternoon, Brooklyn Dodgers stretched their National League lead to 2½ games by dumping New York Giants 5-3 as the second-place Pittsburgh Pirates split with Chicago Cubs and Cincinnati Reds knocked St. Louis Cardinals out of third place with a double shutout.

Rookie Ed Head limited the Giants to eight scattered hits in gaining his fourth straight triumph while the Dodgers pasted the loss on Carl Hubbell, who went looking for his first victory of the year and wound up instead with his second defeat.

Phil Cavarretta drove in the runs which gave the Cubs a 4-2 triumph over Pittsburgh in the first game at Chicago, but Bob Klinger pitched the Pirates to a 3-2 win in the afterpiece, yielding only five hits.

Bucky Walters returned to his old-time pitching form at Cincinnati, shutting out the Cardinals 3-0 on four hits in the second game after Ray Starr had racked up his third straight mound decision by blanking the Cards, 1-0, in the opener.

Walter fanned 10 men, walked only two, and hit a two-run single to gain the nod over John Beazley, who dished out only five blows. Starr gave up nine hits, two more than the Reds collected off Mort Cooper, but singles by Lonnie Frey and Max Marshall, rapped around a sacrifice, accounted for the only run.

Cards and Reds Tie.

The double defeat pulled the Cards into a fourth-place tie with the Reds and turned third place over to Boston Braves, who divided a twin bill with Philadelphia Phils.

The Braves won the first game 5-1 behind the four-hit pitching of Al Javery, but Ernie Koy blasted a three-run homer that gave the Phils the nightcap, 4-3.

In New York, the Yankees stretched their current winning streak to seven games and hiked thei American League lead to two lengths with a twin victory over Washington Senators as Cleveland and Detroit split and Philadelphia Athletics knocked off Boston Red Sox twice.

A squeeze play in the ninth inning scored the run that gave the Yanks the first game, 4-3, and the second went 10 innings before Jack Wilson uncorked a wild pitch with a man on third, handing the world champions a 3-2 decision.

Tommy Bridges pitched pitched five-hit ball in giving Detroit Tigers a 5-1 victory over Cleveland Indians in the first game, but the Tribe rallied to snap a six-game losing streak and take the second, 6-5 in 10 innings.

Behind Five Rns.

Behind five runs in the ninth inning of the nightcap the Indians tied the score and won out in the 10th on Lou Boudreau's triple and Ken Keltner's single.

Big Bob Johnson's bat knocked Boston Red Sox out of a second-place tie with Cleveland and into fourth place behind Detroit as the Athletics swept the bargain bill, 4-2 and 6-5.

St. Louis Browns and Chicago White Sox divided their double-header, the Browns taking the opener 5-2 and the Sox the finale, 9-7, with Bob Swift of St. Louis and Joe Kuhel of Chicago deciding each issue with a home run.

In Saturday's National League engagements, Boston defeated Philadelphia 6-2, Chicago turned back Pittsburgh 3-1 and Cincinnati won 5-2 over St. Louis. Weather forced postponement of Brooklyn's game with the Giants.

In the American League, Detroit squeezed out a 1-0 victory over Cleveland in a game called in the sixth inning and Chicago nosed out the Browns 2-1. Washington at New York and Boston at Philadelphia were postponed.

Alsab Captures Preakness By One Length

BALTIMORE, May 11—Alsab won as sensational horse race as has been run in Maryland in many a day when he came around his field from a rearguard position and smashed home first by a length in the fifty-second Preakness Stakes Saturday to set a new record for the race.

Vindicating admirers, who had clung to him through thick and thin and eight previous 1942 defeats, the acknowledged 1941 juvenile champ dashed to such a convincing victory that most of the racegoers were willing to acclaim him the champion 3-year-old, even though this was his first victory of the year.

A crowd of 35,000, that jammed old Pimlico to the gates, roared its approval since a sensational turnover in the betting sent the bay colt to the post favorite when it had seemed to all the experts that the Greentree Stable entry of Shut Out and Devil Diver would rule the public choice. Two-dollar bets made the winner the favorite.

The Kentucky Derby winner, Shut Out, was fifth. His stablemate was eighth.

Close to Track Record

Alsab earned $58,175 for his mile and three-sixteenths run over a fast track in 1:57, which lowered the old record by a second an a fifth. This time is only a fifth of a second slower than the track mark held jointly by Pompoon and Seabiscuit, both older than Alsab's 3 years when they ran in record time. Alsab's clocking was the same as Whirlaway had made in winning the Dixie Handicap on Wedneseday.

Locked in a dead heat for second were Requested and Sun Again. Requested had an ideal running position, momentarily held the lead and a good index to what many felt was expressed by Leon (Buddy) Haas, rider of Requested. Haas said: "He (Alsab) went past me flying, and I was on a good horse."

Swenke Vindicated

Trainer August (Sarge) Swenke, who has taken a good deal of criticism because of the manner in which he has been instructed to race Alsab, said: "He did it in my own back yard." Swenke, a Baltimore boy, has saddled Alsab twenty-two times last year, and nine times this year.

In other words, Alsab has had thirty-one races in fifteen months, his first start having been at Hialeah Park in February, 1941. Subsequently he raced at Tropical Park, Keeneland Park, Churchill Downs, Lincoln Fields, Arlington Park, Suffolk Downs, Arlington again, Washington Park, Havre de Grace, Belmont Park Laurel, Pimlico, Hialeah again, Havre de Grace once more, Churchill Downs for second time and now Pimlico for the second time.

Compared With Man O'War

As one man said: "If Alsab ain't Man O'War to stand that much shipping and racing, then he's better than Man O'War."

Man O'War's entire racing career consisted of twenty-one races in two years, and Alsab has another half year to go before he is finished with competition this season. After the finish it was announced that he would be shipped to belmont Park for Withers and Belmont Stakes.

Albert Sabath, who purchased the colt on Swenke's advice for $700, carried off the Woodlawn Vase to Chicago and said: "He cured my heart disease." Mr. Sabath watched the race from a front row box, following many months of remaining in the paddock, while the horse raced, because of a doctor's advice that he should not subject his heart to any strain. Including the Preakness purse, Alsab has earned $182,075.

Alsab returned $6.10, $3.70 and $3.40 for $2 across the board. Requested paid $6.10 and $8.70, while Sun Again's prices were $4 and $5.10. The dead heat for the place was the first in Preakness history.

When the start came, all were off together with the exception of Colchis. After the finish Jockey George Woolf said he had taken Colchis back deliberately in order to bring him on in the stretch.

Apache raced for the lead and had the speed to outfoot Devil Diver, who broke from No. 1 post position. Requested was in an ideal position going to the first turn, while Shut Out and Alsab were well back in the field, Alsab the further back of the two.

Apache Yields Lead

Along the backstretch Requested moved up to challenge Apache, who held on well but not nearly well enough. Devil Diver as found wanting as the far turn was approached. There was a hole for him to go through between the leaders and the rail, but he had not the speed or power to do so. Now it was Requested winging in front.

Alsab still was far out of things swinging around the bend. At the head of the stretch Sun Again became a contender.

He raced up to Requested but could not get past. Alsab raced up to them both, and the way he went past was a caution. He just dashed past. The other two riders were whipping and booting. Basil James, on Alsab, a driving too, but his horse was leaving the others rapidly.

The cheers of the racegoers were deafening. They had seen their champion and recognized him and were giving him every ounce from roaring throats.

The pari-mutuel handle was $1,136,903, as against the 1929 Preakness Day record of $1,341,229. On the Preakness, $240,353 was wagered. With $7,500 going to each of the horses that ran a dead heat for second and $2,000 for fourth, the value of the Preakness reached $75,175.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sport Writer.

NEW YORK, May 11 — (AP). — John Heydler, former-president of the National League who can tell you about baseball almost back to the beginning, comes up with this explanation of why modern clubs murder the pitchers with those big innings . . . It's because they swing any time they think they can hit the ball, even going for the 2-0 and 3-0 pitches . . . "In my day," he says, 'We would have been benched for trying to hit after three balls had been called instead of waiting out a walk" . . . Story around town is that when and if Private Joe Louis fights Private Billy Conn next summer, the army emergency relief will get $100,000 off the top and then Louis and Mike Jacobs will contribute six per cent of their shares and Conn will kick in three per cent . . . It's Corporal Vic Ghezzi now, and he'd better do all right when he defends his pro golf title unless he wants to return to the ranks.

Monday Matinee

No matter how long he pitches, 16-year-old Eugene Green of Detroit won't likely get as big a thrill as he did in his debut last week. A third-baseman, Green decided to try pitching when his St. Rose High he turned in a no-hitter . . . Story from San Francisco is that one reason for Clark Shaughnessy's departure from Stanford was that instead of handing out the customary $1,000 bonus for a Rose Bowl coach, Stanford didn't come through until Clark asked for something for his assistants and it was only $500 for the boss and $250 for the aides.

Out On a Limb

When Bob Whitlow, army pitcher, socked the ball over a fence 335 feet from the home plate at West Point the other day, he got credit for a double instead of a home run . . . The ball hit the trunk of a tree outside the field and bounced back. And military efficiency, providing for the possibility that a hit would strike one of branches hanging over the field, had a ground rule for what might happen in the air.

Wales Captures Soccer Match

LONDON, May 11.—(CP Cable.)—Wales defeated England 1-0 Saturday in a hard-fought international football match at Cardiff before a crowd of 35,000, avenging a defeat by England last fall.

The match brought the international season to a finish.

The Welsh team attacked constantly and inside forward Lucas, playing for the first time as an internationalist, got the deciding goal midway through the first half.

In semi-finals of the football league War Cup competition, Wolverhampton Wanderers scored a smashing 4-0 victory over West Bromwich and Sunderland and Grimsby Town played a scoreless draw. Both games were the first of home-and-home, total-goal series, return games will be played next Saturday.

Forty thousand fans watched Glasgow Rangers take the Scottish Southern League Cup with a 1-0 win over Morton. The Scottish Northeastern League Cup finalists will be Aberdeen and Dundee United. Aberdeen defeated East Fife 1-0 Saturday and won the home-and-home series 2-1. Dundee drew 1-1 with Rangers but won the round 4-3.

Blackpool took an undisputed lead in the fotball league championship race with an 8-2 win over Oldham. Manchester United, tied until Saturday with Blackburn, was held to a 1-1 draw by Blackburn. Third place Liverpool upset Chesterfield 3-0.

Canoe Regatta Is Cancelled

gates to the forty-first annual meeting of the Canadian Canoe Association decided Saturday to suspend its Dominion championship regatta for the war's duration.

An opening was left, however, for a possible championship regatta featuring events for juveniles, juniors and men in the armed forces when the northern division recommendation to suspend the regatta was amended to read:

"That the C.C.A. continue to function and that the annual fee for membership be reduced to $10 for each club for the 1942 season and that the C.C.A. regatta, as now constituted, be suspended for the duration."

Delegates also passed a western division recommendation calling for a C.C.A. juvenile championship regatta to be held "at some central point if pssible." The executive was given authority to add junior and military events to the program.

One suggestion was that the regatta be staged here Aug. 1 in conjunction with the annual inter-city meet between Montreal and Ottawa paddlers.

The move to suspend the annual championship regatta was generally anticipated. The event has been held annually since the association was formed in 1900, except for three years during the first Great War.

Special Service Enjoyed At Marmora

MARMORA May 11.—(ENS)—St. Andrew's United Church was well filled on Sunday morning for the annual Mother's Day service. The singing of the hymns at both services of the day was led by a mother's choir. At the morning service, a solo was also rendered by Miss Steer. The form of service as prescribed by the O.R.E.C. was followed. Rev. Dr. W. P. Fletcher gave a most appropriate address. The church was prettily decorated with apple blossoms, tulips and other blooms.

Mother's Day was observed at St. Paul's with a special service at 11 a.m. which was well attended. Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell who officiated, preached an impressive sermon, choosing as his text Acts 1:14. "Mary the Mother of Jesus." Flowers on the altar were in memory of the late Mrs. William Archer and the late Mr. and Mrs. William R. Reynolds, the gift of their families.

Owing to illness of the rector of Rawdon, Rev. C. H. Quarterman, Rural Dean Caldwell took the afternoon service at St. Thomas, Rawdon and the evening service at St. Mark's, Bonarlaw, with W. J. Cottrell, Diocesan Lay Reader, officiating at St. Paul's in the evening.

Mr. William McCoy is quite ill at the home of his son, Mr. Irwin McCoy.

Miss Mary Paquett left on Friday for training with the R.C.A.F., Toronto.

Week-end guests included: Miss Dorothy Caldwell of Toronto with her parents, Rural Dean and Miss Caldwell; Miss Peggy Hewitt of Toronto with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Hewitt; Private Thomas Crawford of Peterborough with his parents, Dr. and Mrs. H. Crawford; Mr. M. McAulay, R.C.A.F., Oshawa, with friends; Frank Hulsman of RC.A.F., Montreal, with his parents, Mr and Mrs. J. Hulsman; Miss Rose Doyle of Peterborough with Mr. and Mrs. John Doyle; Mr. and Mrs. James Henderson of Ottawa with Mrs. Henderson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Shannon; Misses Dorothy and Vera Nayler of Peterborough with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clare Nayler; Private Jack Shannon of Peterborough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Shannon; Miss Frances Marrin, nurse-in-training at Hotel Dieu Hospital, Kingston, with Mr. and Mrs. E. Shannon; Private William Wright of Camp Borden with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Wright.

Mr. "Scotty" Williamson of New York City is the guest of Mr. Harry Dunlay.

Mr. and Mrs. William Tinsdell of Toronto spent the week-end with Mrs. Tinsdell's mother, Mrs. W. Sweet. Mr. Tinsdell returned to the city on Sunday but Mrs. Tinsdell is remaining for two weeks.

Deal Heavy Blow Against Jap Sea Power

Units of the United States navy dealt a heavy blow at Japanese naval power in a major sea battle off the Solomon Islands when 11 Japanese ships were sunk, four damaged and six planes destroyed. American losses in the engagement were only three planes. Ships of the U.S. Navy are pictured here with escorting planes "somewhere in the Pacific."

Dire Warning

which he said would "grip and hold the Japanese."

Many of his passages rang with assurance and determination, touching on events still to come and on accomplishments already on the credit side of the Allies' ledger.

Among the most significant were these:

Ultimate victory:

"As in the last war we are moving through many reverses and defeats to a complete and final victory.

"We have only to endure and persevere to conquer. . . .

"Now we are not alone. We have mighty allies . . . there can be but one end."

"I wish to make it plain that we shall treat the unprovoked use of poison gas against our Russian ally exactly as if it were used against ourselves and if we are satisfied that this new outrage has been committed by Hitler we will use our great and growing air superiority in the west to carry gas warfare on the largest possible scale far and wide against military objectives in Germany."

Hitler's great mistake:

"In June last, without provocation and in breach of a pact of non-aggression, he invaded the lands of the Russian peoples . . . He had the strongest army in the world, trained in war, flushed with incredible, unbroken successes, and equipped with limitless munitions. . . .

"The Russians . . . . sustained losses which no other country or government has ever borne in so short a time and lived. . . .

His Greatest Blunder

"Then Hitler made his second grand blunder. He forgot about the winter . . . No one can say with certainty how many millions of Germans have already perished in Russia. . . . Certainly more have perished than were killed in the whole 4¼ years of the last war. (In the first Great War, 1,773,700 Germans were killed and total German casualties, including wounded, captured and missing were 7,142,558.)

Air attacks:

"We are on his tracks.....The British and presently the American bombing offensive against Germany will be one of the principal features in this year's World War.

"....Now, while the German armies will be bleeding and burning up their strength against a 2,000-mile Russian front and when the news of casualties by the hundreds of thousands is streaming back to the German Reich, now is the time to bring home to the German people the wickedness of their rulers by destroying under their very eyes the factories and seaports on which their war efforts depends."

Second front:

"We are urged from man quarters to invade the Continent of Europe and so form a second front. Naturally, I shall not disclose what our intentions are. But there is one thing I will say. I welcome the militant, aggressive spirit of the British nation, so strongly shared across the Atlantic...."

The Pacific:

"The Japanese....will find resistance stiffening on all their widely-spread fronts. They can ill afford such losses as they have suffered in the naval action of the Coral Sea....

"At the start the pent-up, saved-up resources of Japan were bound to prevail....But the strength of the United States....is many times greater than the power of Japan, and we also will make our contribution to the final defeat and punishment of this ambitious and greedy nation....

"I am not prone to make predictions, but I have no doubt to-night that British and American sea power will grip and hold the Japanese and that overwhelming air power ....will lay them low."

Bombers Change

ing the Japanese ever since—"Where did they come from?" — was left pointedly unanswered.

First In 2600 Years

The communique, reporting that U.S. Army bombers had made the first attack in 2,600 years on what the Japanese regard as the sacred soil of the homeland, said:—

"The attack was made in clear weather in the middle of the day, the planes flying at low altitudes—so low that it was necessary to avoid barrage balloons. The selected targets were unmistakable and were accurately attacked with demolition and incendiary bombs.

"Military, naval and industrial plants were the objectives in the vicinity of Tokyo, Yokohoma, Nagoya, and other localities. Large fires were started which continued to burn in some instances for at least two days.

"An interesting sidelight on the raid was the fact that as the planes approached Japan a propaganda broadcast in English was being transmitted by a Tokyo radio station. The announcer was detailing the pleasures of life in Japan and the freedom from fear of bombing.

"Suddenly, this program was cut off, and a warning was broadcast in Japanese to the effect that Tokyo was then being bombed by a great number of low-flying airplanes which were travelling at terrific speed.

Too Fast To Be Caught

"The Japanese announcer stated that these planes were moving too fast to be overtaken. He later reported that three Japanese interceptor planes had been lost.

"Later in the afternoon a further broadcast announced that there were between three and four thousand casualties. The Japanese people were asked to pray for rain to extinguish the fires and to decrease the chance of further air raids.

"Subsequently, the tone of the broadcast became less feverish and it was announced that only hospitals, schools, and other points of no possible military value had been bombed and that even then the damage had been slight.

"Forty-eight hours later the Tokyo broadcaster reported that the fires started during the raid were then under control."

There was no confirmation of Japanese reports at the time that nine planes had been shot down.

quarters has branded as "fantastic" Japanese claims regarding Allied losses in the battle, their actual extent still is undisclosed and it is generally expected here than any announcement would come only from Washington—when the United States Navy department believes the information will no longer benefit the Japanese.

In addition to blasting the two Japanese submarines yesterday, Allied bombers attacked enemy seaplanes in the Louisiade Islands off the southeastern tip of New Guinea.

"Bombs were dropped in the target area," said the communique announcing this attack. No further details were given.

A spokesman said the seaplanes mentioned were operating from a seaplane tender. Although there have been several references in recent communiques to attacks on Japanese shipping and transports in the Louisiades there has been no announcement of an enemy landing there.

Five Japanese seaplanes were reported destroyed or badly damaged by the Allied bombers credited with damaging the seaplane tender and tanker Saturday.

Two other enemy planes—both Zero fighters—were destroyed when Allied fighters intercepted a light attack yesterday on Port Moresby, Allied outpost on the southern coast of New Guinea, headquarters declared.

Prime Minister John Curtin conferred yesterday with Gen. MacArthur, presumably with reference to the situation developing from the Coral Sea battle.

Demand Heavy For Potatoes On Farm Market

Demand for potatoes on the market Saturday was decidedly active, especially for table stock, according to some of the farmers who said they sold out by half past eleven. James Healey disposed of 35 bags of White Stars and M. Weatherilt of Bethany 21 bags of the same variety. Their price was $1.80. A. Sinclair had Katahdins and Chippewas at $1.75, and certified Katahdins for 2.25.

"Most people are asking for table stock," Mr. Healey said. "I brought in a few bags of seed Stars, and they are the only ones I have left."

That was before the noon hour, and it is likely that his truck was empty by the time he was ready to start for home.

Nova Scotia and New Brunswick potatoes were at the same prices as last week, Katahdins and Cobblers $2.25 and Green Mountains $2. Herb Doig was offering some of these potatoes with asparagus at 10 cents a bunch and maple syrup at $2.75 a gallon.

The feature of the market was the unloading of greenhouse plants. Parkers of Hastings brought up a truck load of plants, and had only a few odds and ends left, at 11.30 o'clock. The price was 20 cents a box for tomatoes and cabbage plants and the same price for annual flowers, petunias, snapdragons, marigolds and so on.

G. L. Tedford of Young's Point was selling "Senator Dunlop" strawberry plants at 75 cents a hundred.

The upstairs market seemed to be even lighter than a week ago. Butter was 37 cents, eggs 28 to 40 cents, broiler chickens 35 cents and last years pullets 30 cents a pound. Twenty-eight cents seemed to be the low for eggs, and the largest grade, of which there were only a few dozen, brought forty cents a dozen.

At one stand with a wide range in egg sizes the prices were from 40 cents down to 26, but generally the minimum quotation was 28 cents. One woman upstairs was content with a cut in the asparagus price, two bunches for fifteen cents. "Keep the market prices cheaper than the stores if you want the buyers to come up here." That was her selling principle. It was clicking for her Saturday, for she had nothing left at her stand half an hour before noon.

Lifford Line Honors Newlywed Couple

LIFFORD LINE, May 11 (ENS)—A large crowd of young people gathered at Lifford community hall in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Reed of Reaboro whose marriage took place at Lindsay Presbyterian Manse on March 28, 1942. Previous to her marriage, Mrs. Reed was Miss Evelyn Finney, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Finney of Fleetwood. She was a popular young lady, active in church and community life.

When all had assembled Mr. Chris Cummiskey, formerly reeve of Manvers and at present township treasurer, called the assemblage to order, addressed the bride and groom who were prominently located at the front of the hall.

The committee in charge of proceedings for the evening then came forward and presented the happy young couple with a beautiful electric floor lamp and a handsome book trough. The groom made genial and grateful reply on behalf of himself and his bride, extending a hearty invitation to all to visit them in their newly-purchased farm home near Reaboro. Mrs. Reed added her thanks and invitation in her usual friendly manner. All sang heartily "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows."

The lunch committee then served dainty refreshments including brides cake. Dancing and social conversation were the chief features of activity for the remainder of the evening. Music was furnished on the violin by George Tims and on the piano by the Misses McGill of Janetville.

MILLBROOK

Plans Are Made For Hostess Tea

MILLBROOK, May 11—(ENS).—Mrs. J. L. Byam extended the hospitality of her home, Bank Street, for the May meeting of the Women's Association of St. Andrew's Church on Wednesday at 3 p.m., with the president, Mrs. P. I. Bentley, in the chair. Mrs. Franklin Bannister read the lesson on the study topic: "The Sacrament of Prayer and Communion."

The treasurer, Mrs. J. McNight, reported $7,50 from "vanishing teas" held since the April meeting, and $26 from the sale of baking and afternoon tea held a week ago in the waiting room. The president brought up the matter of planting shrubs, or perennials, in the flower beds at the church, the Board of Managers having asked the W.A. to take over this matter; the executive was given power to act. The annual hostess tea, set for Wednesday, May 27, came up for arrangements, the following hostesses, each two in charge of three tables being appointed as follows: Mrs. P. Stinson, Mrs. J. H. McKnight, Mrs. W. E. Ball, Miss Josie Sutton, Mrs. John Rowland, Mrs. W. H. Armstrong, Mrs. F. J. Smith, Miss M. Pitman, Mrs. W. R. Howard, Mrs. H. D. Bigelow, Mrs. H. W. Johnston, Miss Luella Kennedy, Mrs. J. McKnight, Mrs. F. Erskine, Mrs. Arthur Fallis, Mrs. T. Douglas, Mrs. A. R. Payne, Mrs. W. W. Kennedy, Mrs. Aubrey Fallis, Mrs. Allie Fallis, Mrs. H. A. Fallis, Mrs. H. J. Armstrong, Mrs. A. J. Brown, Mrs. Hert Ball, Mrs. F. Bannister, Mrs. F. L. Edworthy, Mrs. Edgar Fallis, Mrs. Wilfred Elson. Pouring tea: Mrs. Al. Sisco and Mrs. H. A. Earle. Filling tea-pots: Mrs. M. Hetherington and Mrs. G. O. Fallis.

Miss M. Finnimore invited the society to her home for the June meeting, and after the meeting, Mrs. Byam served coffee, sandwiches and cookies, the social hour being much enjoyed.

LOOK OUT FOR YOUR LIVER

Buck it up right now and feel like a million!

Your liver is the largest organ in your body and most important to your health. It pours out bile to digest food, gets rid of waste, supplies new energy, allows proper nourishment to reach your blood. When your liver gets out of order food decomposes in your intestines. You become constipated, stomach and kidneys can't work properly. You feel "rotten"—headachy, backachy, dizzy, dragged out all the time.

For over 35 years thousands have won prompt relief from these miseries—with Fruit-a-tives. So can you now. Try Fruit-a-tives—you'll be simply delighted how quickly you'll feel like a new person, happy and well again. 25c, 50c.

KEEP REGULAR WITHOUT "DOSING"

Try the "Better Way" for More Than Temporary Relief

LONDON, Canada: Doctors will tell you common constipation is caused often by lack of the right kind of "bulk" in the diet. "Dosing" constipation gives only temporary relief. KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN gets at the cause and corrects it . . . naturally.

ALL-BRAN supplies the proper kind of "bulk" to help you keep regular. It's delicious, too. Eat it every day, as a cereal or in crisp muffins, and drink plenty of water. But remember, ALL-BRAN doesn't work like purgatives. It takes time. At your grocer's, in two convenient sizes. Or in individual serving packages at restaurants Made by Kellogg's in London, Canada

• MEMO TO ADVERTISERS

HOW TO MEASURE Advertising Values

We ask advertisers to think of the circulation of this newspaper in terms of the distribution of their advertising—the size, quality and interest of the audience to which their advertising is addressed. From that viewpoint our circulation becomes a more direct factor in business plans.

There are well-known standards for circulation values just as there are definite measures of weight and quality as used in the purchase and sale of merchandise.

The standards for evaluating circulation have been established by the Audit Bureau of Circulations, a national cooperative association of 2000 advertisers, advertising agencies and publishers in the United States and Canada. This newspaper is an A.B.C. member.

The Bureau has a large staff of experienced auditors and each year one of these men visits our office and makes an audit of our circulation records. Based on the information thus secured, the Bureau issues official A.B.C. Audit Reports.

These reports tell how much circulation we have, where and how it is distributed, how much people paid (important because paid circulation proves reader interest) and many other facts that make it possible to invest in newspaper advertising on the basis of known values.

For complete and verified information about the distribution of your advertising when it appears in this newspaper ask us for A. B. C. reports.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

ATHLETE REJECTED

Johnny Godfrey, former hockey player with the Peterborough team, and before that with the New York Rovers has been rejected for military service with the Rangers.

THREE MONTHS IN JAIL

Pleading guilty in police court this morning to a charge of drunkenness and admitting two previous convictions on the same charge Joseph Neary was sentenced to three months in the county jail this morning as a third offender.

IS REPORTED MISSING

Police have been carrying on a search today for Maurice J. Gainey, elderly East City resident, who left his home at 48 Maria street, early Friday afternoon and failed to return. No trace of him during the past few days has been found.

SOME LARGE TROUT

Reports from the village of Minden up in Haliburton county indicate the speckled trout catches have been excellent during the first week of the open season. Among the catches brought into the village was a 4½ pounder, several 2½ pounders and seven that weighed just over the two pound mark. Les Wench of Rockcliffe Hotel caught the big one.

PRETTY MEAN STUNT

Somebody lifted a "Milk For Britain" bottle from the counter at the Kresge department store on Saturday, and the bottle was almost half full of coins. This is the second time these bottles have been stolen, and the guilty parties must be absolutely without a conscience as they are taking milk from the mouths of babies in Britain.

SALES BOOM

Many mothers throughout the city and district were given material evidence of the love of sons and daughters on Sunday when they received gifts. Chocolate sales in the city zoomed to a high level, while sale of lingerie, shoes, flowers, and cosmetics showed a marked upturn.

CARS DAMAGED

Cars driven by John Dormer, 124 Rubidge street and Matthews A. Kropchuk, 580 Aylmer street, were damaged in a collision at Dalhousie and Aylmer streets Sunday. Kropchuk who had been driving south on Aylmer street was making a U turn at Dalhousie street and his car came into collision with that of Dormer travelling south on Aylmer street. The right side door, running board and right rear fender of the Dormer machine and the left front fender and bumper of the other car were damaged.

BUYING C.D.S. SHOES

Frank Thompson of the shoe department of C.D.S. is leaving this evening for Montreal to assist in the selection and buying of shoes for the chain of twenty-one C.D.S. stores in Ontario. Mr. Thompson is one of only four department managers chosen from the group of stores for this responsibility.

LIGHT SURVEY

Employees of the Ontario Hydro, working under direction of the Peterborough Utilities Commission are conducting a survey of light requirements of stores in the downtown section. This is a prelude to reduction in the amount of power to be used for lighting, and it is expected the curtailment will go into effect early this fall. The survey is being made to ascertain the minimum amount of candle power required to light store windows, and store fronts.

FROST RECORDED

It was not quite so cold early this morning as it was yesterday morning, A. O. Phillips, weather observer reports. The thermometer dropped to 30 degrees Sunday morning, two degrees below freezing. There was hoar frost early today when a mark of 33 degrees was reached. The last frost of last spring came on May 13 when 32 degrees was the lowest while two years ago a low of 31 degrees was recorded on May 12.

OLD RUBBER

It's nice to see that the rubber shortage is being given serious consideration by the people. One of the stores on George street has a big wooden barrel out in front marked for rubber salvage. How about giving a little co-operation to a worthwhile and necessary war effort?

WINS AWARDS

Fred Cripps, local photographer won two awards of merit, at the 58th annual Photographers' Convention in Toronto last week. The awards based on technique, composition and expression are much sought after. One of the portraits submitted was of the Rev. C. E. Moore, of St. George's Anglican Church, formerly of Young's Point. Cripps has also been invited to hang two photographic prints at Hamilton Salon of Photography now being held in the city of Hamilton.

KINMOUNT FUND

The Examiner received today $3.00 and $5.00 from citizens who wish to aid those at Kinmount who lost their homes in the recent fire and the money is being forwarded to the committee already set up to handle relief for the stricken.

HOW TO GET A $100 LOAN WITHOUT ENDORSERS

Monthly payments to fit your own income
A quick, simple way to borrow for emergencies

WOULD a cash loan help you? If you have a job, you can borrow at Household Finance without fuss or bother—and at reasonable cost. You may repay your loan in monthly instalments which fit your own pocketbook.

Just this to do

All you do to apply for a Household Finance loan is to tell us how much you need and how you wish to repay.

You may choose the most convenient payment plan from the table below. Suppose you borrow $100 to be repaid at $9.46 a month. Twelve instalments of $9.46 each will repay your loan in full. You may prefer to repay sooner in order to reduce the cost. Six monthly instalments of $17.85 each—a total of $107.10—will also repay a $100 loan. The cost of your loan, in this case, is just $7.10. A $25 loan, repaid in six monthly instalments of $4.46 each costs only $1.76.

You need no endorsers or guarantors to borrow at Household—just the ability to repay in monthly instalments. This spares you the embarrassment of asking friends or fellow-workers to sign the loan papers with you. And at no time do we question friends or relatives about your credit.

Household Finance loans are usually made on furniture or car. But we consider character and regular income far more important than the value of your security. You can get your loan quickly—usually in 24 hours or even sooner if necessary. If you should get sick or lose your position while paying on your loan, Household will show you every consideration.

Let Household help you

People borrow at Household to pay taxes, insurance, medical, dental, hospital and funeral expenses, school fees, and overdue bills of many kinds. Household service helps men and women, both married and single, to take care of emergency expenses and work their way out of debt.

If you can make good use of a loan, see us at once. We are in business to make loans to folks with money problems. Phone or visit us without obligation.

Girl Carrier Captures War Stamp Cup

Rewards for their patriotic efforts in selling War Savings Stamps were handed to the hard-working winners on the stage of the Centre Theatre on Saturday morning last. The presentation was made by Miss Caroline Littlefield on behalf of the War Savings Committee and the Examiner.

For the first time since the campaign began two girl carriers took away prizes, first and third. First prize winner, Nancy Leith of 617 Gilmour street received the large Examiner Gold Trophy for the largest sales of War Savings Stamps during the month of April with a total effort of $268.50, by far the largest individual return for any month of the campaign. In addition to the large cup Nancy received a small replica of it for her personal possession besides the special Neill Shoe Company prize of a pair of fine shoes. This young lady carrier is deserving of very high commendation for her consistently brilliant contributions to this war effort on the part of Examiner carriers, winning the weekly theatre ticket prizes no less than four times in recent weeks. Jack Harris, a very popular runner-up again for the second time, who lives at 239 Princess street, brought in the grand total of $164. His weekly returns for the first three weeks of April gave promise of Jack's being top man for this month, but Nancy Leith's sales of the final week left Jack behind to the extent of some $100. The best wishes of all concerned go out to Jack Harris for his successful winning of first prize in a future month. It is interesting to note that Nancy Leith's sales of stamps amount to $3.20 to each of her customers on her route, and Jack Harris sold an amount equal to $2.05 per customer. Jack received the Fred Cripps' prize of a large studio portrait for his efforts.

Next in line, for third position, was Elva Laing of 272 Armour Road, whose sales were $105.50. This attractive and energetic young lady received as her reward a large box of chocolates donated this month by the office staff of the Examiner in appreciation of her work for the war effort.

Special mention must be made of the splendid results turned in by last month's winner of the trophy, Keith Orde, whose sales were $160.-50. This boy's total sales amount to a considerable sum and reflect great credit on him for efforts that have been regularly profitable. Another boy whose consistency is remarkable is George Clark and he again makes his mark with a total for April of $137.75. George was second prize winner in March, close behind his partner, Keith Orde.

A newcomer in the ranks of the higher bracket salesmen is from the north end for a change, Stewart Brown of Benson avenue who comes through with the grand sum of $92.75. Donald Pagett of the south end is noteworthy again with a total of an even $80 and the boy to first win the trophy last December, Weldon Fanning, again comes in with $67. The south end is well populated with Examiner carriers who are consistently showing fine results in selling War Savings Stamps, and that generous district deserves to be as well represented. One of these very young but very successful salesmen is Raymond Douglas of 598 Young street, whose father is overseas in his country's service. Ray brought in the magnificent contribution for April of $53, especially good for our youngest carrier boy.

Bill Leahy is here once more with a good effort, producing $52, Grant Finnie with $46.50 and Victor Doughty brings $44.75. Wilbert Edgar sold another $37.75 worth and another young boy carrier with a central route, Walter Noble, sold $37.50. Marwood Patterson made the sale of $32 and a north end representative, Douglas Burrows, a worth while $28.75, closely followed by a south end boy, Adrian Langhorne, with $28.

Many boys are gradually increasing their sales of War Savings Stamps and among these are Gerry Field $26.25, Wellie Borland $24.75, Bob Shadgett $24.50, Clare Galvin $23, Cyril Robinson $21. The young girl with the smallest route in the city, and consequently the hardest job to show an impressive total is Bertha Bradley with a central route. She brought in, despite her difficulties, the sum of $19.25, sale of almost $1 per customer. With a similar amount was Bob Sugden, and two others, Wallace Manbeck and Rudy Pollock, have $19 each. Jim McIlvena of the East City district brings in $18, Don McGillen of the same section $17.25 and Dick Fulford of the west end $16.

Very worth while sales were made by the following: Jack Berwick $16.25, Claude Cornwall $15.25, Alan Sage $14, Charles Russell $14.50, Alan Payne $15, Ralph Dallin $13.25, Elmer Doran $12.75, Lorne Eakins $12.75, Billy Courneya $12, Dan McIsaac $11.75, Eleanor Whittaker, James McDonald, both $11.50, Cliff Pirie $10.50, Ted Payne and Lewes Gaskill $10 each.

Advance Party Leaves For Niagara Camp

The departure of the First Battalion, Prince of Wales Rangers its good fortune in Col. Dewart's return to command, and the reorganization of the Second Battalion, made Saturday's dinner at the Officers' Mess a memorable occasion, which drew a very large attendance. The speakers, including many friends of the regiment in the city and district, expressed their pride in the regiment, their regrets that they could not go as well, their good wishes, and their certainty that the regiment would bring further credit to the name of Peterborough.

The mess president, Major Vincent Eastwood Jr., presided. Lt.-Col. M. H. Park proposed the toast to the First Battalion, and called upon Captain H. A. Sootheran to present to Major R. J. Bolton the cheques dividing the regimental and mess funds. Major Bolton made the formal announcement of the appointment of Col. Dewart as officer commanding the First Battalion, and called upon him to respond to the toast.

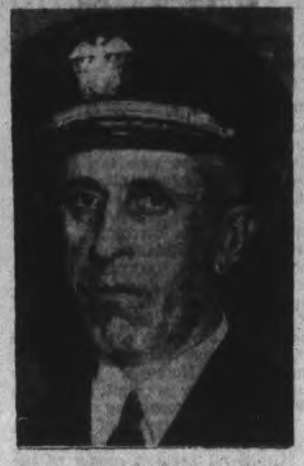
Col. Dewart, in reply told if his great pleasure in his appointment and in the mobilization of a unit that would represent the city of Peterborough, and continue its great military traditions. He stressed the great role of the Second Battalion in home defence, especially as the efficiency of the Reserve Army and its size, conditioned the number of Active Force units that could be sent overseas.

Col. C. H. Ackerman brought the good wishes and backing of district for both the First and Second Battalions. His Worship Mayor James Hamilton, His Honor Judge Sheldon Smoke, Col. Harold Morrow, and Col. Douglas Lawrie promised the support and good wishes of the citizens would be behind both battalions. Captain D. G. H. Melton read a letter from his brother, Maj. George Melton former Adjutant of the Rangers, which told of his trip overseas and of his first experiences in Great Britain. Lieut. Frank Pope, vice-president of the mess, sent a telegram to the officers of the regiment at Gordon Head, British Columbia, and all present signed a letter to be sent overseas to Major Melton extending to him good wishes.

Early this morning the advance party of the Prince of Wales Rangers left Peterborough for Camp Niagara. Capt. Jim Morley was in command of the party of over 50 men, all of whom looked very trim and fit. Col. Dewart was present to see the men off and Major Bolton inspected the group shortly before the train pulled out. A bit of excitement was provided when the kit bags seemed about to be forgotten. All the boys were glad to be off, but lingered over their farewells so long that one lad nearly fell out of the coach window as a jerk of the train upset his good-byes.

Recruiting for the Rangers continued brisk indeed. On Saturday morning and again to-day many applicants sought last minute entry into the Rangers. The regiment recruiting for the First Battalion stopped this afternoon at five o'clock in order that the equipping and documenting of every man on strength may be complete before the move to Camp Niagara.

Directed Naval Battle



Vice-Admiral Herbert Fairfax Leary of Washington, D.C., who commanded the U.S. forces in the great naval battle in the waters adjacent to North Australia. Admiral Leary was recently named commander of the southwest Pacific naval forces. He is a gunnery expert and won the Navy Cross in World War 1.

Youth Claims Slugged Robbed Of $25

That he had been hit twice over the head with a bottle, robbed of between $25 and $27 and a lady's wrist watch and left unconscious on an island in the Otonabee River, north of the C.P.R. bridge by a chance acquaintance with whom he had gone on a canoe ride, was the story told police early Saturday afternoon by Warden Andrews, 17, Mark Street.

A few hours afterward police arrested Joseph Cleary, 22, and charged him with the attack upon Andrews.

Cleary appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning, charged with robbery with violence, and elected trial by judge and ju .

"Are you going to have a lawyer?" Magistrate Langley asked, and the accused replied in the negative.

Life And Lashes.

"I suppose you know the maximum penalty or this offence is life imprisonment and the lash," commented the Magistrate, "and yet you are not going to have a lawyer. If your dog was charged with being vicious you would probably be willing to pay counsel $50 to prevent the animal from being shot, and yet in your own case you are going to get along without a lawyer. I am not suggesting that the maximum penalty would be inflicted in the case of a conviction but I am mentioning it to show the serious view parliament has taken of the offence with which you are charged.'

"What does personal violence mean?" Cleary asked the Magistrate.

"I am not going to advise you on that," replied the court. "I would take it to mean violence to the person but you had better have legal advice."

Crown Not Ready.

The Crown was not ready to proceed with the preliminary hearing and Cleary was remanded until Monday of next week, with bail fixed at $5,000. It was stated that he had a witness in Ottawa he wished to have called.

Andrews' story to the police was that the young man he met Friday afternoon had suggestedd a ride in a canoe and the two had gone to the bank of the river, north of the C.P.R. bridge. Andrews said he gave his companion a dollar to rent a canoe and the youth had come back shortly afterward with a boat, and the two started out on the river.

They had not gone far when Andrews' companion suggested landing on the first island north of the bridge. Andrews said that as the canoe drew into the shore, the other man had asked him to hold the boat until he got out. Andrews was in the bow and said he was holding on to the bushes when he was hit over the head with what he thinks was a beer bottle. He said that he fell on to the shore in a dazed condition, and that when he started to get up he was struck again. This time he was knocked out completely.

"When I came to several hours after," Andrews said, "I was on the opposite side of the island from where we had landed. I don't know how I got there unless I staggered across after being hit the second time and then dropped. I was dazed and almost without knowing what I was doing I swam from that island to another one, closer to the Ashburnham shore, and then across a narrow channel to the other side of the river and made my way home."

When Andrews, wet and bleeding from a cut in his head, reached the home of his brother, where he boards, at 5.30 o'clock Friday, he was unable then to give any coherent account of what had happened and he was put to bed.

Saturday morning he recalled the circumstances, he said, and the police were notified shortly after noon.

Citizens Will Be Given A Part In Greatest War Effort Of Year

There is no place in the whole civilized world where the ministrations of the Red Cross Society are not known. In wartime and peacetime no matter what disaster or epidemic where men, women, and children need medical, nursing or temporary help of various kinds, the Red Cross Society has promptly and kindly supplied that help. The Peterborough branch has been one of the most active of the smaller city branches doing all that has been asked of them and in addition all extra work in the field they felt should have been done. This has only been possible through the generous financial assistance of the citizens of the city and county of Peterborough.

Another field has opened up in which the local Red Cross branch will organize, finance, and manage and give every person not privileged to get into uniform, between the ages of 18 and 55 an opportunity to assist in the war effort that is one of the most important phases of war work. It is in the establishment here of a Blood Donor Clinic which will be opened up shortly in the Fitzgerald estate building on Brock Street, that portion formerly occupied by Metcalfe's Battery Station. Forgetting the expense of putting it in shape for occupancy and the fitting of it out with all the medical and surgical needs, it will become the greatest single effort the branch has undertaken. Other clinics have been opened in Toronto, Ottawa, London, Kitchener, and Kingston.

The opening of this blood donor clinic here gives the opportunity for every person between the ages above mentioned to get into the front line of war work. The blood donated is for soldiers overseas and at the present time there is only 15 per cent being furnished of what is required. Should there be an invasion of the Continent there would be such a shortage that hundreds of lives would be sacrificed. Two thousand blood donors will be required from this district and it will be necessary for hundreds of volunteers both men and women to apply for typing.

Here is a gift which, unlike money, unlike time or even work, is a part of yourself. A gift most literally from the heart, straight to the heart of another—to an Allied soldier, sailor or airman who may live to help save all you count precious in this world because you took one simple, generous step to save him.

War—25 Years Ago

Field Day Held In Warsaw Area By Nature Club

Despite threatening skies and the occasional shower, the Peterborough Nature Club held its annual Field Day outing to the Warsaw district on Saturday afternoon last.

About ninety members and visitors set out from the meeting place outside the Collegiate at half-past two. The first stop was made at the cheese factory north of Warsaw, where the party divided into several sections, each having a leader, and being distinguished by different colored registration slips. Then they set out across the fields to the woods where the unusual limestone caves are located. Although the roofs of most of these caves collapsed long ago, several daring souls, including Allan T. Brown, R. L. Hale and Miss Margaret Stevenson ventured down into the darkness to see if it were true that the tunnels were really four thousand feet long. The next points of interest visited were the pot-holes along the escarpment on the east bank of the Indian river. The group later drove down the delightful, winding road on the east side of the river to John Brown's woods just outside Warsaw, where wild flowers were growing in profusion. Here the picnic baskets were brought out and tea was made over a roaring camp fire.

After supper, reports were made on the afternoon's observations. Allan Brown explained the formation of the caves and pot-holes; Mr. Lucas, of Cobourg, said he had counted twenty-six different kinds of birds; Dr. Bannister remarked on the various trees seen; and V. R. Henry identified specimens of all the wild flowers found nearby.

After the announcement by the president, Dr. A. J. Madill, that the next outing would be to the Stoney Lake area on June 20th, the gathering dispersed.

Cup Is Offered For Best Window Display

Competition for the silver cup donated by His Worship Mayor James Hamilton, for the best window display boosting the Community Fund, is expected to be very keen this month.

Last year Ed. Riley's store took the award, and with the cup goes a replica which is given the winner for permanent possession. The major trophy is just held for a year. Herb Jameson, manager of the C.D.S. store, and a member of the publicity committee, has been given charge of the window display competition, and merchants competing may obtain any special information wanted from him.

The windows must be ready by Thursday night at the latest, this week, and it is expected that Gordon S. Matthews and Ross Dobbin who have been named judges will complete their selection by Monday of next week. The drive for $60,000 gets underway on Friday of this week.

All merchants competing are reminded that there is an adequate supply of posters, streams and other advertising data at the committee rooms on George street, opposite the old Grand Opera House, and these are available.

Of the total objective $30,000 will be allocated to the Red Cross, as this city's contribution to the $9,000,000 campaign now on across Canada, while the other $30,000 is divided up among the various local agencies for welfare work.

RESIDENTS OF ASHBURNHAM
War Salvage Collection
Thursday, May 14th

The City is being organized for the systematic collection of SALVAGE for war purposes and your District has been selected as the first to demonstrate its value.

Every one is anxious to do something to aid the War Effort and this is an opportunity to assist in a big way if we go "all out."

Let every one from Downer's Corners to Nicholls Oval and from the River Bank to the Western Boundary get together all the bottles, rubber and scrap metal, paper and rags, leave them out where you usually put your garbage, and the staff of collection workers with trucks will pick it up.

Let us start off in Ashburnham and turn in tons of Salvage material that is so valuable now for the carrying on of the war.

Elsie Berardi Is Wed To Wesley Irvine

St. Peter's Cathedral was the scene this morning of the wedding of Elsie Berardi, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Peter Berardi of Sault Ste. Marie, to Wesley William Irvine, son of Mr, and Mrs. W. J. Irvine of Belleville, with Rev. Father Finn conducting the ceremony in a church decorated with spring flowers. Miss Marian Best, A.T.C.M., played the wedding music and Mrs. Mark Collins sang Mascagni's "Ave Maria."

Given in marriage by her cousin, Mr. Alex Berardi, the bride wore a lovely gown of white chiffon with long full sleeves, a wide waist-band and a long full skirt. Her veil was of white illusion net in a sweetheart halo and she carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses and baby's breath. Miss Emma Berardi attended her sister, dressed in a gown of blue marquisette over taffeta cut on lines similar to that of the bride, with a hat of blue flowers and veiling, and carried a bouquet of pink roses and fern. The groom was attended by Mr. Clarence Collins and the ushers were Mr. Armand Berardi and Mr. Jack Thompson of Belleville.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Berardi, where Mrs. Berardi the bride's aunt, received wearing a black crepe dress trimmed with white and a black straw hat with white flowers and a corsage of Talisman roses.

Later the bride and groom left on a trip to Toronto. For travelling the bride wore a frock of British tan dress with white polka dots, a plain tan redingote and beige accessories. On their return they will live in Peterborough.

Jewell-Blewett Nuptials Pretty Lakefield Ceremony

LAKEFIELD, May 11—(ENS).—Picturesque St. John's Anglican Church was the scene of one of the most beautiful weddings of the season on Saturday when Jean Ethel, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Braden Blewett, became the bride of Harry D'Eyncourt Jewell, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Truman Jewell.

The rector, the Rev. S. A. R. Wood, officiated at the ceremony. Amid a setting of apple blossoms, pale pink phlox and tulips, the bride, the bride, entering the church on the arm of her father, was lovely in a gown of French lace with a long train, sweetheart neckline and a coronet shaped veil of fine net trimmed with pearls and orange blossoms. She wore pearls loaned by her aunt, Mrs. Allen Watson, for something borrowed, and carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses.

Miss Sybil Lennox, cousin of the bride, who attended her, was frocked in pink mousseline over taffeta, with sweetheart neckline. On her head she wore a heart-shaped halo of matching mousseline with tulle.

Miss Eleanor Jewell, neice of the groom, made an adorable flower girl in a frock made on miniature lines of the bridesemaid's, only blue. She also wore a heart-shaped halo of mousseline and tulle. Both carried nosegays of sweetpeas and tulips.

Eldon B. Jewell attended his brother as groomsman, and the ushers were Joseph Blewett, the bride's brother, and Bruce Waddell.

Mrs. John Twist presided at the organ and Mrs. Melville Shadgett sang very sweetly, "Because", during the signing of the register.

At the reception at the home of the bride's parents, Chippewa Ave., Mrs. Blewett received her guests in a gown of pale blue crepe with matching accessories and corsage of Talisman roses.

Mrs. Jewell, mother of the groom, assisting witht the receiving, had chosen a frock of beige and brown crepe with matching accessories and corsage of Talisman roses.

Twelve girl friends of the bride served at the reception and were very lovely in formal gowns of variou shades and designs. They were Misses Cora Charlton, Madeline Charlton, Thelma Bullock, Patricia Wannamaker, Grace Watson, O'Delle Watson and Eva Hendren, of Lakefield; Patricia Earnshaw, Winnijian Shadgett and Phyllis Webster, of Peterborough.

Following the reception the bride and groom left for Niagara and western points, the bride travelling in a dress of beige and Japanica, with Japanica wool jacket, matching accessories and top coat of beige and brown check.

On their return they will reside on Albert street, Lakefield.

Among out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Watson, East Lansing, Michigan; Mrs. John Knox and daughters, Shirley, and Mrs. Allen McCracken, of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Halley Jewell, Marshall Heslip, Miss Vera Pinn, Eric Pearce, Miss Ruby Milburn, Mrs. Lorne Mason and Miss Lillian Bickell all of Peterborough; Dr. and Mrs. Carveth, Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Martin, all of Toronto; Miss Betty May of St. Mary's, and Mr. and Mrs. George Wilson of Belleville.

Catherine White Bride Of Claire Sullivan

St. Peter's Cathedral, decorated with Spring blossoms, was the setting this morning for a wedding of much local interest, when Catharine Ethel, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley White, was married to J. Claire Sullivan, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Sullivan.

Rev. Dr. P J. Kelly, LL.D., of Cobourg, performed the ceremony and said the Nuptial Mass. Miss Marion Best, A.T.C.M., played the wedding music, and Miss Geraldine Collins sang several hymns, including Gounod's "Avé Maria".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in her gown of white embossed marquisette over satin, with a headdress of the same material. The gown as a redingote style with covered buttons down the front from a small collar, and long sleeves pointed over the hands. Her bouquet was of Killarney roses with mauve and pink sweet peas. The charming attendants in their gowns of net and lace over tafetta were Miss Beverley White, in shell pink, and Miss Vivian Sullivan, in aquamarine blue, with Mary of Scotland caps of net to match. They carried colonial bouquets of multicolored sweet peas, and wore flower pendants, their gifts from the bride.

Mr. John G. Sullivan, of Welland, attended his brother, and the ushers were Mr. George G. Sullivan, brother of the groom, and Mr. James M. Hickey.

A breakfast for the immediate relatives followed, at the Empress Hotel, the mother of the bride receiving in Cabana blue facinee crepe with matching accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses. The groom's mother also received, wearing a redingote ensemble of beige, with corsage of Talisman roses.

For travelling, the bride donned a printed frock of moss green with cocoa brown jacket and matching accessories.

After a short trip, Mr. and Mrs. J. Claire Sullivan will reside on Benson avenue, Peterborough.

TRADING JOBS MAY SOLVE DIVORCE PROBLEM IN U.S.

Man and Wife Would Get a Chance to See How Other Half Lives

The newspapers recently contained the story of a married couple who swapped jobs. The husband was such a poor business man that he could never make a living, so his wife told him that if he would stay at home and do the housework she would go out and get a job and support the family. Which she did.

But instead of stoking the home fires and cooking up delicious tidbits to tempt his wife's appetite when she returned at night, weary from her day's labor in a dress shop, the husband hadn't even swept the floors, or made the beds, or picked up the newspapers, or emptied the ash trays, and he set before her meals that would have caused an ostrich to call for the bicarbonate.

Whereupon the wife dragged him into the divorce court and the judge, having possibly suffered the same things in his own person, promptly granted her a decree absolute.

There are several interesting angles in this case that should cause us to pause and reflect upon the many peculiarities of the domestic problem. One is: How many wives would be left with husbands if bad housekeeping was made legal grounds for divorce for men, as failure to support is for women? Would it strew the world with the wrecks of homes, or would it work a reformation that would make the home, in reality, the abode of bliss that it is in fiction? Would college girls major in cooking if they knew that the only way they could hold their husbands was by making pies like Mother used to make?

Surely what is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander, and if a wife can ditch a husband who is too trifling to bring home the bacon, a husband should be equally free to rid himself of a wife who is too lazy to fry it. She has welched on her martial obligations just as much as he has, for part of the gentleman's agreement of marriage is that both the party of the first part and the party of the second part shall work together to make a comfortable home. And if a woman fails to do this, she has broken her marriage vows just as much as if she were stepping out with another man instead of stepping around the kitchen.

Why Women Take Liberties

The truth is that women take liberties with the wife job because they know it is one from which they cannot be fired without trouble and expense and scandal. Hence they do not think it necessary to

Sullivan's Music Performed By Trinity Choir

Trinity Church choir celebrated on Sunday, at the evening service, the 100th birthday of the birth of Sir Arthur Sullivan, musical half of the Gilbert and Sullivan of comic opera fame, by singing some of his sacred compositions. So firmly linked with the gay, tuneful comic operas of Gilbert and Sullivan is the name of Sir Arthur Sullivan that it is a matter of suprise to many people that he also wrote much familiar sacred music.

The choir, directed by Miss Mabel Clarry, sang two of Sir Arthur's anthems, "I Will Mention the Loving-Kindnesses," with the solo part sung by Wallace Wright, and "Saviour, Thy Children Keep." The familiar "Lost Chord," was sung as a solo by Gordon McHenry, and a mixed quartette, composed of Mrs. J. Goldie, Miss A. Blanchard, Mr. H. Lee and Mr. Gordon McHenry sang the beloved, familiar children's hymn, "Hushed Was the Evening Hymn."

The hymns sung by the congregation were also chosen from among those composed or arranged by Sir Arthur Sullivan and included, 'I Found a Friend,' 'Make Me a Captive, Lord!' and the well known 'Onward Christian Soldiers.'

Dr. Easton based his address on the life and works of the great English composer, with special reference to his sacred compositions.

Reta M. Leeson Is Wed In Havelock To Pte. R. M. Miller

HAVELOCK, May 11—(ENS).—St. John's Anglican Church, Havelock, was the scene of a beautiful wedding on Saturdary, when Reta Madeline Leeson of Ottawa, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Leeson of Havelock, was united in marriage to Private Robert McDonald Miller, R.C.O.C., youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Miller of Havelock, the Rev. R. E. Lemon officiating.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and looked charming in her floor-length gown of brussels net with rosepoint at neckline and bodice over white taffeta with a slight train and net mittens. She wore a cameo bracelet and locket, the gift of the groom. Her finger-tip length veil was of bridal net and was in halo shape caught with orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of calla lillies and white roses.

She was attended by her cousin, Mrs. Ross Atkinson, Midland, as matron of honor, who was frocked in Queen Elizabeth blue chiffon, with matching hat and accessories, and she carried Butterfly roses and gypsophila. Mr. Stewart Miller, of Toronto, brother of the groom, was best man, and the ushers were Aircraftman James Covert, Trenton, and Mr. Bruce Miller of Toronto. The wedding music was played by Miss Mildred Johnson, Toronto, cousin of the groom, and during the signing of the register, Mrs. Donald Holdcroft sang "Because."

The church was artistically decorated with baskets of tulips, roses, snapdragon, apple blossoms, stocks and hydrangea. The groom's gift to the matron of honor was a compact, to the organist and soloist, strings of pearls, to the best man, a pen and pencil set, and to the ushers identification bracelets.

A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents, where the bride's mother received, wearing a two-piece gown of romance blue crepe, with navy blue accessories, and she wore a corsage of Briarcliffe roses. She was assisted by the groom's mother, who wore a gown of blue figured crepe, with hat to match, and she wore a corsage of Talisman roses. A delicious buffet luncheon was served by the ladies of St. John's Church to about sixty guests.

Later the happy couple left, amid showers of confetti and good wishes for a short honeymoon trip to western points. For travelling the bride wore a smart blue dawn boucle two-piece suit, with navy milan straw hat and accessories to match, and a corsage of Premier roses. Upon their return they will reside in Ottawa.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. R. A. McCutcheon and Mr. and Mrs. Ross Atkinson of Midland, L.A.C. John and Mrs. Jarvis of Aylmer, Mr. and Mrs. Max Poste, Miss Muriel Poste, Miss Teresa Torpey, Mrs. R. Webb, Mr. Art Winslow, and Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Hewitt of Peterborough, Mr. and Mrs. J. Johnson, Mrs. Fred Watson and Mrs. Alex. McLean of Toronto, Sgt. C. West and Pte. Jack Matheson of Petawawa, Mrs. Loucks and Napanee and Misses Lillian Sypes, Miss Lena Buchanan of Campbellford, Mr. and Mrs. MacEachern of Margaret Cavanagh, Eileen McLeod and Evelyn Laughlin, all of Ottawa.

Mother's Day Observed At Knox Service

A large congregation worshipped yesterday in Knox United Church on the occasion of the annual celebration of Mother's Day. During the impressive service the rite of Baptism was administered to Gary Earl Payne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Payne, 207 Stewart street; Brenda Gay Seabrooke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Gordon Seabrooke, 508 Sherbrooke street; Margaret Ruth Mahoney, daughter of Rev. H. J. and Mrs. Mahoney, 591 Chamberlain street. A ladies' quartette composed of the Misses Velma Stewart, Connie Lewis, Betty Allen, Marion Williamson sang an appropriate number entitled, "Mother's Story." A beautiful bouquet of flowers were placed upon the altar by members of the family in memory of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wedlock.

In a stirring message to his congregation the minister, Rev. H. J. Mahoney said that the bane or blessing of a nation is found in the nurseries of her kings and rulers. Maternal influence can either be a powerful instrument for evil or it can be equally powerful for good when rightly and wisely employed. In Holy scriptures many references allude to the mothers of Israel who, steeped in sin, corrupted the lives of their young sons who were destined to become Israel's and Judah's kings. The mother of Ahaziah, son of Ahab, who did evil in the sight of the Lord was the wicked Jezebel whose very name was synonymous with sin. But on the other hand some of those whom we consider the greatest benefactors of our race owe their eminence to the maternal care bestowed upon them in their childhood. Think of Abraham Lincoln's immortal tribute, "All that I am or hope to be I owe to my mother." Moses, David, John, the forerunner of our Saviour, Timothy, all bequeathed a lasting legacy because of the unselfish devotion of their mothers.

There is one soul stirring scene in the tense drama of Calvary which deeply affects our own life, "Now there stood by the Cross of Jesus, His Mother." We see here the supreme manifestations of a mother's tender devotion, the embodiment of the love and sacrifice of mothers everywhere. Jesus also is solicitous of His Mother's comfort as he thoughtfully provides for her future welfare. "Even He who died for us upon the Cross, in the last hour, in the unutterable agony of death was mindful of His Mother, as if to teach us that this Holy Love should be our last wordly thought, the last point of earth from which the soul should take its flight for heaven."

School Concert At Sandy Lake Aids War Victims

The B.W.V.F. benefitted to the splendid amount of $58 when the pupils of Sandy Lake School, under the direction of their teacher, Miss Grace Hunt, put on a concert and basket social in aid of the fund in the Lakehurst Hall on Friday evening.

At the end of the program of choruses, folk dances, Spanish and Hawaiian guitar numbers and orchestral music, in which the pupils strove to excel themselves in a good cause, little Fern Chesney drew the lucky ticket on a beautiful quilt which the pupils of the ladies of the section had made. The quilt was won by Phyllis Ireland.

The baskets, most of which were designed with a patriotic motif were auctioned off by Mr. H. Calvert. The public entered into the spirit of the occasion and the prices for which the baskets were sold was very gratifying. After lunch Mr. Jim Irwin's Old Time Orchestra provided music for dancing.

Special credit is due to Miss Grace Hunt, whose untiring efforts helped to make the evening a success, and also to Mr. Hurle, who directed the children in their musical numbers and who acted as master of ceremonies for the evening.

Engines Alfame Canucks Save 2 Planes

By LOUIS HUNTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, May 11—(CP Cable).—There were two new Canadian air heroes today—Sgt. Pilots Fred Hiley of Toronto and Williams Maitland of Vancouver, who covered themselves with glory when they disregarded wounds to bring back two damaged aircraft in a recent R.A.F. raid on Stuttgart.

The pilots of Hampden bombers, they brought back their machines with one engine in each in flames, and the fuselages punctured by flak.

Hiley, who is 29, was wounded in the wrist. He struggled with his aircraft for 2½ hours before making a crash landing. Maitland, 20-year-old son of the British Columbia attorney general, R. L. Maitland, was saved by a silver cigaret case in the breast pocket of his jacket which stopped a chunk of flak. He suffered a slight chest wound silently until able to land.

Both young Canadians were commended by their comanding officer, Wing-Cmdr. D. A. R. Bradshaw of London, Ont.

Of Hiley's exploit he said: "It was a magnificent piece of work and the whole squadron is proud of him."

Maitland was described by Bradshaw, as a plucky, efficient pilot and a credit to his squadron."

There were 42 holes in Hiley's aircraft. One engine was in flames, the entire electrical and hydraulic systems were out of commission and one wheel was useless, the undercarriage dangling like the leg of a wounded duck.

One member of the crew was killed at his post and Hiley was nicked in the right wrist by a machine-gun bullet. He made a successful crash landing with the remainder of his crew: Sgt. George H. Germain of Newmarket, Ont., the observer, and Sgt. George Johnson of Essex, England, the wireless operator and air gunner.

Plane Well Riddled.

"We dropped our bombs in the target area." Hiley related. "A short time after we were badly hit by flak. The aircraft was pretty well riddle. The starboard engine was hit and burst into flames. Then as if we weren't in trouble enough, an enemy night fighter gave us an awful going over with cannon and machine-gun fire and hit our tail gunner. He almost got me too. Three times the jerry attacked us, but he tried once too often for on a fourth approach Johnson got him squarely with machine-gun fire. He was hit all right, and when we last saw him he was in a dive."

The whole starboard propeller of Hiley's craft flew off over the French coast before the crew managed to extinguish the blazing engine. He considered ordering the crew to jump, but they decided they could not leave the dead tail gunner. When he reached England "I picked out the biggest and best-looking field I could see and set her down on her belly."

Johnson commented: "How Freddie got her home we'll never know."

The cigarette case which saved Maitland's life was a farewell gift from Miss Betty Gentles of Vancouver. Bulged and bucked by an anti-aircraft fragment which otherwise would have pierced his chest, the case is the young pilot's proudest possession.

Forced to Dump Bombs.

"I guess I was pretty lucky," the tall quiet-spoken British Columbian said. "We were on the outward journey near the coast when we were caught in a cone of searchlights and almost immediately there was a burst of flak directly above us.

"The port engine was hit and caught fire, the port wing and flap were damaged and the windscreen holed.

"I felt a chunk hit me in the chest. I couldn't tell how serious the injury was, but it partly stunned me. Then I began to feel a bit queer. I figured the best thing to do was to head for home while I could. Flak was pretty thick, but we jettisoned our bombload, and with a bit more luck, we made it."

His observer, Sgt. Ernest Garrett of Toronto, interrupted: "It wasn't so much luck as sheer courage on Bill's part."

Sgt. Edward Danes of Toronto, the air gunner, added: "It was a great show on Bill's part."

Maitland surveyed ruefully the ruined cigarette case and commented:

"Not content with spoiling my silver case, the flak had to go and cut through my one and only pair of suspenders.'

Chief Bids Commandos God Speed

Lord Louis Mountbatten, whose appointment as chief of combined operations was recently announced, has for the past six months been responsible for developing commando operations. The success of these operations, instanced in the combined forces raids on Norway and on Occupied France, depends on perfect co-ordination between army, naval and air force units. Lord Louis Mountbatten holds the acting rank of vice-admiral and the honorary ranks of lieutenant-general and air marshal. He is pictured inspecting commandos before departure on one of their raids.

Fill Canada's Cattle Quota To U.S.

OTTAWA, May 11—(CP).—Agriculture Department officials were informed yesterday that the United States has started collecting full duty on Canadian beef cattle crossing the border, in anticipation of the quarterly quota of 51,720 head being filled almost immediately.

Records showed 47,269 Canadian cattle have been exported from April 1 to Thursday night. To prevent the quota being exceeded, the United States authorities will collect full duty on animals crossing the line and make rebates to the total of 51,720.

This practice has been employed in the past, officials said.

The filling of the three-month quota is less than half the period allocated to it was taken to mean that additional supplies of cattle would be available to the domestic market, although recent shortages of beef on Eastern Canadian markets have already been relieved to some extent.

The next preferred duty quota period opens July 1.

The record flow of cattle across the border this year has been due largely to attractive prices prevailing there, officials said.

Farmers' organizations recently made representations for a relaxation of the price-ceiling regulations in Canada to permit farmers to obtain a higher price for cattle which are fed grain during the winter months and go to market in the early part of the year. They said the price ceiling on retail beef prices was applied on the basis of September 15-October 11 prices when grass-fed cattle, which cost less to produce, were being marketed.

Some Capital Highlights

OTTAWA, May 11 (CP).—Odds and ends from Parliament Hill:

The navy and its doings stirred up more poetry in the House of Commons in a day than is usual in parliament in a fortnight...Navy Minister Macdonald started it with a stanza from "Drake's Drum" and Angus MacInnis ended it with a bit of Shelley..In between Douglas Ross (Con. Toronto-St. Paul's) recited a couple of stanzas from "Rule, Britannia" and John R. MacNicol tried his memory—not too successfully—on two verses by an unknown poet.

Defence Minister Ralston, answering a complaint the army boys overseas only had one uniform: "Two suits of battledress are allowed. I do not undertand what the young men say about the difficulty of getting a second pair of trousers. I am quite satisfied that—I was going to say, something has slipped down..." Said Tom Reid (Lib. New Westminster): "Give them kilts."

Members have contended before that the Senate should be abolished but George Cruikshank (Lib. Fraser Valley) thought up a new one ...He wanted dependents' allowances raised and added: "If we abolished that museum of political inactivity known as the other place it would pay quite a bit of the cost." ...Said Conservative House Leader Hanson: "But look at all the people who want to go there?"..."Well," Mr. Cruikshank replied, "I am not a lawyer"...Mr. Hanson is.

Lines From Hansard

Rodney Adamson (Con. York West): "The Air Force have the 'M Test' before they are attested?"

Col. Ralston: "I did not use the words 'M test.' I said they would be given a test for aptitude."

Mr. Adamson: "They have a test?"

Col. Ralston: "Yes, the 'M test.'"

The Defence Minister thinks too much organization is just about as bad as too little . . . He was telling the House about the handling of files . . . "The danger is that a red tag may be placed on the file, marking it urgent," he said. . . . "But everything of a routine nature will be tagged and as a result everything becomes urgent and you are back from where you started."

Dr. H. A. Bruce (Con. Toronto-Parkdale) was extolling the virtues of peanut butter as a source of vitamin B . . . "You wouldn't leave out oatmeal, would you?" interjected Mr. Reid . . . Guess what country he comes from—he and his bagpipes.

Mrs. Clarke Hostess To Bethany W.A.

BETHANY, May 11—(ENS)—May meeting of the Women's Association of the United Church was held in the home of Mrs. J. J. Clarke on Tuesday, with 23 members present. The scripture lesson was taken by Mrs. Waddell, followed by thoughts on the lesson by Mrs. Ginn.

The president gave an explanation on the topic of the meeting, "The Sacrament of Prayer and Communion". It was decided to send flowers to the seriously ill. A report was given by ladies who were to pack boxes for the soldiers. Mrs. Kyle reported donations made but money was required to send these boxes. A letter of appreciaton was read from Rev. and Mrs. Harding for the Easter gift sent by the society. Also a letter from the choir of thanks for books furnished by the W.A. Mrs. Harding gave a very instructive talk on prayer and Miss Richardson a reading on prayer. A very pretty duet was sung by Mrs. L. Kennedy and Mrs. Jean Bigelow, "The Beautiful Garden of Prayer" and was very much enjoyed by all present. Mrs. Carr also gave a reading on prayer. The meeting closed with Mizpah benediction after which a dainty lunch was served by Mrs. Veale and her helpers.

Appeal Made To Wartime Housing To Delay Decision On Building 250 New Homes In West End Of City

An appeal to Wartime Housing Limited to suspend for a few days their decision to build 250 temporary houses on the Hatton farm in North Monaghan, across the western boundary of the city, was proposed at a conference of the township council and some of the ratepayers in the neighboring residential section at the Court House Saturday afternoon.

A motion by G. Douglas Carlisle seconded by John Cameron, instructed the council to appoint a special committee composed of members of the council and some of the ratepayers to telephone immediately to Wartime Housing requesting them to defer action even "for only a few days" to enable the committee to make a survey of other possible sites in a final effort to locate a suitable substitute property.

Among those attending the meeting were Mayor Hamilton, G. K. Fraser, M.P., H. S. Longhurst, local administrator for Wartime Housing Limited, and some of the members of the company's advisory committee, H. J. McCannan, R. L. Dobbin, T. T. Rodgers.

In seeking the invertion of the council, west end residents whose homes are in the township, said they had no intention of obstructing any enterprise related to the country's war work, and if the Hatton property was the only suitable site for the projected additional two hundred and fifty houses the committee of residents would have nothing more to say about that location. However, they wished to feel certain that alternative sites had been thoroughly surveyed.

Mr. Carlisle referred to the restrictions under which the west end of the city and the adjoining area of the township had been developed into a residential area over a long period of years. "We feel that surely Wartime Housing do not need to take the cream of the property in that part of North Monaghan when there is so much other property to the south and close to the industrial section of the city.

Loss To Township

"North Mohaghan is vitally interested," said Reeve M. H. Johnston who presided. "We have been losing a lot of valuable property to the city, piece by piece, and it is affecting our school rates, among other things. We feel that if Wartime Housing go out there we won't have any more good houses built in that part of the township. If the government gets the property and it is taken into the city, the government can say that it will stay in the city, and then we will have lost if for all time."

Commenting on that township objection, Alderman Glover said he could only speak for himself, but he believed the city council would willingly recommend to Wartime Housing that the Hatton property be returned after the war. "Of course," he added, "the council cannot bind future councils, but I think the present council would be willing to do what it could in the way of a recommendation."

Mr. Dobbin stated that the advisory committee had been considering site for more than a year.

Compliment To Mayor

"There is money in this job for us," Mr. Dobbin said. "We have had Mayor Hamilton sitting in at the meetings of our committee, and I would like to say that it is a good thing for the city that we had a man like Mayor Hamilon at the head of things, because we might have been in bad shape without him. The committee has been looking over available lands since the Burnham's Point property was first considered, and we feel that we have made a thorough survey. I might also say that Wartime Housing have their own engineers who come down to look over the sites. Mr. Piggott, the head of Wartime Housing and Mr. Goggin of Toronto have both been down here. In fact it was Mr. Piggott who made the final decision on the Burnham's Point selection. Our experience has been that Wartime Housing is managed with efficiency and economy. Our committee found that out to our chagrin when we asked them to spend money which they refused to do. The company is spending money just as if it was their own."

Mr. Fraser said that he had been informed from a source of high authority that the local advisory committee was the most efficient in the whole of Canada. He said that Joseph Piggott was a very reasonable man, and Mr. Fraser said he knew that Mr. Piggott had himself made an inspection of local properties.

The committee had been informed that another 1,500 employees would be required at the C.G.E. works by the end of the year, and at the very least another 250 houses were needed as soon as possible, with the probability that others would be built later.

"We have fifty applications on our list right now," Mr. Longhurst said.

Replying to Mr. Carlisle's question as to whether the property on the south side of Lansdowne, opposite St. Peter's cemetery had been considered by the committee, Mr. Dobbin said it had been investigated several times. "We stood on the corner down there so long one day that people might have thought they ought to bury us."

The objection to that location was the cost of a trunk sewer on Lansdowne street from Park street.

Mr. Glover asked about the former danstone brick property on the flats west of High street.

Sewer Costs High

"There is no sewer on Monaghan Road," Mr. Dobbin answered.

"That property was fully considered. City Engineer Parsons estimated that it would cost more than $50,000 to build a sewer on Romaine street from Park."

Mr. Dobbin said there was a sewer on Romaine stree from Park street to Monaghan Road, but it was not large enough to accommodate another 250 houses. If that location were chosen, the city would have to lay a sewer from Park street westerly to High street. That cost alone would be around $40,000 Mr. Dobbin said.

Mayor Hamilton told the meeting that Wartime Housing had thorough ly considered the accessible properties. From his relations with the company he said he believed they would keep their promise to remove temporary houses when the war was won.

Transportation Factor

Mr. Dobbin further explained that transportation had become a major consideration in the allocation of additional houses. "In the beginning we were thinking of utilites, such as water and light and sewerage. Since the company went up to the Jackson Park area there has been some feeling that in the light of recent happenings we probably made a mistake, because we did not realize the extent of the affect on transportation. We have been told that no more buses can be obtained, and you know all about gasoline and tires. The company has had to consider properties within walking distance of the C.G.E."

Mr. Dobbin advised the township committee to act at once. They would satisfy themselves about available properties. "I don't need to say that you are all as partiotic as any one else, but if it's got to be done it has got to be done. Our local committee gave it all the thought we could."

Mr. Cameron remarked that if the other properties had been considered to that extent, followed by inspection by engineers, there was not much hope of the township committee succeeding in an independent survey.

More War Supplies

FERGUS, Ont., May 11 (CP).—Ontario's employers and employees were called upon today to "do their utmost to maintain and increase as much as possible the production of all kinds of war supplies and other essential products."

The request came from the executive committee of the Ontario Division of the Canadian Manufacturers Association which said in its report to the annual meeting here that the committee wished to endorse such appeals already made by government officials.

Vian On Bridge Of H.M.S. Naiad

When H.M.S. Naiad was sunk in the eastern Mediterranean she was commanded by Rear-Admiral Vian ("Vian of the Cossack"). He was not long without a ship and a few days later was in another ship which helped cruisers and destroyers to defeat an Axis attack on a Malta convoy. The attackers comprised one battleship, greatly superior numbers in other craft, and were supported by dive and torpedo bombing attacks from the air, but the convoy got through. The ABOVE is a view of the bridge of H.M.S. Naiad taken on her last cruise. LEFT is Rear-Admiral Vian of Cossack fame while the captain with him is Guy Grantham who, when his ship foundered, helped many survivors to rafts and spars before swimming unaided to a destroyer to be picked up.

Sells Mattress Hiding $450 Savings

TORONTO, May 11 — A 60-year-old spinster living at Merritton, Ont., has finally been convinced that a bank is the best place to deposit money, although it almost cost her $450 — her life's savings—to learn this lesson.

In past years she had been in the habit of putting her savings in between the folds of an old mattress that she kept in the cellar of her home. Yesterday, forgetting about the money, she sold the mattress to Irving Cohen, 23 Baldwin Street, Toronto.

Cohen was on his way back to Toronto before the frantic woman realized that she had sold not only an old mattress but several hundreds of dollars in cash. She contacted the local police, who in turn contacted Sergeant of Detectives Norman Tinsley at headquarters here.

Sergeant Tinsley despatched Detectives Sam Welsford and James Aafield to Cohen's place of business. The detectives arrived an hour before Cohen but awaited his arrival.

The surprised merchant acknowledged buying the mattress from a woman in Merritton, but did not have the slightest idea that it was a hiding-place for so much money.

The detectives pulled the mattress off the truck, and sure enough they found, tucked between the folds, four $50 bills, five $20 bills, and fifteen $10 bills.

The money is on its way back to Merritton to be deposited in the bank.

No Recognition For de Gaulle But Lots Of Aid

WASHINGTON, May 11—(CP).—While relations between the United States and Vichy are wearing thin, there is no corresponding trend here toward recognition of the Free French National Committee, headed by Gen. Charles de Gaulle, as the legal government of France.

The De Gaulle movement is regarded instead as a symbol of French military resistance within sections of the French Colonial Empire but not as a political organization with power to speak for France, either occupied or unoccupied.

If an open break came between Washington and Vichy, there might be pressure from various sources to extend legal recognition to Gen. de Gaulle but it has been pointed out here several times by official quarters that Britain has never recognized the Free French National Committee despite open diplomatic break between London and Vichy.

Meanwhile, the Free French committee continues to receive lend-lease assistance from the United States through an agreement with the British government. Only this week an assurance was given Adrien Txier, chief of the Free French delegation in Washington, that this form of assistance would continue as long as no demands were made for legal recognition.

Lacks Political Ties.

The position of the United States government is that it does not desire to extend political recognition to Gen. De Gaulle because it does not wish to underwrite any one group or party, particularly one that has no real political ties with France as it existed before the armistice, Gen. De Gaulle, a brilliant if neglected soldier of Republican France, was never a politician and even to-day commands no political following inside France.

It is fair to recall that Gen. De Gaulle has never made any pretence of being a political leader for Frenchmen. He always has stressed the military aspect of his movement and that his only interest is to free his country.

At the same time, the General and his followers in the United States hold that continued recognition of the Vichy administration, particularly since the return of Pierre Laval, is calculated to depress the spirit of resistance of Frenchmen and to retard the inevitable defections from Vichy.

If a break came between the United States and Vichy Washington might be interested in some French organization with wide political backing among the French people.

Housewives: — Make it your job to save in every way you can. Consider your tasks as much a war job as if you were in uniform. In the kitchen, you can serve by using war recipes. You can serve with your work-basket also by patching and darning. And you can serve when you go shopping by purchasing economically. With the savings you make, you can buy War Savings Stamps every week to aid your country and protect your family's future against possible difficult times ahead. Remember—saving is serving!

BRITAIN is at war . . . So are we.
Britain is on strict rations . . . We are not.
But suppose we, willingly, lived as simply as they have to live in Britain . . .
Think of the War Savings Stamps we could buy . . .
. . . to provide our fighting men with enough equipment to beat the Nazis . . .
. . . to help keep prices from going up,
. . . and to carry us over the difficult times when all this war-work stops!

prepare themselves for it, as they would for being a beauty operator, or a stenographer, or a trained nurse. Neither do they feel it incumbent upon them to give satisfaction. But far different would be their attitude if they knew that all that a husband needed to get a divorce from his wife was to prove that she made him get up and get his own breakfast, and that if he could produce leathery steaks and watery potatoes as Evidence A and B of the way she fed the family, the judge would turn over the custody of the children to him, to boot.

Another interesting angle of this case in which the husband and wife traded jobs is that it gave each of them a chance to see how the other half lived, and what are the trials and tribulations they are daily called upon to bear, and that should give them a better understanding and more sympathy with each other and incline them to be more helpful one to the other.

The one thing, for instance, that infuriates women more than anything else is the patronizing and supercilious way in which their husbands look at their work. Nearly all husbands profess to think that cooking, washing, ironing, mending, scrubbing and baby-tending is mere child's play that any woman should be able to pull off in odd moments when she isn't downtown shopping, or playing bridge, or at a movie, or otherwise diverting herself.

Enough to Exasperate Any Wife

Probably there isn't a poor, tired, nerve-racked wife in the world who hasn't felt like taking the carving knife to her husband when he said to her: "What on earth do you do with your time?" Or: "I wish I had it easy like you, with nothing to do but keep house and look after the children."

Well, no husband would ever make that remark a second time if he had to pinch hit for his wife for even a single day in the nursery and the kitchen. He would be like the man who, after having taken care of the children for a single Sunday afternoon, went to his closet and got the Croix de Guerre he won on the battlefield and pinned it on his wife, saying: "You are a greater hero than I am."

And the women who think going downtown to business is a picnic, and who picture their husbands eating leisurely lunches and spending their days in pleasant converse would gladly go back to their pots and pans after having swapped jobs with their husbands and findout how much easier it is to spend money than it is to make it.

So maybe this trading of jobs by husbands and wives is the solution of the divorce problem, after all.

Obituary

JAMES GILGOUR

James Gilgour, an employee in the Auburn Woollen Mills for many years and a staunch member of the Orange Order, died Monday morning after an illness of two years, at his home, 850 Water street, in his 84th year.

The late Mr. Gilgour was the son of Samuel Gilgour and Jane McCrum and was born in Ireland. He lived in Bobcaygeon for some time before coming to Peterborough, where he resided for forty-five years.

He is survived by one sister, Hannah Gilgour, of Peterborough and five nieces and five nephews.

The funeral will be held Wednesday at 2 p.m. from the funeral home of D. Belleghem, 190 Hunter street. Rev. Dr. J. D. Smart will conduct the service and interment will be in Little Lake Cemetery.

JOHN A. SIMONS

John A. Simons, fruit merchant for 30 years, and known to a large number in Peterborough, died early Monday morning after an extended illness at 230½ Charlotte street.

He was born in Italy and had resided in Peterborough for 45 years. He was a member of St. Peter's Cathedral.

He is survived by his widow, Mary Tomasino.

The funeral will take place Wednesday morning at 8.30 a.m. from the Bert Duffus Funeral Home, 431 George street, south, and Requiem Mass will be celebrated at 9 a.m. in St. Peter's Cathedral. Interment will be in St. Peter's Cemetery.

Learn Dress Designing in Spare Time

Easy Rules Are Charted

If you want a career in dress designing you can achieve it. It may sound glamorous and far off, but, if necessary, you can teach yourself at home. The easy-to-follow lessons explain the principles of design, how to carry out your ideas.

Here is one amateur mistake to avoid at the start—don't plan lines or trimming that divide the figure equally. An unequal division is interesting, professional—as our diagram shows.

When you have sketched your design, the next step is to work it out in a pattern. You start by making a foundation pattern—a length of muslin which you pin to a dress form and then cut out at neck and arm.

Now, on this foundation, let your ideas flower! Try trimming effects, the shape of a lapel or pocket, using colored thread. Your creation begins to emerge!

Our 24-page instruction book shows with charts and diagrams each step in dress designing. Explains principles of design, making of patterns, use of color.

For your copy of "Dress Designing Self-Taught" send 15 cents in coins or stamps to the Peterborough Examiner Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of instruction book.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

EVEN MORE BASIC

THERE IS something even more fundamental to good bridge than the consistent habit of thinking about each thing you do, in the bidding or in the play. It is to use your senses of hearing and sight. Unless you hear every bid clearly and take notice of the exact size of every card which comes into view, not all the thinking in the world can get you results in the long run. So, as one ancient mariner used to say, "keep your weather eye peeled and wax out of your ears."

North on this deal was a chap whose glasses were none too well fitted to his sight. He leaned part way across the table to take a quick glance at the dummy's cards, after East led the heart Q, and then began to play. After West took the third heart and led the spade 10 to the A, the declarer cashed the diamond A, Q and K and then was ready to play the clubs.

The club 3 was led for a finesse of the 10 and, after the diamond 5 to the 7 furnished re-entry to the dummy, the club 9 brought the J and Q and the club A was laid down. When this failed to drop the K, the contract was beaten, as only the worthless spade 9 and club 5 were left.

If the declarer had looked a little more closely and had noticed that the three little clubs in dummy were headed by the 9-8, he could have made his contract by leading the 9. West's best play would have been the J, the Q winning. After the diamond 7 furnished re-entry to the dummy, a lead of the club 8 would have dropped West's K, no matter what he did, and the contract would have been made, a spade being given up at the end.

Kerosene Barred

OTTAWA, May 11—(CP)—Use of kerosene in non-commercial marine engines has been prohibited, it was announced Friday by the Department of Munitions and Supply.

It does not apply to use of kerosene for any purpose by the armed forces of Canada and her allies.

Save 34 Crew

BARRANQUILLA, Colombia, May 11 (AP).—Thirty-four crewmen of a United States ship which went down May 4 after being struck by three torpedoes from an Axis submarine arrived there yesterday. The entire crew of the sunken ship had been picked up by another U.S. ship.

Demand Surplus Farm Products Go Into Rubber

WASHINGTON, May 11 (AP).—Agriculture Secretary Claude Wickard yesterday threw his influence behind demands from farm-minded law-makers that large quantities of surplus wheat, corn, and other agricultural commodities be converted into synthetic rubber.

Wickard told a Senate agriculture sub-committee that he now is convinced that "use of parts of our reserve stocks of corn and wheat . . . offers the best possibility of greatly increasing our production of synthetic rubber, to be produced under Government programs already initiated, will be manufactured from petroleum bases."

Wickard testified that America's wheat supply now is the largest in history and that not less than 80,000,000 bushels of this should be converted into rubber for tires badly needed by farmers to maintain their automobiles, trucks and other machinery for new wartime food and production demands.

The Cabinet officer's testimony obviously pleased Chairman Guy Gillette and Senators George Norris, Burton Wheeler and Charles McNary of the committee, but Wheeler bluntly commented that the agricultural department and its scientists had been "asleep at the switch."

Asserting that a world rubber trust had been holding up prices for 10 years, Wheeler told Wickard that if the Agricultural Department had "been on its toes" it would have perfected processes for converting farm products into alcohol, rubber and numerous other articles now needed for the war effort.

In reply, Wickard observed that the Department could spend for experimentation only such funds as Congress gave it for that purpose.

While the agricultural sub-committee questioned Wickard, Comferce Secretary Jesse Jones told the Senate Banking Committee today that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation already has pledged $700,000,000 to build synthetic rubber plants expected to have an annual capacity of some 800,000 tons.

Reeve Mann Is Hurt In Fall From Horse

BRIDGENORTH, May 11—(ENS)—Allan B. Mann, Reeve of Smith Township, sustained abdominal injuries when he was thrown from his horse on Sunday.

Mr. Mann has been unable to walk around for some time due to an injured knee. His means of going about on the farm was on horseback. He had just mounted his horse and was going to take the cows to pasture, when for some unknown reason the horse reared on to its hind feet, throwing Mr. Mann to the ground. The horse then stumbled and fell on top of him.

His son Burritt imemdiately rushed to his father and with help removed him to the house. He was suffering severely and was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital by ambulance.

The doctors said no bones were broken, but that Mr. Mann was suffering from shock and internal injuries.

Mr. Mann is widely known throughout the province as an exhibitor of live stock at the fall fairs, and his host of friends wish him a speedy recovery. No visitors will be allowed to see him for several days.

Assessment Roll Reveals Millbrook's Population 712

MILLBROOK, May 11—(ENS).—Millbrook Municipal Council met in regular session on Tuesday at 8 p.m., Reeve W. E. Ball presiding, and all members present except Councillor Bigelow.

Communications: The clerk read a letter from the Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, re hospitalization of patients who do not belong to this municipality.

Temple-Eakins: That the hospitals be notified that this municipality will not be liable for patients admitted without a written order from the Reeve or the clerk. Carried.

E. H. Barnes addressed Council re the formation of a boys' club or some other means of diversion for the youth of the village. Left over until next meeting for further action.

J. N. McGill asked for a renewal of public liability insurance policy, and on motion of Eakins-Temple, it was decided that the municipality re-insure with Lloyds of London.

R. McCamus, S. S. Staples, and I. W. Larmer, representing the Millbrook Agricultural Society, addressed Council asking for a grant toward the Spring Fair to be held here Saturday, June 6.

Temple-Jeffrey: That a grant of $50 be made to the Millbrook Agricultural Society. Carried.

J. J. Clark, assessor, returned the roll making the total assessment $262,533.00, with population of 712.

Eakins-Temple: That the roll be received and that Court of Revision be held on Tuesday, June 2, at 7 p.m. Carried.

J. J. Clarke, relief officer, made report of relief dispensed during April, 1942, amounting to $52.50; and on motion of Temple-Eakins, same was received and accounts ordered paid.

The attention of Council was directed by the cerk to the new Union Jack kindly donated by the local branch of the Women's Institute.

A resolution was passed thanking the Institute for its purchase of the new flag, intended for service on the pole in front of the Town Hall.

The following accounts were presented and on motion of Temple-Jeffrey, were ordered paid: Hydro, street lighting $65.60, halls $6.25—$71.85; Telephone Company account, $3.98; W. H. Whyte, constable, $12.00; H. Whyte, caretaker, $18.00, work on streets, $6.50—$24.50; J. J. Clark, asssessor, $75.00, postage $1.00—$76.00; D. Dunlop, dragging, etc., $33.25; Counties' treasurer, snow plow, $10.50; Counties' treasurer, hospital, Mrs. Trick, $28.88; S. Sloan, work Town Hall, $3.00; J. N. McGill, liability insurance premium, $100.00; Agricultural Society, grant, $50.00; S. C. Pethick, goods, relief, $8.60; W. H. Coombe, goods, relief, $10.30; G. E. Burnham, goods, relief, $10.30; R. Athabaska Bale Ready For Shipment

CAMPBELLFORD, May 11.—(ENS).—Members of Christ Church Women's Auxiliary who met Thursday at Mrs. William Smith's have decided to hold theier annual Corporate Communion on Whitsunday, May 24. This arrangement was made in pursuance of their policy to have communion together at least once during the year. Though the president was unable to attend and the meeting was in charge of the vice-president, Mrs. F. Free presided and asked members to attend a special meeting later in the month when the bale which they have been preparing to send to the Mission school at Athabaska will be made ready for shipment. The items sent will include both winter and summer clothing for a ten year old boy to whom the branch regularly sends such apparel and necessaries. A quilt which members spent some time in piecing will also be included with this shipment and it was announced that plans for a tea to be held in June will be discussed at the time the bale is packed.

Wartime Needs Feature Summary Day

HAVELOCK, May 11—(ENS).—The summary day held as a completion of the short course, 'Wise buying for well planned meals,' was held in the town hall, Havelock, with an all day session on May 8. Miss V. Bambridge, Toronto, was the department representative, in charge of the program. Five very attractive exhibits were on display at the front of the hall, and all were sampled by the delegates. Exhibits could be any new idea gleaned from the course. The one which attracted the greatest praise and admiration was made by Mrs. Wesley Johnson, Havelock, entirely from cereal products. It was a house, measuring 16 x 12 x 10" complete with grounds and walk. Wheat flakes were pasted on to represent roofing rolled oats to represent stucco finish on the top half and puffed rice to represent cobble stone for the bottom part. Puffed wheat was used for the fireplace and chimney and the walk was sprinkled with bran flakes. This unique home is on display in the Red Cross window in the Chiles block, and will be on exhibit at the Institute convention in Warsaw on May 26.

Trent River branch exhibited a food chart and a 'carrot ring casserole.' Warsaw had a 'left-over supper dish.' Belmont had a 4-fold food chart of meats, vegetables, fruits and soups and exhibittd a 'Monday dinner casserole.' Each leader explained how they had covered the course in their local branch and any new benefits they had derived

The Havelock branch served a delicious hot dinner in the council chamber. The afternoon session opened wtih some community singing led by Mrs. Everett Birdsall, Westwood. A very interesting skit, 'Miss Vitamin Conscious Entertains' was cleverly put on by a young ladies from Warsaw.

A true or false quiz contest on 'What's New in Nutrition' was entered into heartily by all present. The teacher Mrs. C. McMillan and 7 pupils from Connelly's school conducted a very worthwhile playette on 'The War Effort of a Regular Canadian Family' and was typical of present day conditions in these unusual salvage times. Mrs. E. Birdsall, Westwood, gave a talk on 'Nutrition' which was very helpful. Miss Bambridge completed the program by explaining the new Canada approved Vitamin B bread and had a huge chart, showing the different sections of a kernel of wheat and she gave all the delegates a leaflet on 'Food Facts For Consumers.'

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Morgan of Warsaw and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Healy of Peterborough were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Butler on Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Little and family of Warsaw are moving in with the former's father, Mr. Robert Little.

Pte. Kaleb Darling of Valcartier camp visited friends in community this past week.

Mr. and Mrs. George Crowe were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Butler on Thursday evening.

U.S. Marines Demonstrate Transport Of Light Artillery By Air

Demonstrating how they will use huge transport airplanes as carriers for light artillery and mechanized equipment for surprise attacks, men of the U.S. Marine Corps drive their 37-mm. anti-tank gun, drawn by a new-type midget car, up to the side of a waiting transport where it can be loaded aboard in a few minutes. At RIGHT the interior of plane is shown with the gun, car and gun crew aboard, the men scanning the terrain below for an imaginary enemy. The marines plan to use this type of transport for quick dispatch of mechanized equipment to hard-pressed fronts, or as aids to air-borne surprise attacks.

Farm Leaders Are Organizing Three Field Days For June 6

Three agricultural events are in the stage of planning for Saturday, June 6. They are the district field day of the Holstein Breeders' Association, the Central Ontario Beekeepers' Association summer meeting, both in Peterborough, and it is also reported that a spring stallion show is being held at Millbrook. And the Jersey Breeders' Association are holding their field day on June 10.

The Holstein breeders of four counties are going to meet at Norman McConkey's dairy near the Lift Lock. Their program will likely include a visit to the Lock and Armour Memorial Park and, if the weather is favorable, picnic dinner at Nicholls Oval. This should be one of the outstanding dairy events of the season. Further details will be announced later.

The Jersey Breeders decided at their annual meeting to make the Lorne Reynolds farm on the Peterborough-Lindsay highway the scene of their field day with a program that will include judging demonstration and competitions.

Invite Nature Club

The Central Ontario Beekeepers are inviting the members of the Peterborough Nature Club to join them at the Normal School, Saturday, June 6, at 2.15 p.m. Their summer meeting will be held on the school grounds, but if the weather frowns the company will retire to the school auditorium. A live bee demonstration featuring a working hive will indicate a common interest of these two groups. Speakers will include Tom Shields, Toronto, manager of Ontario Honey Producers' Association and Gordon Townsend of the apiculture department of the Ontario Agricultural College, and several films pertaining to the industry of the apiarists. There will also be a refreshment booth in aid of the British War Victims' Fund.

Another interesting event combining rural and urban organizations is booked for June 3rd when the Peterborough Cheese Patrons' Association will be hosts to the Kiwanis Club of this city at dinner in St. Aidan's parish hall. The cheese producers feel that they have let the hospitality of the Club accrue to the point at which they return the felicity. If a little suggestion may be made to George A. Elliott and his committee it would be a hint to include among their guests for that occasion the Rev. E. C. Moore, former rector of St. Aidan's, who always a kindly and genial custodian of the parish hall, extending a warm welcome to the many persons of the district who met there from time to time during his pastorate.

Durham's Labor Problem

It was pointed out in these columns the other day that the shortage of farm labor has been caused largely by the drift of hired men to other industries, rather than by farmers' sons deserting the land for higher wages in the cities. The facts obtained from the Peterborough county survey were quoted to substantiate that shrinkage, and a similar report for Durham county shows the same drift.

The total number of hired farm hands who enlisted from Durham farms last year was 66; hired hands who left to work in war plants last year was 108, and those who took up other occupations numbered 129. That total is 303.

The number of Durham farmers without adequate help when the survey was made at the close of the winter was 778, and the number of extra men required, if available, 397.

And just to recall the Peterborough prospects, as reported recently: the number of farmers without adequate help 519; and the number of extra men required 427. These figures for both Durham and Peterborough are based on the information received from only slightly more than half the total number of farmers in each county.

Answering the question: "Are women helping more than in peace time", 459 Peterborough farmers answered 'yes' and 621 Durham farmers gave the same reply.

That Splash of Summer

Looking back on that swooping advent of summer a week ago, farmers of this district may be interested in the reports from the northern section of the province showing the extent of the abnormal peak of heat for the last week of April. The agricultural representatives in Nipissing wrote that the weather was 90 degrees in the shade, and South Cochrane 70 to 85 degrees every day. All through New Ontario the season is two weeks ahead of normal. On St. Joseph's Island in Algoma the apple blossoms were showing pink a week ago.

Milk Flow Increases

The flow of milk to the cheese factories of this area is 50 per cent. more than at the beginning of the 1941 season, W. J. Moore, dairy instructor, told the Examiner yesterday. The only factory not operating is Dunsford, still lacking a cheesemaker. A new factor is being built at Burnley.

J. M. Bain of London, chief dairy instructor for western Ontario and through central Ontario to Kingston, was a visitor here this week. His trip with Mr. Moore took in Campbellford where 600 boxes were graded. Two factories, Port Perry and Silverwood's of Peterborough, combined with 250 boxes graded at Lindsay Thursday, their output for more than a week.

"Mr. Bain found everything in first class condition, and could see that season is getting off to a fine start," Mr. Moore said.

Seeding Delayed

Rain this week has held up the spring work on some of the farms in the district, and has forced the suspension of operations on low ground. Growth on the drier knolls and uplands has been heavy, and exceedingly promising fields of fall wheat, alfalfa and early grain are to be seen in the neighboring townships. For the first week in May the rural schedule is still in advance of the normal season, and moisture is ample. Pasturage is generally excellent, and all the practical work of farming getting off to a good start.

Peterborough county will be looking at its vernal best this weekend. Grass is a vivid green and with the leafage of the trees, and has bright, well washed appearance from the midweek rains. Apple trees are blossoming, and the countryside is actually blissful in all its natural atmosphere of peace. This Spring beauty takes no account of the highly important business in which agriculture is engaged in this year of war on the seven seas. Farmers are veritably part of the nation's war machine, producing food for overseas and for the people at home, including Canada's fighting forces and munitions workers.

Meet On Tuesday

Peterborough county's Agricultural War Council will meet Tuesday evening in the office of F. C. Paterson. This should be an interesting conference as the members pool opinions of farm action not only in the present season, which has most of the farmers with their hands full, but also in looking forward to next winter and the season of 1943.

Subsidizing Inefficiency!

Tucked away in a Brockville report to the Ottawa Farm Journal is a semi-official opinion that seems to be potentially explosive. Referring to the Leeds agricultural survey, John R. Ostler, agricultural representative for the county, made the following comment: "It reveals we have a large number of inefficient farmers. Higher prices, therefore, would not solve our economic problems. They would just subsidize inefficiency and allow efficient farmers to make too high profits."

Cautious and discreet commentators on the state of agriculture would probably agree that Mr. Ostler had gone out on the end of the limb with that uncompromising declaration. At that many a farmer would probably agree with his reference to the subsidizing of inefficiency, but it is only human to look for broad profits.

No Sunday Jaunts

Washington, May 11 (AP)

UNDER-SECRETARY Robert P. Patterson of the war department said today that the rubber shortage is "so acute" that the time has come to stop "Sunday trips, visits to Cousin Joe and petting parties."

At a press conference Patterson predicted that the need for conserving "a million tons of rubber now rolling on the highways" would demand curtailment of sports events.

Patterson said present government plans contemplated voluntary purchase of extra tires held by the public, but not the requisitioning of the fifth, or spare tire on a private motor car.

Are You a Sufferer From Rheumatic Pains?

These pains come from an inflammation in the muscles and are generally caused by a deposit of poison in the blood called uric acid which produces the irritating and painful effect that causes many days and nights heavy with pain.

During the past 60 years Canadian people have found that by purifying the blood stream, Burdock Blood Bitters aids them to enjoy freer body movement with less rheumatic pain, as B. B. B. helps to tone up the system and clear up the uric acid in the blood, and probably help fortify the system against future attacks.

Three Destroyers Lost In Mediterranean

LONDON, May 12—(AP).—The Admiralty announced today that three British destroyers have been sunk by German bombs in the Eastern Mediterranean.

The destroyers were the Lively, Jackal and Kipling. More than 500 officers and men from the three ships were saved.

(In Rome, the Italian high command claimed today that strong waves of German bombers sank three of four British destroyers caught in the Eastern Mediterranean north of the Gulf of Salum. "Two of the enemy naval escort planes were shot down," the high command said. This action was part of aerial activity described as intense over the Mediterranean and North Africa).

Complements of the three ships were believed to total about 600 officers and men.

All 1940 Jobs

All three were new, the Lively, 1,920 tons, having been completed in 1940, and the other two, each of 1,695 tons a year earlier. Normal complements of the smaller ships were 183 men, the Lively's probably somewhat larger.

"Yesterday afternoon a force consisting of four of our destroyers was heavily attacked by German aircraft in the eastern Mediterranean," said the communique.

The Lively was first hit and sunk, and when the remaining three destroyers were subjected to further heavy attack the Kipling was sunk.

The Jackal, also badly hit, was taken in tow, but had to be sunk this morning, the Admiralty said.

During the attacks British Beaufighters destroyed one of the Heinked bombers and damaged at least seven, the communique said.

The loss of the three ships brought to 77 the number of British destroyers sunk in 32 months of the war.

In the battle of Crete, the Kipling, despite repeated and continued bombings, picked up the survivors of the destroyers Kelly and Kashmir which had been sunk. Two direct dive-bombing attacks were made on the Kipling in this action.

Last June 2, the Kipling, with three other destroyers, sank one Italian and two German submarines operating against British ships in the Mediterranean.

The Lively was part of a force which on Nov. 9, 1941, wiped out two merged Axis convoys in the central Mediterranean. The Axis lost 10 merchant ships, our destroyers and suffered damage to a fifth destroyer.

Liberal Caucus Unanimous On Confidence In King; Most Quebec MP's Present

Former Transport Minister Cardin Absent Talking To Friends In Commons Office; Vote Of Support Moved By Montreal Member

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, May 12—(CP).—A caucus of Liberal members of the House of Commons and Senate today adopted a resolution expressing "unbounded confidence in our leader," Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Dr. T. F. Donelly, caucus chairman, said after the meeting ended.

The Prime Minister himself as he left the meeting told newspapermen that "as far as I am concerned, we couldn't have had a better caucus."

Deliberations at a party caucus are secret but it was understood when the members gathered that they would discuss the attitude of the party as a whole to the Government's bill to remove the restriction on overseas conscription from the National Resources Mobilization Act, and to the resignation of Transport Minister Cardin from the Cabinet.

The motion expressing confidence in Mr. King was adopted unanimously, Dr. Donelly said.

It was moved by Ernest Bertrand (Lib., Montreal-Laurier) and seconded by G. A. McLean (Lib., Simcoe East).

Virtually all the Quebec Liberal members were at the caucus, which was well attended. Mr. Cardin was not present. While the meeting was in progress he spent some time in his House of Commons office, talking to friends.

The Bill was given first reading, a motion that is not debatable. It will be thrown open for general debate when it is moved for second reading.

Then Mr. Cardin will announce his stand on the issue and the reasons for his resignation of his two port folios — transport and public Works.

Mr. King gave the House texts of the correspondence he had with Mr. Cardin on his resignation. The correspondence showed that the minister had resigned because of the proposal to introduce a measure containing the principle of conscription at a time when he said he had no reason to believe that conscription was necessary.

The Prime Minister, in his first letter to Mr. Cardin, declared that the removal of section 3 of the National Resources Mobilization Act, sole purpose of this Bill, was a "logical" consequence of the manpower plebiscite vote in which, he said, the majority of Canadians had indicated their desire to free the Government for total war effort.

Section 3 of the Bill was the clause restricting to use in Canada or its territorial waters those called up for compulsory service under the powers contained in the Mobilization Act.

That section the Prime Minister said, was the sole restriction placed upon the Government's war effort and its removal would leave the East Coast Gets 60 p.c. Cut In Gas Supply

HALIFAX, May 12—(CP).—A 60 per cent cut in amount of gasoline supplied to distributors in Eastern Canada and Newfoundland by the big Imperial Oil Company refinery at nearby Imeroyal went into effect today, company officials announced as a result of the tanker shortage in the Atlantic and growing military requirements.

Representatives of all oil companies operating in Nova Scotia met here yesterday to discuss the situation and A. G. Demont, Imperial Oil's general sales manager for Eastern Canada, made the announcement in a statement on behalf of the companies receiving supplies from the Imperial refinery.

Mr. Demont said the cut was bas-

Tragedy Takes 2nd Tot In 5 Yrs.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., May 12 — (CP). — Emilien Renault, three years old, was instantly killed last night when he ran into the side of an oil truck, driven by Wellington Carrie Thamesford, a few yards from the boy's home on Park Row here.

An older brother, Ronald, 12, dashed into the street in a vain effort to snatch the boy from danger.

Coroner D. J. Sinclair declared no inquest would be necessary.

Some five years ago, a sister of little Emilien, then about the same age, lost her life following a fire in her parents' home.

Firemen recalled that the tot had come into the kitchen before other members of the family were about and had evidently started a fire by playing with matches. The little girl crawled under the table and could not be immediately found because of thick smoke. She died in hospital.

British Retreat Suddenly Turns On Japs

NEW DELHI, May 12—(CP).— A British column withdrawing along the Chindwin river in Western Burma, has turned with fury upon the Japanese to drive a column of more than 300 enemy troops south from Shwegyin, a small river town about 140 miles northwest of Mandalay, a communique said to-day.

The Japanese had been pushing north apparently in motorboats.

(This Shwegyin is about five miles south of Kalewa and is not to be confused with the larger town of the same name in Southern Burma.)

R.A.F. planes have successfully machine-gunned Japanese motor transports and trucks containing troops during offensive reconnaissance over Japanese lines of communication in Northern Burma, it was announced.

Japs Use Fresh Units

CHUNGKING, China, May 12 — (AP).—The Japanese have brought up reinforcements and are making a new attack on the Yunnan front in western China, a Chinese communique announced tonight.

This followed an earlier report by a Chinese military spokesman that the main force of the Japanese invasion column which had struck deep into Yunnan from Burma had been driven back to the frontier town of Wanting but that heavy fighting with Japanese rearguards continued in the Chefang and Mangshih areas, 25 to 55 miles inside Yunnan.

Arrival of Japanese reinforcements apparently again converted the rear guard into an advance guard.

Other Chinese forces which had been by-passed in central Burma continued their advance in which they captured Maymyo and drove to the outskirts of ruined Mandalay, moving northeastward in an effort to block the Japanese retreat.

Still another Chinese force in central Burma continued an advance northwest from Mandalay and reached Malewa, the spokesman said.

Huns Step Up French War Output

Petain Hurries Home To See Laval Meet Goering Next

VICHY, May 12.—(AP)—The German military command in occupied France issued today a sweeeping decree taking to itself powers to increase working hours in French enterprises and ordering employers to report immediately the number and categories of workmen made available for other work as a result of longer hours.

(Presumably the order applies only to the occupied zone.)

Despite abolition of the old popular fronts laws, a large proportion of French industry has been working a 40-hour week, and even as little as half that in order to spread the limited employment possibilities since the armistice.

The decree of Gen. Otto von Stuelpnagel, military commandant of occupied France, said minimum working hours would be set by the economic service of the occupation authorities. Lengthening of hours would render many persons unemployed, and it is with them that the census order dealers.

(The implication is that the Germans intend thus to increase their pool of forced labor, which has been reported running short of the Nazi demands.)

Simultaneously, Chief of State Petain returned to Vichy today on a special train from his suddenly-interrupted holiday on the Riviera and immediately began a series of conferences with the chef of government, Pierre Laval, and various cabinet members.

It was said the Marshal's vacation was cut short "because of circumstances," the nature of which still was not revealed at noon.

An official statement was issued after the conference between Petain and Laval informing the public of the Marshal's arrival and of the conference. Laval met Petain at the station and took him by automobile to the Hotel du Parc, where they went into conference.

Petain spent the remainder of the morning calling on various cabinet ministers, including the minister of colonies, Jules Brevie.

No Complaint

TORONTO, May 12—(CP). —Premier Mitchell Hepburn offered no complaint today with the Federal Government's order reducing the amount of gasoline for tourists from the United States from 100 to 20 gallons, during visits to Canada, commencing May 15.

"We fully appreciate the dire necessity" said Mr. Hepburn. "We offer no complaint."

Ontario Government officials have believed for some time that the original 100-gallon quota for United States tourists would be reduced.

RAF From Egypt Helps Malta Bag 84 In 3 Days

CAIRO, May 12 (CP)—The defenders of Malta shot down 14 Axis raiders in the 24 hours ended at noon Monday, the Royal Air Force said today in a communique.

Several other Axis aircraft were severly damaged and are unlikely to have reached their bases, it was announced. The British forces lost one plane, the pilot being saved.

These successes when added to the victory scored by R.A.F. fighter pilots and anti-aircraft gunners during Saturday and the early hours of Sunday brought the total enemy aircraft destroyed or damaged in the week-end to more than 84.

(Valetta authorities announced last night that 70 had been destroyed or damaged, a record bag, and that reinforcements flown in from Egypt had made the R.A.F. triumph possible. They said 39 were knocked down for sure, their broken frames littering an airdrome, 20 were listed as probables and 25 as damaged. Today's Cairo communique said Monday morning at least three other enemy fighters were shot down.

(An authoritative source in London announced that 507 Axis aircraft have been destroyed over Malta since Italy entered the war in June, 1940.)

Sunday was a day of great concentration of Axis aircraft over Malta, the attacks coinciding with the swearing in of Viscount Gort as the new governor and commander in chief, and was also the day of a smashing British victory. On that day alone, Valetta reported, 63 enemy planes were accounted for: 42 knocked down or probably destroyed; 21 damaged.

Italians Retaken

LONDON, May 12 — (CP). — An unarmed miner and a bus driver recaptured to-day seven of 10 Italian war prisoners who escaped from a Midlands camp on Sunday night.

The miner found three in an air-raid shelter five miles from the camp and they surrendered without resistance. The bus driver rounded up four more just as easily when he encountered them on a road 10 miles from the camp.

Hun Bowing 700 Norse Teachers By Torture Route

LONDON, May 12 — (CP). — The Norwegian government charged today that German occupation authorities in Norway had established a concentration camp at Joerstadmoen where 700 school teachers are systematically tortured "to break them physically and spiritually."

In an 8,000-word document, the government reviewed alleged attempts by Maj. Vidkun Quisling, the puppet premier, to Nazify the school system through threats and terror and asserted that 1,300 teachers who refused to join the Nazi teachers organization are in concentration camps.

After 14 days of a terroristic regime, the statement declared, 20 of the 700 teachers collapsed and agreed to withdraw resignations from the teachers' front, but the remainder held out.

Five hundred of the more obstinate teachers were thrown aboard the 38-year-old ship Skjerstad, bound for forced labor in the Arctic, the statement added. It said the teachers were "packed into the hold where they had bare standing room."

The statement said that Quisling had ordered all Norwegian teachers to join the teachers front, whose duty it would be, the Norwegians charged, "to serve as a strait jacket for all those who were unwilling to do their duty to the state and the Norwegian youth."

Only 500 of 14,000 responded and 12,000 resigned from the school system.

Josef Terboben, German commissioner, then asked each district Quisling leader to submit a list of the most active members of the teachers opposition and 1,300 were imprisoned.

Simultaneously the 700 were put in unheated box cars and taken on a 26-hour journey without food and water to Joerstadmoen.

EXTRA!

LONDON — (CP) — The British Broadcasting Corporation reported today that a number of bombs directed at the famous Parisian hotels now serving as headquarters for the Germans in Paris caused considerable damage and that cordons of police all now under the Gestapo had surrounded the area in an effort to apprehend the throwers.

MELBOURNE, Australia (CP)— Observers here expressed belief tonight that Japanese invasion forces fairly well intact despite the battering they took in the battle of the Coral Sea, were hiding in the islands directly to the north and that the bulk of the Japanese grand fleet was in the Japanese-mandated islands a little farther north, waiting reinforcements.

4 Fierce Days Of Fighting Get Nowhere

Nazis Chased Back To Original Lines With Heavy Losses

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, May 12, (AP)—A German offensive against Soviet positions blocking invasion of the Caucasus died down overnight as quickly as it had flared up on the Kerch Peninsula of the Crimea, the Russians announced today.

The mid-May communique said nothing important occurred last night, indicating the Nazi push had ceased at least temporarily.

Whether Red Army resistance halted the attack or the Germans reverted to their old tactics of fighting by day and resting by night could not be determined immediately.

This was in sharp contrast with the Soviet midnight communique, which told of stubborn battles against a German offensive on the Kerch peninsula.

Heavy Night Bombings.

While it is too soon for military dispatches to report development of the offensive, advices reaching here, said it was preceded by night mass air raids.

Red Star, Soviet army paper, said the Germans had been dropping thousands of bombs in the Crimea, particularly incendiaries, but without important results

(A British commentator in London said the Russians had driven the Germans back after four days of fierce fighting which may have been intended as the fore-runner of a major offensive by the Nazis.

(The German High Command declared: 'On the Kerch peninsula German and Rumanian troops opened an attack May 8 supported by strong formations of the German air force. The battle since then has been in full swing.'

'Hell has been let loose over the Bolshevik front, where Junker 87's are carrying out dive-bombing attacks.'

He said 'fierce mopping up operations on the central front' also were of 'no mean importance.')

(A London informant said dispatches reporting a German army of 2,000,000 men had begun an offensive on the Donets front, northeast of the Crimea, were "completely unfounded.")

Germans Shoot 24 More Dutch

LONDON, May 12.—(CP).— The German occupation forces in the Netherlands executed to-day 24 more alleged leaders of a secret anti-Nazi organization, bringing to 96 the number of Hollanders shot for alleged complicity in a plot to pave the way for an Allied invasion, the Netherlands radio announced.

The radio announcement said "the trial of the leaders of the secret organization is now concluded" and that besides the 24 shot one had been sentenced to death but had been reprieved and that two had receieved sentences of life imprisonment.

Seventy-nine other persons were convicted and 72 of them shot a few days ago, according to German announcement.

Russ Club Nazi Pushes Before They Roll

Furious Soviet Attacks Upset Adolph's Already-Late Spring "Oil Hunt"

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The heavy German attack in the Crimea probably represents an effort to drive an entering wedge to enable Hitler to embark on his delayed spring offensive through the gateway to the Caucasus where lie the seas of oil on which he yearns to float to glory.

The four-day-old battle is still under way, but the business-like manner in which the Reds reportedly have flung the enemy back in the early stages is a further demonstration that the Muscovites are swinging into this critical year with great striking power. This is the third time within recent days that the Bolshevists have displayed their readiness to deal with emergencies, projected German attacks in the Ukraine and Leningrad sectors having been upset at least temporarily by lightning Russian thrusts.

This is the third spring for which the Nazi chief has prepared offensives, and always before this he has got into action with the first flowers and the earliest birds. He hurled Germany's massive weight onto Norway and Denmark on April 9 two years ago. Last year he struck on April 6 at Yugoslavia and Greece. This year here we are at May 12, with summer already trying to crowd out spring, and the Fuehrer hasn't yet fired a big gun in anger, so to speak.

These Red tactics of beating the German offensive by not letting it get started may have a decisive effect on the trend of the spring and summer fighting, and that is to say on the outcome of the war. If the Muscovites can continue to prevent another blitzkrieg from getting under way, they will have gone far towards beating the man who would rule the world.

Despite the terrific lacing which he took from the Russians last winter, Hitler has managed at heavy cost of life and material to hang onto his main strategic positions along the general defensive line which he fixed as the limit of his retirement. The Reds hammered these strong points unmercifully, and piled up great hills of youthful Nazi dead; they drove salients in between these strongholds, and at one time even surrounded a Nazi army up in the north; but still the Germans clung doggedly to these death traps whcih their Fuehrer must have to start him off in the spring on the great drive which he said was to annihilate the Russians and win the war.

However, while Hitler still has these strategic positions which have cost such a frightful price, he has been unable thus far to utilize them. The Bolshevists have stuck tenaciously to the initiative, despite his attempts to break through them with fresh troops and equipment.

However, while Hitler hasn't yet got fully under way we mustn't be foolish enough to think that he is finished. He still is powerful and when he finally gets his strength into play—which he might do in his present drive—we likely shall see some of the force of former springs.

Whether he will persist in trying to break the Red line, though, is problematical. If the Reds continue to hold him at bay, he may lash out in some other direction while doing a defensive holding operation along the Russian front.

He might, for instance, try to break into the Middle East by means of by-passing Turkey and striking through Syria.

The Gas Masks Stay Home

Londoners Pay Little Heed To Churchill's Tip

LONDON May 12 — (CP). — Prime Minister Churchill's "public warning" to Germany against the use of poisonous gas appeared to have little effect on Londoners today. They continued to go about their business with the usual small number armed with civilian respirators.

While a street-corner count showed that only about one person in 400 carried a mask there was other evidence that the Prime Minister's warning was heeded. Mothers thronged to air raid precautions centres for "Mickey Mouse" masks for new-born children. A big West-end store tested masks for every member of its staff of 500 and for many of its customers.

Officials advised women that a change in hair styles might have affected the fit of their masks and at the same time recommended that everyone have his or her mask thoroughly overhauled. The Ministry of Home Security assured citizens there was no type of war gas known to scientists in this country which would penetrate their civilian masks

Gloom In London's Kidnap

City Council Adds $200 To Reward Offered

LONDON, Ont., May 12.—(CP).— Rainy weather to-day tended only to deepen official gloom over lack of a clue in the kidnap of six-month-old Barbara Ann Wood, taken from her baby carriage in the heart of the downtown shopping district four days ago.

"Not a lead in sight," was the report at city detective headquarters.

Public interest was roused a bit more to-day by last night's action of city council in raising the reward to $1,200 for arrest of the kidnapper or kidnappers. The Ontario government had previously announced a reward of $1,000.

Police started again to check theories that the baby and her captor might have escaped notice in the shopping throngs because the child was rushed to a waiting auto. Train and bus schedules have already been checked but transportation men have provided no clues.

CANADIANS FACE PROSPECTS OF DRASTIC CUT IN GAS COUPONS

Tourist Gas Slashed To 4 Units

Believed Forerunner Of Cut At Home To 4 Or 3-Gal. Ration

OTTAWA, May 12—The Canadian Government, faced with "a situation of increasing gravity," yesterday took the first step to impose further drastic restrictions on the sale of gasoline.

Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Munitions and Supply, announced that United States and foreign tourists will be permitted to purchase only four units of gasoline during a visit to Canada effective May 15. (A unit now consists of five gallons.) Up until today, United States and foreign tourists had been permitted to purchase twenty units (100 gallons).

Governmental sources declined to speculate on the results of this action, but it is assumed by observers here that this is only the prelude to more rigid restrictions on the sale of gasoline for domestic use. It is further assumed that this step is being taken in collaboration with the United States.

On Saturday the United States Price Administrator, Leon Henderson, set the basic gasoline ration for non-essential motorists in the eastern seaboard of the United States at three gallon per week. Canadian motorists in "A" category at present are entitled to purchase sixty units per year, which is slightly less than six gallons per week.

told of the killing of 200 German soldiers and destruction of a tank, a number of guns and a warehouse full of mines, devoted much of its space to operations by Russian guerillas behind the enemy lines.

In the Ukraine, it said, an enemy punitive expedition, described as "big" was wiped out by a guerilla detachment. These enemy troops were attempting to punish the guerilla detachments which inflicted heavy losses on the Hungarian 32nd and 46th infantry regiments which had been ordered by the German command to clean up guerilla strongpoints.

One German broadcast said a military spokesman had described the Crimean action as the first great offensive operations since early winter.

According to this source, the Germans also have introduced new and improved weapons on the Kerch front. The spokesman said they were weapons announced by Hitler in his last speech.

A 4-Day Attack

LONDON, May 12 —(CP)—The Russians have driven back German divisions which attacked in the Kerch Peninsula after four days of fierce fighting, a British commentator said today.

The German attack in the Crimea, roadway to the oil riches of Russia's Caucasus and those of Iran beyond, was said to have foundered against the Red Army's stubborn lines and to have folded back into its starting position.

This information said the Nazi drive, in which infantry divisions were led by tanks and paced by dive bombers and low-flying fighters, was believed to have the preliminary of a major offensive because "the Nazis realize they must clear the Kerch Peninsula before advancing from Taganrog on to Rostov."

The Germans made little progress in the four-day battle, this source said, and were knocked back into their lines with heavy casualties.

Nazi infantrymen were able to maintain an advanced position in only one sector and that now is being attacked savagely by Soviet troops, he added.

The German drive was interpreted here as merely an unsuccessful attempt to remove an embarrassing Russian position on the Nazi flank, one of a series of operations the invaders must undertake to open the way for a general offensive.

Transient Given 15 Days In Jail

Fifteen days in jail was the sentence imposed by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning on Alexander LeBlanc, 40-year-old transient after the accused had pleaded guilty to a vagrancy charge, laid under the begging section.

LeBlanc told the court that he was born in New Brunswick and had no permanent home, although he lived sometimes with a sister in Montreal.

Crown Attorney McElderry, K.C., stated that the man had called on a house in Havelock, begging, and had been very abusive.

"I only hit one house in Havelock," LeBlanc stated.

"You have been here before?" remarked the Magistrate. "Two years ago, Your Honor."

"What did you get then" "Ten days."

"Well take 15 days now," said the court and that was that.

Navy League Needs Community Aid

There will be no tag days, nor individual appeals on the part of any organizations in Peterborough which benefit from the Community Fund, which means one blanket appeal for $60,000 meets the needs of the Red Cross, and also the needs of all the major welfare organizations in the city.

The drive to raise this money will be launched on Friday next, May 15, and already organizations in the various factories and offices have been named and instructed in their duties. It is expected that the objective of $60,000 will be reached in the time set out for the campaign, namely May 22, and already many employees have volunteered sums in excess of the amount that was expected.

Many people are annoyed at constant requests for money for the various charities, and the fact that all the agencies have combined to make one annual appeal, meets with the approval of most people. This permits a person with a regular income to budget expenses, and make small regular payroll deductions to handle the Community contribution.

A Splendid Service

Word has been received from the Associate Deputy Minister, T. C. Davis, in the Department of National War Services, advising the Navy League of Canada hostels will be financed by the government in accountable grants. The communication points out that the job of providing essential comforts to the men of the navy and the merchant marine, and the work of promoting and organizing sea cadets must be financed from local funds.

The major portion of the work of the Navy League is the maintaining of the navy hostels to the naval ratings and merchant seamen, but just as important is the sending of comforts to the men on the ships at sea and in distant places at shore station.

"Government financing will include only that portion of the Navy League War Services program which affects hostel operations. Your comforts and sea cadet programs will be financed as heretofore by the Canadian public, either through grants from interested organizations or by money raising projects of your Provincial and local chapters."

Thus, it is clear that the division of financing makes it imperative that the Navy League local chapter benefits by the local Community Fund, and the worth of this service is obvious to anyone, whether a member of their family is serving in the navy or merchant marine or not.

Even with the gasoline rationing system now in effect, an Imperial official said, motorists will not be able to obtain as much gasoline as they were alloted in their coupon books.

"They will just have to take what is available," this official said.

The Imperoyal refinery, located just across Halifax harbor from here, supplies the majority of gasoline service stations in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island and Imperial officials said all these provinces would be affected by the cut.

Unofficial reports heard here were that gasoline rationing books in nearly all categories in Nova Scotia were being called in for re-examination and reduction in the amounts allotted, but Regional Oil Controller Annand declined comment.

"Any announcement in this connection will have to come from Mr. Cottrelle (Oil Controller G. R. Cottrelle) or Mr. Howe (Munitions Minister C. D. Howe), he said.

OTTAWA, May 12 — (CP). — A high Government official said to-day that "recategorizing" under the gasoline rationing system is going on in Nova Scotia and elsewhere across Canada but that until the complete range of the gasoline picture is available nothing final can be done.

Under instructions of Oil Controller G. R. Cottrelle of Toronto, rationing officials are checking the categories of motorists and as a result the amount of gasoline which may be bought will be reduced in hundreds of cases.

Demand Better World After The War

CAMPBELLFORD, May 12 (ENS) —A subject that is attracting the attention of more and more speakers is the post war world, and that was what Rev. J. R. Bick spoke on when he visited the Rotary Club as guest speaker on Monday. However, Rev. Bick approached the question from a different angle stressing not so much the shape of the world after the war as the means which mankind must adopt to assure its realization. Said Rev. Bick who a year ago came to this town from Whitevale to take over the Seymour charges of the United Church, "We are sure (the war) will end and that the bells will peal again when the soldiers march home, and then we will set to the task of building up the world." In his opinion the war had already destroyed, and would probably continue to destroy, much that could never be replaced, buildings that would be restored to their original form. "You may be able to put back another building but not the old cathedral—it will be lost forever."

The speaker contrasted the temper of the people now with what it was during the past war and suggested they had been too quick to settle back at a point not far from the old status quo, "but this time we want to make something better and are looking forward to seeing something different." People must cease thinking of themselves as citizens of this, that or the other country, and regard themselves as world citizens. Thinking in the past has been too narrow and too localized declared Rev. Bick. Though natural resources, so necessary to the rebuilding, abound in Canada an even greater essential to this task is the human resource—youth. Reflecting for a moment he recalled, "We let them (youth) walk the highways, ride the rods and sleep in box cars, all the while wondering why somebody didn't do something about it, and today these same youth form a mighty bulwark for our country."

As delegate to the conference of the 168th and 169th districts to be held a Niagara Falls on May 17-19 the club appointed President P. C. Denyes.

Packers Strike Is Short Lived

KITCHENER, Ont., May 12. — (CP)—Two hundred and ninety employees of Dumarts, Limited, Meat Packing Company here, were back at work to-day after a short-lived walkout called yesterday afternoon in protest against the management's refusal to arbitrate the dismissal of two employees for "insubordination."

Decision to return to work was made at a mass meeting last night after the announcement that the company had decided to meet the employees' committee and the civic industrial dispute committee today.

The two men whose dismissal occasioned the walkout were employed in the cutting department. Their dismissal followed an argument with the department foreman which the management termed 'insubordination.' The packing house workers' organization committee denied there has been insubordination and charged the company with trying to break the union.

"There is no doubt in our minds but what the company is out to smash the union and used these two employees as the goats," Fred Dowling of the packing house workers' organization committee said yesterday. The union is an affiliate of the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

A company statement before the walkout said the men were dismissed for 'gross insubordination to their foreman' and added the offence occurred in the presence of the plant superintendent and the general superintendent.

Minister Preaches Farewell Sermon

BAILIEBOPO, May 12—(ENS).—The Rev. Mr. Gibson of Centreville Presbyterian Church preached his farewell sermon Sunday to a large congregation, which included the Sunday School.

In his Mother's Day message, Mr. Gibson stressed the thought of "the duty we owe our mothers." He pointed out the sacrifice she has made for her family, her home and the very important role she plays in the world today. "Service and sacrifice are the important factors in life today," he said, "and mothers are carrying on all over the world."

Mr. Gibson left on Tuesday for his new charge at Chesley, and his induction will be held on Thursday. He thanked his congregation for their kindness and co-operation and asked that the same thing be accorded his successor.

Tribute Is Paid Late Judge In County Court

At the opening of a special session of the County Court here this morning, His Honor Judge Sheldon Smoke, who was presiding, paid tribute to his former colleague, the late Judge L. V. O'Connor of Cobourg.

"It seems fitting at this the first sitting of the County Court of the County of Peterborough since the passing of His Honor the late Judge O'Connor, that I should say a word," His Honor said.

"He was a quiet, unassuming gentleman, a friend of man, a wise counsellor, a true sportsman. His motto was one of service and understanding. He was a charter member of the Lindsay Rotary Club, and had continued his activities as a Rotarian ever since he went to Cobourg. He was president of the Cobourg Hospital Board, a member of the executive of the County Judges' Association, and gave a great deal of his time in endeavoring to make life more easy for others.

"He will be missed by all who knew him and particularly by his family. His family was his first and last concern. I have learned, on very good authority, that on Sunday last he drove to Toronto for the purpose of making certain arrangements in connection with the wedding of his son, Larry O'Connor.

"I shall miss his friendly greeting and wise guidance. My sympathy goes out, and I am sure that the sympathy of the Bar of this county goes out to Mrs. O'Connor, to Larry O'Connor and the two daughters."

The Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., a close friend of the late Judge O'Connor, who was present in the court, said:

"Permit me as a member of the Bar and as one of the senior members, to add a few words on the passing of one of Your Honor's colleagues upon the circuit in this part of the Province and the passing of one of the King's Judges. The passing of Judge O'Connor is one of the striking and serious events that meet the attention of the community and in fact the whole province.

"As Your Honor says, he was a well-known member of the Bar and he had reached a highly respected and honored, not only by the Bar, but by members of the community which he was known and in which he lived.

"His only son has enlisted in the Active Service, was about to be married in the following week or two, and an unusually happy period of time was before His Honor Judge O'Connor and his wife. I had the opportunity of seeing him about two weeks ago, and he spoke of coming events and of the pleasant spring season that had come and was anticipating a happy and pleasant period of time in carrying on his duties, not only to his own county, but in some of the adjacent counties. I wish to add my few halting words to those of Your Honor in paying the respect that we owe an honored member of the Bench. He has given his duty not only as a citizen, but as a Judge, to this community in a quiet, unassuming, patient and untiring way. He has performed his duties both as a citizen and as a Judge as fully as a human person could do, I believe."

311,825 Called Up But 11,568 Fail To Report

OTTAWA, May 12 — (CP). — Out of 311,825 men called to report for physical examination for compulsory military training 11,563 failed to report, Hon. J. T. Thorson told the House of Commons last night. But a large percentage of the delinquents had enlisted voluntarily, the minister said.

He gave the information in reply to a question by John Diefenbaker (Cons. Lake Centre), during consideration of the War Appropriation Bill in committee of the whole.

Lists of those delinquent were kept constantly circulating through the 13 administrative divisions set up under the National Resources Mobilization Act, the War Services Minister said, and he would welcome any information members could give him of persons delinquent from either the call for physical examination or for training.

Facts regarding delinquents were placed in the hands of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, the minister said, but the main objective of the Department was to get men into the training camps and not into jails.

gotiations reaching a state of urgency, Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering may meet to-morrow with Chief of State Petain and Chief of Government Laval to reach final decisions, it was reported to-day in foreign diplomatic quarters.

These quarters predicted that the French would refuse to accept the Martinique negotiations as one of three great decisions, with resultant break of relations with the United States.

It was reported that Otto Abetz, Hitler's representative in Paris, and Laval met yesterday at Moulins, on the French demarkation line, and laid the groundwork for the expected meeting with Goering.

Laval was said to have brought Vichy France to the brink of three big decisions—rejection of the American proposals for clarifying the status of Martinique, the degree of military collaboration with the Axis, and at least a preliminary settlement of disputed points with Italy.

These were reported to have been the matters of "imperious concern" which Vichy announced led Petain to cut short his rest on the Riviera and return by special train to the seat of the government.

(In London a Reuters dispatch datelined from the French frontier said Goering himself had met Laval at Moulins, according to diplomatic circles.

(Other unconfirmed London reports asserted that Goering, who was visiting in Paris, was the bearer of far-reaching German demands with the threat that Italy would be given Tunisia and Corsica if Vichy did not yield.)

It was said also that special urgency was given to the French situation with the arrival of Goering in Paris while the German armies were making their first major attack of the spring on the Russian front.

Deer Lake Fry For The Trent

CAMPBELLFORD, May 12. — (ENS). — The annual re-stocking of the Trent River with fish fry has been completed in this section during the past few days as a Department of Game and Fisheries truck from the Deer Lake Hatchery covered the district from Trent Bridge to Glen Ross.

As they have done in the past, local resort owners long ago sent in applications for their quota and were on hand to assist the Department employees in dumping them into the weed beds. Most sections got all the way from 10,000 to 50,000 maskinonge and up to 300,000 pickerel fry. Believing the number of 'lunge being taken from his section of the river, above Healey Falls in the past few years had been on the increase, Stan Keller asked for and got the largest number ever placed in this section, 25,000.

And R. H. (Dick) Cole saw to it that his section of the river (Crow Bay) got a good supply. He is looking forward to a season as good as last year despite the talk of war work cutting into holidays, and as evidence of his faith in the approaching summer tourist influx he put in a new water pressure system at his camp.

Mr. Cole told the Examiner that he is already booked up full for the 24th of May and at least three American families, who have been coming over for several seasons back, are expected at this early date. He thinks that any dropping off of American fishermen may be offset by Ontarians since he has received a number of inquiries from the Toronto-Hamilton district.

Thieves Strip Cottage On The Trent

HASTINGS, May 12.—(ENS)—Police have discovered that 12 cottages on the south shore of the Trent River, situated between the village and Macklin's Island, two miles have been broken into within the past week. Much of the stolen goods was recovered during a thorough search of the area on Monday but still missing is a valuable motor boat, guns, fishing equipment, cooking utensils and food.

Although no arrests have been made it is believed that the break-ins were perpetrated by a gang of juveniles augmented by several hoboes. Rooms have been ransacked in many of the dwellings in addition to furniture being wantonly destroyed.

Entrance was gained in most cases by employing a jimmy on the doors.

During their combing of the district Monday, police also uncovered a stolen tent, a quantity of bedding and two tarpaulins. It is thought that the thieves camped in this makeshift dwelling for a night or more.

"They are taking a quantity of food and seem to be eating it as they go along," commented Police Chief William Wellman.

Also working on the case are Provincial Officers Donald Curruthers of Campbellford and D. Adair of Cobourg.

Except for one owned by Charles E. Wilson, Rittman, Ohio sportsman, the cottage belong to Toronto residents.

Plan Tennis Season

After a lapse of nearly two years when the sport died out for lack of suitable courts, tennis will again hold sway in Hastings during the summer.

At a meeting held in the parish hall Friday night, plans were made to get the court, situated beside Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church, into shape at once. Although it is anticipated that some difficulty will be encountered in obtaining material, especially tennis balls the club will function for this season at least.

Officers appointed for the summer are: Honorary president, Father J. Garvey; president, Gus Faux; secretary-treasurer, Jean Coughlan; executive, Joseph Mulholland, Tim Coughlan, Jr., Mary Crowley and Mary McDonald.

DEBRIS TOY FOR ORPHANS

LONDON—(CP).—Every London child orphaned by raids will be given a toy made from bomb debris by members of the National Fire Service.

OBITUARIES

RICHARD FALLIS.

BETHANY, May 11.— (ENS).— The passing of the late Richard Fallis has removed another life-long resident of the vicinity, in his 85th year. Mr. Fallis was the fourth oldest of a family of 12 children, of the late William Fallis and his wife, Anne Hailey, of whom only one brother survives, Matthew Fallis of Millbrook. The late Mr. Fallis was born and lived practically all his life in Manvers, moving to the village several years ago.

He is survived by his widow, formerly Louise Walker, five daughters and two sons, one brother, Miss Irene of Toronto, Mrs. Cecil Hughes (Edna), of Toronto, Mrs. Roy Ferren, (Bertha), Cavan, Mrs. Wm. Fair (Ida), Fairmount, Miss Laura at home, Harvey, Bethany, and Fred Fallis at home.

Mr. Fallis was widely known for his efficiency as a well digger and highly respected for his integrity and good fellowship.

The funeral was held from his late residence on Wilson street, on Thursday and very largely attended, with interment at Fallis cemetery. Rev. A. Harding, pastor of the United church, officiated. Pallbearers were nephews, Matt. Todd, Millbrook, Byron, Walter Fallis, Fallis' Line, Jack, Joe Fair, Fairmount, Carl Porter, Pontypool. The casket and graveside were massed with beautiful floral tributes.

MRS. M. J. McKENZIE.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 12. — (ENS). — A native of Seymour Township, Mary Jane McKenzie 78, was buried from the home of her son, Perry McKenzie, in Seymour East, this (Tuesday) afternoon. The deceased lady was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John McKenzie of Seymour, and although she spent most of her life in the vicinity of Campbellford she died following several months' poor health, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William Kemp, Shannonville. Predeceased by her husband, Peter McKenzie, a little over two years ago, Mrs. McKenzie had lived with another daughter Mrs. T. Russell, Walton Street, Peterborough, until two weeks ago. She was a member of Burnbrae Presbyterian Church and a well-known resident of that part of the township.

Surviving are five daughters, Mrs. Roy Thompson, Toronto, Mrs. William Braddock, Windsor, Mrs. Albert Russell, Peterboro, Mrs. Chas. Tuttle, Brockport, N.Y. and one son, Perry McKenzie of Seymour East.

The funeral service was conducted by Rev. Donald McKay, and interment was made in the family plot at Burnbrae Cemetery.

JAILED FOR LATENESS

Bombers Get 2 More Jap Vessels

Overtaken Hiding In Solomons Toll Now Up To 23

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, May 12—(CP).—Japan apparently still is paying a disastrous price today for her defeat in the Coral Sea as Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced Allied fliers tracking down the scattered, hiding remnants of the great enemy invasion armada and other units had damaged two, and probably three, more ships.

This raised the count of Japanese losses in the six-day battle in the sea gateway northeast of Australia and it sequel, a ceaseless search of island hideaways, to 23 or 24 ships in the eight days from the start of the Coral Sea battle through yesterday.

Nevertheless, Japan's plans have been delayed and the threat still hangs over Australia that she will try again to smash southward, Minister Arthur Drakeford warned.

Two more enemy tansports—casualties numbers 22 and 23—were hit yesterday in the Solomon Islands, which enclose the Coral Sea on the north, a communique from General MacArthur's headquarters announced.

The possible 24th Japanese casualty was a large tanker on which, the communique said, air raiders registered two hits or near misses in the Deboyne Islands of the Louisiade group, a cluster of tiny islets in the Coral Sea off the southeast tip of New Guinea.

A Supply Depot.

An Army spokesman said the Louisiades definitely were not occupied by the Japanese, explaining the enemy had landed a few stores and supplies from boats and planes but apparently no ground forces.

He said the transports attacked yesterday in the Solomon Islands, at Kessa, apparently were a separate unit and not a part of the fleet involved in the Coral Sea battle.

Kinmount Loss $150,000 New Estimate

Property loss in the Kinmount fire is now estimated at nearer to $150,000 than to the original $100,000 roughly computed the day after the disaster.

Adjustment of insurance claims is proceeding. Several settlements made through McClellan and Clegg, local agents, amounted to $2,7[illegible]0, but twenty-one other claims are listed, and have not yet reached agreement.

'J. Austin, owner of the lumber mill in the village, lost everything,' it has been emphasized, 'and that included his mill and water power, 200,000 shingles and 100,000 feet of lumber. I understand that his insurance is still unsettled, and I would not be at all surprised if it is around $45,000 to $50,000.

One observation I made last week was that there is no peremptory want in the community. That is, people who lost their dwelling places have roofs over their heads. The Orillia Red Cross sent considerable temporary equipment to meet the emergent conditions following such a fire, but it was not needed, and was immediately sent back.'

A local traveller who recently viisted Gelert in his rounds said that this Haliburton community was swept by a fire that seemed comparatively as ruinous as the destruction of Kinmount. George Schraeder's general store in Gelert was reduced to ashes with all its contents.

This fire was caused by a faulty thimble in the ceiling of the building and broke out at 7.30 in the morning of April 13. A high wind flung the flames across the streets to a dwelling or two, and they went down with the Schraeder's store, a building 120 feet by 90 feet.

About the same time, and completing a trinity of Haliburton fires, the farm home of Mrs. Edward Brohm of the Murphy settlement near Dungalia, west and south of Kinmount, was a total loss, amounting to $2,000. Sparks from the chimney started a patch of fire in the shingles and a gusty spring wind did the rest.

HOW TO RELIEVE PILE TORTURE QUICKLY AND EASILY

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting the condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from McDermid & Jury or any druggist and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended, and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money. —(Advt.)

Lions Collect Glass Aid Red Cross

PORT HOPE, May 12.—(ENS)—The monthly meeting of the Women's War Workers Committee of the Red Cross was held on Monday night. It was reported that the main topic of discussion at Friday night's executive meeting was the campaign for funds which will take place May 11 to 25. Arrangements have been made for groups of workers to take charge of the different districts of the town.

Arrangements have also been made with the Lions Club whereby all clear glass is to be collected on May 20. This clear white glass, whether whole or broken is needed in war work and will be marketed in Hamilton. The co-operation of the Lions Club in the collection of this glass is much appreciated by the Red Cross who will profit by the proceeds.

The treasurer, Mrs. C. M. Thompson, reported donations $17. Tea room receipts $51.32. Expenses $15.73.

Mrs. Byrant, joint convener with Miss Smart, reported the saving committee had made 575 articles including for eight-year-old girls, 30 skirts with boleros to match, 30 blouses and 10 blouses. Hospital supplies 353 pieces including 25 dressing gowns, 25 hospital gowns, 160 gauze handkerchiefs, 60 Turkish towels, 25 pairs of pyjamas with 8 extra pair of trousers. For 16-year-old girls, 30 outfits consisting of long tweed coats, tweed skirts, cotton blouse, wool sweaters and pairs of bloomers.

Mrs. Seaman, convener of the wool committee, reported the shipment of wool articles included in the April shipment were:

Navy: 25 pair 26-inch seaman's socks; 25 pair 18-inch seaman's socks; 14 turtle neck sweaters; 15 pair mitts; 13 helmets.

For the Army and Air Force: 3 turtle neck sweaters, grey; 14 black turtle neck sweaters; 10 pair socks; 10 pair gloves; 24 pair airforce gloves.

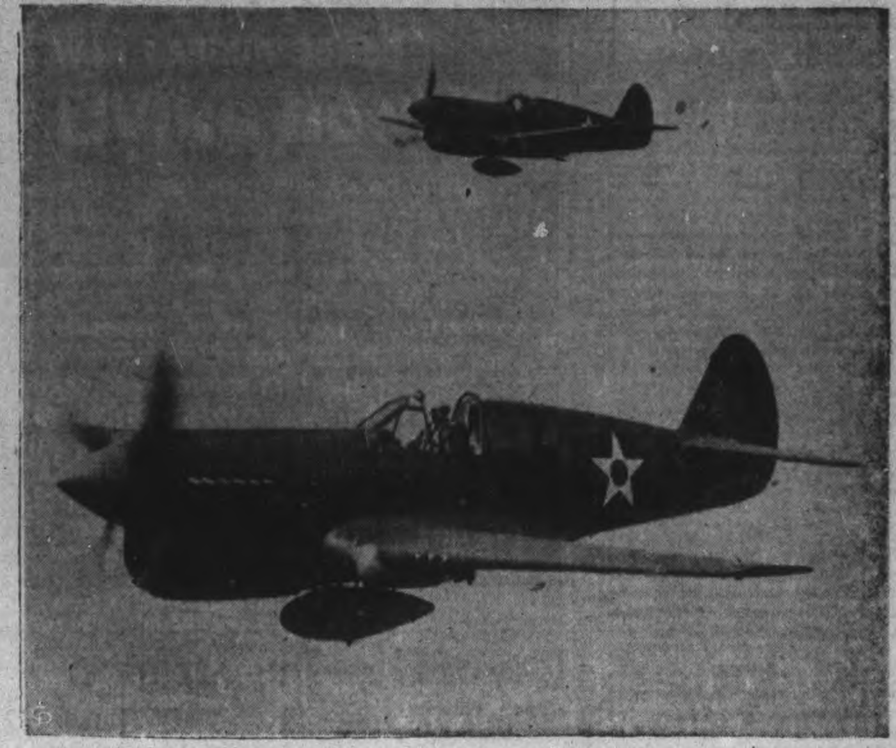
Mrs. Perkins, convener of the cutting committee, reported that 758 yards of material had been cut into 512 articles.

Mrs. Chisholm, convener of the social committee, reported that Mrs. P. A. C. Ketchum was planning to have a tea early in June for the Red Cross and later in the summer Mrs. Chisholm is arranging for a tea at the home of Mrs. Schultz at Penryn Park.

It was reported that Mrs. Victor Smith was in charge of the committee to collect all used clothing of any kind for "Canadian Friends of Poland" which will be packed for shipment at regular times from now on.

The junior Red Cross work is much appreciated and Mrs. Wotherspoon suggested that a tea be held for the teachers and students who are doing this work at a date in the near future in the Red Cross tea rooms.

Warhawks Bad News For Axis Ventures



Shown in flight here are two fighters of the new, fast, high-climbing Curtiss Warhawk type, successor to the famed Curtiss Tomahawks and Kittyhawks already engaged in successful combat on many fronts. The Warhawks were demonstrated for the first time by test pilots of the Curtiss-Wright Corp. at Buffalo. The Warhawk is the first U.S. military type to be powered with the new American-built Rolls-Royce engine.

The theatre cash prize of $25.00 was drawn for Alfred Outres, while the $10.00 War Savings Certificate went to Mrs. B. Wagner and the fourteen other $5.00 certificates went to Mrs. G. Perrin, Miss Hilda Raby, Mrs. Linfoot, M. Yeo, Christina Freeman, Dawson Bebee, Hilda Raby, Mrs. H. C. Williams, Mrs. A. M. Ferrah, Miss Eva L. Rowden, Mrs. Kelly Mrs. Henry Cook, Ken Roberts, Mrs. Myrtle Rowson.

This is the forty-ninth draw for, Dimes for Victory to take place in Port Hope.

Meeting Postponed

COBOURG, May 12—(ENS). — Scheduled meeting of the Cobourg Public Utilities Commission was postponed last night until Thursday evening. It had been planned to postpone the meeting until after the burial of Judge L. V. O'Connor, but due to the sudden death yesterday at Coldsprings of the brother of Arthur McIntosh, manager of the Utilities, it was decided to defer the meeting until still later in the week.

With The Boy Scouts

CRAFT SHOW

We are very pleased to report that from every angle our craft and activities as displayed in the Market Hall last week were a success. The scout and cub activities put on by the various groups each night were both entertaining and instructive.

The craft work, although not as large as expected, was a better grade than ever before with some good leather-work and models submitted. The committee was on the job every night from Monday to Friday and the co-operation of every officer is appreciated. The attendance of interested friends made the whole effort worth while, and it is expected that, conditions permitting, we will build up for a repeat affair in the future.

Many boys did not claim their exhibits on Friday; these are now in the scout headquarters. Any boy desiring to get the same must get in touch with the Skipper at 3067 an darrangements will be made.

VISIT BY BRITISH SCOUTS

A parade will be held on Sunday, May 24, when the British scouts will pay an official visit to this city. The parade is called for 1.15 p.m. sharp in the Market Square, and will move off at 1.25 p.m. sharp to proceed to the Capitol Theatre. The parade orders are: the cubs will proceed first in line of route, in order of groups, wit hthe scouts following in like manner. After all scout units have been seated the doors will be open to the general public. The program starts at 1.45 sharp, and it is expected to finish at 3 p.m., when the scout units will proceed to the Market in the same order, where the parade will be dismissed. Those units who are considering camping out for the week-end must make arrangements to be in town for this affair. Scouters are requetsed to govern themselves accordingly.

JAMBOUREE, MAY 25

The annual jamboree is drawing near once again, although it seems but yesterday that your scribe put away the files for last year's work. At a special meeting of a general committee it was decided to carry on as last year, with one or two changes.

In the cub section the following activities will be held:

Knot relay; officer in charge, Mrs. Langhorne; leap frog, Mr. King; ball throwing relay, Mr. Butcher; time telling relay, Mr. McKinney; National Anthem, Dr. Haigs Howard; message relay, Miss D. Grady; Union Jack relay, Miss L. Dewart; Skin the Snake, Miss G. Marshall; Red Flower, Mr. G. Brook.

Mr. Butcher was chosen as chairman of the general committee which is made up of the officers named in charge of the above events. It is up to the committeees to get together and see that some final arrangements are made and rules drawn up governing all activities. In the scout section the same applies, with the following activities.

Three cornered tug-of-war; officer in charge, Mr. A. Rose; sack race, Mr. A. Ingham; first aid and fireman's lift, Mr. P. Dominik; fire lighting, Mr H. Nokes; A.R.P. demonstration by 10th troop, Mr. A. Olmstead; scout's pace; Mr. E. McNabb; tent pitching, Mr. F. Ford; message relay, Mr. S. Leggitt; bridge building demonstration by the 1st and 2nd troops. Camp fire under Scouters Stan Leggitt and Hank Nokes was appointed chairman of the scout committee.

It was decided that the mothers' auxiliaries would be asked to have a canteen on the ground as in previous years but that any other group that has had this privilege in the previous years would not be considered. All groups' names will be put in a hat and the first drawn will be the lucky one for the work. We would advise the ladies to get busy at once as there are plenty of arrangements to be made. Send your applications in to Mr. W. G. Shiner, 311 Margaret avenue.

DOWN SOUTH AT ST. GEORGE'S

Following the opening with the grand howl, some time was given to the coming jamboree. During the evening two new members were joined to the great brotherhood of scouting as Billy Parry and Jack Post were invested as tenderpads into the pack activities.

Scouter G. Houghton took first aid as the main item of instruction in the troop. A general meeting of parents and others interested in the movement was held an. proved to be very interesting and successful. Assistant Commissioner E. Wolfe and Mr. A. Hope were on hand and gave some very fine talks on the outline of the work regarding the formation and duties of mothers' auxiliaries and group committees. Our thanks goes out to these two gentlemen for their talks.

Both the mothers' auxiliaries and group committee have been formed and we are looking forward to greater activities in the future.

FLAGS DEDICATED AT ST. LUKE'S

The scout and cub flags of the St. Luke's group were dedicated during the morning service in St. Luke's Church on Sunday last. Flag bearers for the occasion were Cubs LaVergne Butcher, Wayne Ferguson, Scout Ernie Ferguson. Guards were Cubs Bob Wyatt, George Gough, Scouth Don Smith. The color party were preceded by Baloo King with Akela Butcher and Assistant Scouter McIlvena, and Scouter Nokes. Rev. Mr. Bousfield, in his sermon, pointed directly to the scout movement and its motto, "Be Prepared." The speaker urged that every co-operation be given the scout movement, not only in the group, but as a whole.

Attention, cubs; everyone should be on hand on Tuesday, when jamboree activities will be practiced.

FAREWELL PARTY AS ST JOHN'S

On Friday night last, a very large party of cubs gathered to bid farewell to their Akela F. R. Pammett, who is leaving this week to take up duties with his unit at Niagara-on-the-Lake. Many parents were on hand for the occasions. After an evening of games and fun Rev. Canon Robertson spoke on the loss St. John's would feel in the departure of Akela Pammett and the good work that leader had done during his term of office. Assistant Commissioner L. A. Grant and Mr. A. Hope also gave brief farewell messages. The skipper then called Akela Pammett to the centre of the parade circle and Senior Sixer Jack Gray presented his leader wit htwo books and a leather wallet on behalf of the pack, following which Mr. F. Hooper, chairman of the group committee, presented a lighter inscribed with: "Akela, F.R.P." as a gift from the mothers' auxiliary and group committee, and bade the departing officer the best of luck.

The mothers' auxiliary served lunch, with chocolate milk and ice cream as a gift from one of the members of the group committee.

Judge O'Connor Funeral On Wednesday

COBOURG, May 12.—(ENS)—The remains of the late Judge O'Connor who died suddenly Monday morning at his home in Cobourg, were taken this afternoon to Lindsay, where he was born, and the funeral will be held Wednesday morning with Requiem Mass in St. Mary's Catholic Church. The body lay at his home until two o'clock this afternoon and later was placed on the 3:22 train for Lindsay.

Last night and today a steady stream of visitors called at the home of the late Judge to pay their last respects. From every walk of life they came, a tribute to the popularity of a man who seemed to know every citizen of the town and who had a friendly word of greeting for everyone. Apart from his professional associates, he was perhaps best known by those who curled and bowled with him and learned first-hand of the fine sportsmanship qualities which marked his every act.

"He has been a wonderul man," was the comment of Crown Attorney Harry Deyman. "The community has lost in Judge O'Connor a great man. From my on experience he has been most helpful and kind. To a new lawyer coming to town he was very helpful and found a ready welcome from the judge who was always most anxious to welcome him to his new surroundings. If you had a problem, big or small, he was always ready to listen to you and to offer helpful suggestions. Cobourg and the whole district has indeed lost a great man in his passing."

Local police, lawyers, business men, everyone who knew the late judge, and everyone knew him, had the same comment of the town losing a great man in the death of Judge O'Connor.

Cobourg's loss was irreparable, declared Judge Frank Field of Cobourg, retired judge.

"Having known the late Judge O'Connor for many years during his active practice at the bar in Eastern Ontario, and very intimately during his judicial career on the county court bench in Cobourg district, where I practised before him for four years before my appointment to the county court bench in Toronto, and having enjoyed a social and professional association with him, I learned with the deepest regret of his death this morning. In all the activities of his many-sided life, he was highly regarded by all who had the pleasure of association with him, and his sudden death is deeply deplored by all of us and he will be sorely missed in Cobourg where he has served so faithfully in judicial and in many public matters of importance. He was most active on Cobourg Hospital Board and in all movements for the welfare of the people here," declared Judge Field.

Members of the Cobourg Rotary Club attended in a body to pay their last respects to the late Judge last night. The Knights of Columbus also attended.

Hon. G. N. Gordon said: "His Honor, Judge O'Connor, was a favorably known and highly respected Judge of His Majesty's Court of Northumberland and Durham. He was known as a patient, careful judge, whose unfailing courtesy extended to all. He was a graduate of Toronto University, and was in partnership with Judge Daniel O'Connell when he first came to Peterborough to practise. The judiciary of the province has suffered a serious loss in the death of Judge O'Connor, whose kindness and courtesy to all who had occasion to come before him will not be easily forgotten.

He made a great many friends among those enjoying the recreation of curling and bowling, and he was a devoted patron of these sports."

Joins Navy At 73

After passing his physical with flying colors, Edward "Pop" Conley, 73-year-old sailor of Lee, N.H., is back in the U.S. navy. Conley, retired back in 1930, has 33 years of service. Having been around the world several times, he told reporters, "I know my way around Tokyo, too, and I'll know what to do when I get there." He returned to duty as a first-class engineer.

Scene Of Pacific Naval Battle

This map shows the approximate location of the battle which raged between United Nations and Japanese naval and air forces in waters north of Australia. Seven Japanese warships were reported sunk in the engagement and there were more Japanese losses reported, with an aircraft carrier among the victims. Final result of the battle may not be known for days.

FISHERMEN'S EQUITY?

EDINBURGH—(CP). — Provost Sir William Chapel at the Scottish Royal Burghs convention described fishermen as men who "risk their lives to be paid a penny a pound for fish, while dealers and speculators get fivepence a pound," and a more equitable arrangement has been demanded.

Suspect Bear Clawed Seymour Pigs

CAMPBELLFORD, Mry 12. — (ENS).—One of the strangest stories concerning an attack on farm animal ever reported in this district was being told here yesterday when Frank Haiag, who lives in Seymour Frank Haig, who lives in Seymour ported that no fewer than seven of his pigs had been killed.

All of the young (7 weeks) porkers were badly bitten and clawed across the back by some animal which apparently has a strong dislike for pigs. He has a pen of 13 which are allowed to run on range all day long but pen up in an open shed at nightfall. On reaching the pen Monday morning he found six of the animals either dead or dying and one missing. All of those in dying condition were terribly maimed by something which had torn the flesh from their backs and on investigation he found that one of the pigs he had found dead the preceding morning, and had thought due to some natural cause, was also torn open. The missing animal was located a quarter mile away and it died soon after it was discovered. Mr. Haig believes that dogs may have been responsible for the attacks, but it is rumoured that a bear has been seen in the vicinity and some farmers hold to the belief that it may have done the damage.

Frost In Cobourg Area

COBOURG, May 12 — (ENS). — Rural sections in the neighborhood of Cobourg received a slight touch of frost during the week-end. Friday night was very cool and clear, and on Saturday morning farmers found that a fairly heavy frost had occurred during the night. It is not believed that damage resulted to any extent. Saturday was warmer, but on Sunday the temperature dropped again and it was quite chilly in spite of the sun.

NATIONAL WAR LABOUR BOARD

COST OF LIVING BONUS

The Dominion Bureau of statistics has found that the cost of living index number for April 1, 1942, of 115.9 (adjusted index 115) has not risen by one whole point or more over the index number for October 1, 1941, of 115.5 (adjusted index 114.6). Accordingly, the National War Labour Board, pursuant to the provisions of Section 12, of Order in Council P.C. 8253, determines and announces, for the period May 15, 1942, to August 15, 1942, subject to the right of employers or employees to apply to a War Labour Board for authorization of payment of such an amount of cost of living bonus as a Board may determine to be "fair and reasonable", under the provisions of the Order, that:

(a) There shall be no change in the amount or percentage of cost of living bonuses presently being paid;

(b) An employer who has not been paying cost of living bonuses may not begin to pay such bonuses.

Getting Along On Smaller Incomes

The Family Man's Position:

"I have no kick on what the Government needs of my income to win the war. My problem is to get along on what is left without neglecting the future welfare of my family. Since I've been forced to revise my budget, I'm more dependent on life insurance than ever."

The London Life meets the needs of those who have to get along on smaller incomes by low premium plans containing special Interchange privileges. For example, a man age 30 could purchase $10,000 Earning Power 15 Year Term insurance for a yearly premium of $96.50 (less annual dividends). Five years later he could use the Interchange privilege to advantage and obtain Ordinary Life or Endowment insurance.

Ask one of our representatives for full information.

The reduced income figures at the top are based on Dominion Income Tax rates and National Defence Tax for married men with no dependents.

Sequel To The Plebiscite

As a sequel to the 64 per cent. affirmative vote on the recent plebiscite Premier King has introduced* a Bill to amend the National Resources Mobilization Act, removing Section 3 in order to give the Government complete freedom in the raising of men for overseas service. There can be no doubt that this action will be approved by most Canadians and that the amendment will certainly be made, but we shall probably hear of violent altercation at Ottawa before the debate is finished. Already the Government has lost M. Cardin and there may be other secessions from the ranks of the French-Canadian Government supporters.

Such losses may rejoice the hearts of Mr. King's political opponents, but only a very short-sighted Canadian will fail to see that such losses affect the fate of this country far more deeply than they hurt the Liberal party. Widespread disaffection in French Canada will certainly have the most serious consequences at this time when national unity is a prime necessity.

The isolationism of French Canada is a problem which this country will one day have to face and settle for all time. This country will never be able to pursue a high destiny if, at every time of national stress, it is forced to adopt a policy of compromise. No single aspect of the problem is simple, and no solution will be worthy of the name unless it is acceptable, even if it is not agreeable, to the French-Canadians as well as to the rest of us. Solutions which would merely result in the oppression of a minority are not solutions at all. And compromises which permit eight provinces to be paralyzed by one are equally inadmissable. Somehow we must attain national unity, but it seems that first of all we must go through the fire of a more dangerous national disunity than any we have known since Confederation.

Meanwhile the Premier has taken the first step toward conscription at the bidding of rather more than two-thirds of the population of this country. Once again we must warn that the amendment to the National Resources Mobilization Act does not mean that conscription will automatically come into force. It merely means that the Government may introduce conscription for overseas service whenever it sees fit to do so. It is most unlikely that conscription will not be introduced at all, particularly as the opponents of the Government have succeeded in making a burning question of it, and there is now the added factor that a refusal of the Government to introduce conscription will look like truckling to Quebec. Indeed, it looks as though the Government had partly engineered itself, and had partly been forced, into a position where it must take a strong line with Quebec and settle once for all the matter of that province's isolationism. In this war, whoever is not with us is against us, and if Quebec wants to be against us the consequences to our national unity form a most disquieting subject for speculation.

Churchill Gives Encouragement

One of Winston Churchill's most admirable qualities as the leader of a warring Empire is that he is able to inspire his forces with resolution without filling them with dangerous over-confidence. Long before the war he was a prophet of doom, telling of difficulties to come; he saw the fateful days which were approaching for the Empire which he loved and the democracies which he admired, and he urged immediate preparation. When he was hastily thrust into the position of a wartime leader he offered his followers the unpalatable reward of blood, sweat and tears. Never, since that time has he made a speech to the public without emphasizing the hard days which are to come. Mr. Churchill is an optimist, but he is no Pollyanna.

His latest address, therefore, is especially heartening, for although he made no effort to minimize difficulties which lie before us he did not stress them to anything approaching his usual degree. Indeed, an examination of the text of his speech shows an agreeable and heartening tendency to dwell upon the difficulties which confront the enemy, making little mention of our own. This is encouraging, and encouragement from Winston Churchill is as good as a medal to every man and woman who is working, however humbly and obscurely, to help in the winning of this war.

There is a new note in such utterance as this: "This latest chapter of 'universal war' confronts us with many difficulties and immense complications. But is there any thoughtful, sensible person who cannot see how vastly and decisively awful balances have turned to the advantage of the cause of freedom?" And later, in the close of his speech, he said: "I am not prone to make predictions, but I have no doubt tonight that British and American sea-power will grip and hold the Japanese and that overwhelming air-power, supported by covering military operations, will lay them low. This would come to pass very much sooner should anything happen to Hitler and Europe. Therefore tonight I give you a message of good cheer."

Previously, when Winston Churchill has spoken, he has given us the feeling that we should win the war, although he had no idea how; now he appears to know how. Understandably, he said nothing about ways and means, but we were given to understand that they existed and that he thought well of them. He replied adequately but generously to his critics, and he gave an adroit but hefty slap to those too-zealous journalists who have attempted to direct military operations from Fleet Street. He made the usual derisive reference to Mussolini and he criticized Hitler's intellectual equipment in a manner which should give considerable delight inside Germany, and particularly to those members of the German General Staff who advised strongly against the Russian move.

Let us hope that this is the first of a new series of speeches by Winston Churchill in which encouragement will be the dominating note. Far from creating over-confidence, we believe that they will spur us on to new efforts in every necessary phase of the war effort.

Churchill Gives Warning

In his Sunday speech the Prime Minister of Great Britain gave a clear warning to Germany that if she began a gas war Britain meant to finish it. These were his words: "I wish to make it plain that we shall treat the unprovoked use of poison gas against our Russian ally exactly as if it were used against ourselves and if we are satisfied that this new outrage has been committed by Hitler we will use our great and growing air superiority in the West to carry gas warfare on the largest possible scale far and wide against military objectives in Germany." Previously he had said: "We are ourselves firmly resolved not to use this odious weapon unless it is used first by the Germans. Knowing our Hun, however, we have not neglected to make preparations on a formidable scale."

Germany should weigh those words well. Germany knows what chemical warfare means. Germany was the first country to employ chemical warfare on any effective scale, and she began it with a chlorine gas attack on British and French forces at the Ypres salient on April 22, 1915. Germany improved upon this early effort when she introduced mustard gas into warfare in July, 1916. There are many men now living who can tell from personal experience of the horrible efficacy of this vesicant, which produces severe slow-healing burns. Germany has for a century or more been among the leading nations of the world in chemical research, and her undoubted ability, combined with complete lack of scruple, foisted chemical warfare upon the world.

Until now Germany has made little use of chemical warfare as an aid to the Blitzkrieg. She has had no need to do so. Her struggles have been so one-sided and her movement so rapid that chemical warfare would have been a nuisance. It is most useful for breaking through strong enemy defences, and so far Germany has not encountered any of these. But in Russia the situation is different, and Germany might easily resort to poison gas in order to make a break-through at a number of vital points. If she chooses to do so she knows what she may expect.

Since Mr. Churchill's speech there have been several rumors of a new and amazing gas in Germany's possession, which is credited with the power to paralyze the mind of anyone who encounters it. Two years ago the surrender of the Belgian fort of Eben Emael with a garrison of 1,000 men to a squad of Germans was attributed to the paralyzing effect of this gas. Scientists, however, are by no means convinced that such a gas exists, and from what we know now it seems highly probably that Eben Emael may have fallen for a variety of other reasons. It seems probable that the only gas which the Germans have which paralyzes the mind is the sort of gas which emanates from the Propaganda Bureau of Dr. Goebbels.

Germany has had her warning. When Winston Churchill said at Ottawa that if Germany wants to play rough, we will play rough too, he meant every word of it. The United Nations will not like using gas, which is a dreadful and demoniacal weapon, but if they are forced to do so they will not use half-measures.

The Army On The Air

The Department of National Defence is to be congratulated on having undertaken to produce a series of addresses by officials and officers of the Canadian Army on the radio on Sunday nights. Colonel Ralston has already introduced the series very ably and in future we are to hear the Deputy Minister, the Chief of Staff and a number of others who have, until now, been merely names to us. They are going to tell us what Canada is doing in the war, and there is no doubt that their speeches will be of greatest interest.

Modern wars are fought, by the democracies at least, with citizen armies, and the public as a whole is more keenly interested in the duties and personnel of the army than ever before. The establishment, by radio, of a greater intimacy between the public and the men who are running the army is the best publicity move that the Department of National Defence has yet made. Armies can no longer be remote from the people, and army men have little time to spend in meeting the public and cultivating it. Such time as they have may obviously be best used in such radio talks as these.

These days the public is asked to make many contributions to the army and to support it in many ways. Undoubtedly the public is eager to do so, for reasons of loyalty and because they know that the army is the instrument which will eventually bring us victory. But support of an idea is never so easy as support of individuals of whom something is known. By letting us hear the men who run the army the Department of National Defence is making us acquainted with them, and our support of their efforts will take on a warmer and more human air.

NOTE AND COMMENT

They now play the Japanese national anthem at Vichy. Perhaps because they lack the face to play the Marseillaise.

A Toronto bookie tried to conceal his bet slips from the police by rolling them into a cigarette. Not the first time a bet has gone up in smoke.

"Lord Beaverbrook Fights Own Fire" says a headline; everyone else, of course, knows that he is unquenchable.

"You can't kill Nazis or Japs in a mood of idealistic reform" says a celebrated American critic. Quite; the umbrella has definitely given place to the gun as the accompaniment of the modern traveller.

German soldiers who go on leave now are compelled to leave their guns at the front. This is one more indication that things within Germany are far from satisfactory to the Nazis. Are they afraid that a few disillusioned soldiers might try pot-shotting the big-shots?

The Vice-President of the U.S. says: "Hitler's last onslaught will be so strong that it will shake the world, but it will only mean the last tremors of a dying monster." We think we can endure the tremors, so long as we are sure that they are really dying ones.

Reading between the lines, Lord Gort's transfer to Malta looks as though that small island might have to stand up to a full-scale Axis offensive in the near future. With Gort on hand and Malta's magnificent record until now, we shall await developments with sober confidence.

WINSTON CHURCHILL

(Broadcasting, May 9, 1942)

The voice, vibrant and buoyant, of our King's Prime Minister, aye, of all England, too,
Rolls o'er the airways of this globe, and sings,
Yea, sings of hopes, bright, shining hopes, that grew
'Spite fears, red flames, burnt homes, and death far-spread,
So that to God we look, load every gun
Ashore, afloat, and, from our planes o'erhead,
Rain bombs in retribution on the Hun!

Churchill! Shout out his name till in Berlin,
In sheltered Rome, the miscreants will quail.
Winston, who bore the brunt, yet turned not pale,
Gave us his strength, spake truth, scorned German lies;
Prophesied in his spirit we should win!
So spake for England and her pledged Allies!

Mark Centenary Of Birth of Sir Arthur Sullivan

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

TOMORROW is the centenary of the birth of one of the most gifted musicians ever to appear in the history of British art. Sir Arthur Sullivan has been compared by enthusiasts to Purcell, and the comparison is not inapt; he had the gift for melody, the light touch and the delightful wit of the earlier composer, but he lacked the astringent quality of Purcell. Sullivan was a Victorian, and very much a man of his time; he could, when he felt that the occasion demanded it, be as sentimental as Stainer or Maunder at their worst. But when he was at his best he was far beyond any of his contemporaries and as long as English music is heard his work will retain a large measure of popularity.

Like many another great Englishman, Sullivan was really an Irishman. His father was an accomplished musician, the bandmaster at the Royal Military College, Sandhurst, and for a time a teacher at the Military School of Music at Kneller Hall. Sullivan's mother, Mary Coghlan, was of partially Italian descent. Arthur showed remarkable musical gifts as a boy, and by the time he was eight he could play every instrument in a military band! This early acquaintance with the capabilities of instruments was of the utmost value to him when later he became a composer. He sang in the choir of the Chapel Royal, and later won a scholarship at the Royal Academy, where he studied under the best masters of his day. When he was 16 he went to Germany to study at Leipsig, and it was while he was there that he learned to know and love the music of Robert Schumann, which he was later to introduce to England.

UPON returning to England Sullivan began his career as a professional musican and composer in earnest, and from the beginning he was strikingly successful. This was fortunate, as he was all his life subject to poor health, and was of a somewhat effeminate nature; a life of hardship and struggle would have killed him early. But instead his songs became popular, and he became organist at Covent Garden Opera, where the great Michael Costa was then conductor. It was not until 1878 that Sullivan met the irascible, bullying young barrister, William Schwenk Gilbert, who was to supply him with the libretti of twelve delightful operettas. The story of the Gilbert and Sullivan association is well known and need not be repeated here. It is enough to say that both the collaborators became wealthy men, and won for themselves a fame which is still increasing. Foreign musicians affect to look down upon the Gilbert and Sullivan operas, but they have a quality which is irresistible to the English-speaking world. The balance between words and music has never been so well maintained since, and certainly never was approached before.

But Sullivan was not content to be known as a writer of charming comic opera. He had the religiose tendency discernible in so many Victorians, and church music was his real love. In 1872 a Te Deum which he wrote for the recovery of the Prince of Wales from a serious illness was performed at the Crystal Palace, and in 1880 he wrote a cantata, "The Martyr of Antioch." "The Light of the World" and "The Golden Legend" were other religious works from his pen, and although they are musicanly and admirable in workmanship they are singularly lacking in the invention and delicacy which we associate with Sullivan.

AS a writer of songs Sullivan was completely happy. His best known work in this line is, of course, the tune for Dr. Sabine Baring-Gould's hymn, "Onward Christian Soldiers." Nowadays we cannot take "The Lost Chord" seriously, but in its day it was immensely popular. Incidentally the idea of any musician of any competence losing a chord on an organ is ludicrous; there are only two or three chords which will make a "great Amen" and almost anybody can find them in a few minutes. But stupid words have never stood in the way of any song's popularity if the tune was good. Sullivan also wrote the popular setting of Kipling's "The Absent-Minded Beggar" which was a great favorite toward the end of the last century. Fortunately forgotten is "Thou'rt Passing Hence, Dear Brother" which Sullivan wrote at the deathbed of his brother; it touches an unexpected depth of banality for a musician of genius. About the only song of Sullivan's which is heard often now is his setting of Shakespeare's "Orpheus With His Lute"; it is a most effective, and a most difficult, solo.

Sullivan was a most charming man personally—witty, kindly and something of a dandy. He was handsome and, a lifelong bachelor, he was the mark of decided attentions from many ladies. Pictures of him show a sensitive, somewhat sad face, framed in a modified version of Victorian sidewhiskers, and wearing a heavy moustache. He always wore an eyeglass, a fact which caused a good deal of surprise when first he visited the American West. Upon several occasions the populace, which was not of a particularly sophisticated order, assumed that he was Jim Sullivan, the prize-fighter, and such elegance shook them to their foundations.

In spite of his wishes in the matter, Sir Arthur will undoubtedly be remembered as the composer of the Gilbert and Sullivan operas rather than as a writer of church music or grand opera. It is no bad fate, after all. Embodied in those works (and quite as clearly discernible in the music as in the words) is much that was best in the Victorian era, and much that is essential and admirable in the British character. And there is nothing tawdry about them anywhere. God made Sullivan a musical wit of sohigh order, and it is certainly not our intention to quarrel with such a gift. There are many admirable writers of anthems recorded in history, but no equal for the comic genius of Arthur Sullivan, save for Purcell; to stand just below Purcell is not a bad fate.

HERE'S THAT MAN AGAIN

—Milwaukee Journal.

• Use of Gas—Desperation

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, May 12 (AP)—Implicit in every line of Winston Churchill's anniversary war review is his reasoned conviction that the doom of Hitlerism and the Axis will be sealed in Russia, perhaps within months instead of years.

He did not say so. Yet that meaning can be read in his grim and formal warning that if the ultimate horror of poison gas is loosed by Hitler against Russia, it will be used by Britain against Germany.

Unquestionably Mr. Churchill believes that Hitler's case—within two years of his defeat of France—is becoming desperate. And there is much to justify his belief that only desperation could impel the Nazis to resort to gas warfare in Russia.

The time for that, except as a weapon of desperation, has gone by. That gas was not used against Britain in the Battle of Britain is convincing evidence that it could prove a two-edged weapon, more dangerous to Germany than to her foes.

SHATTERED DREAM

The congested cities of the United Kingdom and the close-packed and unready war industries of the Midlands invited gas attack in 1940 if it was to be used at all. The ruthless nature of the indiscriminate German bombing of London, Coventry and many other British cities forbids the conclusion that Nazi humanitarianism ruled it out.

The explanation of its non-use in Britain's hours of most dreadful peril may be twofold. Fear of world reaction, particularly in the United States, and a now shattered dream of beating Britain to her knees with explosives and incendiaries from the air stayed resort to gas. Aside from that, however, the Germans probably realized that the industrial centres of Germany itself and those established in conquered Europe would be no less vulnerable to gas.

With British planes ruling the air in the west and soon to be supplemented by United States bombers, the boot is on the other foot now. Unless Hitler stands prepared to mass his whole air power in the west defensively, which he cannot do and master Russia, his resort to gas warfare in the east would bring terrible vengeance upon his people.

AIR MASTERY LOST

That is the most potent aspect of the Churchill warning. The Nazis have lost air mastery in the west, and along the 2,000-mile fighting front in Russia gas must prove a far less effective weapon than it might have been against Britain. First German reaction to the Churchill warning tends to confirm that. It interprets Mr. Churchill's words as a British alibi for soon loosing gas bombs on Germany.

Yet the Russians have already charged Germany with the use of gas. Apparently it was upon those charges, not as yet officially confirmed, that Mr. Churchill based his warning. He put it bluntly up to Hitler, and there is ground to support his conclusion that only utter desperation could lead to German resort to gas in Russia.

Gas is essentially a weapon for use in restricted and congested areas. On the wide and windy Russian steppes it could be brought into play effectively only in limited local actions in sufficient concentrations to have strategic value.

At this season the prevailing winds of Western Russia would tend to roll gas clouds back upon the invaders rather than forward against the Red armies. It was a shift of wind that saved the British forces in the first Great War when the first German gas attack was launched in France in an effort to break through to the Channel.

The surprise factor was the prime element in that case. Mr. Churchill's words have helped to eliminate or at least restrict the surprise values of a German gas attack against the Russians if it now comes.

• Foretelling the Weather

THE accuracy of traditional weather signs as substitutes for scientific long-range weather forecasts, now banned by military censors, is analyzed in a new presentation, "Weather Signs in the Sky," at the Hayden Planetarium, New York City.

Professor William H. Barton, Jr., said in his lecture that many of the old rhymes and sayings handed down for generations offer reasonably helpful weather predictions without benefit of weather maps or barometers, provided the correct observations are used.

There is sound forecasting, he said, behind this old couplet:

"Evening red, morning grey, sets the traveler on his way;
"Evening grey, morning red, keeps the traveler in his bed."

Red in the heavens is produced by the sun's rays striking the moisture in the air, he explained. When it is red in the evening the moisture probably will be dispersed during the night. Red in the morning indicates that rain or snow is coming, depending on the season.

Longfellow Noted For Weather Lore

Professor Barton cited another couplet based on good observation:

"Rainbow at night, sailor's delight,
"Rainbow in the morning, sailors take warning."

Henry Wadsworth Longfellow made a reliable observation in his poem, "The Wreck of the Hesperus," Professor Barton continued. In the poem an old sailor says: "I fear a hurricane. Last night the moon had a golden ring, and tonight no moon we see."

The halo frequently seen around the moon is produced by the icy tops of approaching storm clouds. These clouds, often invisible, are blown much faster than the rest of the storm, causing the ring on an otherwise clear night. The popular theory that the number of stars within the halo indicates the number of days before the storm strikes is false, Professor Barton said. A halo indicates a storm within forty-eight hours, he added.

Among the signs often quoted which have no scientific foundation are those connecting the phases of the moon with weather, or the "wet noon, dry moon" beliefs. Only one star has any connection with the rain or snow that falls, he said, and that star is the sun. Sun spots on the stars have been found to be tied up with rainy and dry periods on various parts of the earth, but astronomical knowledge has not yet advanced to the point where it can make accurate prognostications based on these spots, he said.

"THE OTHER PLACE"

House of Commons Hansard

Mr. CRUICKSHANK: The hon. member for Peel (Mr. Graydon) said something the other day that as a returned man I should like to endorse and that, in my opinion, 99 per cent of the private members endorse; namely, that neither the minister nor any other member of the government has yet offered a reasonable explanation for not granting the cost of living bonus in some form to soldiers' dependents. I can give the minister one suggestion as to where he could find the money to do that; if we abolished that museum of political inactivity known as the other place, it would pay quite a bit of the cost.

Mr. HANSON (York-Sunbury): But look at all those people who want to go there.

Mr. CRUICKSHANK: Well, I am not a lawyer.

A Bible Message For Today . . .

Seeing then that we have a great high priest, that is passed into the heavens, Jesus the Son of God, let us hold fast our profession. For we have not an high priest which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities; but was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin. Let us therefore come boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy, and find grace to help in time of need.—Heb. iv, 14-16.

Then Philip went down to the city of Samaria, and preached Christ unto them. And the people with one accord gave heed unto those things which Philip spake, hearing and seeing the miracles which he did. For unclean spirits, crying with loud voice, came out of many that were possessed with them: and many taken with palsies, and that were lame, were healed.

And there was great joy in that city.—Acts viii, 5-8.

Blessed be God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of mercies and the God of all comfort; who comforteth us in all our tribulation, that we may be able to comfort them which are in any trouble, by the comfort wherewith we ourselves are comforted of God. For as the sufferings of Christ abound in us, so our consolation also aboundeth by Christ. —II Cor. i, 3-5.

GENERALS AND PRIVATES

LORD SIMON'S reminder that "the worst of all generals to entrust with winning the war is 'General Invective'" might well have been extended to cover a number of other ranks whose assistance is, so to speak, a negative quantity. Major Oversight, to take only one example, is an officer who has been responsible for any number of military disasters, most of his mistakes having been covered by that far too kindhearted gentleman General Amnesty. At the lower end of the army scale several Privates are acting almost as fifth columnists. Why, for instance, isn't that notorious lead-swinger Private Apathy courtmartialled? Private Interests, too, is doing his very best to put off the winning of the war for several years, assisted by his Black Market comrade-in-arms, Private Profit. Quite a number of people think that a corporal's guard should take these skrimshankers in charge. Corporal Punishment is said to be eager for the job.—Lucio in the Manchester Guardian.

Lives Of The Air Crew Depend To Great Extent On Air Gunner

The lives of the aircrew and the extent of the aircraft's usefulness depend in large measure on the accuracy of the air gunner's marksmanship. Sighting his twin machine guns is Sgt. Harry Haskell whose "office" is in the stern of a U.S.-built "Boston" a twin-engined bomber "job" with which an R.C.A.F. squadron overseas is equipped. The Hun has learned at considerable cost not to "sit" for long on the tail of these fast and well-armed medium bombers which are sometimes also employed as fighters.

Cobourg Oddfellows Hold Parade

COBOURG, May 12 — (ENS). — Sixty-five members of the I.O.O.F. held their annual church parade here on Sunday night when they attended a divine service at Cobourg Baptist Church. The local Oddfellows were joined by about thirty I.O.O.F. members from Bowmanville, Orono and Port Hope. The service was conducted by Rev. S. D. France of Cobourg Baptist Church, who spoke on the three philosophies of life from the story of the Good Samaritan.

After the service the lodge members returned to their lodge rooms, where a vote of thanks was passed and extended to Rev. Mr. France and the officials of the church. The resolution of thanks was moved by James Rollings and seconded by Gilbert Wicks.

30,000 Less Huns

LONDON, May 12—(CP).—Dispatches from the Russian front reported today that the Germans had suffered 30,000 casualties southwest of Leningrad in counter attacks attempting to wrest the initiative from the Red army.

The losses were said to have included German casualties in new fighting around Staraya Russa. The period covered by the report was not disclosed.

Mrs. C. J. Hancock Honored By Lily Lake Women

Mrs. Jas. Hatherly and Mrs. Clarence Ferguson were hostesses at the latter's home for the April meeting of the Lily Lake Women's Association. Mrs. Arthur Beardsmore, 2nd vice-president, was in the chair.

The opening hymn, "In the Garden", was sung in memory of Mrs. C. J. Hancock, a much beloved member who recently passed to her rest, and whose thoughtful, kindly manner and active interest in the Association, the Sunday School and the community will be very sadly missed. This was her favorite hymn. Mrs. Beardsmore read a beautiful verse followed by two minutes silence in tribute to her memory. This is the first break by death in the Association since it was formed in February, 1939.

The Scripture lesson, Psalm 96, was read responsively. Mrs. A. W. Ackison offered prayer. Roll Call was answered by an article made from a flour sack and 10 cents and a Mother's Day verse or verses. Next month's roll call to be an empty tube from tooth paste, and the name of a flower commencing with one's own initial. Miss Barbara Ferguson gave a lovely solo with guitar accompaniment, entitled "Tell Mother I'll be There."

Plans for the auction sale at Mrs. Wilson's on June 3 were discussed and it was decided to have a special meeting at Mrs. Wilson's on May 22 when it is hoped every member will be in attendance with their list of articles procurable by donation for the sale. The president made special appeal for all out effort.

Mrs. Ernest Ireland was appointed to inquire into needs for quilts at Kinmount and if needed send five quilts and one large and two small ones to I.O.D.E. A delightful talk was given by Miss Gala Rogers, Lily Lake school teacher, on "Homes" or true home life, and was very much enjoyed. She was given a sincere and hearty vote of thanks. Miss Audrey Hatherly gave a splendid recitation entitled "A Day Too Late."

There was a little gift for the oldest and the youngset mother present, the gift for the oldest going to Mrs. J. A. Middleton and for the youngest to the president, Mrs. Clarence Hancock. About $1.35 was received for sale of plants, slips, etc. Owing to the rainy day the attendance was small. Eleven members and two visitors. The next meeting is to be at Mrs. Ernest Ireland's on June 11. A social hour followed and an enjoyable lunch was served by the hostesses.

"SALADA" TEA

Don't be a CUPBOARD QUISLING!

"Cupboard Quislings"! Is that too hard a name for people who selfishly lay in unnecessary stocks of clothes or food, or other goods for fear of shortages?

No! The name is not too hard, even though it may be earned through thoughtlessness. For in reality they are doing, in a petty, mean way, what the Quisling does in the open.

Anyone who buys more than is necessary for current needs—

Is breaking his country's law for personal advantage.

Is betraying his loyal neighbours and those who are not so well off as he.

Is, in effect, depriving our fighting men of the munitions and supplies they must have to defend us.

Is hindering our war effort and helping our enemies.

Loyal citizens avoid putting unnecessary and abnormal strains on our factories. In time of war, loyal citizens do not spend one dollar more on civilian goods than is absolutely necessary for current needs.

The law provides for fines up to $5,000 and imprisonment up to two years for hoarding; and hoarding is just another word for unnecessary selfish buying.

In cases where it is advisable for you to buy in advance of your immediate requirements—such as your next season's coal supply—you will be encouraged to do so by direct statement from responsible officials.

Yank Whitewash Artists Get In Some Artistic Touches Against Indians

The magic eye camera catches Ernie Bonham, New York Yankee pitching ace, in action. Ernie shut out the Cleveland Indians at the Yankee Stadium, 3 to 0, his fourth straight win, and his third shutout job of the young season. As the series starts we see him winding up to deliver his first pitch of the game. Roy Weatherley, of the Indians, is up. The windup complete, Ernie lashes out with his "fork" ball. Roy watches it go by, and as Catcher Bill Dickey takes it, Umpire Rommel shouts and signals "Strike." A nice start for the ball game for Ernie.

By FRED D. CRAIG

The Church League got away to a good start at the Ashburnham Bowl Monday night when St. James, champions last season were beaten 11 to 9 by the All Saints' team, the club they put away in the league finals last season. It was a fitting game for an opener with the lead see-sawing. St. James behind 5 to 3 when they went to bat in the sixth sent three runs over the plate to take the lead only to have the Anglicans come back with a quartette in their half to go in front again. Clint Welsh's homer with two on in the first of the seventh scored three runs to tie it up and before the side was retired St. James pushed two more across to go in front 11 to 9. It remained at that when the United Church representatives failed to score in their end of the seventh. Considering the earliness of the season the teams come up with some smart fielding and it was a battle exciting enough to justify the prediction that there will be a lot of good ball before the Church League juvenile title is decided.

City League Teams Readying

City League teams were hard at work last night readying themselves for the opening games in the loop which are scheduled to get under way next week. Manager Roy Parnell's Adam Hat Royals had their practice inside Riverside Park and the former Chesterfields trotted out a couple of new pitchers with Toronto experience who may prove tough stuff for City League batters. The Royals have the hard-hitting Mowry behind the bat and an infield composed of Arnold Smith at first, Maurice Giardino at second, Earl McNabb at shortstop and George Hawks at third base, a snappy array that should prove an effective inner guard. Among the outfield possibilities with the Royals are Russ Scriver, Phil Pryde and Bob Parnell. The Hockey Club team also worked out at Quaker Field last night. The Petes have Dave Wilson and Tom Parsons as a pitching staff, along with a new recruit from Whitby and with Eddie Starr to do the catching and Jim Ellis, Art Heal, Bun Kingdon. Don Crowe, Julian Wade and a lot of other good material to build up a team from should be in there making every game a battle.

Manager Ab Delahaye of the Westclox team had his girls working out at Ashburnham Bowl last night and the veteran Big Ben pilot expects to bob up with another good team this season, despite the fact that several of last year's championship outfit will be missing. Manager Delahaye announces that although Norma Strickland, ace pitcher last season, is no longer a member of the Westclox family, she will be on the firing line for the Big Bens again this season. Elinor Craig, one of the powerhouses of last year's team is now with the C.G.E. and Marg Selkirk, outfielder of the 1941 squad who also got her share of home runs will also be an absentee this season. A number of new players however are turning out and Westclox hope to field a squad that will put up a real battle for the Girls' League honors this season.

Indians Do It Again

For the second day in succession the Cleveland Indians demonstrated yesterday that in spite of their disastrous slump last week they have still retained plenty of fight. Sunday they battled their way out from a 5 to 0 deficit and finally won the ball game from Detroit 6 to 5. Yesterday they turned the trick again. They were apparently well beaten with the score 5 to 0 against them and then came through with a five-run rally in the eighth to tie the score. Then in the ninth rookie first baseman Les Fleming poled a homer with two on the bases and the Indians took the argument 8 to 5 and cut the Yanks' lead to a game and one-half. Cleveland used five pitchers to turn the trick. Trout started for the Tigers but it was the former Bison, Fuchs, who finally lost the game. It was the only fixture in the American League. In the lone game in the National League Boston Braves won a close one from the Phillies 3 to 2, with Tom Early the winning pitcher and Johnny Podgajny the loser although he was not on hand when the final inning was played. Glossup and Schnozzle Lombardi hammered out homers.

A Big Improvement

Softball fans will be tickled over the successful meeting held by Ladies' Softball League last night and over the prospects that the loop may have five clubs in line this season. Westclox, Brintons, C.G.E. and Genelco are already assured with a dark horse club yet to be named as the fifth. That is in a much different outlook than the league had last season at this time when only two clubs were showing any interest in the game. The list of officers elected last night is another matter for satisfaction. Last year the loop was practically a one-girl show, with all the worry and work thrown on the shoulders of Gladys Mortimer, the hard-working secretary of the organization. She practically carried on alone in the face of general indifference. Miss Mortimer is back on the job again this season but she is going to have some help from an executive that should be enthusiastic and willing to work. The league is due to start around Victoria Day and in the meanwhile the teams are practicing.

* * * * * *

The Men's Softball League executive met last night and decided that the opening game in the loop scheduled for Monday night next, May 18 will be between the Adam Hat Royals, formerly the Chesterfields and the Peterborough Hockey Club entry which will be known this season by the name of Plaza Billiards. The resignation of the Hastings Club from the league was received. The Hastings management stated that transportation difficulties would interfere with their participation this season. However the entries were not definitely closed last night, being left open until Wednesday night at the request of the De Laval team which is considering entering the City League and wants a day or two to decide the matter. If the De Laval team fails to enter the City League will of course carry on with four clubs, instead of five.

The players of the Churchill juvenile hockey team who had a fine season during the past winter and played some smart hockey wound up with a most enjoyable banquet the other night at the home of Manager G. Harris, 239 Princess street. The members of the team were presented with fine red, white and blue windbreakers as a souvenir of the 1941-42 season. A splendid meal was served and the affair was a fitting climax to a good winter.

Saints Defeat Cubs 8 to 4 In First Game

St. Peter's club has the distinction of being the first winner in the Catholic Softball League. The Saints defeated the Cubs 8 to 4 at Memorial Park, East City, Monday night as the League opened its season with appropriate ceremonies.

Ald. Floyd Curtis threw the first ball, Ald. J. E. Sullivan was the batter and Ald. Max Swanston officiated as catcher. Ald. Sullivan lined the ball to left field for a single and the season was on.

St. Peter's promptly proceeded to win the ball game in the first inning when they took advantage of an initial wild streak on the part of pitcher Ken Fleming of the Cubs to shove seven runs across and that was the payoff. Fleming tightened up after that and held the winners to four hits but the damage had been done.

Tom Cavanaugh pitched steady ball for the St. Peter's team, kept the Cubs eight hits scattered and he was in trouble in only one frame, the fourth when last year's champs managed to send four counters across the plate.

The fielding feature of a well-played game were several catches by McIsaac for St. Peter's and a running grab by McCormick for the Cubs.

Ex-Ald. Nagle Phelan, former Petes ball player, umpired in fine style behind the bat while John Leonard worked on the bases.

St. Peter's—Rochetta 3b, McIsaac 2b, J. Condon 1b, Stewart lf, Father Wolfe ss, Conroy cf, Herr rf, Perdue c, Cavanaugh p.

Cubs—Anderson ss, Fleming p, Caccavella 2b, C. Condon 1b, Heffernan lf, Brady 3b, McCormick cf, Donaghue c, Cummings rf, Sullivan rf.

Plan Opening Of League Around May 24

With the prospect of five teams in line for the campaign the Ladies' Softball League had a most successul and enthusiastic re-organization meeting at Duffus' Bowling Alleys on Monday night and the loop is all ready for another season.

The clubs in sight are the Westclox, Brinton Carpet Company, Genelco, C.G.E., and a dark horse team yet to be named.

It was decided that the League would open around May 24 and games will be played on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday nights at Ashburnham Bowl.

The following officers were elected: Hon. presidents J. H. Vernor, I. F. McRae, J. E. Girven; hon. vice-presidents, H T. Cranford, H. A. Cranfield, R. S. Cotton, Adam Sands.

President, William Bennett; vice-president, Whitty Thirnbeck; secretary-treasurer, Gladys Mortimer; executive, one representative from each club.

The next meeting of the league is called for Wednesday, May 20, at 8:30 o'clock at the Duffus Bowling Alley.

King's Colt Wins Guineas Stake

NEWMARKET, England, May 12 — (CP). — The King's colt "Big Game," ridden by Gordon Richards, galloped to an easy four-length victory today in the Two Thousand Guineas, first of the season's wartime classics.

The royal colt cantered home ahead of Watling Street.

Big Game, stalwart son of Bahram, winner as a three-year-old of the triple crown of the Two Thousand Guineas, the Derby and the St. Leger, moved into the favorite's position for next month's Derby. The winner was quoted at "even" in the betting.

The unbeaten Big Game, victor in six previous races, travelled the mile distance in style and left little doubt he is the outstanding three-year-old in Britain.

Trained by Fred Darling, the sleek thoroughbred thundered past the winning post to the accompaniment of such cheering as had not been heard before in the venerable history of Newmarket.

Attendance was the largest since the Derby last year despite the fact many hundreds were forced to walk four miles to the track due to the austerity of transportation.

The only other royal trumph in the Two Thousand Guineas was registered in 1909 by King Edward VII with Minoru.

Because of the war the King has never been able to see Big Game or his other racer, Sun Chariot, run in public. Sun Chariot, beaten only once, runs in the One Thousand Guineas tomorrow.

Jab at Father-In-Law Costs Pittsburg's Billy Conn Broken Hand

NEW YORK, May 12. —(AP).— The punch Billy Conn landed on his father-in-law's head, in a fight that started out as a "kiss-and-make-up" feast, may cost the Pittsburg pretty boy $125,000 or more.

That's what he could have expected as his share from his planned late June or early July fight with Joe Louis, which veteran fight men figured would have drawn at least $750,000. This tussle is off now, because the punch broke Billy's hand and put him out of action for 10 weeks or more.

Promoter Mike Jacobs says Billy will get a return shot at the Bomber in September, but no one knows whether it'll be as 'hot' an attraction then or whether conditions will be such as to permit these two soldier boys to hold a big outdoor fight. Meantime, the June or July title chance will go to someone else, probably Robert Pastor.

Billy was back at Fort Wadsworth to-day taking up where he left off before going to his Pittsburg home for the christening of his month-old son, David Phillip. It was only a few hours after that ceremony Sunday that his father-in-law, former National League Outfielder Jimmy Smith, summoned Conn through a mutual friend to the Smith home to straighten out their differences.

Three Year Squabble.

The two have been at odds for three years, ever since Billy first met and fell in love with the girl who now is his wife — Smith's daughter, Mary Louise. When they were married a year ago, Smith threatened to 'punch Conn's head of.'

The invitation to settle it came by phone to Billy at his home from Art Rooney, Pittsburg pro football and fight promoter, and friend of both.

"I went to Smith's house as Art asked," Billy related. "Then Smith said, you and I have got some things to talk over. Let's go in the kitchen.

"When we got there, he started to holler at me. I told him to talk quietly, that I could hear. Then he said, 'aren't you scared of me,' and I told him I wasn't scared of anybody, particularly him. Then it started. I hit him on the head and that's when I broke my hand. It only lasted a few minutes before friends separated us."

During the scrap Billy also received a choice collection of scratches over the bridge of his nose, dangerously close to his eyes. His right arm suffered a long, deep cut —"When I missed and poked it through a window," he explained.

X-rays revealed the fractured bone in his left hand, and his physician said he would be unable to use it at all for at least four weeks. After that, he might take light training for a while, before starting the six weeks of drilling necessary for a big title match.

St. James' Boys Win Opener Church League

Coming from behind with a five-run rally in the last inning St. James' juveniles defeated All Saints' 1941 juvenile champs, by 11 to 9 in the opening game of the Church League at Ashburnham Bowl Monday evening.

It was a nip-and-tuck struggle all the way, with the lead see-sawing.

The Saints James' team flashed in front in the opening frame by scoring two runs but the Anglicans got one of those back in the second and in the fourth staged a scoring splurge that saw four runs cross the home stage and put All Saints' in front 5 to 2. After being blanked for three innings St. James' picked up a counter in the fifth to close the gap slightly and in the sixth they staged a batting rally that earned them three runs and put them in front again 6 to 5.

The lead did not last long for the All Saints' outfit came right back in their half of the inning with a four-run rally that put them in the

Speeding Romance

ALBANY, N.Y., May 12—(AP).— The romance and travel in a soldier's life were accelerated by New York state today. Two bills approved by Governor Herbert Lehman to exempt those in the United States armed forcees from the requirement of a 24-hour wait between issuance of a marriage licence and the wedding ceremony and the state law against hitch-hiking.

Special Performance

LEAFS SHADE SYRACUSE BY 5 TO 4 IN A TEN-INNING THRILLER

Pair Of Homers Near End Aid, Win On Fluke

By The Associated Press

Syracuse and Toronto almost succeeded last night in packing the day's full allotment of International League thrills into a single game.

The Canadian club finally won out, 5-4, in 10 innings after going without a tally the first six innings.

In the seventh, however, Johnny Wyrostek clouted a homer with a mate on base and in the eighth Ed Fernandez repeated the process as a pinch hitter.

Those two blows deadlocked the score at 4-each and in the 10th Eddie Leip's fluke grounder scored Joe Mack with the winning marker.

Syracuse got all its runs in the first frame on five walks and a pair of singles. After that Dick Conger and Harry Shuman limited the Chiefs to two one-base blows the remainder of the day.

All the teams return to action today with the league-leading Newark Bears the guests of the tail-end Rochester Red Wings. Montreal, striving to cut down the Bear three-game advantage, is at home to Baltimore.

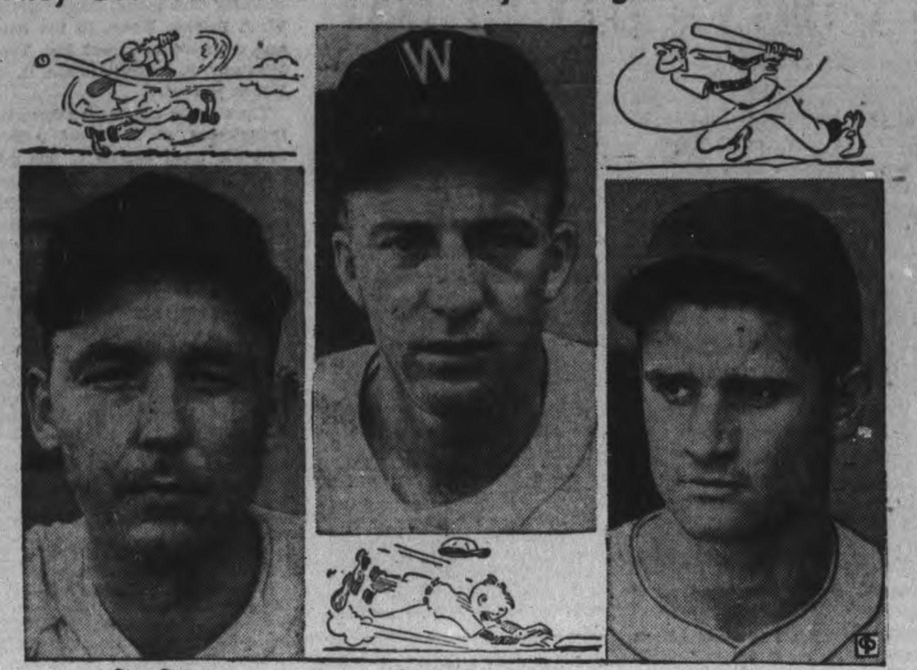
Yesterday's Stars

By The Associated Press

Les Fleming, Indians—Hit three-run homer in ninth inning or 8-5 victory over Tigers.

Tom Earley and Ernie Lombardi, Braves—Former pitched seven-hit ball and latter connected for two-run homer in sixth to beat Phils.

They Got Headlines In The Major League



Stan Spence — George Case — Bobby Doerr

They're not big stars, but Stan Spence, Georgie Case and Bobby Doerr are making the headlines in the major leagues. Spence, a weak hitter with Boston last year, is belting the ball at a terrific pace for the Red Sox, leading both leagues in number of hits and winning ball games with timely hitting. Doerr, flashy second baseman of the Red Sox, is hitting the ball at a .460 clip. Case, who has been the leading base stealer in the leagues for several seasons, already has pilfered eight sacks, twice as many as any other player.

Ordinarily anybody who can bat .414 in a Class A-1 minor league can expect to have flags flying and bugles blowing for a ceremonial cross-over of the major leagues' threshold.

Les Fleming hit .414 for Nashville in the Southern Association last year and was gunning for an all-time league record with an average of .421 until he was blanked in a double-header on the final day of the season. He batted .678 in the playoffs and .470 in the Dixie series, too.

But Fleming was greeted with ridicule when he undertook to become a regular first baseman of Cleveland Indians this spring. Observers said he was too short and clumsy to field his position and recalled occasions such as a game last fall when Fleming lost his mitt juggling a team mate's throw and barely managed to hold the ball in his bare hand.

Well, the season now is a month old and Fleming not only is still holding forth at first base for the Tribe but is a vital reason for the Indians being in second place in the American League to-day, a game and a half behind New York Yankees.

Tomers With Scort Tied

Fleming yesterday hit a home run over the rightfield wall at League Park in Cleveland. It came with the score tied, two mates on base and two out in the ninth inning and it beat Detroit Tigers 8-5.

It was his third roundtripper of the season, enhancing a .333 batting average, and settled as unwieldy a game as the Indians have had all season.

Detroit scored five runs in the first inning with two walks, a single, a double and a triple in a raid on Vernon Kennedy and Rookie Steve Gromek. After that the Tigers made only four hits and no runs, but they didn't seem likely to need any as Paul (Dizzy) Trout pitched five-hit shutout ball for seven stanzas. Then in the eighth the Indians went on the warpath for five runs on five hits and an error and in the ninth Fleming added the clincher.

Most of the major league clubs were travelling yesterday preparing to inaugurate another intersectional series today and only one other game was scheduled.

In this Boston Braves nosed out Philadelphia 3-2. Tom Earley hurled even-hit ball for the Braves and big Ernie (Schnozzel) Lombardi nailed down the triumph with a two-run homer in the sixth inning, breaking a tie score. Albie Glossop hit a home run in the fourth for the Phils.

Omission Whips Fancy Runners In The Toboggan

NEW YORK, May 12.—(AP)—Belmont Park opened the spring season for fashion, society and the two-buck bettor yesterday, but it turned out to be bargain day when cheap little Omission came on to whip the high-priced gallopers in the featured Toboggan Handicap.

The 4-year-old son of Jock, who was bought by Victor Emanuel for $550 in the Saratoga yearling sales ring three years ago, boosted his earnings to $53,145 by standing off a long, hard drive to finish a nose in front of Overdrawn, from the barn of George D. Widener, Belmont's new president.

Widener, who recently succeeded navy-bound Al Vanderbilt as head of Belmont Park, did all right for himself, however, before the 19,783 customers who turned out for the first day's fashion parades racing and society gatherings.

His Overdrawn and Rosetown not only ran two-three back of Omission in the Toboggan, but in the co-feature, the Fashion Stakes for 2-year-old fillies, he sent Pomrose out to win it and Stefanita to run third. This was worth $7,850 to Pomrose, compared to the $5,425 Omission got for his triumph.

Both of the events were run down to Widener straightaway, which Bisects the mile-and-a-half track. Omission clicked off the Toboggan three-quarters in 1:10 4-5. Pomrose, finishing half a length in front of Nydrie Stable's Driven Snow, was clock in :52 2-5 for the Fashion's 4½ furlong.

Under Johnny Gilbert's neat handling, Omission stayed off the pace through the first half-mile, as the favored Ocean Blue, from Crispin Oglebay's barn, led the parade, with R. J. Kleberg's Dispose and Overdrawn challenging him. At the quarter-pole, Gilbert gave the dark brown colt his head, and he went up to run to the wire with the others, finally getting the nose decision. For the victory, he returned his supporters $18.70 for each $2 ticket. As the choice in the Fashion Stakes betting Pomrose paid $9.20.

Rookie Shortstop A's Wallaesa Tops Says Mack

PHILADELPHIA, May 12—(AP). Jack Wallaesa, of the Athletics, is "the shortstop of the American League" in the opinion of Connie Mack, 79-year-old leader of the A's, who has seen all the great shortstops in the last fifty years.

This is high praise indeed. for the 21-year-old rookie from Easton, Pa., who only last year played with Wilmington, Del., in the Class B Interstate League.

"Of course he still has a lot to learn," beamed Connie. "But make no mistake about it. He's the shortstop of the league. Did you see him out there? He makes good plays look easy."

Wallaesa is batting a robust .429 for his official twenty-eight times at bat. Standing 6 foot 3 inches, Wallaesa probably is the tallest shortstop in the major leagues. Out in California during spring training he was given a few tips by old Honus Wagner, in his prime the best shortstop in the country for the Pittsburg Pirates.

Wallaesa, it seems, had a tendency to stand more or less erect afield. Wagner corrected this, and now Wallaesa fields with effortless grace.

He didn't start the season because Connie was "lookng for a spot to use him."

"The spot" arrived last week when Bill Knickerbocker second baseman, was injured. Connie shifted Pete Suder from short to second and put Wallaesa in the line-up. Since then he has been doing great work.

Callura Battles Crawford To Draw

PROVIDENCE, R.I., May 12 — (CP). — Angelo Callura, buzz-saw featherweight from Hamilton, Ont., and Davey Crawford of New York battled to a stirring 10-round draw here last night to provide the feature tussle of an all-star boxing card.

The little Canadian, making his third New England fistic appearance in eight days, picked up a wide advantage early in the bout, but tired and was unable to hold his lead. He was a favorite with the crowd, however, and the draw verdict was unpopular. Callura weighed 128¾ to 123 for Crawford.

Opening fast Callura, brother of the Canadian featherweight champion, Jackie Callura, who was a spectator, winged both hands to Crawford's head and body and took point margins in the first two rounds. One overhand right nailed the New Yorker on the point of the chin in the second round and staggered him. Callura pressed his attack looking for an opening for a finishing blow, but Crawford hung on and escaped further damage.

He all but evened up the score when he pummelled Callura's ribs at close quarters during the third and fourth rounds, but the Canadian rallied brilliantly in the next three rounds to move out front again. Again in the seventh Callura staggered the New Yorker, but again couldn't follow up the advantage.

Crawford concentrated his attack on Callura's midriff over the last three rounds and pulled ahead enough to get a draw decision.

A week ago Callura boxed Jimmy Gilligan of Buffalo here and last Friday night at Boston boxed Cleo Shans of Los Angeles.

Sport Snapshots Across Canada

TORONTO, May 12.—(CP)—Decline of golf as a business in inevitable in wartime because of restrictions on materials needed in manufacture of golf equipment, but as a pastime it will hold its own in popularity.

Curtailment of equipment production naturally has reduced drastically the number of newcomers to the game. But the regulars are undaunted. Present supplies will carry them most of this year and next. Professional are hit the hardest.

The fewer the newcomers, the fewer the lessons and the fewer the meals. Pros who find it difficult to break themselves of the ugly habit of eating regularly are looking for other employment for the duration.

Some are maintaining their golf contacts on a part time basis. As good an example as any of this new type of golf pro is Charlie Burnside of the Amherst, N.S., golf club. Charlie works at a war plant and will give lesson after hours.

The Expert Says:

Baz (Montreal Star) O'Meara: "A couple of years ago some of the die-hard rugby overlords were sneering at the American imports into our game...Now they are in the cheering section as they note that Bob Fritz, Lew Hayman and Fritz Hanson are in our service forces."

Incidentally:

Edgar Laprade so impressed Dr. R. H. MacLachlan of Calgary during senior hockey playoffs there a couple of months ago the Alberta sportsman sent him an engraved gold collar pin...Dr. MacLachlan's brother, Lt.-Col. Donald MacLachlan is in command of the Calgary Highlanders overseas...A shortage of jockeys is reported in British Columbia...The racing season there, cut from 42 days to 34, isn't so attractive to the good riders as it was...Bike racing may soon join the missing sports, opine Stu (Vancouver Province) Keate...Steel and rubber is too scarce to be driven around in circles...Winnipeg Maroons, who finished last in the eight-team northern Baseball League (C class) last year, open at home Thursday ...Johnny (No Passes) Peterson, the business manager, will be busy...Toronto Maple Leaf have started to look good in the International, but loss of heavy-hitting Jimmy Russell is a bad break...He hurt an ankle in Buffalo last Sunday and will be out for a couple of weeks...An outfielder, Russell hit .462 for the four-game week-end before he wa hurt.

NEW YORK, May 12.—(AP)—Looks as if Billy Conn and his paw-in-law wasted a good outdoor fight show by putting it on in the house ...A lot of folk we know would have paid more to see that one than some of the so-called "big" fights...Wonder if they'll match Jimmy Smith with Joe Louis now.

They Can't Hurt Us

When Sam Rose, 220-pound Newark, N.J., fight manager, took a couple of his boys to Washington to fight, the Boxing Commission doctor turned them down because of high blood pressure. "Give me a check, Doc," Rose suggested...The doc did and found Sam okay... "That's because I've never trained in my life," Rose explained.

Urges Catholics In Germany To Stand Fast

BERNE, Switzerland, May 12. — (AP)—Germany's Catholics have been urged by Michael Cardinal von Faulhaber, Archbishop of Munich, to stand fast in their faith despite renewed pressure and constant mistrust of the church by the state.

The exhortation was in a New Year's message to the Munich Cathedral published this week in the Swiss "Die Nation."

Cardinal von Faulhaber noted that Catholics both at home and at the front had sacrificed their lives or participated in clothing collections and kindred work. He added that nevertheless "the church at home is treated with constant mistrust, surrounded with spies and oppressed with exceptional regulations; church and cloister, premises are confiscated unfairly more than private dwellings."

The Cardinal termed the restrictions "most unnecessary and the saddest of all wars—a culture war against the church." He based a sermon on the text of Luke, chapter 11, verse 35: "take heed, therefore, that the light which is in thee be not darkness."

"There is peace between creed and creed," he said, "but otherwise the wildest discord rules in the homeland."

The Cardinal expressed objections to restriction of religious education in the schools, a war ban against the issuance of church publications although "anti - church literature may appear in giant printings," the bar to church inheritance of land and propaganda to reduce its membership.

He alluded to a complaint that "the throne of the pope doesn't stand on German soil," declaring: "We will not give up the light of the word of God because the pope was not born a German."

Royal Air Force Cartoons On German-Occupied Countries In "V-For-Victory" Campaign

Based on the oft-propounded theory that a picture is worth a thousand words, these cartoons are being used as a potent propaganda weapon by the minions of 'Colonel V Britton' in the waging of the 'V-for-Victory' campaign in the German-occupied countries and even in Germany itself. The cartoons are dropped by Royal Air Force planes where they are calculated to do most good. Beauty of the scheme is that their message is equally clear in France, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Norway, Greece, Belgium, Holland or Yugoslavia; for no words are necessary and a picture is the same in any language.

Emily To Spend $4,000 On Roads

OMEMEE, May 12—(ENS).—The Emily Municipal Council met in the Farmers' Club rooms, Omemee, with W. J. Patrick, Reeve, in the chair and Councillors Vincent Fee, Thos. Morrissey, P. J. McGuire and D. W. Wilson present.

There was a notification from the Department of Municipal Affairs that the usual subsidy of one mill would be paid on the 1942 assessment by the Provincial Government. The Department of Highways informed the Council that the department would approve the expenditure on roads of $4,000 only, and that no subsidy would be paid on any construction, but only on maintenance.

Other notifications concerned the claim from J. A. Gifford for compensation for a car damaged on the East Quarter Line near Bethel church. The Bell Telephone Company asked permission to make some alterations in their line along the 10th Concession line from Downeyville to the West Boundary. Tenders for crushing, spreading and delivering gravel were received from J. C. Duff, Allan G. Cook and Nelson Coons. School accounts were received from School Sections 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 11 and 13.

There were five motions passed:

That by-law No. 708 be amended to read that the wages from tractors working on the township roads be from $1.25 to $1.50 per hour.

That no bonus will be paid on wire fences constructed after May 30, 1942, as the department will not pay any subsidy on construction.

That Eugene Downey be appointed School Attendance Officer in the place of D. J. Winn, resigned, for Sections 4, 5 and 12.

That the tender of Allan G. Cook offering to crush, deliver and spread approximately 6,000 yards of gravel for 80 cents per cubic yard be accepted, work to start about June 1.

By-law No. 709 consenting to the request of the Bell Telephone Company to alter and repair their line along the 10th Concession Line, and appointing the road superintendent to supervise the same.

Payments were as follows: Road accounts, $639.72; S. S. No. 3, J. M. Thurston, sec.-treas. $100.00; S. S. No. 4, Jos. Gosselin, sec.-treas., $300.00; S. S. No. 5, L. Atwell, sec.-treas., $200.00; S. S. No. 6, Vince Perdue, sec.-treas., $100.00; S. S. No. 7, Frank Crough, sec.-treas., $65.00; S. S. No. 8, Iva Fallis, sec.-treas., $200.00; S. S. No. 11, T. A. McConnell, sec.-treas., $150.00; S. S. No. 13, O. M. Sherin, sec.-treas., $200.00.

Miscellaneous — The Municipal World Blank Forms, $1.02; T. H. Laidley, stamps and supplies, $1.49; Dan. J. Winn, account, School Attendance officer 3 years, $3.30.

The Council adjourned to meet on Tuesday, June 2, at 10 a.m., as a Court of Revision and afterward, in general session, if time permits.

administration free to take whatever action circumstances dictated.

The Mobilization Act was enabling legislation, the Prime Minister said, and its powers were used only as necessity required. With the amendment he proposed enacted into law the Government would still proceed on that basis, he said.

Only If Volunteers Fail.

This was taken to mean that full conscription would be invoked by Order-in-Council only if the volunteer system of obtaining recruits failed to produce results.

Today the Prime Minister is scheduled to meet a caucus of the Liberal members of the House of Commons and Senate—the first caucus since the plebiscite of April 27 on the result of which the government move for conscription powers was based.

It promises to be the most stormy caucus of the Liberal party in many year but what takes place within the caucus chamber is not made public and may not be known to the general public unless some member talks.

But the indications were that almost all the French-speaking members of the House of Commons, about 60 from Quebec and some from other provinces, will oppose the government bill.

Yesterday afternoon, after the Government bill had been given first reading and Mr. Cardin's resignation announced, there was a meeting said to have been attended by "about 30" of the Quebec members.

At the conclusion of the meeting a statement was made public to the effect that the majority of the Quebec members approved the stand taken by Mr. Cardin.

Yesterday's announcements by the Prime Minister overshadowed the normal proceedings of the Chamber which were occupied thereafter with the war appropriation bill resolution with the House in committee of the whole.

Navy Minister Macdonald completed his innings with the committee, during which he was questioned on many aspects of the war program, and War Services Minister Thorson took his turn giving a detailed outline of the operations of his department.

Mr. Macdonald said he hoped keels for two destroyers would be laid next week in Nova Scotia and forecast the probable establishment of a permanent destroyer construction program in that province.

He said also that no steps had been taken for the formation of a marine corps for the Canadian Navy but added such a move might be considered later.

Today the House, in committee, will continue on the resolution with Air Minister Power giving an account of his department's operations and answering questions.

It is not known when the prime minister's bill to amend the National Resources Mobilization Act will come up for second reading but it is expected that efforts will be made to get the war appropriation bill out of the way first.

Mr. King was questions yesterday on his plans for replacing Mr. Cardin and for other cabinet appointments necessary to give Quebec representation in the ministry, but he did not reveal his intentions.

The problem facing him is to get fit cabinet material from among the Quebec members or from outside sources, who can command the confidence of their electors in the face of the conscription move.

No replacement has been made of Quebec representation since Pierre Casgrain. Secretary of State, was sent to the Superior Court bench and the death of Senator Raoul Dandurand, veteran leader of the government side in the red chamber and minister without portfolio.

Mr. Cardin's resignation leaves a third vacancy and political observers believed that one or more portfolios will go to English-speaking members.

But Thomas Vein, member for Montreal-Outremont and deputy speaker of the House, has long been in line for cabinet rank and his riding gave an affirmative vote in the plebiscite.

Brooke Claxton, young Liberal representative for Montreal - St. Lawrence-St. George, has been mentioned as likely cabinet timber and he is considered a possibility for selection in the forthcoming shuffle. His riding, too, gave an affirmative majority in the plebiscite.

Tourist Gas

Canadian Government will reduce the basic coupon ration unit from five gallons to four, or even three gallons.

The tourist order, to which Mr. Howe referred, was issued yesterday by George R. Cottrelle, Oil Controller for Canada. It will have the effect of abolishing the 20-unit ration coupon booklet which has been provided for tourists remaining in Canada more than 48 hours.

The official statement said the new order "provides that if a United States or foreign tourist proposes to stay in Canada long enough to need more gasoline than he has in his tank at the time he enters the country, he will be given, at the border, a ration book permitting the purchase of four units of gasoline."

The announcement added significantly: "At present the unit represents five gallons, but its value may be changed at any time as circumstances require."

No more than one of the four-unit coupon books will be issued for any one foreign car in any one year. To make it impossible to obtain a second coupon book, the Canadian Customs officer at the border will stamp the car's license to show that a ration book has been issued.

The order makes it clear that the responsibility for not running short of gasoline is up to the tourist.

Mr. Howe remarked that "it is unfortunate that so drastic a step has become necessary, but, in view of the seriousness of the gasoline shortage in Canada, it was unavoidable. Faced themelves with very severe restrictions made necessary by the shortage in the United States, our many thousands of friends in that country will, I am sure, understand and approve our action."

MORE ABOUT—

311,825 Called

There had been 242 convictions for failure to obey the call-up, the minister said, and the number of real delinquents was "not much over 1 per cent." In many cases changes of address accounted for failures to report.

Where They Skipped Out.

The minister said he would prefer to call those who failed to report as "possibly delinquents" and he gave the distribution by provinces as follows:

Ontario 2,558, Quebec 4,886, Nova Scotia 123, New Brunswick 40, Prince Edward Island 46, Manitoba 780, British Columbia 1,406, Saskatchewan 240, and Alberta 1,489.

The minister placed on the record a table showing that convictions under the Mobilization Act numbered 242, the largest number—120—being in Saskatchewan.

There were 13 convictions in Ontario, 40 in Quebec, one in New Brunswick, 27 in Manitoba, 18 in British Columbia, and 23 in Alberta.

None were reported for Nova Scotia or Prince Edward Island.

The Minister said that 35 per cent. of the men called for training in the period from March 20, 1941, to October 2, 1941, had volunteered for active service.

Mr. Thorson told the House earlier that regulations prevented a man called for compulsory military service being represented by counsel when seeking a postponement or leave before a war services board. He was answering a question by Rev. Dan McIvor (Lib., Fort William).

Mr. Thorson said war services regulations provided hearings before boards should be in camera and no one was entitled to be represented by a solicitor.

When a man showed that he was primarily engaged in agriculture he was granted postponement from compulsory training. It was mandatory on war services boards to grant postponements for those engaged in agriculture.

Call By Detectives.

Angus MacInnis (C.C.F., Vancouver East) said a Labor organizer engaged in organizing workers in a Vancouver plant had been called for compulsory military service, after being visited by two detectives.

"The Government should find some better way of opposing organized labor," Mr. MacInnis said. The man was ready to go when his proper time came.

Mark Senn (Cons., Haldimand) said the voluntary system of enlistment was a factor in reducing the number of farm workers. He said he believed there was general disappointment that selective service was not introduced following national registration. Young men taken from the farms might well have been more usefully engaged in producing food than they would be in the army.

Rev. T. C. Douglas (C.C.F., Weyburn) protested that the announcement March 24 last that farmers would not be required for compulsory military training if they were wholly or mainly engaged in agriculture on March 23 had come so close to the call-up proclaimed for April 9 that many of those called up from the farms did not know that they could get postponement.

G. H. Castleden (C.C.F., Yorkton) said the regulations were not circulated widely enough to reach those concerned. He told of one Western farmer called up who sold his stock and property in order to go into the army.

The presence of a large Japanese tanker in the treacherous waters of the Deboynes, the largest of which, Pannaetti, is about four miles long, would indicate the Japanese invasion forces are seeking shelter from the Allies' sea-scouring air patrols wherever they can find it.

In the Coral Sea battle itself, Japan lost 17 ships.

Most of these were war vessels, presumably the screen for heavy invasion forces and the conviction has grown among Australians that when the whole story of the battle and its aftermath is known it will be found that shiploads of Japanese troops and weapons were lost.

This already has recieved some substantiation from Allied communiques. Since the Japanese broke off the sea battle, but presumably as a consequence of it, the Allies have announced as damaged by air attack a seaplane tender and a tanker, two submarines and the ships listed to-day.

The only enemy actions mentioned in the communique were two apparently feeble air attacks, one with slight damage to an airdrome at Port Moresby, the Allies' new Guinea stronghold, and the other, with no damage, on an airdrome on Horn Island, in Torres Strait, between New Guinea and the mainland.

Only a Respite.

Still, senior Australians warned that the security won in the Coral sea may only be a respite and that it probably is the forerunner of greater Japanese efforts.

Mr. Drakeford declared that "Japanese strength has grown steadily," has been checked but not halted in the invasion roof of islands north of Australia, and that the enemy probably will strike again.

However, he declared, Australian and American airmen "are hitting the enemy with all the power at their disposal wherever and whenever possible. When the storm breaks it will break with less violence because of their efforts."

The Air Minister predicted that another Japanese thrust might be from Timor on the west or from the numerous bases on the east or from both, but he foresaw first an attempt to eliminate Port Moresby, a menace to any invasion preparations as Tobruk was athwart the Axis' flank in Libya during its long siege.

Protect French

TORONTO, May 12 — (CP). — Elimination of French as a language of instruction in Ontario schools was advocated in a notice of motion presented to the trustees of the Toronto Board of Education on Thursday night by Dr. William H. Butt, a trustee.

The notice of motion which will be dealt with the next meeting of the Board, asked that the Board record its opinion that the use of French as the language of instruction in Ontario schools is detrimental to the best interests of the Canadian people. It also asked that the Ontario Government be urged to take necessary action to prohibit such use of French.

FIREMEN KEPT BUSY

Firemen had to shake a leg for a couple of hours Monday when three alarms were turned in within a short space of time. A call turned in at 4.02 p.m. reported a chimney fire at the home of T. Heath, 185 Perry street. Chief Gimblett reported that there was no damage. Then at 6.00 p.m., there was a call for a fire in the Ladies' Rest Room on Charlotte street. Someone with nothing better to do had set fire to some papers in a galvanized pail. With the exception of considerable smoke, there was little damage. The final call which brought firemen on the rush turned out to be a false alarm from Ackerman's sprinkler system. The pressure on the air system had gone down and this allowed the water to circulate.

CARELESS DRIVING CHARGES

Entering written pleas of guilty to charges of careless driving, Don Lloyd, Lakefield, and D. H. Dinsdale, Morrow street, were each fined $30 and costs by Magistrate R. Baxter in Port Hope police court Monday.

City Provides $1,000 To Purchase Instruments For Rangers' Band

A grant of $1,000 to the First Battalion of the Prince of Wales Rangers for the specific purpose of the purchase of band instruments was recommended by the Finance Commitee of the City Council on Monday afternoon.

The battalion is leaving Peterborough on Thursday morning at 7:10 o'clock for basic training at Camp Niagara, and in this departure of some 265 officers and men from this city and the immediate district the Council wished to make some contribution that would be useful to the unit as a whole. It seems that a similar suggestion was put forth by citizens who are interested in the Prince of Wales regiment. At any rate the Council acted on its own initiative, and after discussing in a general way some things which might be suitable, it was finally decided to consult Col. Dewart, and he was called from his office to the meeting in the City Hall.

Col. Dewart said that ample sport equipment is supplied by the auxiliary war services such as the Canadian Legion, and provision for the men is much better than ever before. Citizens have contributed to the funds for these services, and it should be of interest to them to know that their money is being used ao good purpose.

In the conversation Col. Dewart said it was hoped that the regiment would be able to establish a band after it has got settled down, and from that point the suggestions centred upon a grant for the purchase of new instruments. Col. Dewart said that he would not presume to advise the Council what it should do but he remarked that a band grant would be most acceptable and would also be a decided help to the unit.

The resolution to grant $1,000 was moved by Alderman Sullivan and seconded by Alderman Swanston. Alderman Cotton presided as chairman of the Finance Committee. The only condition to the contribution being endorsed formally by the Council is the approval of the Ontario Department of Municipal Affairs, which is being applied for at once.

The committee was not sure how many instruments would be needed, but it was thought that 20 or 24 might be sufficient. In the event of additional money being needed to complete the fund, the committee felt certain that other contributions would be forthcoming from local organizations who desire to see the new battalion set forth in keeping with the traditions of the old local units from which its name, Prince of Wales Rangers, has derived.

Regret was expressed that the Rangers have to go so far away from home for their training, and Alderman Dutton remarked that the city possibly would not have a chance to hear the new band when it has been organized.

"We hope that the battalion will be able to return as a unit to Peterborough after the basic training is completed—at least for a visit," Col. Dewart said.

School Students Raise $30.20 For War Victims

Keeping pace with good work that has been done by children in the city schools on behalf of the war-torn suffers from air raids over Britain, through the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund, the pupils from schools in the surrounding district are doing their bit, by putting on various efforts from which the fund has benefitted materially. The latest effort to come to a successful conclusion in the interests of the fund had its start through the ladies of the Springville Red Cross donating a quilt for the children of S.S. No. 3 North Monaghan (Old Town School) to sell tickets on, and this they certainly did with the will to succeed, for in today's list of receipts there stands the nice sum of $30.20 which was turned over to the fund by Miss Marjorie Galbraith, the teacher of the school. To Audrey Kelk goes the honor of selling the most tickets and also the ticket which proved to be the lucky one, which was held by J. W. Geraghty of 317 Pearl avenue, this city.

With the $2 credited to the penny box in the "In and out shop" which was collected on Monday, the total for this type of activity for the fund has now risen to $945.53.

For the 5th time, Moore Preceptory Knights Templar are represented in the list of receipts for the fund, this time with a donation of $5.61. On Tuesday next May 19, a special bingo games will be staged in the Canadian Legion Hall, wholly in the interests of the fund, sponsored by Branch 52 of the Canadian Legion, in which a leading part will be taken by Bob Hotrum and Robt. Mitchell, both of whom collaborate to make these events the big success they have been in the past, and already some really fine prizes have been donated for this event, details of which will be given at a later date.

Lord Mayors Thanks

His Worship Mayor James Hamilton has received a cable from the Lord Mayor of London, which reads thus, "Please thank your citizens for further generous gift five hundred pounds their continued sympathy and support much appreciated in these days of much renewed bombing." Signed Lord Mayor London. This message is in response to the 17th donation cabled a short while ago, and following the custom started some time ago, the original copy will be given to those responsible for the largest amount in this particular donation, which in this instance happens to be the manager (Mr. J. H. Jamison) and the employees of the local Canadian Department Stores.

Women Desert Golden Slipper Trades To Do War Work

Conversion of female labor from the "golden slipper trades" to essential war jobs is proceeding apace in the Canadian war picture, and it is expected that close to 50,000 unmarried women will be funnelled to factories. Reaching a high point in efficiency in record time, these girls, many of them brilliant students, have stepped into the factories from lucrative peace time occupations to spin the wheels of industry faster. Already milling machines, engine lathes, turret lathes, and other standard machine shop tools have been mastered by this new army of workers. At LEFT, Miss Audrey Sage, hums a tune as she watches the cutting tool on the engine lathe peel off the steel shavings at the Genelco plant, and Betty Egglestone, at RIGHT, operates a horizontal milling machine, and her appearance fairly radiates the self-reliance of the modern girl. Note the bandannas on the head to guard against wisps of hair getting tangled in machinery, and the neat looking overalls the ideal rig for shop wear.

Genelco Girls Operate Machines In Spirit Of Defeating Hitler

By JEAN STENTON

That girls are efficient on the machines is the general opinion of those in positions of authority at the Genelco Company, Peterborough.

The girls are conscientious and adaptable and don't seem to mind routine work as much as the men do. The fact that their hands are slender and have a lighter touch, is even an improvement in the handling of some machines. It was admitted that the girls were apt to break small tools oftener than the men, but that, it was explained, was due to lack of experience.

But the women are one up on the men when it comes to keeping their time cards in order. There are very few complaints from the feminine contingent, but there is plenty to be heard from the men.

The most effective ages for women in factory work today are 18 to 35. Many girls are graduates of trade schools, but others who have never touched a machine are being accepted. The men working with the latter say it is positively amazing how quickly and accurately they pick up the work. There are no women machinists in the Peterborough plants as yet, but since they handle everything else, they may be trying that in the not-too-distant future.

When asked the reason for working in Genelco, about 50 per cent said they had applied because they wished to further the war effort. The other 50 per cent acknowledged that they simply wanted a job. All agreed that the work was less fatiguing than they had been accustomed to.

From Far and Near

There are girls from every walk of life, who come from places as far west as the Province of Saskatchewan, manning the machines. Mona Gorden, formerly with the Brinton Carpet Company, runs a "Do-All" saw because "I want to help the war effort," she said. Margaret Carveth, who has been doing housework, signed up because of her desire to help smash Hitler, and is now running a warding machine. Noreen Lee, who formerly clerked in Braund's Store, finds work in the gauge stores "much more interesting and less tiring."

There are not so many married women doing war work. Mrs. Audrey Baker, Queen street, runs an engine lathe. Her husband was not eligible for war service and she considers this part of her duty to her country. She has three children who are 2½, 3½ and 10 years of age. She has a woman come in to stay and care for the children during the day while she works. "I find the work interesting and my only problem is that after I finish, I am not able to do my shopping."

Mrs. Rena Gallagher, Norwood, just wanted a job, and applied at Genelco. She, too, has three children and her mother looks after them.

Two girls formerly working with the medical profession have found their way into Genelco to help the war effort. They are Iona Whetung (cousin of Chief Whetung), who formerly worked in a Toronto

Practical Aid Is Shown At ARP Lecture

First Aid, which means first hel[p] was the subject of the lecture delivered by Dr. Avison, Medic[al] Health Officer, at the A.R.P. lectur[e] Monday night.

After first aid is rendered, th[e] patient must visit a doctor. Yo[u] never can tell whether an infectio[n] might set in. You may have done a[ll] that is required or you may hav[e] given aid that will help a qualifie[d] physician to save a life. But yo[u] must know the fundamental princi[ples]. It is just as important to kno[w] what not to do, Dr. Avison said, fo[r] to do nothing is often the best thin[g].

"There are two main types o[f] problems in first aid, nervous an[d] physical. There are five parts to th[e] nervous problem. Hysteria is ver[y] important, because the patient ma[y] not only be a danger to herself, fo[r] it is nearly always a woman, but thi[s] hysteria often tends to cause panic. All sense of control or sense of proportion is lost because of fright from noise or injury. This type of individual wants attention or sympath[y] and they take this means of gratifying their desire. They may even g[o] into a trance. The treatment fo[r] these cases is either a slap in th[e] face or a bucket of cold water.

"Then there is unconsciousness. People are shocked into it without warning and it may be due to nervous or other injuries and because of pain. It may also be due to direct pain, such as a blow on the head or the abdomen. This may be a blessing in disguise, for this is nature's anesthetic. Don't be in a hurry to bring the patient to. First see if you can remove the cause of the unconsciousness. If it is shock let them revive in the fresh air. If it is a severe injury, fix them up first so they won't suffer," he advised.

"Shock and collapse come next. They are a temporary thing with the nervous system. You can shock or hemmorage gradually and immediately if a blow is struck. In either case the skin is pale and there is a cold, clammy sweat. The pulse is small and rugged. The proper treat-

COMPOSER DEAD

All-Out Drive Is Made In City To Get Salvage

The residents of Ashburnham are faced with opportunity involving responsibility and example to the rest of Peterborough in the challenge of salvage collection Thursday.

Most people who take any serious view of the importance of little things as an aid in winning the war have felt disappointed about the net result of previous salvage drives. The piles of stuff reclaimed and collected have not been impressive. They neither inspired a hurrah nor did any other hurrah help them stir up community enthusiasm.

Generally, Peterborough salvage campaign have been rather listless affairs. Nobody swept into corners—of attic, cellar or farm fence. Most folks went through the motion. Others had to stumble over stuff to be reminded that it could be used—such stuff as rubber, old iron, copper, brass and so on.

Up to Ashburnham

A new salvage drive is beginning Thursday in the old Scotch village across the river—the date Thursday, May 14. The neighbors over there are going to sound the keynote of this effort. If they go over the place with a fine tooth comb, the other sections of the city will follow suit. They'll have to, if they wish to avoid stigma of indifference.

This affair of salvage is so important that it should be started with a band. It seems that nobody can inject a real whoop into such efforts—except several groups of women who are a conspicuous and toiling exception.

Without benefit of band, the first going over will begin at 10 in the morning—a paper collection, newspapers, magazines, wrapping stuff—yes, and some of those old copies of the London Illustrated News or what have you, which you know will probably never be read or stirred again. Why not toss them all out—Saturday Evening Post, MacLeans, Cosmopolitan, and don't dare make an exception of True Confessions. So much for paper.

But the real emphasis is bearing down on rubber, metals and bottles. How about making it a genuine, all-out clean-up. All this stuff should be at the curb sides by 6 p.m. Thursday. The truck pick-up system will do the rest.

What is Ashburnham going to do about this effort?

The one way of answering is simply to clear out everything. You don't have to toss in a hot water bag that can still be use. But, you should not have anything left about the premises on the morning after that is going to stare at you accusingly.

"Guns" On the Farms

Just about every farmer agrees that there is enough scrap metal in this county to make a flock of guns or a covey of tanks.

There isn't any doubt about it, and farmers themselves are first to mention it. But . . . the months go by, slack seasons are followed by busy and the iron still lies in the fields and along the roadside, or gathers rust in corner of the barnyard.

Unborn Tanks

Potential tanks left strewn about the place, and the whole county of Peterborough is not sufficiently interested to gather up the stuff and start it off to the furnaces.

It is altogether likely that some people may be wondering whether along the way there is a middle-man getting a cut. They don't actually know of an such persons, but they begin conjuring them, and in such instances the scrap metal stays where it has lain uselessly for years.

Rangers Parade At 8 Tuesday

Tonight the King's Color and the Regimental Color of the Prince of Wales Rangers will be on parade so that new members of the regiment will be able to see the colors before the First Battalion leaves Peterborough. The Colors are well known in the city for they are those of the old 57th Battalion and bear the battle honors and insignia of that unit, though they are now in the keeping of the Rangers. The City Council as well as other distinguished guests will be in present in the park to view the parade. Lieut.-Colonel J. A. Dewart will be Officer Commanding the regiment, Major R. J. Bolton will command the First Battalion and Lieut.-Colonel M. H. Park the Second Battaion.

The parade will form up a 8 p.m. and march down George Street as far as King street, returning about 8:45 p.m. to the Armouries where Colonel Dewart will take the salute and his Worship the Mayor will say farewell to the First Battalion. The parade will face the park and spectators are asked to view it from the park so that the area near the Armouries will be clear. After the parade the Second Battalion will give a display of platoon weapons, for which a number of Brens and 2-inch mortar are available.

This morning five senior NCO's from overseas, wearing on their sleeves the red square marking them as members of the First Division, reported at the Armouries to serve as instructors with the Rangers. They returned overseas in April and have been at District Depot No. 3-A at Kingston. Company Sergeant Major G. L. Dainard, in charge of the party, is from Picton, a member of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. With him are Sergeants K. L. Bebee, S. R. Burns, G. W. Leveridge, and V. Roberts. Their long service in England will make them invaluable to the Rangers during the months of training ahead.

Otonabee Plans Red Cross Drive

The townhip of Otonabee will be canvassed in the interest of the Canadian Red Cross Society for funds to carry on this very important work. The township is asked to raise $2,500, which can be done easily if each family will do their part. Each school section will have its own canvassers and it is hoped they will be given a reception worthy of the Red Cross. The work of this great organization commends itself to everyone, supplying comforts to the sick and wounded members of our Forces, sending parcels of food, etc., to prisoners of war, Red Cross huts in large hospital areas. There are many other demands including those sufferers in bombed areas.

The salvage drive is under way to collect, rubber, paper, rags, metals of all kinds, etc. On Thursday, May 14th old tires rubber boots, etc., also newspapers, magazines, books, cardboard and cartons will be collected at each school in the township. Paper should be tied in bundles.

This salvage will be sold and the proceeds given to the local Red Cross to buy wool. Otonabee has always upheld a high standard of doing its part in any national crisis, this is very evident by the large number of young men who have enlisted for active service.

24 Years Ordained

Rev. Gerard Maher, who observed the 24th anniversary of his ordination this morning in the celebration of mass at St. Joseph's Orphanage, Cobourg. The vocal music was sung by the children's choir. An honor graduate of the University of Toronto in philosophy in 1915, Father Maher was ordained here in 1918 by Most Rev. M. J. O'Brien, D.D., then Bishop of Peterborough. For eighteen years he was stationed at Gravenhurst, Bracebridge, Huntsville and Parry Sound. At one time in his collegiate years he was a member of the staff of the Examiner, and is now acting as Peterborough diocese news editor for the Canadian Register of Kingston.

Wardens Urged Attend Lectures

It has been announced by Lt.-Col. M. R. Sloan, Chief Warden of the A.R.P. in Peterborough that all air raid wardens of the local organization should make special efforts to attend the next three lectures being held for wardens on Wednesday nights on the second floor of the Lyceum and on Thursday nights at Knox Church Hall on Reid street (just north of Wolfe St.). As both these lectures are similar wardens can attend either night and the lectures will deal especially with wardens duties during air raids etc.

The lectures of this week will be "Relations with the Police" by P.C. Archie Menzies, Controller of Police Services (A.R.P.) and "City Organization" and "Report and Control Rooms" by Lieut.-Col. Sloan.

The lectures of May 20th and 21st will also be divided into two parts with "Wardens Reports and Communications. Air Raid Warning Signals and Use of Maps" by Lt.-Col. T. Dalton Johnston, V.D., Deputy Chief Warden and "Standing Orders, Wardens Duties in an Air Raid and Watching for Fires," by Captain G. H. Cutmore, Deputy Chief Warden.

The lectures of the following week will be held by divisions on Wednesday and Thursday nights at various places to be announced later. These lectures will be delivered by the Divisional and District Wardens and will deal with a variety of subjects as "Duties of District and Post Wardens, What a Warden must know, Facts of Sector and Sector Notes," "Roster, Telephone Numbers and the Situation and Location of all posts in the division."

Sufficient Wardens Handbook No. 6 has now arrived to make a distribution to the wardens, also a number of Wardens Report Forms have been received for distribution to the posts.

A.R.P. WARDENS

All wardens are urged to attend the three special lectures on "Wardens Duties" commencing this Wednesday and Thursday nights. Wednesday lectures will be held on the 2nd floor of the Lyceum at 8.00 p.m. and Thursday lectures will be held at Knox Church Hall (Reid street, just north of Wolfe St.) at 8.00 p.m. Both lectures are similar. These lectures are very important so please attend.

SPRING IS HERE

This winter has been a very trying time for those with chronic or acute ailments on account of the close confinement indoors. Owing to the severe weather many people have accumulated excesses of different poisons, infections, toxins, etc., which will cause many to have a very run down condition.

If you are not feeling well, and you know you have certain ailments why not make an appointment at once and have a thorough examination.

THE RADIOCLAST method of examination is most efficient for detecting and locating the cause of any ailment you may have and the treatments are getting people well.

THE HEALTH SERVICE that is available at this office is complete in that it combines the best and latest in Physio Therapy plus Chiropractic manipulation and adjustment which are two of the best Natural means of restoring health.

Senator Iva Fallis Speaks At Annual Meeting Of Conservative Women

The Conservative Women's Association held its annual meeting and election of officers in the Paragon Hall on Monday afternoon. In the absence, through illness, of the president, Mrs. J. H. Cridland, Mrs. F. Skinner, vice-president, was in the chair.

Mrs. H. E. Clarke, secretary, read a letter from the Ottawa Women's Conservative Association, concerning a mobile kitchen which the association is planning to send to Britain, and requesting help in this cause. Plans were discussed for a garden party to be held at the home of Senator Iva Campbell Fallis, some of the proceeds of which would be devoted to this cause. It was also decided to make and raffle a quilt.

The meeting was favored with two delightful solos, "Trees," and Brahms' "Cradle Song," by Mrs. W. L. Hepburn, accompanied by Mrs. W. A. Greenslade.

Senator Fallis took the chair for the election of officers, and the entire slate of officers were returned by acclamation. They are as follows: Honorary Presidents, Senator Iva Fallis, Mrs. G. S. Cameron, Mrs. J. F. Strickland, Mrs. G. K. Fraser; Honorary Vice-President, Mrs. J. Mills; President, Mrs. J. H. Cridland; 1st Vice-President, Mrs. F. Skinner; 2nd Vice-President, Mrs. T. M. Wilson; 3rd Vice-President, Mrs. W. Hughes; Treasurer, Mrs. R. G. Cottrell; Secretary, Mrs. H. E. Clarke; Ward Captains: North, Mrs. H. Staunton; Centre Mrs. Pickering; West, Mrs. J. Mills, Mrs. Pogue; South, Mrs. E. Fisher; East, Mrs. D. Miller.

Mrs. Fallis, although she had not come prepared to speak, gave a brief but interesting talk. She said that many people complained that the Senate did not do enough work but that nobdy felt this more than the Senate itself. The Senate, however, must wait until the House of Commons has finished with a bill, before it can be brought to the Senate. Before the war, many bills which did not concern money were discussed in the Senate before the Commons, but now, since the majority of bills concern the spending of vast sums of public money and the Senate never interferes with money bills, they must go to the Commons first.

The speaker said that many people had asked her why it was that the American Senate dealt with money bills and ours did not and she pointed out that the American Senate is an elected body, while our Senators are appointed for life. Mrs. Fallis said that in her opinion ours was the better arrangement. A Senator, in voting on a bill, could afford to forget political affiliations and vote according to the dictates of his conscience, because his position was not dependent on the favor of his constituents. She said that she herself had voted in favor of a bill opposed by the Conservative Party because she believed that the bill was in the best interests of the country. She also said that the Senate acted as a restraining influence on the Government, and that, in the case of an extreme political party getting into power, this would prove a blessing to the country.

Ruth Brockwell Honored

Ruth Brockwell daughter of Sgt. and Mrs. F. J. Brockwell, 555 Chamberlain street, was much feted by her friends and associates before leaving for Toronto to join the R.C.A.F. (W.D.). On Monday of last week Miss Frances Neary entertained at a tea in her honor and she received a Helena Rubenstein make-up kit On Wednesday her neighbors gathered together and presented her with a Parker pen and pencil set. On Thursday Mrs Ron Aikers entertained at a hankerchief shower in her honor. On Friday evening at her home, friends and relatives met and presented her with a moire bag containing toilet articles, etc. Engineers and draftsmen with whom she worked at the C.G.E. presented her with a wrist watch. She also received numerous gifts from her friends.

George St. W.M.S.

Mrs. John Douglas, Water street, was hostess to Group F of the W.M.S. of George Street United Church. Mrs. V. H. Boorman, president of the group, was in the chair for the meeting The theme of the meeting was 'Mothers.' Mrs. Roy Powell gave a very fine talk on 'Stewardship of Mothers.' Mrs. Coleman Elliott read an article on 'The Mother of Jesus.' Mrs. W. H. Morton read the scripture lesson and Mrs. J. Fanning gave a short temperance talk. Mrs. W G. McLaren sang a delightful solo, 'Leave It With Him,' accompanied on the piano by Mrs Charles Renaud. At the close of the meeting refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed by all.

Coe Hill Wedding

An event of local interest took place when Alma Harriet, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgerton Smith of Coe Hill, was united in marriage to Gordon Roy Davis, of Toronto. Rev. W. H. Baugh, of St. John's United church, Coe Hill, performed the ceremony. The best man and matron of honor for the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bandy of Coe Hill.

The bride was attractively attired in blue crepe with white accessories and carried a corsage of red roses. The bridesmaid was attired in light biege. After the wedding ceremony a dainty luncheon was served to about 35 guests at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Bandy.

Mrs. Davis has been employed in Toronto for some time, while Mr. Davis has been in army training at the same centre.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis will take up residence in London, Ont.

On Monday night, May 4, a well-attended reception was tendered the newly-wed couple in the town hall, Coe Hill.

Pulpit Bible Gift To Burnbrae Church

CAMPBELLFORD, May 12. — (ENS). — The presentation of a pulpit Bible was an interesting feature of the Sunday morning service at Burnbrae Church. The gift was made by Mr. and Mrs. James Shillinglaw, who were among the pioneer members of the congregation, and it was accepted by Rev. Donald McKay, who prior to the service expressed his thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Shillinglaw.

Three Vocalists Plan Joint Recital

A very interesting program of operatic arias, songs and trios will be given by Olga Westbye, A.T.C.M., Alicia Langley, and Margaret Westbye, with Gwen Craw at the piano, in the Recreation Room of the Y.W.C.A. next Wednesday evening.

The trios will include a brilliant setting of "The Butterly Dance" by Clough-Leighter, "In Our Boat," by Cowen, "The Staines-Morris" by Fletcher, "The Kerry Dance" by Molloy, and an amusing medley of Nursery Rhymes by Custance.

Olga Westbye will sing a Handel aria "Conquered is Love," from "Ottone," and the beautiful "Dove Sono," from "Figaro," by Mozart. She will also sing a group of old Scottish songs.

Alicia Langley will sing the charming "Gavotte" from "Mignon," and the florid "Waltz Song" from "Romeo and Juliet" by Gounod. Her group of ballads will include Lehmann's "Cuckoo." "Ferry Ahoy," by Brewer, and others.

Margaret Westbye's program features Handel's "Angels, Ever Bright and Fair," and the delightful "Batti, batti" from "Don Giovanni" by Mozart. Her group of songs contains two Hebridean airs, and "The Wren" by Benedict.

These young artists have put many hours of hard work upon this program, and music lovers will enjoy the fine blending of the lyrical voices in the trios, as well as their individual excellence in solo work.

The proceeds of this recital will be given to the "Milk For Britain Fund," and the public is invited to attend.

DOROTHY DIX

GRANDMA'S SELFISH LOVE IS CAUSING UNHAPPINESS

A Woman Complains Because Husband's Mother Ruined Home Life.

Dear Dorothy Dix.—My husband's mother wants to come and live with us, although she is well-to-do and has her own home. She is a dear soul and I love her and would not object to having her, but the trouble is she insists on bringing a 5½-year-old grandson with her, who is the worst spoiled brat you ever saw in your life.

She paid us a visit last Summer, bringing this child with her, and he not only nearly ran us crazy, but thoroughly demoralized our little 3-year-old girl who copied all of his faults. The grandmother also interfered with all of my management of my child and spoiled her so badly that it took me two months to get her back to normal when grandma went home.

A peculiar situation exists as regards the little grandson. His mother and father are both living and have two other children. They are fine people, have a nice home, are amply able to take care of this boy but the grandmother has just taken him away from them, insist on his living with her, and is so crazy about him that she denies him nothing and is ruining him.

I appreciate the grandmother not wanting to be separated from the child, but I cannot stand to have my home life and my child ruined by him. What shall I do? My husband puts the situation up to me.—Bewildered Wife.

Answer.—I think you will be doing a very wrong and foolish thing if you don't put your foot down good and flat on grandma's plan to come and bring the boy to live with you. Tell her that she will be welcome in your house, but that you absolutely refuse to let her bring her little pest along with her. For your whole family life to be disrupted and your quiet home a scene of turmoil and strife, and for your own child to have all of her training in manners and morals interrupted at the most impressionable time of her life to gratify the whim of an old women, doesn't add up. It doesn't make sense.

Should Be Restrained

If the grandmother can't live without her darling grandchild, let her stay in her own home. She certainly hasn't any right to inflict him on others.

A famous child-specialist said not long ago that grandmothers killed more children than dyphtheria and scarlet fever and measles and mumps and all the other infantile complaints put together. Be this as it may, it is undeniable that grandmothers can be, and ofter are, the most demoralizing influence a child can have in its early life. They send many a boy to the penitentiary and many a girl to the gutter; and it is much more important that a mother should protect her children from doting grandma than from playing with a bad boy around the corner who uses swear words and whistles through his teeth.

How many children's digestions have been ruined by grandma stuffing them with sweets on the sly because she didn't hold with these foolish, new-fangled notions about diet? How many have been made quitters for life by grandma always pitying them and consoling them with lollipops when they fell and bumped their noses? How many have grown up into being boors because grandma always interfered with their mothers' efforts to teach them good manners on the theory that if you let children eat like pigs when they are little, they will have the table manners of ladies and gentlemen when they grow up? How many men and women are failures in life because grandma coddled them and spoiled them and cultivated selfishness and egotism in them, no one knows. But their name is legion.

Child's Life Is At Stake

In this particular case it seems strange that the little boy's parents have not intelligence enough to see that the grandmother is ruining him, and that he needs the discipline that children give each other. They are committing an unforgivable wrong against the child in not separating him from his grandmother. And they should not permit their dislike of hurting her and making her unhappy keep them from doing their duty. For the child's whole life is at stake, whereas grandma has only a few years to live.

So, Bewildered Wife, if your refusal to let grandmother bring the spoiled little boy to your house results in his being sent home to his parents, where he belongs, you will not only have saved your own home, but you will have done the boy the greatest kindness that one person can do another.

Advice On Common Law Marriage

Dear Miss Dix.—Please give me some advice on common law marriage. My boy friend thinks it is best for us to try it for six months and then, if it turns out all right, we would get married. I told him if it didn't turn out all right I would be the one left holding the bag, and he said: "Oh, no. I just want to be certain that we suit each other." What do you think? —A. B.

Answer.—I think you have sized up the situation perfectly. In a trial marriage it is always the girl who gets the hot end of the bargain, for she takes all the chances while the man plays safe. Every marriage is more or less of a gamble as to how it turns out, and a man is a poor sport if he isn't willing to take as many risks as a woman does.

Figure it out for yourself and see what a phony proposition a man makes you when he asks you to enter into a trial marriage with him. In the first place, he shows he isn't sure that he loves you enough to want to spend the balance of his life with you. He doesn't want to bind himself to you or give you any legal hold upon him. He is leaving himself free to walk out on you when he gets tired of you without having to pay you any alimony. He can just simply kiss and ride away.

If there is a baby, well, it is just too bad, but the girl will have to go to work and support it. If it is hard for a girl, who has lost her good name and has an illegitimate child clinging to her skirts, to get a job, well, that is too bad, too. But there is nothing she can do about it. The trial marriage was a failure and she is left with the bag to hold.

Much Opposed to Kissing

Dear Miss Dix.—I wish there was a law against kissing. I am a young widow and I like the company of men, but if I have to be kissed a dozen times during an evening I would much rather stay at home all by my lonesome, which is just what happens if a woman refuses her lips to a date. Do all women have to suffer from kissing bugs?—Ann.

Answker.—Perhaps your trouble si that you look too kissable, or perhaps you even have a come-hither look in your eye that tempts men to osculation. Assume an austere lips-off attitude and cut out the cupid's bow effects and see how it works.

School Defence Training Starts Grade 10

TORONTO, May 12. — (CP).— More than 50,000 Ontario High school students, including girls, will be affected ultimately by defence training program announced today by Hon. Dr. Duncan McArthur, Minister of Education. The course is obligatory.

Starting in September it is designed not only to cover the syllabus for basic cadet training of the Departments of National Defence and National Defence for Air, but also includes certain other features such as safety, civilian protection and first aid.

The program will be under Dr. McArthur's direction and will be carried out by the teachers in the schools. The Federal departments concerned have assured they will give every assistance, not only with respect to the course to be offered but also in providing the requisite training for the teachers.

Although complete arrangements have not yet been made, it is probable the Department of Education will provide a 10-day summer course for teachers at the Y.M.C.A. camp, Geneva Park, near Orillia.

No Uniforms Or Arms.

Uniforms will no be worth, neither are arms to be provided, but arm bands will likely be adopted. Drawn up with collaboration of the army and air force authorities, the course will require co-relation with other subjects such as mathematics, science, history, geography, health and physical education.

Some academic subjects of curriculum will be made more practical by including part of the proposed course. Instruction will be given in such subjects as map reading, signalling, airmanship, theory of flight, air frames, army and air force organization, internal combustion engines, and army specialization.

Additional time required for this course may be found by increasing length of the school day or by taking part of time now devoted to certain other subjects of the course of study. In anticipation of this course certain schools are at present offering with favourable results, a somewhat similar course, Dr. McArthur said.

A parallel course of instruction for girls is being prepared. Courses and information respecting the summer training schools for teachers will be printed and distributed to schools.

Starts In Grade Ten

The course of training in Grade Nine is not changed, but the new course is introduced in Grade 10 and upward. Much of it may be offered to both boys and girls, and one additional period a week will be added to the time now provided for health and physical education. In Grades 11, 12, and 13, two additional periods will be required.

The course will receive same recognition as the former course in health and physical education toward the Secondary School graduation diploma. Ontario universities have agreed to allow some credit for the complete course to students proceeding to a university.

In Grades 10, 11 and 12, the course includes instruction in basic drill, organization, ceremonial and deportments, knots and lashings and small arms training, aircraft recognition, civilian protection, map reading, field craft, and woodscraft.

In Grade 13 the course will not be required during the year 1942-43 but will be ready for opening in September 1943.

Course for teachers will be held as follows: Women teachers, June 22 to July 3; men teachers, July 6-17 and July 20-31.

Teachers pay a fee of $10. Applications will be received from women teachers up to June 6 and men teachers up to June 15.

Five Commandments Outlined For Canadians During War Years

Rotarian Russell T. Kelly of Hamilton expounded his five personal commandments for Canadians during the war years for the benefit of members of the Peterborough Rotary Club at the regular luncheon on Monday when he delivered an inspirational address on the subject "The Road Ahead."

The well-known advertising executive had as his audience a vary large turnout of Rotarians as well as an unusually large atendance of visitors. Among the later were His Honor Judge Smoke, Mayor James Hamilton, Rotarian Frank Mitchell of Windsor, Sumner Simpson, of Bridgeport, Conn., president of the Raybestos Corporation, and three other executive members J. D. Rohrbach, Glen Rideg, N.J., F. L. Curtis, Passiac, N.J., and G. R. Weber, Lancaster, Pa., Jack Davidson, manager of radio station CHEX, Postmaster Charles Lacheur, Romeyne Stevenson, Sault Ste. Marie, Rotarian Jack Huddard, Toronto, and Dr. McClelland, C.P.C.

Robert E. Sager was introduced as a new member of the club by J. A. Gibbs and welcomed by President Dr. George Easton.

Rotarian Fred L. Roy informed the members of the sudden death of Judge L. V. O'Connor of Cobourg, reminding his hearers that Judge O'Connor had been a charter member of the Lindsay Rotary Club and its first secretary. At Rotarian Roy's sugestion letter of sympathy will be sent from the Rotary Club to Mrs. O'Connor.

The guest speaker was introduced by Rotarian H. L. Garner, who said that Russell Kelly was the man who was always called upon when any movement for the public welfare was to the fore.

Rotarian Kelly, declaring that Canadians generally had been greatly encouraged by the fighting speech of Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill, said that the people of this country were anxious to play their part in the war effort. He had drawn up ten commandments for war service, he said, and they had cut them down into five, which, he said, applied with equal force to himself as well as to any one else in the room.

The first of these, he said, was "Make some personal sacrifice." He reminded his hearers that all Churchill had promised was blood and sweat and tears. "If we go home and look at ourselves in the mirror," the speaker said, "we will have to admit that we have shed no blood, that we have not worked hard enough to produce much sweat, and that outside of the fathers and mothers who have lost their sons we have not shed many tears."

Do Some Extra Work.

The second commandment was: "Take on some extra work." Almost any one could find the time if necessary to do so. Personally, he said, he had had a most interesting experience in taking charge of the Russian relief fund in Hamilton, because it gave him an opportunity of meeting so many new Canadians. Rotarian Kelly said that the Peterborough Rotarians would be asked to assist in the Red Cross blood donors' work. In this connection Peterborough would be asked to supply 100 blood donors every week and the speaker appealed for support for the work.

The third commandment the speaker outlined was "Avoid destructive criticism." It was not hard to find reasons for criticizing, but destructive complaints were a hindrance, he pointed out.

"Obey the spirit, as well as the letter of the law" was the fourth commandment. Rotarian Kelly said that he had watched folk take more sugar than they required, leaving it on the bottom of their cups, and in doing so they were certainly not living up to the spirit of the law.

Pray for Victory Daily.

The fifth and final commandment was "Pray for victory daily." In urging prayer, Rotarian Kelly said that it was not fair to assume that God was on our side unless we were willing to be on God's side.

Rotarian Wes. Brown moved a vote of thanks to the speaker.

Rotarian Ross Dobbin called the attention of the club to the face that the Red Cross and Community Chest Fund drive began this week, and said that the Rotary Club was being asked for a donation of $300 this time, as against $500 donated last year.

SHEFFIELD, England — (CP).— Sheffield Insurance Committee has prepared a scheme for pooling patients among doctors in their own residential areas to save gasoline and tires by preventing long journeys.

FRANTIC WEEKEND

HAPPY LANDING

CHAPTER XXIII

Baldy stirred in his sleep, brushed the handkerchief from his mouth, and sat up with all the alacrity of an anemic hippopotamus. The sun was warm, his nap had been pleasant, and he felt lazily prepared to cope with any and all conspiracies against him. As for Peggy, now—

He looked around for her. No Peggy. No canoe. No one, a shambling search revealed, on the island. The lake was annoyingly calm under a noon sun, with no sign of life on any of its shores, no one on the wharf.

Baldy looked at his watch. Mmm. Past lunchtime. He was hungry. He was getting angry. A cigarette accompanied his watch of the wharf.

Not pleasant to Baldy the crafty, Baldy the shrewd, was the teasing thought that Peggy had double-crossed him. All the while she had been pretending to work with him. And all the while she had been plotting with that bunch of deadheads. The little so-and-so! I'll give her a chance to break her nasty little neck, and that's all.

Fay...ah! he thought sorrowfully. She's never have done this to him. No, it was the others. After all he had done for Fay, she's never have the nerve to do this to him. But by the saints, he'd get even with those others if he had to take that little so-and-so to New York and break her spirit!

As time wore on and he got hungrier, his thoughts became progressively blacker. Eventually they reached the murderous stage as he paced hungrily around the confined island. He was hotter and hotter as the afternoon grew heavy with humidity and little trickles of perspiration glistened on his bald head. He began to speak his thoughts aloud. Fortunately, only the trees were within range of his mutterings.

At last he saw a lone figure on the wharf and then a canoe wobbling dangerously as someone paddled toward the island.

Baldy stopped his muttering and stared. It was the sister! He groaned as he thought of Myra's skill with a canoe and shuddered at the thought of the waterfall they had nearly died on.

As the canoe came nearer, Myra steered it with dangerous incompetence toward the island.

"I've brought you some sandwiches and a bottle of beer," she said cheerfully, without any attempt at explanation. Baldy forgot about explanations. The sight of food and drink was like a beacon to a shipwrecked sailor. He caught the edge of the canoe and stepped in.

"Hey!" yelled Myra. "Don't do that!"

She was too late. She was in the water, so was Baldy, so was the food and the beer, the beer at the bottom of the lake and the sandwiches disintegrating slowly. Baldy groaned and floundered ashore with Myra who dragged the canoe with her and emptied the water with difficulty.

Baldy sat down and held his head in his hands, his sports suit dripping around him shapelessly.

"Now," said Myra, "step in carefully this time."

"No," said Baldy. Not if I have to live here the rest of my life! I ain't going to risk going over those falls again....or drowning in the middle of this lake. I can't swim."

"Too bad," said Myra. "What are you going to do?

"You try and get back and send someone who can work one of those things."

"All right." Myra spoke quite cheerfully, but with a lurking smile in her eyes. "It might take some time."

An hour later the bedraggled Baldy climbed up the path to the house with Ferdy. They passed the rockery and Baldy's neck went red with a sudden desire to commit murder when he caught a view of Peggy suddenly releasing herself from the arms of Nigel.

She ran to meet him. "Oh, Baldy," she cried. "Did they only just get you? They said they'd go right after lunch."

Baldy eyed her with a glittering hatred. "You little...." Then he paused as he saw Nigel's fist close significantly.

Peggy's eyes warned him to keep quiet.

"I've fixed everything," she said. "Not a word."

She pushed Nigel back and walked with a suspicious Baldy.

"I've got a new idea. I've fixed everything," said Peggy confidently. "Maybe you weren't born in a large family like I was. If you were you'd know that when they get tough the only thing to is to string along with them for awhile and then get your own way later. It is the easiest way in the end."

"So what?" grumbled Baldy rudely.

"You go and change and I'll be waiting for you with a Collins," she said.

"Make it three, and six sandwiches," he growled.

A little later Baldy emerged in a suit and loose jacket in a pale rose shade, beautifully pressed, with a shirt of deeper hue, almost maroon, as a final improbable touch.

Baldy took a deep draught at one of the four glasses in front of him and bit deep into a sandwich. His eyes did not meet those of Peggy, who sat deep in a chair swinging one leg over the arm.

"It's this way," said Peggy. "You have got to handle families gently. So I thought if I became engaged to Nigel...."

"That mutt?" muttered Baldy, his mount full. He felt he was beyond caring.

"He is not a mutt! He's terribly strong too," said Peggy. "But that isn't the point. If I became engaged to Nigel the family would think I was settled and then when he went overseas I could come down to New York...."

"Then I thought," continued Peggy, "that if Mike proposed to Fay and they were engaged she would be in the family and I could persuade her when he went overseas to come with me back to New York."

Baldy sneered at the thought of a topliner like Fay Ransome mixing it with a mere lieutenant.

"So I suggested to Mike that he should drive her into Montreal by himself and at least try...."

Baldy sat up as if shot.

"She gone? Where's she gone?"

Peggy soothed him by pushing the third drink invitingly nearer. "They drove away about an hour ago, just the two of them..." She paused while a hint of apoplectic crimson darkened Baldy's neck and then spread over his domelike head. He gulped the third drink and grabbed the fourth.

"But I've got the best idea of the lot to bring it all in the family. Daddy couldn't very well object to me being managed by a son-in-law...." Badly got up and looking at Peggy queerly, he backed away. Peggy rose from her chair and followed him.

"So I thought if you proposed to Myra...." She stopped suddenly. Baldy had turned and was disappearing rapidly. Myra came into the room.

"What's the rush?" she asked.

"I've found a husband for you," said Peggy with an eager smile. "Isn't it wonderful, at last!"

Myra's lips tightened to an unamused line. She glared at her young sister, green eyes bright and cheeks flushed with excitement.

'Hear that car?" said Myra. "That's Baldy getting out as quick as he can. eGt your things packed We're going before you try to marry Ferdy off to his aunt!"

Peggy was unperturbed. "Isn't it wonderful?" she murmured. "We'll be driving back in Nigel's car."

THE END

Save Freighter Torpedoed OverMi.OffShore

LAKE WORTH, Fla., May 12. — (AP). — A British medium sized merchantman was attacked recently in broad daylight, with 1¼ miles of an Atlantic beach, by an Axis submarine, but the vessel was towed to safety at an East Coast port, the United States navy announced yesterday.

The explosion startled residents along the coast, and hundreds of the curious congregated on shore to see the ship, her stern deep in the water, before she was towed to the harbor.

Two men in the engine room were killed by a torpedo blast. Thirty others escaped in lifeboats that were towed quickly to shore by small fishing craft that put out from land. Fourteen seamen remained on board with Capt. George Legge.

One man, Arthur Forshay, a carpenter working on a seaside residence, told of seeing what he assumed was the sub's periscope.

"It looked like a stovepipe, moving through the water toward the sea," he said.

George W. Boynton, a former seaman, in a small fishing boat near the scene, saw the vessel hit.

"I don't suppose we were more than 200 yards away, toward the sea," he related. "We heard the explosion and the aft end of the ship seemed to jump a little. She started settling fast and the captain headed her toward the beach right away.

"I looked carefully for any sign of a submarine but I didn't see any. We headed right for the ship, sailing through a mess of oil. They asked us to stand by and later we towed one of the lifeboats to shore.

Herb Schultz and Van Gibson came up soon in other fishing boats and helped with rescue operation.

Second Officer Frank Wright of Cardiff, Wales, said the submarine that fired the projectile lay in wait for the ship and probably was not more than a mile of shore.

So He Came In

THE DALLES, Ore., May 12 — (AP). — "I'm too busy," said gagwary Sheriff Harold Sexton to the man who telephoned to say he was tired of being a fugitive. "If you want to be arrested, drop around to my office," he signed, and hung up. The fellow showed up in half an hour. He was wanted in Tacoma, Wash., for passing bad cheques.

Sea Rescue By Plane

After 12 days at sea on a lifeboat following the sinking of his ship in the North Atlantic, Terrence James Bradley, of New York, a seaman, was rescued by a United States patrol plane. In a weakened condition, he is shown being carried ashore. The plane is shown in the background. This is the first indication that planes are being used to effect the rescue of U.S. seamen. Joseph Dieseltiers of New York, also on the liferaft, died as a result of the untold hardships. Their ships, of Panamanian registry, was torpedoed without warning on the 20th day of April.

doctor's office, and Miss E. Lucy, who was in training at Nicholls Hospital last Fall, but who now works in the tool stores.

A horizontal milling machine is run by Ruby Martin, who used to work in Payne's Grill. She was prompted to give up the job so that she might contribute to Canada's war effort. Polly MacCormick, who runs a vertical milling machine, also felt the urge to do her bit and so left home to take a job.

How about the effect of machine work on the hands? Most of the girls said it didn't make any difference, but Miss E. Rudyard of the Tool Grinding department said the girls there found their nails and hands losing a little of their feminine beauty.

Able To Repair Machines

The girl not only run the machines, but in many cases they can repair them, too. A "Do-All" saw broke down and the operator, with no hesitation, immediately began to fix it.

Turrett and engine lathes are handled with no particular effort, although the men set up the machines. The only place where girls do the setting up is in the Tool Grinding department, and there also seems to be the same easy handling of the difficult vertical and horizontal milling machines.

Everything possible for the girls' health and happiness has been attended to. The locker rooms are disinfected twice a day, and tea and coffee are served at lunch for girls on night shifts.

The company supplies each girl with a bandana and coverall for her working hours, and recently there has been a welfare service established under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Walker. Her job is to see that everything is done for the girls' comfort and to handle any personal problems that the girls may care to bring to her.

There is an extremely fine hospital set-up. Besides a first-aid room, there are two wards with beds. For such a large plant, the casualties are surprisingly few, for both men and women, and most accidents can be avoided by the simple use of safety rules.

Throughout the whole plant, everyone was intensely interested in her job. They are not only contributing a great deal to our war effort, but they enjoy doing it. So citizens, salute the girls "behind the guns."

St. James' Boys

van 9 to 6 and apparently salted the ball game away.

However the United Church representatives still had a kick left and it exploded in the first of the seventh. With two on and one out Clint Welsh boomed a long homer to right field to tie the score at 9 to 9 and Jack Harris, next batter up, hit to left field for three bases and completed the circuit with the winning run on a bad throw to third. The St. James' team pushed another counter over before the side was retired to cinch their win.

All Saints' failed to score in their half of the inning. Reg. Leether went the distance on the rubber for the winners and pitched good ball. Bill Jones was the losing hurler.

The game was opened with suitable ceremonies. Rev. E. W. Rowland of Mark Street Church, president of the Ministerial Association, pitched the first ball, Dave Leether, O.A.S.A. executive member, was the batter and Len Agnew, president of the Church League was the catcher.

The teams:

St. James': Rood, c; Dorrell, 2b; Welsh, 3b; J. Harris, ss; J. White, lf; Leether, p; Seabrook, 1b; Woodcock, cf; Downer, rf; Goodman, rf.

All Saints': Frank, 3b; Chambers, ss; Detlor, lf; Carpenter, cf; Edgar, 1b; Hill, 3b; Jones, p; Outram, c; Filer, rf.

By innings:

St. James' .... 200 013 5—11
All Saints' .... 010 404 0— 9

BORN

POWER.—At St. Joseph's Hospital to Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Power (nee Betty Clark), of Ottawa, formerly of Peterborough, on Saturday, May 9, 1942, a daughter.

ENGAGEMENTS

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Darling, Stewart street, wish to announce the engagement of their youngest daughter, Elva Madeline, to Edward Joseph Clancy, only son of Mrs. Evelyn O'Reilly and the late Mr. Jack Clancy. The wedding will take place quietly this month.

DIED

O'KEEFE, Mrs. Rose.—On Monday, May 11, 1942, Mrs. Rose O'Keefe of 79 Lansdowne street, at Hotel Dieu Hospital, Kingston. Mrs. O'Keefe will repose at her late residence from Tuesday evening and funeral announcements will be made in the next issue of this paper.

IN MEMORIAM

WILLIAMS.—In loving memory of our dear grandmother, Mrs. J. B. Williams, who passed away a year ago to-day, May 12, 1941.

To-day recalls sad memories of a dear grandmother gone to rest,
And the ones who think of her to-day are the ones who loved her best.
God knew what she was suffering, and the hills were hard to climb,
So He closed her weary eyelids, and whispered, "Peace be thine."
—Sadly missed by Granddaughters Dorothy and Mildred.

WILLIAMS.—In loving memory of my dear mother, Mrs. J. B. Williams, who passed away one year ago, May 12, 1941.

Dear mother, you have passed beyond us,
'Twas but a year ago to-day;
It seems more like a hundred years
Since God took you away.
I watched beside your bedside
As the lonely hours passed,
And how my heart was broken
When I saw you breathe your last.
God knows how much I miss her,
Never shall her memory fade,
Loving thoughts shall ever wander
To the spot where you are laid.
—Ever remembered by her daughter Margaret, and Family.

HEWITT.—In loving memory of Thomas Hewitt, who died May 11, 1934.

It's only a grave, but it still needs care,
For the one we loved lies sleeping there;
Some may forget him now he's gone,
But we'll never forget him, no matter how long.
—Wife and Family.

GOSELIN.—In loving memory of my dear mother, Mrs. Isadore Goselin, who died four years ago to-day.

Peaceful be thy rest, dear mother,
It is sweet to breathe thy name;
In life we loved you dearly,
In death we do the same.
—Ever remembered by her son-in-law, daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. McIntosh, Ford Avenue.

WILLIAMS.—In loving memory of Mrs. Annie Williams, who passed away, May 12, 1941.

We miss her when we need a friend,
On her we always could depend;
She cheered us in sickness and soothed our pain,
God grant some day we'll meet again.
—Fondly remembered by her son George, Mrs. Williams and Grandchildren.

CARDS OF THANKS

The family of the late Mrs. John McLean wishes to thank The Examiner and employees, the Ancient Order of Foresters and all kind friends for flowers and expressions of sympathy during their recent sad bereavement.

The family of the late Mrs. Sarah McLean wishes to thank their friends and neighbors, the Rev. H. N. Bracken, attending physician, the Belleghem's Funeral Home, Hunter street, for their kindness during our recent sad bereavement.

Practical Aid

ment is to give them air, and provide blankets, hot water bottle and anything to raise the body temperature. Give the necessary first aid, but be sure to get the patient to the doctor in no worse shape than you found him. Collapse is simply a more severe case of shock.

"Compression and concussion make up the fourth part. The brain is loose within the skull, suspended by membranes. If given a severe shaking, a rupture of a brain vessel will result, forcing more pressure on the brain cavity. A strong blow on one side of the head will result in an injury to the opposite side because the brain swings with the pressure. An injury to the brain may be temporary disarrangement of the molocules, and rest will restore them.

"Lastly there is asphyxia, which is suffocation, or interference with gases in the lungs. If shut off from air or weights on the chest hampering muscles, the effect is the same as that of being under water. If the air is laden with poison gases the effect will be the same. Death may result from a broken gas main. The treatment is artificial respiration whether it be from gas, pressure or ater plus a little common sense."

Physical Injuries

"Then there are the physical injuries. Hemmorage is serious, not for the red matter lost, but for the water content lost. If a certain amount is lost, death is almost inevitable. A common cure for this is the injection of salt water, not salty water, to restore the volume of body fluids. There are two kinds of hemmorage and the first external or evident is easy to recognize. It in turn is subdivided into veinous and arterial. In the case of the veinous it oozes and drips and there is no great force and if sufficient pressure is exerted, it will stop the bleeding.

"Arterial is forceful and it comes in spurts. If simple pressure fails to stop the bleeding, exert sufficient pressure above the wound to shut off the flow. Always put pressure as near the point of bleeding as possible to shut off the supply."

Fractures

"Then there are simple and compound fractures. A simple fracture does not involve vital organs or outside the skin. Bones piercing the vital organs or protruding through the skin are much more serious. The skin surface is always infected and with the bone through the skin, infection is often involved. A simple fracture may easily be turned into a compound fracture. Be careful. Do not pick up patients until you are sure they will not be made worse. The bones must be immobilized with splints on the injury and the joints below and above the wound. Dislocations should be left to the doctor to remedy. They are recognizable by the change in normal contour."

Burns

"Burns and scalds are also important. Burns are due to dry heat from direct fire or a hot instrument and also to acid. Scalds are caused by liquid heat. There are 1st, 2nd, and 3rd degree burns. The first involves only the superficial layer of skin, the second a deeper layer of skin and the third concerns the tissues and muscles beneath the skin.

"First degree burns are the most dangerous and painful. The extent of the burn is serious. If a third of the surface is denuded of skin it mean death. To reduce pain, avoid the cold air and cover wound. Tanic acid jelly is a common form of treatment. The jelly forms a protective covering and causes coagulation and thus cuts off the air and infection. If tannic acid is unavailable, use vaseline or olive oil. Spread first on the cloth and then place them on the wound. Never open blisters. Nature has something to sterilize the skin under it."

Demonstration Given

Four men gave practical demonstrations of bandaging. They were Cpl. P. O'Toole, A. Watkins, G. Smith and H. G. Rumary. They illustrated head and arm bandaging, lower jaw fracture, fractured ribs, shoulder wounds, chest injury and injured and fractued hips.

The meeting closed with the announcement by J. E. Sullivan, chairman, that instead of the regular lecture scheduled for next Sunday and Monday, "War Gases" and "Personal Protection Against Gas" will be given by Dr. D. B. Avison, Mr. Edwin Curtis, and Assistant Fire Chief, George Smith.

Brand New Pup Needs Best of Care

Depends on You

Do you know how to repay puppy love? Is that brand-new, sleepy-eyed, wet-nosed ball of fluff dependent on your care for his well-being? Then see that he gets the right care.

Puppies are as helpless as babies. They, too, get sick, often fatally, from wrong food or exposure. They, too, are naughty as a result of wrong training.

See that your puppy has warm but well-ventilated quarters and warm (but not hot) food. Also give raw or cooked meat daily, as well as milk, from the time he's three weeks old.

In housebreaking, take him outside five minutes to an hour after he eats. But not in places where dogs with distemper have been!

Such simple care is about all a little dog needs to keep him happy. But at four months you'll want to start training him to obey commands.

Our 32-page booklet shows how to train a dog to be obedient and do clever tricks. Tells food dogs may eat; how to housebreak them, groom them. Gives symptoms and treatment of common dog ailments, including distemper; also how many ailments may be avoided.

For your copy of "How to Choose and Care for Your Dog," send 15 cents in coins or stamps to Peterborough Examiner Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

DOUBLING DEDUCTIVELY

INSISTING upon having a probable defensive trick in the trump suit, before you decide to make a business double, is a pretty good rule as a generality. Sometimes, though, it pays to go to the other extreme and double on a bunch of side strength if you reckon that your partner may be able to take a trump trick. The limit of this reasoning is found when you have not a solitary trump in your hand, and consequently know that your partner has all of the defensive trumps bunched against the declarer in a single string.

North: ♠ K 6 ♥ None ♦ 7 4 2 ♣ Q 10 9 8 6 5 4 2

West: ♠ A 10 8 7 3 ♥ None ♦ A 10 9 5 3 ♣ K J 7

East: ♠ Q J 9 5 2 ♥ J 9 4 3 ♦ J 8 6 ♣ 3

South: ♠ 4 ♥ A K Q 10 8 7 6 5 2 ♦ K Q ♣ A

(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
3♣	Pass	5♥	Dbl
Pass	Pass	Rdbl

Here was a case of fine bidding proving useless because of the vagaries of distribution and the acumen of a defender.

Harold C. Richard, star of the Manhattan club of New York, made that sound effort to shut out the opponents with his opener of 3-Clubs, and his partner made an equally clever bid by calling 5-Hearts for two purposes. One was to make it hard for the opponents to overcall in spades if one of them had a long string, and the other was to make sure that his partner would go to 6-Hearts if he happened to hold a blank suit and a couple of hearts.

Their fine work proved a boomerang when C. Edward Van Vleck, Jr., great defensive bidder of the Whist club, reasoned that he probably could take two tricks, and there was a great chance his partner could get one in trumps, especially since his own double might make the declarer misplay. South, of course, could not resist the temptation to redouble.

It is not difficult to see how easy it was to set this contract by taking two aces and then waiting until South had to give East a heart trick.

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠ 8 ♥ Q 8 4 2 ♦ A K J ♣ A Q J 6 3

West: ♠ 10 5 2 ♥ 9 6 5 ♦ 9 6 5 4 2 ♣ 7 2

East: ♠ 9 ♥ A K J 7 3 ♦ Q 10 8 3 ♣ K 8 4

South: ♠ A K Q J 7 6 4 3 ♥ 10 ♦ 7 ♣ 10 9 5

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

If, when the heart 9 is led, a garrulous East remarks, "Here's one you won't make," how should South play this deal for 6-Spades, after the heart K is led to the second trick?

Dies In Edmonton

EDMONTON, May 11—(CP).—J. A. McNeil, 58, secretary-manager of the Edmonton branch of the Alberta Motor Association for the past 15 years, died in hospital last night following a short illness. Mr. McNeill was born in Bobcaygeon, Ont., and taught school in Eastern Canada before coming west in 1909.

HUMORS OF MANOEUVRES

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA, England—(CP).—Local policemen on their beats are proudly sporting bruised and battered profiles for everybody to see. Members of a Civil Defence unit, they repulsed a surprise Commando raid on their headquarters and mopped up the "friendly" attackers in hand-to-hand street fighting.

Campbellford Trent Scouts Practice Pace

CAMPBELLFORD, May 12. — (ENS).—Boy Scouts here tramped up to the Fair Ground for their meeting on Friday since the Parish Hall was being utilized by another organization. They made good use of the evening according to Acting Scoutmaster Jack Connor, and one of the things they did was to do some practising on what is known as the Scout's pace—a system by which they are easily able to run a mile in twelve minutes. Six of the Scouts took part in this exercise but none did the entire distance. They contented themselves by doing the half mile. Semaphore signalling was also practised during the evening.

Final Euchre.

What was announced as their final bridge and euchre party of the season was given by Christ Church Parish Guild on Friday evening. The event attracted a fair number and the bridge winners for bridge were Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hartley, with Miss Mayme Benor and Mr Frank Chapman getting consolation awards. Euchre prizes went to Mrs. George Grills, Mr. Mat Sergeant and consolations to Mrs. Cecil Buckles and Miss Jean Stephens. Guild President Mrs. R. A. Linton who presented the prizes expressed her thanks on behalf of the organization to all who contributed to its success.

Mission Band Program.

Some overseas tales from a book of the same name provided an interesting feature of the regular meeting of Burnbrae Mission Band on Saturday. The girls met at Mrs. E. C. Pollock's during the afternoon and Misses Lillian Fry and Jean Ingram formed the program committee. Miss Bernice Baxter assisted with the devotional period and the roll call was answered by the Apostles' Creed. Others taking part in the program were Ruth Bedford, Elaine Ingram and Dorothy Billen, each of whom gave readings Their June meeting will be held at Mrs. Wm. Fry's.

Personals.

Flt. Lieut. 'Bill' Boyd of Trenton spent the week-end as guest of his sister, Mrs. Chas. Couch and Mr. Couch, Front street.

Mr. J. Anderson of Toronto, visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Anderson, Queen street, during the week-end

Pte. R. J. Jarvis, Kingston, spent Sunday with members of his family here.

Miss Reta Palliser, Peterborough, visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Palliser, Oliver Rd., over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Jones, Toronto, were guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Poulon, Sr., during the week-end.

Mrs. Jack Schaeffer, Toronto, is spending a few days with friends in town

Fired First Shot Of War With Japan

The gun crew on the U.S.S. Ward stands by the shiny five-incher that fired the first shot against Japan in the current war. Although aware of the historic import of the shot they fired, they have not lessened their vigilance one whit. With Corregidor fallen they know that Hawaii may well be the next big battlefield of the Pacific.

Five Categories For U.S. Drivers

WASHINGTON, May 12 (CP)—Price Administrator Leon Henderson Saturday night set the basic gasoline ration for non-essential motorists in the eastern seaboard of the United States at three gallons a week, effective next Friday, as a wartime measure to conserve the fuel.

As a result of the ruling, office of Price Administration officials said, passenger-car drivers who hold seven-unit "A" cards will be entitled to purchase a total of twenty-one gallons of gasoline for the forty-seven-day period from May 15 to July 1, when the permanent plan is to start.

Under the planned rationing system as announced by the O.P.A., five types of cards entitling holders to varying amounts of gasoline for the forty-seven-day period will be issued. They are:

"A" cards—Allowing non-essential motorists driving less than six miles a day twenty-one gallons.

"B-1" cards—Allowing thirty-three gallons to those who "must" drive six to ten miles a day.

"B-2" cards—Allowing forty-seven gallons to those who must drive ten to fourteen miles a day.

"B-3" cards—Allowing fifty-seven gallons to those who must drive more than fourteen miles a day.

"X" cards—For "essential" drivers such as doctors who cannot predict their daily mileage, giving unlimited gasoline for essential uses only.

New Spitfires Outfight Huns

LONDON, May 12 — (CP). — R.A.F. sweeps over Occupied France have proved that the latest models of the Spitfire plane are superior to the German Air Force's newest Focke Wulfe-190 fighters and are the "finest all round single seater fighters at present in operation," the Air Ministry declared last night.

"The Focke Wulf-190 has a very high rate of climb but our fighters can counter-act this by being able to turn within a similar area and there is no comparison in armament," the Ministry reported.

The Air Ministry said the Germans are being forced to keep 50 per cent. of their fighter strength on the Western front to meet the R.A.F. and that pilots returning from recent sweeps said they had seen Messerschmitt-109s which were used in the Battle of Britain, indicating the Nazis are being forced to draw upon reserves.

The Ministry said that in its offensive sweeps the R.A.F. expected heavier losses than the Germans who are fighting over their own territory, but that the "reverse had been the case."

The R.A.F. is determined to obtain complete fighter supremacy no matter what the cost, the Ministry said.

It reported that the Germans lately had not engaged the sweeps en masse but were flying within sight of the fighter wings in hopes of luring back some fighters "when a gasline shortage might be serious in a protracted dogfight."

Syntona Proves Big Help Second Time In Four Years

"First Relieved Me of Stomach and Kidney Disorders in 1938 and Now Again It Has Come To My Aid In Relieving Nervous, Rundown Condition," Says Mr. John McKechnie.

JOHN McKECHNIE

"After the good experiences I have had with Syntona I feel that I cannot speak too highly of this herb and root medicine," said Mr. John McKechnie, 72 Clements Street, London, Ont. recently.

"I first became acquainted with Syntona in 1938 when I was suffering with stomach and kidneys disorders. I had a dull aching pain across my back and was compelled to rise three or four times each night to relieve my kidneys. My stomach was so upset that I could seldom enjoy a meal without suffering with gas, bloating and acidity.

"I had tried many remedies, but got no real relief. Then I started taking Syntona. Gradually my troubles began to disappear. The backache went away. I could eat without any digestive trouble after, my sleep became sound and restful, and in a few weeks I was feeling fit and well.

"I remained in good health up to a few months ago when I became badly rundown. I felt weak and tired and my nerves were such that I thought I was on the verge of a nervous breakdown. I'd get terrible dizzy spells and aches and pains all through my arms and limbs. Remembering how Syntona had helped me before I decided to try it again and now for the second time it has given me wonderful results. After taking it faithfully for six weeks I am like a different person. I have regained my lost strength and put on some much-needed weight. My nerves have calmed down. I do not get those sickening dizzy spells any more and the aches and pains have gone away.

"Syntona is the best medicine I've every found and I highly endorse it to everyone."

Rely upon Syntona, the favorite medicine of Peterboro residents for several years. It contains 12 herbs and roots which act on stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels. It aids assimilation of food for increased energy and resistance and in ridding the system of excess acids and poisonous waste matter.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Peterborough at Elliott's Drug Store.—(Advt.)

Jail For Witchcraft

Montreal, May 11 (CP).

TWO women and a man were tenced by Judge Amedee Monet yesterday after they pleaded guilty to charges of "witchcraft." They gave their names as Professor J. A. Lenoir, Madame Gaby and Madame Cecile.

Judge Monet sentenced the man to one month in jail, plus a $500 fine and costs. An alternative of six months in jail was offered on failure to produce the fine and costs. The women were fined $25 and costs or one month in jail.

DEMAND FOR "WHEELERS"

LONDON—(CP). — Shortage of tires had given a fillip to the old wheelwright craft which before the war had declined badly as hundreds of trailers used by farmers and various country workers soon will have to have wheels without tires.

Photos Reveal Disastrous Toll By R.A.F.

LONDON, May 12. — Aerial reconnaissance has established that the R.A.F. seriously crippled German U-boat construction in recent heavy raids on Kiel shipyards and a Cologne motor plant, the Air Ministry announced to-day.

Aerial photographs of damage done at Kiel German naval base on the Baltic where R.A.F. bombers left large fires burning early on April 29, showed that a direct hit had destroyed two bays in the vital plate-laying sheds of the Krupp Germania submarine building yards.

A large liner some 500 feet long in the inner construction basin at Kiel was burned out completely, it said, and two main shops of a wire cable factory also were burned.

Photographs taken at Cologne, third largest German city, which last was bombed early on April 28, showed that nine bays of a large factory of the Humboldt Deutz Works, on the east bank of the Rhine, were burned out and five or six smaller buildings were damaged.

These works are said to produce mainly Diesel motors for submarines.

In Rolshoren, Cologne suburb, two large shops of the Citroen Motor Works were gutted and damage to a nearby railway indicated that it had been hit by a stick of bombs, the Ministry said.

Many warehouses in the inland dock area of Cologne also were burned out, as well as two buildings of the gas works in the Ehrenfield district. The Eifeltor freight yard was damaged.

At Dortmund, in the eastern end of the Ruhr Valley, a large steel works of many buildings on the south side of Weissenburg Strasse was severely damaged. The plant was understood to be engaged in constructional engineering.

The Air Ministry said the photographs were taken some time after the plant was last bombed, but there was no sign of activity.

LAKEFIELD

Junior Red Cross Tea A Success

LAKEFIELD, May 12—(ENS).—Socially and financially, the Junior Red Cross Tea, sale of cooking and bazaar articles, was a success in the Parish Hall on Friday afternoon. A splendid crowd was in attendance.

An excellent assortment of goods proved attractive to the visiting ladies and proceeds amounted to over $17.00. In charge of the afternoon's proceedings were President Miss Helen Kelly, Vice President Miss Jean Frankish, Secretary Miss Rose Wong and Treasurer Miss Doris Jackman.

A pleasant hour or two was spent at tea served very efficiently by Misses Jean Millar, Murietta Hull, Lillian Calberry, Helen Peel, Pauline Butcher, Betty Lake, Jean Spence, Joan Pue, Evelyn Peel, Dorothy Bullock, Betty Bullock, Betty Hill, Elizabeth Ketchum and Minta Pearson.

The home cooking booth was capably managed by Misses Jean Frankish and Doris Jackman, while Misses Ruth Murphy and Jean Nichols displayed and sold the bazaar articles.

Girls of the High School Glee club received considerable praise for their splendid performance at the recital put on by their teacher, Mr. Charles Renaud, at George Street United Church on Friday evenign.

Among those taking part were Misses Jean Tanner, Evelyn Peel, Betty Hill, Della Hefferman, Elsie Hopkins, Shirley Graham, Jean Graham, Betty Millage, Helen Kelly, Betty Lake, Pauline Butcher, Helen Peel, Shirley Sloan, Lillian Calberry, Doreen Northey, Mary Hendren, Ruth Murphy, Elizabeth Watson, Minta Pearson, Theresa Spencer, Mabel Hopkins, Joan Pue, Betty Bullock, Jean Spencer, Jean Millar, Jean Crawford, Murietta Hull and Mabel Hockaday.

Those who conveyed the girls to the recital were Reeve Charles Tanner, Massers. Jack Aymer and Harry Stabler and Miss Grace Yonge. The girls were entertained at lunch after the performance.

Mrs. Earl Waldie New President Roseneath W.I.

ROSENEATH, May 12—(ENS)—The annual meeting of the W.I. was held on Friday afternoon in the Town Hall. Mrs. Clarence Down was hostess and Mrs. C. Grigg, president, was in the chair.

Perhaps the outstanding report was that of the war work done the past year by the members. This report presented by Mrs. Frank Brown, secretary-treasurer, also war work secretary, revealed 19 quilts made and donated by members, in some instances quilted at home, although the majority were quilted during regular meeting hours.

The lining, batting and thread were provided by the society at a cost of $18.90. There were 71 pairs of socks knitted during the year, and 47 pairs were distributed to local and Alderville enlistments, with 24 pairs on hand. $25.03 was spent for sock yarn, and $6.28 for yarn for mitts, and 26 pairs of seamen's mitts knitted. $5 was spent to purchase material from which was made 10 dresses and 10 pairs of bloomers for a five-year-old child, for refugee relief. Quilts, mitts, dresses and bloomers were handed in to the local Red Cross branch along with a donation of $10.

Ninety-six pounds of honey were purchased at a cost of $8.64 and shipped to headquarters along with 48 pounds of jam and 48 pounds of jelly made by the society. A donation of $5 was made to the central fund to purchase seeds for Britain. In all $78.88 was spent for war work, in addition to the labor.

As secretary-treasurer of the society, Mrs. Brown reported 47 members on the roll, 12 meetings held.

The financial statement showed receipts of $143.85, including a balance of $40.83 from the previous year, and $56.10 from the sale of pie and ice cream. Card parties and donations added up to $17.90.

The expenses including disbursements for war work totaled $134.25, leaving a bank balance of $9.60.

The auditors' statement was presented by Mrs. B. Thackeray and Mrs. Harold Taylor.

Miss Ruby Blodgett, convener of the Sunshine committee, reported the sick and bereaved, remembered with four boxes of fruit, 2 sympathy cars, 3 birthday cards, and 2 boxes handerchiefs. At Christmas 8 boxes of candy, 2 boxes of fruit, and 4 cards were distributed totalling $6.27. In addition, Christmas cards were mailed to local enlistments overseas. Two personal calls were made by the committee also.

Election of Officers

Mrs. A. Nill presided for the election of officers. Mrs. C. Grigg, president for the past year, retired from office as she is in line for district president. Mrs. Frank Brown, secretary-treasurer for the past five yeas, retired also.

Ms. Brown has established something of a record for perfect attendance during her term of office, having missed only one meeting during the five years. It might be mentioned her absence on that occasion was due to the birth of her third daughter, now in her fourth years.

Mrs. Charles Sandercock, district director, retired from office also.

Mrs. Leslie Sherwin, convener of the nominating committee, presented the slate of officers, which was adopted.

President, Mrs. Earl Waldie; vice-president, Mrs. Harold Taylor; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. S. Thackeray; district director, Mrs. B. Thackeray.

Mrs. C. W. Varcoe moved a vote of thanks to the retiring officers.

The president-elect then took the chair, and committees and additional officers were appointed.

Branch directors: Mrs. Alfred Braithwaite, Mrs. A. Halstead, Mrs. Frank Nichol and Mrs. George Mouncey. Program committee: Mrs. Frank Brown, Mrs. J. W. Pacey, Mrs. Edgar Braithwaite, and Mrs. Clarence Down.; Pianist: Miss Doreen Nichol; assistant, Mrs. C. W. Varcoe., Conceners of standing committees. — Agriculture and Canadian Industry: Mrs. Clarence Down. Home economics: Mrs. L. Tucker. Historical Research and Current Events: Mrs. C. Braithwaite. Citizenship and Social Welfare: Mrs. Clarence Thackeray. Publicity: Mrs. A. Nill; Resolutions: Mrs. L. Sherwin. War Work: the Secretary-Treasurer.

Voting delegates to district annual: the President, Vice-president, District Director and Mrs. Frank Brown.

Following a discussion, it was decided to make jam and jelly for the Red Cross, provided the sugar is supplied from the central sugar fund. Mrs. Pacey was appointed jam convener.

It was decided also to purchase and donate one case of honey to the Red Cross, and Mrs. S. Thackeray and Miss Doreen Nichol were named a honey committee.

The district annual will be held on June 5 at Roseneath and committees named were as follows: Reception: Mrs. Frank Nichol and Mrs. J. W. Pacey. Registration: Mrs. A. Nill. Decorating committees, for place of meeting: Mrs. H. Taylor and Mrs. Edgar Braithwaite. For place of eating: Mrs. George Mouncey and Mrs. L. Sherwin.

12 Days On Reef

Melbourne, May 12 (SCP)

A Royal Australian Air Force pilot is recovering in a hospital today after spending 12 days without food on a rocky barrier reef where he sought refuge when his plane crashed in the sea.

The pilot gained the reef by swimming seven miles through shark-infested waters while clinging to an air cushion. Three companions drowned.

The lone survivor was without water until the fourth day on the reef, when rain filled small depressions in the rock. He finally was spotted by another plane, which sent assistance.

Anglican Protest

MONTREAL, May 12 — (CP). — Rev. C. G. Stevens said on Thursday at the closing session of the Synod of the Anglican Diocese of Montreal that the CBC "in some of its actions seems to discriminate against the Church of England."

Mr. Stevens referred particularly to what he said was the cutting off of a radio program from England on the enthronement of the Archbishop of Canterbury on April 23.

Big Raids On Hun Hearten Blitzed London

By PAT USSHER
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

OTTAWA, May 11.—(CP).—Prime Minister Churchill's declaration that the bombing offensive against Germany "will be one of the principal features in this year's world war," coming as it did exactly one year after the biggest and most destructive Nazi mass air raid on London, must have heartened the 8,000,000-odd people who went through that attack.

Some 500 planes of the Luftwaffe flew over London on the night of May 10-11, 1941, dropping thousands of high explosive and incendiary bombs, killing more than 1,000 people and causing immense damage. The planes came over at dark and stayed till dawn.

I remember that raid, vividly, because I was attached to The Canadian Press staff in London at the time.

Raid - hammered Londoners — those who had been through all the German air attacks on the city—agreed it was the worst ordeal the capital had undergone.

All through the hours of darkness there was never a moment when the drone of German bombers could not be heard in the sky. Listeners lost count of the number of times they heard the spine-chilling screech that meant a high-explosive bomb dropping.

It seemed incredible that anything could be left standing, so terrific was the attack and so great the volume of bombs unloaded.

Bomb Marks Everywhere.

The light of day showed no part of the sprawling city had escaped the fury of the Nazi attack. In places whole blocks were demolished.

But it was the costliest of all the Nazi mass raids on London. They lost 33 planes shot down and many others damaged.

And it was the last heavy aerial assault delivered against Britain before Germany began diverting her bomber strength to the eastern front for the attack on Russia which started a month later.

Now, as Mr. Churchill told his listeners Sunday "the boot is on the other leg.' The full weight of air warfare is being carried to Germany and Germany's industrial centres will feel it in ever-growing intensity until the war is ended.

RAILINGS IN MUNITIONS

LONDON—(CP). — Gates and railings collected by the Works Ministry from 69 boroughs in the London civil defence region can now be said to be "in action" having produced 30,000 tons of metals for munitions.

ASHBURNHAM

Are You Getting Ready For the Big SALVAGE COLLECTION DAY Next Thursday, May 14th

This is a call to every one living East of the Otonabee River, within the City limits, to collect all SALVAGE materials they can find around their homes, such as rubber, metals of all kinds, bottles (other than milk bottles) rags, newspapers, magazines, etc., and put them out in front of your premises where you usually put your garbage, for the trucks to pick up.

ASHBURNHAM has been divided into six districts, for the collection of rubber, metals and bottles, and this collection will start at 6 o'clock in the evening of Thursday next, when an army of trucks, supervised by City Engineer Parsons, will do the job in a hurry.

Important—The collection of paper is being made by the regular Salvage truck, starting at 10 o'clock in the morning and if you would tie the newspapers in one parcel, the magazines in another, and other scrap paper, such as wrapping paper, etc. in still another parcel, it would facilitate sorting.

REMEMBER. Salvage is a vital War need, so "go to it" Ashburnham and give the Salvage Committee a record return, in this the first systematic salvage collection in the city.

REDS HOLD OWN IN BATTLE FOR CAUCASUS GATEWAY

Save 2 Crews In St. Lawrence Torpedoing

A ST. LAWRENCE RIVER PORT, May 13—(CP) —Nearly half of the more than four score survivors of a vessel torpedoed two days ago in the St. Lawrence River were reported to The Canadian Press today to have come from a vessel other than the one sunk by the first enemy submarine ever to invade the river waters.

Reports from various sources have indicated that either 87 or 88 survivors of the torpedo-sinking announced in Ottawa yesterday by Navy Minister Macdonald have reached land. Forty-one survivors are said to have been crew members of the vessel announced by the Navy Minister to have been sunk in the St. Lawrence. Others were aboard the same vessel but are said to have come originally from another ship.

It was impossible to obtain any information as to what had happened to the second vessel. A reliable source at one of the points along the St. Lawrence River would only offer the information that "some of the survivors were originally from a ship other than the one announced yesterday as sunk."

Picked Up Elsewhere

The possibility was seen that these survivors might have been picked up elsewhere than in the St. Lawrence.

A Canadian Press correspondent at a St. Lawrence River point said he had been informed that two men are missing from the torpedoing announced by the navy minister. This correspondent said the information that two men are missing had come from one of the survivors.

The survivor was reported to have said that the two men had been asleep in their quarters near the bow of the ship. It was believed they were injured by the first of the two torpedoes which crashed into the vessel. The first torpedo struck the bow and the second, fired when the submarine surfaced, plunged into the mid-section.

Sub Uses Spotlight

When the submarine surfaced, it was said to have shone its spotlight on the already-stricken vessel. Then, with the vessel clearly outlined in the blaze of light, the second torpedo was sent crashing home.

Although it was not confirmed from survivors, residents along the river were said to have heard gunfire—either indicating that the submarine had fired shells at the ship or that the ship was fighting back. No report was available immediately as to how many shells, if any, were actually fired.

Earlier, a tight censorship of news from a nearby fishing village, where some of the survivors are resting, prevented confirmation of reports some lives had been lost.

Hitler's "Surprise Weapon" Shell That Deafens, Immobilizes, Tried On Reds

Claim Poison Gasses That Escape In Burst Not Chemical Battle Material, Missile Improved Version Of Belgian Test

By THOMAS HAWKINS
Associated Press Staff Writer

BERNE, Switzerland, May 13—(AP).—An explanation of the German Foreign Office, as quoted here by the Neue Zuercher Zeitung, indicated today that Germany's "surprise weapon" in the Kerch offensive probably is a new type shell which detonates with such intensity as to deafen and immobilize persons over a wide area and which generates gas as a byproduct.

The Germans have announced they would not use gas as a weapon of attack but this version indicated they may consider gas freed in the bursting of high-explosive shells a different matter.

The German Foreign Office explanation as quoted by the Swiss paper said "naturally there are poisonous gases which escape when modern explosives are detonated, but that does not mean chemical battle material."

Foreign military experts here concluded that the shells probably were an improved version of those reported to have been used in the Belgian campaign, the chief effect of which was temporarily to stupefy large numbers of combatants.

The Zurich newspaper correspondent said the Germans claimed their new weapon had taken the Russians by surprise.

No Extended Push

Regardless of various new weapons being employed by the Germans, including new types of bombers and fighters, foreign military experts said there are indications that Germany still is not able to launch her long-predicted big drive.

The present Kerch offensive was described as an effort to gain more favorable fighting positions to launch the big offensive.

But Berlin military spokesmen's remarks left the inference that Germany has abandoned any plan for a concerted drive on all the eastern fronts.

Following the Kerch offensive, if it succeeds, a Berlin spokesman declared, "the undertaking on the central portion of the front will be just as important."

US Ensign Saves Quezon Family

WATERTOWN, N.Y., May 13—(AP).—Ensign George E. Cox saved the lives of Philippines President Manuel Quezon and his family during a torpedo-boat trip through the South Pacific, it was disclosed today upon his arrival here for a civic dinner in his honor.

Cox 27-year-old hero of torpedo boat attacks on Japanese ships in Subic Bay, was reluctant to discuss his exploits, brushing them aside as "merely in line of duty."

But a Philippine Government citation for a Distinguished Conduct Star, disclosed that, during the escape of the Quezons from the islands in a torpedo boat, two torpedoes shook loose in their tubes due to the rough passage.

Cox left his post behind the wheel and assisted in the release of the torpedoes, the machanisms of which had been set into action. This act, the citation reads, "saved the persons on board the motor torpedo boat from death."

Sees Sudden End

PHILADELPHIA, May 13—(AP). —Sir Norman Birkett, British High Court Justice, predicts the war will end suddenly and victoriously for the United Nations. "The war will be won by the close co-operation of the American and the English people," he said last night at the 20th annual meeting of the American Law Institute. "No man can say just how the end will come—but it will come suddenly."

Vichy Replies

VICHY, May 13—(AP).—The Vichy government announced tonight that it had sent a reply to a United States note concerning Martinique which "has given rise to grave questions."

The text of the Vichy reply was not disclosed, but a communique said the American note had been submitted to "thorough examination" after the hurried return of Marshal Petain, Chief of State, to Vichy from vacation early this week.

Canuck 'Breaker Fights For Reds White Sea Job

OTTAWA, May 13—(CP).—The Canadian icebreaker Montcalm has arrived safely in Northern Russia and will remain at the service of the Soviet government for the duration of the war, it was announced today by the Department of External Affairs.

The Montcalm is the second Canadian icebreaker to serve in those waters under war conditions. Toward the end of the First Great War an icebreaker newly-built at Glasgow for the Canadian government was loaned to Russia by the British government, with the consent of Canada.

The Montcalm is a ship of 1,432 gross tons and has been in the Canadian service for many years on the St. Lawrence river and Atlantic coast.

The ship sailed from Canada under the command of Capt. F. S. Slocombe of Toronto, one of the permanent officials of the Department of Transport, and with a crew of 60 officers and seamen all signed up in Canada.

The master and crew were to deliver the ship to the Russians who will operate it themselves. The Canadians are expected back in Canada shortly.

Final arrangements regarding the financial aspect of the transfer have not been settled and officials were unable to say whether the ship is being sold or chartered to Russia.

RAF Down 13 German Troop Planes

Into Sea Off Africa; Malta's Harasser And Rommel Sent East

CAIRO, Egypt, May 13.—(AP).—Thirteen Junkers 52's, the German troop-carrying planes, and two of their Messerschmitt escorts were shot down yesterday into the sea off North Africa, the Royal Air Force announced to-day. Still others may have been destroyed, a communique said, with only one British plane lost.

(There was no word whether the German planes were carrying troops or where they were bound when the R.A.F. intercepted them. The Junkers 52, carrying a score or more troops, has been used in all the German invasion campaigns to date, both for parachutists and for the transport of regular infantrymen to hot spots.)

In addition to the fight off North Africa, the R.A.F. reported destruction of four Messerschmitts over Malta Monday afternoon and Tuesday morning and of a Heinkel 111 over the eastern Mediterranean on Monday. Two British fighters were listed as missing.

At the same time London stated Field Marshal Erwin Rommel has been withdrawn from his command of German forces in Libya and may be given a command on the eastern front according to a Reuters News Agency dispatch from the German frontier.

The dispatch said that Field Marshal Albert Kesselring, who has been directing the air attack on Malta from Sicily, also had left Italy and that German air strength in the Mediterranean was being withdrawn to other fronts.

Rates Going Up

Cordial Relations

PORT LOUIS, Mauritius, May 13—(CP)).—The radio station at Tananarive, Madagascar capital, still controlled by the Vichy French, was heard today asking the British-controlled station at Diego Suarez, on the island's northern tip, to alter its wave-length for evening broadcasts so as to give better reception in south Madagascar. The request and its friendly tone were regarded in this British colony as a sign that negotiations to end all Madagascar hostilities are making good progress.

Japs Gathering In Marshals For New Sea Try

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, May 13 (CP)—Resumption of the air battle for Australia's outer island ramparts at an early date was predicted today by observers at advanced bases and throughout the area Allied airmen were on the alert to detect the first move of the Japanese navy to renew the battle of the Coral Sea which it broke off last week.

The remnants of the first Japanese invasion fleet were believed hiding in the screen of islands, waiting for reinforcements.

Although dispersed, these units could quickly come together at the appearance of the main battle fleet, which is believed to be gathered somewhere north of the New Guinea-New Britain area.

Japan's Marshal and Caroline Islands to the north afford a screen for the movements of this fleet, which is believed to have centred its operations of late about the island of Truk.

Weather conditions were reported to have limited aerial activity throughout the northeast sector of the land and sea front and no combat was mentioned in any theatre.

Correspondents who inquired at headquarters about the absence of further news from the Philippines were told that communications with

Post 34 Officers In Latest Hong Kong List

OTTAWA, May 13 — (CP). — Names of 34 officers and one Civilian Auxiliary Service man were reported as unofficially listed prisoners of war in an army casualty list today.

The men named are those mentioned in a message received by the External Affairs Department on Canadian prisoners at Hong Kong and most of them are members of the Winnipeg Grenadiers, one of the two Canadian battalions which fought there as part of the British garrison and which were overcome by the Japanese.

Only one member of the Royal Rifles of Canada of Quebec, the other Canadian battalion is listed. He is Maj. J. H. Price of Quebec.

The Manitoba Regiment group in the list, presumably all officers of the Grenadiers, numbers 25, of whom 17 are listed from Winnipeg while another, Lieut. R. W. Queen-Hughes, also of Winnipeg, lists his next-of-kin as his wife, Subaltern Gloria Queen-Hughes, now serving with the Canadian Women's Army Corps at Halifax. Only one Peterborough district man was included in the prisoner's list: Lt. William Francis Nugent, Lindsay, of the Winnipeg Grenadiers.

Four officers of the Royal Canadian Army Pay Corps, two of the Canadian Dental Corps, one of the Royal Canadian Army Pay Corps, and one of the Chaplain services are on the list all presumably men who served with the Hong Kong contingent.

Word Still Scanty.

Only scanty information has been received concerning the fate of the Canadians at Hong Kong. Besides to-day's list, army casualty lists in recent weeks have reported the death of a few Canadians while they were in Japanese prison camps. The death in action of some senior Canadian officers at Hong Kong, including the Canadian Commander, Brig. J. K. Lawson also has been reported.

The Canadian Hong Kong contingent numbered 1,985 men. The Japanese have reported thay took 1,689 prisoners when Hong Kong fell. On this basis it has been officially assumed that 296 Canadians are dead or missing as a result of the Hong Kong operations.

Russ Crushed In Crimea Says Berlin

Claim Path Carved For Infantry By 2,000 Dive Bombers

MOSCOW, May 13 — (AP). — The battle for Kerch, gateway to the oil-rich Caucasus, was developing steadily to-day. But the Russians gave no hint of any major success in this strangest attack the Germans thus far have made this spring.

(The German high command claimed the battle to break through the Kerch Isthmus had been decided with capture of 40,000 Russians and "annihilation of enemy forces which have been overrun and encircled there.")

Soviet communiques reported stubborn fighting on the Crimean Peninsula of which Kerch is a sort of neck, but for two days have declared nothing of importance has occurred.

The attack was evidently a far cry from the dashing offensives which the Germans launched at this season in Western Europe in 1940 and in the Balkans in 1941.

Victory Says Berlin.

BERLIN, May 13. — (AP From German Broadcasts). — Claiming great victories in the drive on the Crimea Peninsula in Russia, Hitler's newspaper Voelkischer Beobacter under the heading "Air Force Smashes Enemy Strongholds in Peninsula of Kerch," said to-day "wave after wave of German machines have bombed enemy gun emplacements, bunkers and other fortified strongholds, silencing guns and destroying bunkers and machine-gun nests."

Recover 47 Of 54 Blast Victims

OSAGE, W.Va., Bay 14—(AP)—The bodies of 47 of the 54 men believed killed by a terrific explosion in one of Northern West Virginia's largest coal mines were located today by rescue crews, who immediately attacked great masses of rock and coal blocking recovery.

The crew members, four of whom were overcome by exertion while wearing oxygen helmets, already had brought out 17 of the bodies, among them a section foreman who had not been previously listed among the missing. Crews sought to reach the other 30.

David Christopher, official of the Christopher Coal Company, said the total of 54 missing was subject to revision. Fifty-three originally were believed to have been entombed. The 54th man was Tony Belec, section foreman, whose body was among the first 17 recovered.

Rescue crews had battled against tons of rock, coal and timbers three miles underground since mid-afternoon yesterday, hoping to reach some of the men alive. A half-mile section of the mine was wrecked.

Three bodies were brought out within five hours after the explosion, and groups of 10 and four were hauled to the surface this morning.

Bigger Blood Baths Due From The Air

Hoarded In Winter, Hitler Loosing Best Planes On Reds, Mediterranean Front

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst.

The sinking of three British destroyers in the Mediterranean is a grim reminder that air power is going to play a major part—far greater than ever before—during this crucial year of the war.

Looking back on the terrible blood-baths which have been poured from the skies upon many peoples since the beginning of the conflict it is difficult to believe that anything worse can be in store. Yet the indications are that we have seen little as compared with what is to come.

The new great bombers which now are racing to the various fronts from both Allied and Axis factories are the latest that science can produce and represent concentrated efficiency surpassing anything heretofore produced.

The Royal Air Force already has shown enough to convince the whole world that it has the best there is. The Nazi fleet, however, has been lying largely doggo, or playing possum, through much of the winter. Without question this long period has been utilized in overhauling and strengthening it immeasurably with new and better machines from the factories.

We have had glimpses of 1942 Nazi air strength. We saw it in the deaths of those three destroyers and were reminded of it again yesterday when the Nazis advertised in connection with their offensive on the Kerch Peninsula in the Crimea:

"Hell has been let loose over the Bolshevist positions in the Kerch Peninsula."

Hell was indeed let loose, and today the Nazis claim victory with "annihilation" of the Red Force. On the other hand, Moscow reports no substantial change in the situation. We must await more news for clarification of the position.

In any event, the German air armada for the most part still lies doggo. But that won't be for long, because it is safe to say that a world of evil is about to be whelped on the German airfields. Hitler is getting ready to strike a mighty blow somewhere. In view of circumstances Prime Minister Churchill has justification for his statement that "airborne invasion becomes more and more a possibility."

Such a Nazi invasion of the British Isles might be attempted if the Muscovites are able to hold the Nazis. Still, it likely would represent an act of desperation and would be employed by Hitler only as a last resort.

What seems more likely is that the Nazi leader will stage a huge air offensive in the Mediterranean theatre in conjunction with his effort to smash the Russian line and break into the Caucasus. If he can't drive through the Reds he may try to reach the Middle East in a combined air and sea operation, bypassing Turkey and striking through Syria.

Police Chases Fruitless

Kidnap Clues Lead To Buffalo And Galt In Vain

LONDON, Ont., May 13—(CP).—Rumors locating th kidnapped Wood baby at Buffalo, N.Y., at Galt, and at Union near St. Thomas, Ont., kept police hustling today but the five-day-old mystery remained unsolved. The rumor linking Buffalo, heard locally, turned out to be the case of an abandoned newborn infant.

At Union, an Indian woman was supposed to be sheltering a white child, but that proved false.

Just what pointed the search toward Galt was not disclosed, but police said the lead failed.

It is now believed in some quarters that Barbara Ann Wood, six months old, who was snatched from her baby buggy parked in a busy downtown shopping district last Friday, has probably been spirited many miles from London.

One tip which led to Detroit, Mich., failed late yesterday as did investigation of the story of a farmer who saw a baby taken from its carriage in the downtown area last Friday afternoon.

British Whalers Aid Reds

Fight Storms, Ice, Mines On Murmansk Trip

LONDON, May 13 — (CP). — A group of whalers which Britain has used two years for mine sweeping has arrived at the Soviet supply port of Murmansk for service with the Red fleet, the Ministry of Information said last night.

The whalers were handed over to the Russians at the Arctic port after what one British officer called "a nightmare trip" through ice formations, mists, gales, floating mine fields and bombing attacks.

The officer said that steam hoses were useless against the ice formations three and four feet thick on the decks and the wheelhouse of his ship.

"Finally we had to abandon our course and turn and run before the wind so that al hands coud get to work with pick axes and hack the ice away," he added. "We cleared 40 tons in an hour. It was as hard as concrete."

SITUATION EASES IN SPITE OF REVOLT OF 11 QUEBEC LIBERALS

Majority Of Quebec Liberals Are Believed Placated Though Eleven Miss Caucus

Air Minister Power Makes Strong Appeal For Truce, Temporarily At Least While Big Allied Air Conference On

OTTAWA, May 13—(CP).—Prime Minister Mackenzie King today appeared to have placated a large section of Quebec Liberals who opposed his man-power policy, easing the political crisis which broke with the resignation of Transport Minister Cardin.

The situation was described yesterday in the House of Commons by Air Minister Power as "an internal crisis the gravity and seriousness of which I would be the last t. minimize."

Maj. Power appealed for a truce, temporarily at least, in this internal di:sension during th time the Allied air conference is being held in Ottawa starting next Monday.

But the situation '.day seemed to have eased, despite an intimation from . group of about a dozen Quebec Liberals who have been the most active opponents c anything smacking of conscription, that they were unyielding.

Sting Expected Weakening.

It was reported about the House of Commons, however, that when the debate takes place on Mr. King's bill to amend the National Resources Mobilization Act, removing the barrier against unlimited conscription, the Quebec opposition—and likely the only opposition on the direct conscription question—will have greatly diminished.

The situation was brought into the the open Monday when Mr. King introduced his amending bill as a 'logical consequence' to the April 27 plebiscite result, and announced the resignation from the cabinet of the veteran Quebec leader, Hon. P. J. A. Cardin, in protest.

There were three outstanding developments yesterday.

Early in the day at a Liberal caucus, Mr. King was given a vote of 'unbounded confidence' in his leadership without a dissenting voice. What the Prime Minister told caucus regarding his plans on conscription was not revealed.

Last evening Maxime Raymond (Lib. Beauharnois-Laprairie), a leading anti-conscriptionist, gave The Canadian Press a list of 11 names, including his own, of Quebec Liberals who wanted it known they had not been at the caucus when the confidence resolution was adopted.

In the House of Commons, Maj. Power, who has represented Quebec city riding since 1917, made a frank reference to the controversy in his appeal for a political truce until after next week's important Allied air conference here is completed.

Maj. Power's appeal was one of the most dramatic episodes of the whole controversy. He made his first active appearance in the House yesterday since the manpower plebiscite when his electors, along with the great majority of Quebec province, voted against releasing the

Fear 53 Killed After Virginia Mine Explosion

OSAGE, W. Va., May 13—(AP).—Firty-three men were believed today to have lost their lives three miles underground in a thunderous explosion that ripped through a half-mile section of one of northern West Virginia's largest coal mines.

Fourteen bodies had been found and rescue crews, working in shifts throughout the night, pushed through deadly fumes and debris in an effort to reach 39 more who were entombed.

Seventy others narrowly escaped death when the last let go at 2.20 p.m., E.D.T. in the No. 3 mine of the Christopher Coal Company. At work in an area near the blast scene, they managed to flee and only 25 were made ill by the fumes.

T. E. Griffith, United States Bureau of Mines engineer, said 110 more would have been in the mine if coal cars which were to have carried them inside had not been 15 minutes late.

Cause of the explosion was not immediately determined. Frank Christopher, president of the company, and N. P. Rhinehart, chief of the state department of mines, said the big operation which employs 450 men had been rock-dusted Sunday and inspected Monday.

Lyman Duff, as a Royal Commissioner. Defence Minister Ralston said in the House of Commons that some of the troops had not received full training and that mechanized equipment had not reached Hong Kong when the Japanese attacked. Sir Lyman's report is expected to be submitted shortly.

In addition to the Hong Kong names' to-day's 104th Army casualty list of the war also reported the death overseas of 10 men, the wounding overseas of one man, the dangerous illness overseas of two men and the serious illness overseas of six.

The men listed as "unofficially reported prisoner of war" were the only Hong Kong casualties in to-day's list, a National Defence Department spokesman said. The rest were casualties in other overseas countries where Canadians serve.

To-day's overseas army deaths raised to 654 the total number of army casualties officially reported since the war began.

Placing the ship at the disposal of the Russians represents a considerable gift on the part of the Canadian government as it leaves the Transport Department with none too many icebreakers to carry on the work of keeping Canadian waters open during the seasons when icebreaking operations are necessary, officials said.

The ship is believed to be now in service in the White Sea keeping the water passage between Murmansk and Archangel open for the movement of troops and supplies for the Russian forces.

Strikers put a picket line around the plant at six o'clock this morning.

Two hundred and ninety members of the Packing House Workers Organizing Committee went on strike Monday afternoon in protest against what they said was the management's refusal to arbitrate the dismissal of two employees for "insubordination." At a meeting Monday night the workers voted to return to work Tuesday but claimed they had been locked out" of the plant by the management.

Mayor Joseph Meinzinger said today he will appeal to Labor Minister Humphrey Mitchell to send a commissioner with all powers of a royal commission to "tell both parties what to do" in the Dumarts strike. The mayor said company officials "flatly refused" to re-instate two men whose dismissal from the cutting department of the plant for alleged insubordination is said to have been responsible for the dispute.

Spend 42 Million On Canada's Defence Dromes

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, May 13 —(CP)—Approximately $42,000,000 is being spent for construction of defensive airports in Canada, Air Minister Power revealed in a review of his department's operations in the House of Commons.

Because the joint air training plan has exceeded its objective by 25 per cent, increased numbers of air crew personnel are available for home war establishment, the minister added in discussing the air protection of the Dominion.

Maj. Power gave a comprehensive statement of air operations and plans when he was questioned yesterday during consideration in committee of the whole of the $2,000,000,000 war appropriation bill.

He was asked by Gordon Graydon (Con. Peel) if Canada had adequate air defence facilities in the light of the present world situation.

"No minister in any country in the world could give assurance that there is adequate air protection at any time," Maj. Power answered.

The minister announced that the joint air training plan had far exceeded its objective and would be extended still farther.

The Allied air conference opening here next Monday would be the most important meeting of the anti-Axis powers since the beginning of the war, he prophesied.

It was being held in Canada because the Dominion had made greater progress in air training than any of the warring nations.

The minister was given a warm reception when he arose to give a review of his department's work. It was his first speech in the House since the April 27 manpower plebiscite.

He was questioned throughout the afternoon and evening on many phases of the Royal Canadian Air Force activities.

An informant at one village said that residents in a two-mile area were awakened Monday night "by a terrific explosion that rocked our houses as though there was an earthquake. We saw lights suddenly appear in the distance offshore and we knew that something had happened to a ship."

The informant said he had been told the ship sank within 20 minutes after two torpedoes had struck.

Find Boat In Morning

First indication to villagers of the cause of the explosion they heard in the night was a drifting lifeboat just offshore in the morning. They made it fast and assisted survivors ashore. Later they went by boat to the area where the explosion occurred but could find no trace of the wreck.

The informant said boats were not equipped with oars and this explained how they became separated and drifted to diffferent points along the shoreline. This accounted for conflicting earlier reports as to just how many survivors there had been.

The survivors, including a mother and child, said to have drifted ashore alone in one lifeboat, were all taken to the fishing centre where the injured were treated in hospital and the others put up in hotels.

Naval authorities would not permit telephone interviews with the sruvivors and attempts to question sources in the town met with negative response. The only information available came from the mayor and even he said he had been asked to say nothing.

The torpedoing was first announced by Navy Minister Macdonald in Ottawa yesterday. He said that 41 survivors had been landed safely. He revealed no details except to say the attack took place Monday in the St. Lawrence River.

The names of crewmen or passengers were not immediately available.

Military Patients Cost $3.00 Per Day

"The city is not making a penny in charging $3 a day for military patients," Dr. D. B. Avison, M.O.H., told the Board of Health last night. It seems that one of the city doctors recently made some comment about the Queen Mary Hospital making money out of the government because the city rate was only $1.50.

"The community compels its citizens to be quarantined in infectious cases," Dr. Avison said. "It means they have to be segregated for a time until they have recovered, and for that reason the charge is set at a lower figure. It means that the rest of the community is paying a share of the hospital bill.

"Three dollars a day will not pay for food, and equipment and laundry, and all the rest of an isolation hospital's upkeep, and we are not making any money even on that basis."

Judge O'Connor Laid To Rest

LINDSAY, May 13—(ENS).—The last tributes of respect were paid this morning to the late Judge L. V. O'Connor, of Cobourg, whose funeral took place from St. Mary's Church to the Parish cemetery. The edifice was crowded to capacity with representatives of the judiciary, the Dominion Senate, as well as friends of the deceased from all parts of the province.

Inside the Sanctuary were clergy from the different parishes in the Diocese of Peterborough, delegations from Rotary Clubs, curling and bowling clubs in Central Ontario, as well as a large gathering of members of the bar from Toronto, Peterborough, Cobourg, Port Hope and Belleville.

Requiem High Mass was chanted by Rev. Earl Grant, of Lindsay, assisted by Rev. Dr. P. S. Kelly, of Cobourg, as Deacon, and Rev. Father Meagher, of Lindsay, as sub Deacon.

The sermon was preached by Rev. J. V. Ferguson of Warkworth a life long friend of the deceased. He based his remarks on the text "It is a holy and wholesome thought to pray for the dead that they may be released from their sins." The discourse made a deep impression on the large congregation.

The honorary pall bearers were Senator J. J. Duffus, of Peterborough; Senator W. H. McGuire, of Toronto; Judge Martin Kenney, of Port Arthur; Judge Sheldon Smoke, of Peterborough; Judge D. C. Coleman, of Whitby; Judge Hughes, of Toronto; Judge McGibbon and C. G. Frost, K.C., of Lindsay. Acting pall bearers were J. Curtin, Col. R. I. Moore, R. Butler, F. G. Perrin, A. T. Lacey, of Lindsay, and L. Burns of Toronto.

Members of the Peterborough Bar attending the funeral included: Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., J. F. Strickland, K.C., City Solicitor W. F. Huycke, K.C., John R. Corkery, Basil D. Hall, W. J. Arthur Fair, W. R. Philp, Jacob Lowe, W. B. Gordon; and from Cobourg Bar: John T. Field, Thomas F. Hall, Crown Attorney Deyman, Alan Field, A. R. Willmott and Fred Richardson.

New Incinerator Site Is Laid Out

The site for the new incinerator is being laid out by City Engineer Parsons preliminary to excavation for it footings, Alderman Swanston, chairman of the property committee reported today.

Cheese Men Planning To Entertain Kiwanis

Thirty pounds of extra special Cheddar cheese will be bought from a Belleville warehouse if the Kiwanis Club accepts the invitation of the Peterborough Cheese Producers' Association to dinner at Young's Point.

The first plan was for a mid-day meal, but most of the Kiwanis could not take time off from around 11 a.m. to about 3 p.m., and that invitation was regretfully avoided. The executive of the Cheese Producers suggested last night that the dinner be held in the evening, and some of the members were instructed to enquire whether the women of Young's Point Red Cross would take charge of all the details.

This is to be no cheese-paring affair. The cheese men feel obligated by past hospitality to make a real effort to show their appreciation of Kiwanis entertainment, and if the affair is arranged it will be for the members and their wives.

The spirit of the cheese men is reflected in their estimate that the cheese allowance for the dinner should be one-quarter of a pound for each person.

Fred Crowe of Warsaw said the only doubtful reaction was that the Kiwanis folks might get the idea that such cheese was abundant, where as the Association should leave the impression that it was scarce and hard to get, and the more to be prized.

Neither Side Gaining Say Soviets

Berlin Claims Issue Decided, 40,000 Russians Captured

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, May 13 (AP)—Powerful Axis and Russian armies fought across the narrow Crimean panhandle today toward a decision still apparently veiled in smoke and flame.

The government's mid-day communique said "there were no substantial changes at the front" overnight, a statement implying no major gains for either side.

Soviet observers said the outcome of the German-Rumanian drive to oust Lt.-Gen. D. T. Kozlov's Red Army forces from the Kerch Peninsula, a potential springboard to oil, grain and timber resources of the Caucasus, "may be apparent, in a few days."

Nazi cavalry squadrons thrust over the prairie no-man's-land in an accompaniment to Gen. Von Mannstein's tank and infantry manoeuvres, said dispatches from the front. Artillery rumbled along a 12-mile line between the Black and Azov Seas.

Red fliers slashed at Axis armored and aerial units.

Russian airmen, some piloting the heavily-armored, low-flying anti-tank planes known as "Stormers," were credited officially with destroying 102 German aircraft Sunday and Monday — presumably the bulk of them in the Crimea—and wrecking 34 Nazi vehicles which were moving to the Kerch front.

Berlin Claims Victory

In Berlin the German high command asserted today that "the battle of the breach of the isthmus of Kerch is decided" with "annihilation" of the Soviet forces encircled there and that "up to now the enemy has lost 40,000 prisoners."

"The pursuit of the beaten remainder of the enemy," the high command said in a special communique from Hitler's headquarters, "is being continued (eastward) in the direction of Kerch."

In addition to the 40,000 prisoners, the communique listed 197 Russian tanks, 598 guns and 260 aircraft as destroyed or captured in the five-day campaign.

Drunk Driver Gets 10 Days

Pleading guilty in police court this morning to a charge of driving while intoxicated Alfred Marshall, 503 McDonnel street, was sentenced by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., to ten days in jail.

The car he was driving was not his own property so that there was no impounding order but Magistrate Langley cancelled Marshall's driving permit for three months.

The charge against Marshall arose out of a near collision between the car he was driving and a police cruiser car on Water street Tuesday afternoon.

Sergt. John Thompson, giving evidence this morning, stated that he was driving a police car south on Water street and near the brewery warehouse the car driven by Marshall had shot suddenly out from the curb and almost crashed into the police machine.

Sergt. Thompson stated that he followed Marshall's car to the market square and the accused was arrested. He was drunk, the officer stated.

Marshall said there was no use asking any questions of the officer. "I had some beer in the car that had never been opened," he said, "and had a couple of drinks of beer."

Wooler Y.P.U. Entertain Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, May 13 (ENS). —More than thirty members of St. John's Y.P.U. were guests of the Wooler Y. P. Group on Monday evening when the locals held their final assembly of the season. After a note of welcome had been voiced by the Wooler president, Miss Pearl McComb, who heads the Campbellford group, assumed charge of the meeting which began with a call to worship during which Rev. G. N. Maxwell assisted.

A feature of the program was a quizz contest conducted by Glenn Maxwell and Gerald Sloggett who fired questions at five representatives from each group. The Campbellford young people, whose team comprised Misses Jean Tubbs, June Burgiss, Jessie Grattan, Messrs. Arnold Bates and Francis DeCarrol, won.

Other items on the program included a vocal solo, Miss Isobel Irwin; readings, Mrs. Harold Twigg; vocal solos, Francis DeCarrol; piano duet, Jack Bleeker and Gerald Sloggett; a sing song lead by Arnold Bates and an imaginary five minute radio concert conducted by the hosts who divided the gathering into six groups. At the close refreshments were served by the Wooler Young People.

Parish Guild

A balance on hand of $75.00 was reported by the treasurer, Mrs. G. Hay, to members of Christ Church Parish Guild at the regular meeting held on Monday. The ladies met at the home of Mrs. Jos. Ellis, Queen street, and during the evening a report was tabled on the bridge and euchre held Friday last which it was said would augment the treasury by an additional $8.00. Though their closing meeting is slated to take the form of a social evening on June 1, it was announced they would complete a quilt at a special gathering to be held at the Parish Hall within the next two weeks.

Pupils In Schools Are Asked To Contribute Penny A Day

A pile of coppers, more than enough to alleviate any shortage of change in the downtown stores will begin to grow on Monday of next week, when the penny-a-day drive will be conducted in the schools of the city, and the coppers will be put on display in one of the downtown store windows.

This drive is being staged in connection with the Red Cross Community Fund campaign, to give the children a chance to contribute money of their own, and to stimulate enthusiasm in all parts of the community. Already permission to hold the Penny Drive has been obtained from the school boards, and principals of the schools have been made acquainted with the outline of the program.

Clare G. Collins, who has been deputized to handle this part of the local campaign, stated today "In the schools this penny drive can be sold to the kiddies as a game, as well as a duty, and thus they will get more pleasure from it. I would suggest too, in view of the many ways in which children can earn money that the boys and girls earn the pennies they contribute."

Briefly the plan is this, that every pupil in the city schools contribute a penny-a-day or more for the five day period between next Monday and next Friday. With all the children participating, the fund should received a substantial contribution, and at the same time the children will educate the parents to the fact that there is a drive on. Because of the extra work involved and the shortness of the time, the committee has decided that a poster contest will not be held in connection with the Penny Drive.

Last year this Penny Drive produced a sum in excess of $235.00, and should bring in even more this time. Aside from the money value, the committee feels that in any community drive such as this one, the children if made conscious of the community effort would add much to the enthusiasm of the campaign.

A truck from the Peterborough Utilities will collect the pennies each day, or at whatever time the teachers wish, and the coppers will then be taken to the downtown store where they will be piled for the passersby to see.

Telephone Girls Complete Afghan

CAMPBELLFORD, May 13. —(ENS).—Members of the Campbellford and Seymour Branch of the Red Cross got their first glimpse of the lovely afghan donated by girls of the local Bell Telephone staff here on Tuesday afternoon. It was their first contribution as a group to the Red Cross and the eight shades of wool worked carefully together by the 6 girls at the Bell office represented a good manv hours of off-duty work: There was an estimated $7.00 worth of material used to make it and in expressing their thanks the Red Cross announced that tickets on this and several other articles would soon be on sale.

According to a report from the treasurer $48.80 was realized from the bingo sponsored by Ward II ladies on Saturday last and thanks was expressed to all those who contributed to its success. On Wednesday, May 27th Mrs. Jack Allan, Ranney street, will loan her home for a tea to raise funds for the Red Cross and proceeds from this will be used to provide additional supplies that will find their way to bomb victims. It was again emphasized that pneumonia jackets, blouses, skirts, and coats are also to be made, and anyone wishing to help may get the material already cut and ready for stitching in the Red Cross rooms in the library. For those who prefer to knit cardigans it was pointed out that 25 of these is size forty are needed to complete the quota.

Cobourg Batteries Are Now One Unit

COBOURG, May 13.—(ENS). —The 22nd and 14th batteries of Cobourg, reserve force, have been combined into one unit under the command of Captain G. Dundas. The decision to combine the units was made for the purpose of convenience in training. However, the units will still retain their separate identities as the 22nd and 14th batteries insofar as the orderly rooms are concerned, the amalgamation being only at the present time for drilling purposes. The personnel of the batteries has been depleted by enlistments in the active unit, the 36th Battery, and it was found impossible to keep each battery up to a strength of 190 men. The other officers in charge are: Acting Captain George Edwards, second in command, Captain L. Tottenham, and Lieut. Sise.

Cobourg Briefs

The "Dads'" Club, organized to supply cigarettes for the boys of the 47th Battery overseas, now has 30 members and the total is increasing. For May, 150 cigarettes will be sent to each of the 113 boys in the 47th.

The flag at the town hall in Cobourg was at half mast yesterday in respect to the death of Judge L. V. O'Connor. During the procession from his late residence to the railway station, where the remains were taken to Lindsay for interment, the bell tolled in the town hall.

Officers Elected By Port Hope Bowling Club

PORT HOPE, May 13—(ENS).—On Tuesday the home of Mrs. John Hazack, 134 Walton street, was the scene of a gathering of over forty members of the Friday afternoon Ladies' Bowling League. The evening opened with a few remarks by the president, Mrs. B. Hancock, who conveyed to the club the thanks of Mr. Stephenson, manager of the bowling alleys for their continued patronage.

The team standings were then given, with Mrs. Stephen's team being the winner. This team included Mrs. Stephenson with an average of 144, Mrs. Hozack 166, Mrs. Tickell 127, Mrs. Lent 125 and Mrs. B. J. Hancock 123, with Mrs. G. Garnett as sub with an average of 123. The team's total was 6257 and Mrs. M. Smith, captain of last year's winning team, made the presentation of the Anderson Cup to Mrs. Stephenson's team, while Mr. Stephenson donated individual prizes to each of the winning team.

A presentation was then made to the second high team (as a joke' by Mrs. Hozack and Mrs. Lent to the team who thought they earned a prize. These were yo-yo balls wrapped in black wrapping and labeled with deepest sympathy, causing much laughter.

Each member of the teams contributed money for the various prizes and over $10 of this was voted to the Red Cross Fund. The other prizes went to Mrs. Marion Smith, with a high average of 176, and who received a lovely silver cake plate; Mrs. Ruth Smith received a cup and saucer for a high three flat score of 649; while Mrs. Fulford received a prize for the high three with handicap of 723, and Mrs. Dorothy Smith received a prize for a high single flat score of 256. The high single handicap score of 308 was won by Mrs. Teresa Sheehan. The high average score for a sub was won by Mrs. Brockenshire with score of 143.

At this time Mrs. Geo. Ward conducted the election of officers and expressed the appreciation of the club to the president, Mrs. B. J. Hancock, for her work in the past year and to the secretary, Mrs. Hozack, and treasurer, Mrs. Ruth Smith, as these officers have only held office for one year and it is the rule of the club that the executive be in office for two years, therefore they were automatically re-elected. The five team captains are as follows: Mrs. Marie Giffen, Mrs. Helen Wickett, Mrs. Marion Smith, Mrs. Hazel Stephenson and Mrs. R. Ward.

Canadian Naval Pay Is Boosted

OTTAWA, May 13.—(CP).— Details of changes in pay and allowances of officers and men in the Royal Canadian Navy were announced yesterday. The changes are retroactive to April 1.

all branches will receive $127.50 a all branches will receive $127.50 a month, compared with the previous rate of $120. This will cover the period during which they undergo training at naval establishments in the larger cities and at the coastal dockyards.

At the end of this training the officers become full sub-lieutenants and in some cases lieutenants. For these ranks an increase of $1 a day has been authorized.

The new regulations set forth that marriage allowances of all officers and ratings will be equal to those paid to the other armed forces. Up to now naval marriage allowances have been considerably less than those in the army and air force, but this was offset somewhat by higher payments to officers and men obliged to provide their own living accommodation.

Now a reduction has been made in the rates paid for providing accommodation. In the case of officers $1 a day has been taken from this allowance, but a minimum is set of $1.70 per day below which the reduction is not effective.

In the case of ratings a distinction has been made between those entering the navy before and after June 1, 1942. For the former, the lodging and provision allowance is to be $1.25 and for the latter it will remain at the present $1.45.

$14,000 Sought In Drive For Red Cross At Cobourg

COBOURG, May 13.—(ENS)—Cobourg and District Red Cross campaign got under way yesterday with $14,000 as the objective. Under the convenorship of Mrs. J. Spragge, 45 women canvassers are to cover the 32 districts into which the house-to-house canvass has been divided. William Skitch is acting as convener of the men's canvass committee and it is expected that a total of 75 workers will lend their services during the campaign. While the Cobourg and district objective has been set at $14,000, the 30 per cent of this amount collected to Cobourg branch will not meet Cobourg's requirements as the estimated expenditure for the Cobourg Red Cross workrooms is $6,000 for the year. This will mean that the quota will have to be considerably exceeded if Cobourg branch needs are to be taken care of.

Average monthly production of the women workers of the Cobourg Branch of the Red Cross include socks, scarves, sea stockings, aero caps, helmets, mitts, gloves turtle neck sweaters, quilts surgeons' gowns, eiderdowns, surgeons' caps refugee article and other clothing.

The headquarters of the campaign is at the British Hotel, where the canvassers will make their returns daily to the cashiers on duty, Messrs. C. W. Birmingham, and Wing Commander Riddell, while Mr. J. W. Maize, chairman of the finance committee, will also accept subscriptions at the Dominion Bank.

R. G. Parker is chairman of the committee looking after the canvass of the local industries; the merchants' committee is in charge of E. McFayden; Dr. A. Richards, special names committee; A. L. Jex, summer residents committee; general campaign committee, Col. W. E. Dumble, T. H. McClelland, John Noble, D. Spragge and A. E. Bowman. The chairman of the general committee is W. S. Edwards.

Hamilton Township, which is combined with Cobourg in the campaign, has the following chairmen in charge of the canvassers: A. Burd, Mrs. F. Ball, Mrs. J. Staples, Mrs. J. Bowman, Mrs. W. Davidson, J. H. Minifie, John Noble, E. Holdsworth, Major A. E. Drope, L. Carruthers, J. H. Benson and Mrs. Harry Hastings.

The president, A. S. McLean, in a statement issued at the start of the campaign, pointed out that the Red Cross had to depend on voluntary subscriptions and cannot look to the government for funds, being international in scope. Because of international status the Red Cross had international immunity and could enter belligerent countries to investigate conditions under which war prisoners were living, but all this at the cost of having to depend on voluntary subscription.

CUPS MINUS HANDLES

Good Works Need Money

On Friday the Community Fund will open its drive for $60,000. Of this sum one-half is to go to the Peterborough Red Cross and the other half will be divided among the Navy League, Salvation Army, St. Vincent's Orphanage, the Children's Aid Society, the Y.M.C.A., and the Y.W.C.A., the Canadian National Institute For the Blind and the Victorian Order of Nurses.

We do not feel that it is necessary for us to urge you to subscribe as liberally as you can to this fund. You know what work these organizations and institutions do; you know how much effort and sacrifice are required to keep them in being. If these organizations were strange to Peterborough people we should attempt to write persuasively in their behalf, but they are not strange; they are factors in the daily life of this community and not an hour passes but we are reminded of the work which they do for the young, the sick, the defenceless and the unfortunate. Societies such as these are a part of the very warp and woof of our humanitarian civilization.

At present we are all apt to feel that we have heavy demands on our funds and that we have little to spare for charity. Let us think again. Let us look at the people of Britain who, though taxed to the point of penury, are nevertheless able to find millions of pounds for charitable organizations which care for the stricken, the homeless and the completely destitute. We have dug deep in Canada, but we have not scraped the bottoms of our pockets yet; until we do so, let us not talk of sacrifice.

No derogation is intended to the other societies included in the Community Fund when we lay particular stress upon the needs of the Red Cross, which is certainly the greatest non-sectarian humanitarian organization which this world has ever seen. The work which the Red Cross does to alleviate suffering and hardship in time of war cannot be computed by the methods of the counting-house; pity, sacrifice and hard work cannot be valued in any coinage known to this world. But without funds these sacrifices go for nothing; the Red Cross must have money to live and it must live.

For many of us, giving is the most valuable war work that we can do. Let us give beyond the limits of mere generosity. Let us give greatly, each according to his means.

Demolishing a Dangerous Phrase

The danger of a good phrase is that it falls so pleasantly upon the ear, and rises so readily to the lips, that it is sometimes mistaken for truth by those who listen and speak to excess and think little. Such a phrase is that which says, "The front line runs through the factory." This is a dangerous half-truth; we cannot fight unless our men in the factories work, but it is equally true that if our soldiers cease to fight the factory workers will soon have nothing to do. Labor will do well to remember this for the duration of the war; their work is important, but the hardest and most dangerous work is done by the men in the field. And the men in the field, in the air and on the sea do not choose their hours or their rate of pay, and do not strike if the going is tough.

The Director of Aircraft Production, Mr. Ralph Bell, spoke plain and unvarnished truth when he addressed a war labor organizing committee last Friday. He said:

"We've heard a lot of talk about the worker in the plant doing as valuable work as the man at the front, and some clever publicist trying to enthuse war workers coined the phrase, 'The front line runs through the factory.'

"You men and women who were in the last war or have husbands, brothers or sons in this war who are being shot down, or torpedoed in the Atlantic or Pacific, or suffering or dying in the Far East know that that sort of talk is tripe and bunk.

"Soldier of production in the front line of defence!—like hell—52 to 85 cents an hour with time and a half and double time, adds up to a lot more than $39 a month and bullets."

Very true. No one forgets the important part that labor is playing in this war, but there are times when labor seems to be unduly conscious of it. Important as the cart is, we must not put it before the horse.

We Sold It To The Enemy

We have no time at present to waste in recriminations, but an occasional glance at our pre-war follies is useful if it spurs us to greater efforts now. We are in great need of scrap metal and salvage of all kinds. Why? Here are some of the reasons.

In 1938 we shipped 311,875 hundredweight of copper, 312,250 hundredweight of aluminum, 153,992 hundredweight of nickel and 41,033 tons of scrap iron to Japan. In 1939 we shipped, in hundredweight, 378,396 of copper, 421,137 of aluminum, 233,107 of nickel and 46,866 tons of scrap iron to the same destination. In that same year we shipped, by hundredweight, 58,289 of copper and 57,964 of aluminum to Germany. As well we sent 99,644 hundredweight of copper to Italy.

We can see now that this was folly, but it was done when we were still at peace with those countries and there was no way of preventing such sales even if we had had the gumption to do so. Now we must make up these losses, and exceed these amounts by getting out every ounce of scrap in the country and seeing that it goes to the right sources. Don't leave it till tomorrow. Do it now! Comb your house from cellar to garret for scrap, and don't forget the garage and the tool-shed. We must have every ounce of metal that can be spared, and quickly!

Etiquette For Gentlemen Cyclists

Because of the revival of interest in cycling at present a contemporary has resurrected a code of manners for gentlemen cyclists which appeared in 1897. Here it is:

In mounting, a gentleman who is accompanying a lady holds her wheel. When the end of the ride is reached, the man quickly dismounts and is at his companion's side to assist her, she in the meantime assisting herself as much as possible.

If you have the misfortune to run down a pedestrian on the road, do not run away, but stop and give what help you can. On a path too narrow for two riders to go abreast, always let the lady go first. It is always proper to speak to a wheelswoman who may be in need of assistance—humanity requires it. Of course, a gentleman will always remove his cap when making inquiries of a wheelswoman in distress.

When coming up behind a rider going at a slower pace, you should ring your bell and swing off to the left. It's not good form to ring too violently on the bell unless an emergency requires it. Don't stop to repair your wheel on the path. And always preserve your dignity. Pay no attention to small boys or dogs—both are perfectly harmless to the average wheelman.

There you have it. And don't you like that word "wheelswoman?" It breathes the last enchantments of a well-mannered age. The motor car has done a good deal of harm to our manners; no vehicle which one must enter and leave bent double adds to the charm of life. We hope to see modern wheelmen and wheelswomen adopt this code and, with that air of self-conscious rectitude possible only to those whose manners are impeccable, go sailing down the roads about Peterborough, happily oblivious of small boys and dogs.

Witchcraft In Montreal

Fashions in boasting change but the human heart does not change. It has been fashionable for the past century to boast of the progress which mankind has made in science and of the banishment of superstition by general education. We have vaunted ourselves; we have been puffed up. But, alas for our pride, a great part of mankind remains incorrigibly gullible.

A few days ago Judge Amedee Monet of Montreal pronounced sentence on two women and a man who had pleaded guilty to practising witchcraft in that city. Their game was as old as that of the Witch of Endor whom Saul consulted on the eve of the battle of Gilboa. When the Quebec Provincial Police raided their atelier they found skulls, crystal gazing-balls, and fireworks, and that inescapable necessity of the witchcraft business—plenty of black velvet. Even more astounding, they discovered and took into custody bottles which the witches said contained the spirits of Hitler and Mussolini. One witch warned the police to keep away from the bottles or "thousands of spirits would escape"; one intrepid detective opened the bottles and reported that "there was nothing in them." Whether he was speaking literally or metaphorically makes little difference.

Let us not make merry at Montreal's expense. Is there any town of any size in Canada which does not contain some analogous nonsense? How many tea-rooms promise a "cup-reading" or a "palm-reading" in order to attract custom? How many astrologers flourish by the practice of their disingenuous art? We are not prepared to cast aside palmistry or astrology as of no worth, but we have no hesitation in saying that the majority of those who practice these arts are fakers, and that they exist upon the thinly disguised superstition of the general public. As long as mankind yearns toward hidden secrets, witchcraft in its various forms will flourish, and while it flourishes let us not pride ourselves unduly on the march of progress. It marches on one leg only.

There's Always Be a China

China has long been famous for a philosophy compounded of equal parts of elegance, humor and stoicism. The Chinese think of life as an art, rather than a duty; they think of human shortcoming as a joke rather than as a tragedy; they know that in the end he who best knows how to endure will triumph.

China has lost the Burma Road. The loss of Burma has temporarily cut the main artery through which supplies reached her fighting forces. But China fought bravely before there was a Burma Road; she endured when that Road was closed; she will endure now that the Road has been cut. China has powerful Allies now, and she knows that some time in the future those Allies will come to her aid. China has learned how to wait in the bitter school of experience.

We accepted the loss of the Burma Road when we heard of the fall of Lashio, but in point of fact the Burma Road was made useless by the fall of Rangoon. It was from that port that supplies flowed through Burma and Yunnan to Chungking. The tortuous, winding passage, sometimes as wide as a highway, sometimes narrowing to a single-car track, was cut from solid rock; if the Japanese destroy it they will destroy something which is as significant in Chinese history as the Great Wall itself. There are advantages in a stoic philosophy; it takes the place of many of the appurtenances of western ingenuity. Many a Western engineer would have called the building of the Burma Road an impossibility; the Chinese knew that it was necessary and they built it—with machines when they could get them, but mostly by hand. The Burma Road is built over the bodies of countless Chinese workmen and women.

China has seen Shanghai, Nanking, Hangkow and Canton go and she has kept on fighting. She will not pause to mourn the loss of the Burma Road. For China has a long vision, and she sees that even the most resolute and ruthless invader must tire of fighting eventually; but the Chinese will not tire. They are numberless and they are fighting for their homes against an enemy whom they describe as The Dwarf Slave Race.

China will continue with guerilla warfare, that most exhausting, pitiless, heart-breaking burden of invaders. She can continue to manufacture small arms for this purpose, and the heavy weapons which she has received may be used for guerilla purposes too. China will fight and wait. She will not wait in vain.

NOTE AND COMMENT

German youth has been systematically taught to hate. But soon it will find itself behind the hate ball.

Horrible pun, from the Guelph Mercury: "With all the kids playing out in the yard it won't be lawn now."

A new style of hat is coyly named "Little Cup Cake"; presumably to be worn by a little sweetie-pie.

"Infatuation is not love" a popular preacher warns modern youth. Nevertheless it may be regarded as a reasonable facsimile.

A Merriton woman sold a mattress in which she had hidden $450. Next time she feathers her nest she will be more careful.

The military automobile, the jeep, is being manufactured now in an amphibian form. "A jeep in the deep," remarks the Kingston Whig-Standard, which ought to be above puns but obviously isn't.

NEW SHAKESPEARE SONNET

(William Shakespeare, Stratford-on-Avon, England; poet and playwright. This "New Sonnet" has been put together by a New York gentleman, who here prefers anonymity. The lines occur—not in their proper order—between lines 230-260 in "Love's Labor's Lost." Act 4, Scene 3. Earlier in that scene two sonnets are read by players, and that makes barely plausible the suggestion that this "New Sonnet" is more than a trick of assemblage—that it is (just possibly) an actual Shakespearean sonnet restored).

O if in black my lady's brows be deck't
It mourns that painting and usurping hair
Should ravish doters with a false aspect
And therefore is she born to make black fair.
Her favor turns the fashion of the days,
For native blood is counted painting now;
And therefore red, that would avoid dispraise,
Paints itself black to imitate her brow.
O, who can give an oath? Where is a book?
That I may swear beauty doth beauty lack
If that she learn not of her eye to look:
No face is fair that is not full so black,
Fie, painted rhetoric! O, she needs it not,
She passes praise; then praise too shot doth blot.

By William Shakespeare.

Reinforcements And Reserves

THE hysterical outcries of W. D. Herridge before a Service Club in Ottawa last week and the precise and explicit statements to the House of Commons by Col. Ralston, Minister of Defence, dealing with the same subject, offer a contrast which might well engage the attention of the public. Reference has already been made in these columns to the attempt to revive, during the plebiscite campaign, the raging tearing campaign for the immediate and drastic application of conscription. The signal for this agitation was given by Mr. Herridge who, returning from Great Britain, declared that there was a lack of trained reserves available for reinforcements for the Canadian forces and painted a most gloomy picture of the possible consequences of this shortage. Given the cue, the newspapers that were active in the earlier phases of the agitation opened fire. With insufficient reinforcements as matters stood what would happen if the army went into action? "The whole nation should realize," exclaimed the Ottawa Citizen, "that failure to provide trained reinforcements in adequate numbers would leave the Canadian troops to be wiped out when they go into action, as they may do this year." This "realization" would, however, be contingent upon the facts being as stated. But there are no such facts, unless Mr. Herridge, the Ottawa Citizen and its newspaper allies, know more about this important matter than the Government, the Minister of Defence, the General Staff and General McNaughton combined.

THE earlier alarmist statements were given categorical denial by Col. Ralston at a press conference; and the repetition of his charges with a few additional hysterical frills by Mr. Herridge has now been dealt with in Parliament. Col. Ralston stated to the House that the War Office had established a definite scale showing the number of reinforcements to be held in reserve for the army overseas; these reserves, he added, are actually in Great Britain at this time. Asked by the leader of the opposition whether provision was made for wastage in the event of active service the Minister of Defence said that in the opinion of "those best able to judge" reinforcements were available to meet the rate of estimated wastage. Col. Ralston made it clear that this was the opinion of the professional and technical staffs upon whom the duty of dealing with problems such as this rests; and that it carried his judgment as well.

For the enlargement of the Canadian forces in Great Britain to the size and importance of an army these men, generals in active command and the members of the General Staff, are responsible. It is no secret that the wisdom of this enlargement was questioned in influential quarters and that it was the weight of expert opinion that overcame this questioning attitude and secured acceptance of the plan by the Government. The generals responsible for the creation of a Canadian army were all officers in the first war and quite familiar with the controversy that then raged as to whether it would be possible to add a fifth division to the Army Corps in view of the difficulty of obtaining sufficient reinforcements for so large an army. It is not conceivable that with this experience still fresh in their minds General McNaughton and his brother generals recommended a plan calling for a completely equipped army without first satisfying themselves that reinforcements sufficient for all the duties which it may fall to this army to perform, are available. They are available unless these generals do not know their own business and Col. Ralston shares their ignorance and incapacity.

IN the light of these facts this latest performance of Mr. Herridge and the chorus of support which will be forthcoming from admiring newspapers are no contribution but quite the reverse to the country's war effort. The defence will be made that this is legitimate constructive criticism and that as such it is helpful to the war effort. But this is not criticism but sabotage. There is a field for intelligent and constructive criticism of the methods, plans and objectives of the generals and the general staff but criticism can be neither intelligent nor constructive if the critics go to their imagination for their facts, and to their fancies for their grounds of opposition. The particular question under discussion is one of fact. Are there available reinforcements for the enlarged army for a considerable period of time, even if active service increases the rate of wastage? The Prime Minister has said that there are these reserves; the Minister of Defence has confirmed this statement; behind them are the men directly responsible for the army and for its maintenance at full strength. These assurances should be sufficient to reassure that public upon the matter about which Mr. Herridge and his associates appear to be so greatly disturbed.—Winnipeg Free Press.

INDIANS IN SERVICES

CANADA'S Indians are upholding nobly the loyal traditions of their gallant ancestors. According to preliminary figures, over 1,200 Indians have already enlisted in the armed forces in Canada, and there are, no doubt, many Indian enlistments which have not been reported to the Department of Mines and Resources. Some Canadian Indians are known to have enlisted in the American Air Force and may now be striking down the enemy with winged Tomahawks instead of the tomahawk which their forebears used in days gone by.

According to the official records of the department, more than 4,000 Indians enlisted for active service in the Canadian Expeditionary Force during the last war. This number represented approximately 35 per cent of the Indian male population of military age in the nine provinces.—Canadian Resources Bulletin.

"WE CAN TAKE IT FOR VICTORY"

• New Rostov Push Near

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, May 13 —(AP)—A Churchill prediction that a new "hurricane" of Nazi attack must soon end the "stormy lull" in Russia seems verified within forty-eight hours of its utterance.

On the slender, blood-drenched finger of Kerch Peninsula, the Crimean backdoor to the Caucasus, the first German blows have fallen. That vindicates also the judgment of many Allied observers that it is failing oil reserves which must dominate Hitler strategy and hold out the brightest hope to shorten the war.

Whether the fight for the Kerch bridgehead to the Caucasus proves a feint or the actual beginning of a new German attempt to sweep around the Rostov corner, there seems no question that the most powerful concentration of Red armies on the whole 2,000-mile front is posted to defend that vital southern flank. Berlin radio commentators hint at a vast Nazi turning movement impending on the "Kharkov-Kerch front." Military onlookers in Berne estimate that Hitler has mustered 2,000,000 men for a supreme effort to break through into the Caucasus.

BUSY WITH DEFENSES

London discounts that report. Prime Minister Churchill himself indicated, however, that Russian and Allied staffs still lacked two days ago any positive information as to where and when the test would come.

"We have not so far seen any evidence of those great concentrations of German masses which usually precede their large-scale offensives," he said. "They may have been successfully concealed, or may not yet have been launched eastward. But it is now the tenth of May, and the days are passing."

Weather conditions in the Crimea and northward to Kharkov have been suitable for two weeks or more for major operations. By ever straw in the wind it is along the southern flank from Kharkov to the Kerch Peninsula the Russian High Command has expected the German offensive to develop.

Unquestionably the Russians know more than Mr. Churchill would care to reveal of Nazi offensive dispositions and have deployed their own forces accordingly. Since the surprise Russian recapture of the Kerch bridgehead, Marshal Timoshenko's troops south of Kharkov holding the Kerch gateway have been significantly aloof from the Red Army winter offensive operations further north. They have obviously been busy with defense preparations against the German drive that may now be opening.

RECAPTURE ESSENTIAL

Recapture of the Kerch bridgehead as a preliminary to a massive German effort to turn the Rostov corner is essential to the Nazis. In Nazi hands it was so serious a flanking threat late last fall that the Russians abandoned Rostov to fall back behind the Don, only to retake it a few days later when the premature onset of the hardest Russian winter in decades caught the Germans unprepared.

The great Nazi winter retreat began at Rostov Nov. 29, a week after its capture. There seems small doubt that the Nazi offensive now on Kerch Peninsula, balked in its first thrusts according to Moscow reports, is the beginning of a new Battle of Rostov which could bring the Nazi-Russian conflict to another crisis within a short time and evolve into one of the most decisive clashes of the war.

That the Russians are better prepared on the Kharkov-Kerch front to meet the supreme test than they have been at any time, goes without saying. They are commanded by men of tested skill and judgment, deeply experienced in Nazi war technique. The ranks of new Red armies also are stiffened by battlewise veterans, and by the hope of dealing Hitler a final crushing blow now, not at some remote future time.

• Proof of the Pudding

DOMINION Bureau of Statistics reports the official index of living costs unchanged on April 1 from the March 2 figure of 115.9. In other words, the cost of living is not going up.

One thing this seems to prove is that Mr. Donald Gordon's prices ceiling works. The ceiling may involve grief for some, and bring problems for the Government; may not in the end be the full answer to inflation. The fact remains that through five months which have seen money plentiful and goods scarce the cost of living has been kept down.

This is something which could not have happened without a prices ceiling. Can any one imagine that, without pegged rentals, a housing shortage and more money in more people's hands wouldn't have brought soaring rents? Or that a scarcity of wool and cloth wouldn't have brought sky-high prices for clothes? And that, without a ceiling, prices generally wouldn't have jumped tremendously?

Prices would have gone up. And as prices went up there would have come successive cost-of-living bonuses, and perhaps demands for increases in basic wage rates, with inevitable consequence that in the end prices would be chasing wages and wages prices in a dizzy spiral of inflation.

It stands greatly to the credit of Canada's war leadership, and to the credit especially of Mr. Donald Gordon and Finance Minister Ilsley, that there was wit to devise and courage to execute a prices ceiling—one of the most revolutionary economic experiments ever attempted in a democratic state. It was an experiment calling for boldness, for disregard of political consequences, and for willingness to learn by trial and error; and it was an experiment above all which banked heavily upon the willingness of a democratic people to make heavy sacrifices voluntarily. Thus far it has succeeded; and no finer tribute to its success could be given than in the decision of our great American neighbors to copy it. To copy it in essentials, at any rate.

In Montreal on Monday Leon Henderson, United States Prices Administrator, spoke to the Canadian Club, admitted frankly that one of the main factors in shaping the prices ceiling of the United States, with an alignment of controls in the two countries, was a suggestion of Donald Gordon. The suggestion was that there should be as far as possible "an equality of burden on the citizens of the two countries."

This surely is something for Canada's war story.—Ottawa Journal.

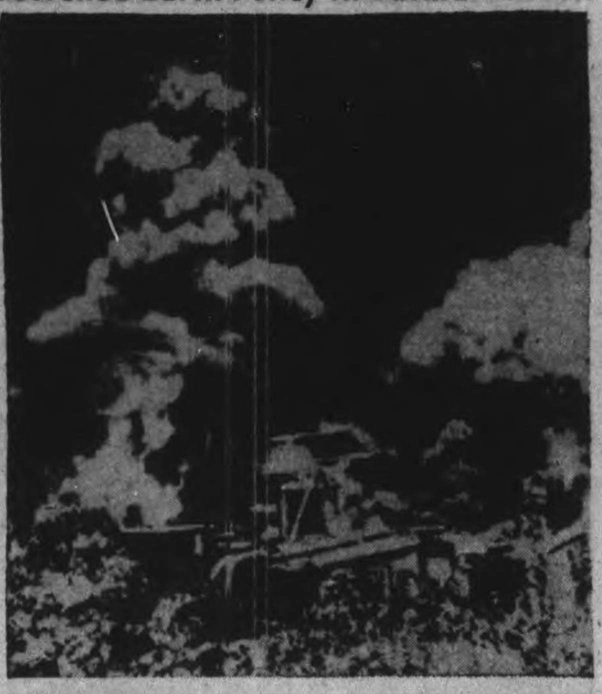
Scorched Earth Policy In Burma



This picture was flown from Burma to Cairo, Egypt, then radioed to London and cabled to New York, and shows oil equipment blazing and billows of black smoke filling the air at Yenangyaung, where plant producing power for 85 per cent of Burma oil that is irreplaceable in wartime, was destroyed to foil the advancing Japanese. This followed the scorched earth policy of the Allied forces.

LAKEFIELD

An Open Beach Or Closed Tent Site Park Problem That Splits Council

LAKEFIELD, May 13—(ENS).—Whether the residents of the village have Katchewanooka Point, the community park's beauty spot and best bathing beach, open for the citizens in general to visit as a picnic ground, or rest haven to enjoy a hot summer afternoon's refreshing breeze off the lake, hangs in the balance.

Council in session Monday night balanced on the issue; Reeve C. S. Tanner and Councillor Fred Lawrence favoring keeping all tenters and trailer outfits back of the horseshoe road, leaving a boulevard front clear for the public, while Councillors George Graham and G. H. Charlton backed the old system of letting first there grab the choice spots and the "public go hang." Councillor D. B. Millar was canny, but apparently sided with the boulevard idea.

Reeve Tanner believed community interests should come before any revenue from rentals and that the twenty yards or so between the road and the shore should be reserved with camps and parking prohibited.

Councillor Graham claimed moving the camps back of the road would discourage them and the village should take in all the rental it could by letting tent and trailer space where visitors wished.

"That plan," said Fred Lawrence, "tends to shut off the best waterfront and discourage village residents from visiting this choice spot. With tents practically at the water's edge any one walking along the front has to almost climb over tent ropes and in a community park a situation like that should not be—it makes the people who own the park feel as if they were trespassing."

"Few of the villagers ever go over there so we might just as well get the most out of it in revenue," said Mr. Graham.

"They might go over if they had some place to go on that point in the hot weather," replied the reeve, "but in the past the front has been packed with tents and anyone not camping there had little encouragement to return."

Councillor Charlton, pressed for an opinion, stated if he went over for a picnic he'd want it in the woods, not at the water, and thought not all the front should be left open for the public.

The upshot of the affair will see the whole body of officials inspect the situation before a final decision.

Park Road To Be Oiled

Steps ere taken to have the centre road into the park regraded and oiled this year, with a coating put on the point section before tourist season begins.

Last December some five thousand tons of neptheline fill was dumped on a weedy bay on the river side near the point, and this has to be levelled off in a slope to the river which wen given a top coat of soil and seeded will make considerable improvement. Discussion about hiring a bulldozer to level the fill failed to see a decision, members favoring a delay until the material was drier.

On a request from the Hydro Commission of Ontario for an appointment to discuss a further cut in the Hydro's $77,901 assessment, a date was set to meet T. U. Fairlie, Hydro Assessment Commissioner, Thursday, May 21, at 8 o'clock in the hall.

A. E. Jupp Construction Company was awarded the contract for supplying and oiling the streets at 12.6 cents per gallon of 65 per cent asphalt dust layer. Last year over 6,300 gallons were used on the village streets and this year 6,500 gallons were ordered with the order to be stepped up to 7,000 if needed. At a quarter of a gallon per square yard it takes 1,760 gallons to do a strip 12 feet wide by one mile long.

The request was made that the job be done before the end of this month. While the members were dealing with roads a new carburetor was authorized for the village grader and a step for rear of the machine. Nepheline will be placed on Edward and Albert streets.

A petition from the mechants was received with approval for a business half holiday on Thursday afternoons in June, July and August, and a bylaw will be drawn up on motion of Fred Lawrence and George Graham to be passed at the special meeting set for May 21.

Clerk Harry T. Hill, on searching the records, could find no previous bylaw covering a half holiday in the village, and the Reeve stated he thought it must be the only municipality in Ontario not observing a half day a week. Several members were in favor of making the holiday good for all year round with the exception of Christmas and weeks when other holidays were in force. Before action on this will be taken, opinions of the various merchants will be sounded. The bylaw may be amended at any time to cover this move if generally approved.

Dog taxes got a going over along with the list of citizens behind in this levy. Some officials, not dog owners, suggested a dog catcher's field day with a roundup and the canine captives being stored in the village stable where a $1 fee would be collected plus the arrears in taxes before the dog released. The clerk figured forty could be netted on the first pre-breakfast swoop down the main street any morning.

Upon discovering the total arrears out amounted to $170, D. B. Millar and George Graham proposed summonses be issued and the tardy ones haled into court, where the fee would be entracted plus court costs, and it was decided to try this method if Magistrate Langley would consent to preside over the session.

Bylaw No. 848, appointing Harry T. Hill clerk-treasurer, tax collector and special officer at $900 per year was passed.

No action at Curling Rink

The matter of excavating the muck topsoil from the two curling ices at the rink was left in abeyance till the ground dries up, as it is not fit to work in at the present. Two prices on the job, one by truck and one by team were quoted at $1 per yard, which the council unanimously felt was excessive, and further quotations will be obtained or the job handled under council supervision by team and straight day labor.

Three men are at present busy in the park cleaning it up and Councillor Lawrence suggested a booth and lunch counter might be a paying proposition there, built from cedar logs taken from the bush on the property. He suggested some live committee take over the job of handling the new band stand and tennis court as a revenue-maker this summer—an idea that was generally approved by the reeve and other members. The final coating will be placed on the courts shortly and with a little use will be in shape for dancing.

The setup will be surveyed this month and plans for a summer's program laid out, in all probability to include another regatta and field day.

Accounts were passed as follows: Paysheet No. 6, wages, roads, $46.83; H. Viner, sanitary, $1.80; O. Redpath, grader equipment, $4.50; Lakefield High School, adv. rates, $1,000; Public School, $800; Bell Telephone, $4; Paysheet No. 7 wages, $83.20; Hydro, $155.60; D. H. Webster, livery, 50c; E. H. Northey, supplies charity, $5; G. W. Payne, groceries, charity, $9; James McManus, balance re snowplowing, $25; Davis and Charlton, gas, oil, repairs, $16.14; Coyle's garage, gas, oil, etc., $64.77; N. A. Moore, lumber, $20.03; W. W. Leonard, supplies, $10.24; C. Foster, gas, repairs, $16.90; H. Kemp, milk, charity, $6; Ontario Treasurer, two public hall licenses, $6.12; Lakefield News, printing $5; Stan. Richardson, $16. Total, $496.67.

No Gas Allowed For Second Car

OTTAWA, May 13.—(CP)—A motorist already in possession of a gasoline license for a private passenger car will not be allowed gasoline for any category "A" car he may purchase, it was announced today by the Department of Munitions and Supply.

The order, issued by Oil Controller G. R. Cottrelle of Toronto, also prohibits any one from obtaining gasoline for a car he purchases which is in addition to a car owned by any one living with him and connected with him by blood relationship, marriage or adoption.

The Controller said the order applies only to a car purchased today or at some future date. It was intended to prevent any one from circumventing the intention of the rationing order by purchasing an additional car in his own name or in the name of a relative. The provisions of the order could be waived by the Controller to meet exceptional circumstances.

"Any one who yesterday had two cars in his possession, or one owned by himself and another by some relation or relative in the same household, is not affected by the order," he said. "The two licenses will remain in force."

Sabotage In Munich

MOSCOW, May 13—(AP).—The Soviet Information Bureau declared today that a big munitions works in the German city of Munich recently had been blown up, and attributed the blast to rising "resentment of the German people to the criminal Hitlerite clique."

"The main departments of this plant were put out of commission for a long time to come," the bureau said in a supplement to a war communique, adding that walls and fences in the city, birthplace of the Nazi movement, frequently are plastered with such slogans as "Down With The Criminal War!" and "Long Live The Soviet Union"!

4 Track Meets At Woodbine Is Suggestion

By CHARLIE OLIVER

TORONTO, May 13.—The Incorporated Racing Associations, governing body of horse racing in Ontario, has called a special meeting of the directors for Thursday at 2:15 p.m., to discuss the suggestion to hold the four spring meets at Woodbine track.

Enthusiastic support of the proposal has been forthcoming from Oil Controller George Cottrelle and Premier Hepburn. Both regard the idea as a patriotic one from the standpoint of gasoline and rubber conservation. A. E. Dyment, president of the Ontario Jockey Club which operates Woodbine, favors the plan, and Fred Livingston, director of Thorncliffe, has expressed the view that race track operators all over Canada are anxious to contribute to the war effort in any way possible.

Send Out Notices

Mr. Dyment said notices of the I.C.R.A. meeting were sent out last night to all race track operators who are directors of the organization.

Fred Orpen was still unavailable last night and at this moment it is not known what attitude he will take with regard to moving the Long Branch and Dufferin meets to the Woodbine plant.

A great majority of horsemen are heartily in favor of pooling all four meets at one track in the interests of gas and rubber conservation. They believe it is up to the managements of the various tracks to seize every opportunity to make a substantial war contribution. And this is a golden chance, it is felt.

They Would Benefit

Owners of small racing stables, those who make their livelihood out of the purses their horses are able to win for them, stand to benefit materially from adoption of the one-track proposition. Their overhead, most of it in the shape of vanning charges, would be practically eliminated.

The transportation of feed would also be cut down, effecting a saving of fuel and rubber in this respect as well. There is a distinct shortage of stable help due to the war, and the holding of four race meets at one track would go a long way toward solving this problem.

All Saints' Win Bantam Battle

Scoring six runs in the first inning the All Saints' team won the opening game in the bantam division of the Church Softball League last night by defeating St. James' 14 to 9 at Nicholls Oval. That first frame splurge was too much for the St. James' outfit although they never stopped battling. They got three themselves in the first inning. McDougall was the winning pitcher, while Berwick did the heaving for the losers.

By innings:

All Saints	626 010 x	—14
St. James	302 301 0	— 9

All Saints—Williams 1b, Kidd 2b, Cutmore 3b, McDougall p, Edgar cf, Dibben lf, Doughty c, Shadgett rf, Runnett ss, Chambers ss, Kidd cf.

St. James—Payne c, Berwick p, Akins 2b, Finnie 1b, Langhorn rf, Lane 3b, Grant cf, Gannon ss, Curtis lf.

Umpires—Woodcock and Chambers.

In Army Service

WASHINGTON, May 13—(AP).—Several score former air liners, stripped of passenger seats and fancy fittings and repainted an olive drab color, have joined the United States army to carry soldiers and military cargo. Air officials said today most of the 80 or more liners whose surrender to the War Department was announced a month ago had been diverted to domestic and overseas routes prescribed by the army, and their cargoes restricted to military purposes.

CARIBBEAN CRISIS

By EATON K. GOLDTHWAITE

CHAPTER I

It was a little past noon when the mailboat reached Abas Island and Bill Talcott, who had been up since dawn, noticed with amazement the arrival of four visitors. He had no difficulty in spotting the new man Halsey, a rangy, lantern-jawed individual in his forties, and he guessed that the skinny little fellow with the voluminous briefcase would be the company auditor.

But the other two, a moustached character much the worse for the ride across Anegada Passage, and a slender blonde girl in plum-colored slacks, were entirely out of place. It was only because the girl was so positive in ordering the transfer of her luggage that Bill Talcott decided she must be a relative of Halsey's who had come along to see him settled in his new home.

"I'm your successor," the rangy man admitted after he had gotten the dock under his feet. "Not surprised you didn't meet us in Saint Thomas. Had no idea it was such a long trip. This is Struthers, the auditor, and Mr. MacDowell."

The auditor's too-heavy clothing gave him the appearance of having been fried in deep fat; he shook hands gravely and opened the briefcase to fuss with credentials. The moustached MacDowell responded with a grunt, mopped beads of sweat from his heavy gray face, and didn't seem to see Talcott's proffered hand.

The girl in the plum-colored slacks was fresh as a zephyr, as coolly unconcerned as a scudding cloud. "I'm June Peterson," she announced, wrinkling her pert nose. "Lowell Byrd's cousin. He cabled that you were expecting to return to the Continent. I've been spending a month with friends in Charlotte Amalie and Lowell's afraid I'll go native. You're to look after me."

You could have shouted at Bill Talcott that a shark was swimming within 50 feet of him and he wouldn't have turned a hair. You could have told him that one of the black from the nitrate pits had gone crazy with rum and heat and was crouched behind him with a naked machete, and he would have accepted the warning with a grin. But for an attractive young woman to calmly announce that she was delivering herself in this charge—

"Wh-what?" Bill Talcott gasped.

"Aren't you thrilled?" she murmured, lowering her lashes in exaggerated coquette. And then she swept away to organize the confused scampering of houseboys for luggage.

Bill Talcott gaped, wracking his brain to recall Lowell Byrd's cousin. Could this be the kid he'd danced with after the water polo meets at Cornell? Dimly he remembered a lot of arms and legs all wrapped in yards of green silk. It had been a dozen years since he had shared a room with Lowell Byrd in engineering school. Suddenly, because you don't go in for the social niceties after six years on a place like Abas, he became conscious that he had neither shaved nor changed his clothes.

"I suppose you received Winters' cable?" Halsey was saying. "I presume your accounts are in shape for the customary audit?" The new man's critical eye scanned the rocky, barren contour of the island. Already he was fretting in the closeness of the brassy, stifling heat; flaring his nostrils at the smell.

"I'm all set," Talcott said. "We'll go up to the house for a drink. You'll be able to get in a swim before lunch if you like."

Halsey hesitated, a half-smile on his lips, and the sweating little auditor cut in. "Thanks for the invitation, Talcott," Struthers said in a thin voice. "But if you don't mind, Halsey and I will get directly to work. If you'll just show us to the office."

Bill Talcott nodded in mild surprise. Such eagerness to buckle down didn't seem just right, not after a 1,600-mile steamship ride topped off with a night and a morning on the jolting mailboat. Still, auditors were creatures of habit more than whim and Struthers seemed set on living up to his role. Shrugging, Talcott pointed to a cluster of galvanized buildings on the ridge and, taking June Paterson and the wobbly MacDowell in hand, he set off along the path to his bungalow.

Tall, frosted glasses appeared, luggage melted from sight, and Talcott relaxed with his guests on the terrace. From comfortable chairs they watched the rustling fronds of royal palms against the trade-wind sky, eyed the antics of a tiny lizard perched on the swaying bough of a flamboyant tree.

June Paterson fidgeted and her eyes glinted hostilely. She sniffed. "From what Lowell told me I expected to find you living in a cave. So you're leaving all this to go in the army?"

"I have to take up my commission," he said, and decided that she was horribly spoiled. He didn't thing it necessary to tell her that "all this" included operation of a fertilizer plant. Her uptilted nose must have told her that. He didn't tell her, either, that the population of Abas consisted of tough blacks; that she was the first white woman who had set foot there in more than a year.

The recovering MacDowell filled his mouth with ice and grunted, "Say, it's kinda nice here. This one o' the Virgin Islands?"

Talcott smiled. "No. You're now in the Netherlands, or what's left of them. It's quite a job to keep track of the minor pawns in the strategy of international chess."

"Holland! Gosh!"

Talcott would have liked to ask him his connection with Halsey and Struthers; there hadn't been any MacDowells mentioned in the hectic correspondence with Old Man Winters. But he kept his peace. After six years of sameness a new face, even a close-mouthed one, was welcome. June Paterson supplied the lack with an endless round of questions about the extraction of nitrates, and they were on a fresh round of drinks when Halsey came up the path.

The new man's jaw was grim and his eyes were both puzzled and appraising. "Struthers wants to see you," Halsey said abrupty.

"So soon?" Talcott flushed. Aren't you fellows in a bit of a rush?"

"I think you'd better go," Halsey said. Again his eyes held swift appraisal, mirroring perhaps incredulous disappointment.

Baffled, Talcot got to his feet. Turning to June Paterson he said, "I trust you will excuse me. The boy will get you anything you need."

The ash-blonde girl regarded him with a quizzical smile. "Trouble in paradise," she laughed. "Do we dress for dinner?"

"If you wish," he said coldly.

Whatever concern he held at the strangeness of Halsey's manner was stifled when he entered the office. In its hot interior, Struthers had surrounded himself with books. The auditor's coat was off and his wet

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

The City Softball League is making arrangements for a real opening for the loop next Monday night when the Adam Hat Royals and Plaza Billiards will clash at Riverside Park. Appropriate ceremonies are being planned, there will be a couple of draw prizes and it looks like a gala night. The proceeds of the collection will be handed over to the British War Victims' Fund and the league management is hopeful of a record opening night crowd in order that a worthwhile contribution may be made to this worthy cause. Last season the league staged a benefit game for the War Victims' Fund and the softball fans rallied behind the effort in great style with the result that a substantial sum was handed over. It is hoped that last year's mark will be surpassed Monday night. The teams who face each other in the initial encounter have rounded up strong outfits and there is already plenty of rivalry between the two so that the contest should be worthy of the occasion.

* * * * * *

The Catholic League which will stage games five nights a week from now until August at Memorial Park in East City got away to a fine start Monday night when the St. Peter's team triumphed over last year's champs, the East City Cubs. The final count was 8 to 4 and the win in one sense was a surprise inasmuch as the Cubs had the benefit of the services of two City Leaguers, Pitcher Bucky Fleming of last season's Orphans and Shortstop Ossie Anderson, with Hastings a year ago. Both these boys will play with the Military Training Centre team this season and their presence on the Cub lineup for the opening game was expected to make things decidedly tough for the Saints. However the St. Peter's Club broke loose with a seven-run scoring spree in the first inning and with Cavanaugh pitching steady ball that one big frame was ample to bring victory. The Catholic loop should produce a lot of exciting battles this summer.

* * * * * *

Hear plenty of compliments about the manner in which the veteran Nagle Phelan performed as umpire-in-chief in Monday night's Catholic League game. Peterborough's No. 1 baseball fan was called upon at short notice to step in there and take charge and he succeeded in satisfying both outfits. Years ago the former alderman used to umpire baseball fixtures but the softball brand was a new venture. However he sailed along like Bill Klem and had no trouble in his initial assignment. Like Knotty Lee, Phelan would rather talk baseball than eat and he has done a lot of travelling to get a look at some of the diamond stars in action.

Thompson Shows Them

For weeks they have been tossing left-handed pitchers at the Brooklyn Dodgers on the theory that the Bums are top-heavy with left-handed hitters and a steady diet of portside throwing would take a lot of sting out of the Dodger attack. Gene Thompson of the Cininnati Reds demonstrated yesterday however that a good right-hander can also weave magic spells around the bats of the powerhouses of the Brooklyn Club. Mister Thompson really pitched himself a ball game. Only thirty batters faced him during the matinee and the only Dodger hit of the day was a double by Pinch Hitter Riggs in the sixth frame. Cincinnati won the argument 5 to 1 with Rookie Lamano helping in the Dodgers downfall with a homer. Johnny Allen was the losing Brooklyn pitcher. Incidentally yesterday was a bad day for first division clubs in the National League. All four of them absorbed trimmings from the second section clubs and that is probably an excellent thing for the gate receipts all around.

* * * * * *

The New York Giants took a fall out of Pittsburg to the tune of 7 to 3 and on top of that pulled off the first triple play of the season. Melton was the winner for the Giants while the losing twirler was Ken Heintzelman. The New Yorkers scored a cluster of four runs in the third inning and that was enough to take the verdict. In the Chicago-Boston game a couple of rookie pitchers Schmitz for the Cubs and Tost for the Braves were the starting heaver but neither of them went the route. The Cubs finally won the argument 9 to 8 despite a home run by Jim Tobin, the Braves' pitching ace who went in as a pinch hitter and poled out a circuit clout. To make the rout of the upper bracket complete the Phils nosed out the St. Louis Cards 3 to 2 with Frank Hoerst turning in a six-hit card to take the scalps of the powerful Cardinals. Lanier was the starting pitcher for St. Louis and the loss was his.

* * * * * *

So far as Penetang, Ont., is concerned interest in major league baseball is confined to the doings of the Philadelphia A's. The reason, of course, is the great work of Penetang's native son Phil Marchildon who is one of the ace twirlers in the American loop this season. Yesterday Marchildon hung up his fifth win of the season and at his present rate may finish in the list of 20-game winners, a rare feat these days for Athletic pitchers. The Penetang boy registered his fifth victory at the expense of the St. Louis Browns, although he did not finish the ball game, Caliguri being in there at the finish. Marchildon, however, owes a vote of thanks to the A's rookie shortstop, John Wallaesa, rated by Connie Mack as the best short fielder in the American League, who strode up to the plate in the eighth and cracked out a homer with two men on. As the final score was 5 to 4 for the A's the value of that rap can be realized. Incidentally for the benefit of the Penetang Chamber of Commerce, we might mention that in the American League year book the name of Marchildon's home town is twice spelled "Pennetang."

Al Marshall expects to defend his breast stroke title at the Canadian swimming championship meet at St. Adele, Que., on July 17 and 16 and other Peterborough swimmers may take part in the championships. The meet, incidentally promises to be a gala affair and the contestants will be battling under de luxe conditions. The races are to be staged in the pool of the St. Adele Lodge and Country Club, in the Laurentians. All the contestants will be billeted close to the lodge and will have access to the pool for training purposes prior to the meet. Ample showers, dressing rooms and first aid conveniences are within a step from the edge of the pool and under the roof of the beautiful "Pines" aquatic building. Wide racing lanes will be provided and the 1942 meet is expected to be one of the best in the history of the sport.

Ken Colling's Belleville sport column has the following: "According to Roy Nassau, sports editor of a Harrisburg, Pa., newspaper, Ralph (High-pockets) McCabe, came to the rescue of the Senators in his second Interstate League start last week when the Senators blanked the Wilmington Blue Rocks 2 to 0 after losing the initial game of a double-header. Down Harrisburg way they nicknamed McCabe "Handsome," and apparently he did a handsome piece of mound work by allowing four hits and blanking the Blue Rocks. According to the box score in the Harrisburg press, McCabe must be improving in his hitting, as he was credited with winning his own game with a timely single to score the Senators' first run. McCabe pitched himself out of difficulty in the sixth after walking one and allowing a hit with none away. He then proceeded to bear down by striking out two and making a third pop easily to retire the side and stem the only chance the Blue Rocks had of knotting the count. Mr. Nassau says it was one of the fastest league games played in Harrisburg in years."

Sport Snapshots Across Canada

TORONTO, May 13.—(CP)—It's doubtful if there's an athletic organization in Canada can match Regina Roughriders' war effort.

Roughriders started early. In the autumn of 1939, when most football clubs were two years away from a player shortage, Regina lost several to the armed forces. Lindsay Holt, a fine back, was among the first to go. Not a cushy job, or even a commission. He was a buck private.

Dave (Regina Leader-Post) Dryburgh and Dean Griffing, most colorful football lineman in Canada, got together the other day and figured out how many of the 1941 Roughriders were in the services. The answer: Army 11; Navy 2; Air Force 5; War Industry 2. That's 19 of a playing strength of about 23. Total enlistments from clubs of 1939-40: 18.

The record may soon be 100 per cent. Griffing has ambition to complete a flying course and become an instructor. One of the other three has applied for air force enlistment. Another is in school.

The King Doubles Up

Newmarket, Eng., May 13 (CP)

THE King's Stable completed a rare double at Newmarket today when the filly Sun Chariot won the One Thousand Guineas Stakes after the Royal colt Big Game took the Two Thousand Guineas classic yesterday. Sun Chariot was the even-money favorite.

It was the first time since 1902 that one stable had won both events and the first time Royal entries ever won both.

EX-MATE ROBS THOMPSON OF NO-HITTER AS HE STOPS BROOKS 5-1

Giants Produce Triple Play Whip Bucs 7-3

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sport Writer

Gene (Junior) Thompson is a young fellow who always seems to have been bordering upon greatness as a pitcher.

Every year since he joined Cincinnati Reds in 1939 he has been considered a potential 20-game winner and although his actual victories for three seasons have been 13, 16 and 6.

But the big, rangy righthander never was as close to crossing the border as he was in Brooklyn yeseterday when he came within a blow of the no-hit game all hurlers dream about.

The only hit off Thompson was a pinch double in the sixth inning by his former teammate, Lew Riggs, one of the best pinchhitters in the game today, and it set up a run that cheated Thompson of even a shutout. The Reds won 5-1. This was Thompson's second victory without a defeat this spring.

Cincinnati's triumph bunched all four clubs in the first division within four games, but Brooklyn's 2½-game margin over the second-place Pittsburgh Pirates was not harmed because New York Giants bowled over the Buccaneers 7-3.

The Giants sprang a triple play, the first of the year in the majors, and rallied twice for four and three runs to help Lefty Cliff Melton achieve his fourth triumph. The triple killing came in the seventh inning when the Giants were leading by only one run. With Pittsburgh runners on first and second rookie Connie Ryan caught a liner by Frank Gustine and tossed to Bill Jurges, who stepped on second and then tagged Pete Coscarart charging down from first. If Jurges had not been standing on the bag, Ryan might have made the whole play solo.

Cubs Hold Braves 9-8

Chicago Cubs managed to stop the rush of Boston Braves, but only by a close 9-8 margin. The Braves tallied five times in an effort to catch up in the eighth, two of the runs coming on a pinch homer by Jim Tobin, who will pitch today.

Likewise Philadelphia Phils cooled off St. Louis Cardinals 3-2 behind the six-hit hurling of Frank Hoerst. The Phils also were held to six safeties, but linked together four successive single in the third inning to rout Max Lanier.

All the games in the American League were postponed except Philadelphia Athletics' struggle at St. Louis and Rookie Jack Wallaesa won this for the A's 5-4 with a three-run homer in the eighth inning. Credit for the victory went to Phil Marchildon, but he was rescued by Fred Caligiuri when the Browns loaded the bases with one out in the eighth. Caligiuri promptly fannned Vernon Stephens and Tony Cirscola.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

George Stallings, "miracle man" of baseball, died at Haddock, Ga., 13 years ago today. He startled the sport world in 1914 when his Boston Braves, last-place club in the National League in July, romped through to the championship and then beat Philadelphia Athletics four straight in the world series. He help revive Class AA ball in Montreal in 1928 after a 16-year lapse.

Alsab Comes From Behind To Win Fifty-Second Running Of Preakness

Despite a slow start, plucky little Alsab, LEFT, staged a brilliant stretch finish to win the 52nd running of the Preakness. Third from LEFT is Sun Again, and at the RIGHT is Requested. Those two finished in a dead heat for second place. Alsab pounded home first after being as far back as ninth in the backstretch, and the triumph was by better than a length.

Etobicoke Gains Boxla Star In Gord Gair

TORONTO, May 13.—Etobicoke's happy-go-lucky Indians, cellar dwellers during the entire course of last season's O.L.A. campaign, gained another outstanding boxla artist for their formidable 1942 roster when club officials announced last night that Gord Gair would line up with the Redskins.

A product of Mimico minor lacrosse and one of the four brothers who have served on that suburban town's senior squads for a number of years, Gair will take a world of experience and no mean scoring ability to the Indians. Two brothers, Norm and Jack, joined the Etobicoke team last year, and a desire to campaign with the pair is behind the move.

Indians recently signed Joe Murphy, another Mimico veteran, in an ambitious rebuilding program that got under way with the acquisition of the three Creighton brothers from Peterborough. Bob Creighton will take over goalkeeping chores as Duke Savage, last year's goalie, is recovering from a siege of pneumonia and will not be ready for action until well into the season. Jerry and Em complete this second trio of brothers and are available for defense and forward duty, respectively. Bob (Mucker) McWhinnie, captain of Brooklin's senior "B" aggregation, is another addition to the team's attacking divisions.

The Etobicokes will rely on a number of last year's performers to round out the squad. Bill (Red) Hartley, the converted net-minder, Duke Harrison, Elmert Lee and Duke Henson are back in action on the forward lines and have been showing rare form in early practice sessions. Don Campbell, a Mimico junior, and Grant Gillespie are wing men taking their first fling in senior company.

For defensive duties the revamped Redmen can call on Jimmy Davidson, Annis Stukus and Ed Haney in addition to Murphy and Creighton.

NEW YORK, May 13—(AP). — Dad Felix, who has pitched some 1,600 Sunday sandlot ball games in Denver since 1902, figures he's good for another 10 or 20 years. He was 65 last month.

Short Short Story

Here's another one they tell on Lefty Gomez: When the Yanks were rained out in Detroit a year or so ago, a bunch of them went across the river to visit Windsor, Ont. When a customs official asked if they had anything to declares, Gomez said: "Yes, 185 pounds of dope." . . . When he was able to speak, the official asked where it was . . . "Right here," said Lefty, pointing to George Selkirk.

Washington Redskins have announced they will hold pre-season football practice next Fall at San Diego, Calif.—which sounds like the height of something . . . Joe Louis ha been tranferred from Camp Upton to the Army Morale Division office in New York City, so it doesn't appear likely he will be shifted again before he gets a chance at a summer fight.

Bookie Returns $42,500 Wagers

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y., May 13.—Frank Erickson, one of New York City's biggest bookmakers, has agreed to return $42,500 lost to him in horse-race wagers.

The agreement was the result of an out-of-court settlement stemming from an action by John Austin, once junior partner in a New York law firm, who had sued Erickson for $193,620 lost in bets.

Austin began the action in 1940 after he had served a prison term of three and a half years—because the money he used in betting was not his own. He filed the suit to recover the money for twenty-eight luckless persons whose money he had gambled.

At the first trial of the suit the jury deemed Austin a professional gambler and thus not entitled to recover. The Appelate Division affirmed this, but the Court of Appeals reversed the ruling.

Jim Smith Once Major's Ace Scrapper

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sport Writer

NEW YORK, May 13.—(AP). — Jimmy Smith, the fighting father-in-law of Fighter Billy Conn, earned himself a lasting reputation in the major leagues as a fearless scrapper in the two-fisted era of the game.

He was a good enough infielder that Pittsburg Pirates picked him as the successor to the immortal Honus Wagner at shortstop in 1916, but he hurt his ankle in the first game of the season and the fates brought him a different fame.

Old-timers are full of stories about his ecapades.

There was a time in 1921 when he was with the Phils. One night he went to Camden, N.J., to see Roy Steele, a great basketball player of the day.

Smith was in such a hurry to catch the 11.30 ferry in order to beat the training curfew that he hopped on the boat without a ticket. He became involved in a bloody battle with several dock policemen and ended up in jail with six stitches in his head.

Teamates bailed him out without telling Manager Hize Wilhelm and the following afternoon Smith played second base.

Always in Condition.

Most of Smith's encounters started as innocently as that. He had, and still has, a terrible temper, but in his playing days he never drank or smoked. He made a fetish of being in condition and was a better all round athlete than his son-in-law ever hoped to be.

He is 47 years old now, but looks 30 and for the last week or two worked out with the Pirates at Pittsburgh along with his son, Tommy, who has baseball aspirations and shows promise. He was a caddy in his youth and now plays golf in the 70's.

He never weighed more than 165 in those days and is only 10 pounds heavier now, a dapper dresser with curly, sandy hair. He feared no one, or no numbers.

He was one of the leaders of the battling Cincinnati Reds who bagged the world series in 1919. That summer the Reds and Giants were involved in a ding-dong pennant struggle and one of their games ended in a riot at the Polo Grounds after Dolph Luque, pitching for the Reds, beaned Rube Benton. Witnesses say Smith was the individual winner in the free for all.

Smith always was a great admirer of John McGraw and once kicked a patron literally out of his saloon in Pittsburgh because of some disparaging remarks about the little Napoleon of the Giants.

Smith used to defend Conn, too, when the young Irish kid was just getting started on the trail to the top and before he started dating Smith's attractive daughter, Mary Louise.

Wings' Standing No Worry; Great Shortstop

By The Associated Press

Rochester is currently in the basement of the International League—but that doesn't worry Manager Tony Kaufman or the fans one bit.

It is only hours until the parent St. Louis Cardinals must cut to 25 players by National League rule. And seldom does Branch Rickey fail to do right by his International League holdings.

Yesterday, when all loop games were postponed because of weather, Kaufman—and seven other managers in the league—wondered what gifts the Cardinals would deal the Red Wings.

A slow start is customary with the Wings. It always takes a month for the youngsters shipped to the double A loop and veterans dropped from the big time to get organized.

One player who has given Kaufman moments of joy this spring, desepite the club standing, is shortstop Robert Eugene Lillard.

Lillard was a heavy hitting third baseman. In 1935 he walloped 56 home runs for Los Angeles of the Pacific Coast League and hit three more in the playoffs that year for a total of 59.

Chicago Cubs brought him up in 1936 for a trial. He couldn't oust Stanley Hack so the Wrigley interests sent him back to the coast to learn the pitching trade.

He won 30 games in two seasons and also retained a good deal of his hitting ability, deciding some of his own games with home runs and other timely hits. With the Cubs in 1939 he won his first two major league starts before he was returned to the minors.

One Game on Mound

He was acquired by the Cards and started one game for them in 1940 but was knocked out of the box in the first inning. That ended his pitching career.

The Cards farmed him out with instructions to play the infield. Now he again looks like the Lillard who thrilled the Coast League.

So far this season he has garnered six home runs, two behind the leaders, Frank Kelleher of Newark and Bob Lemon of Baltimore. He sports a .319 batting average and is a leading run scorer.

Toronto Maple Leafs returned catcher Bill Jackson to Knoxville Smokies of the Southern Association and also lost the services of pitcher Tom Drake.

Drake, who was purchased from Brooklyn Dodgers, walked into general manager Lee MacPhail's office and said that he was quitting. He had appeared in six games for the Leafs, going the distance once, winning one and losing two.

Careful Buying Is Big Aid To Red Cross

With thousands and thousands of voluntary women workers knitting and sewing in the 2,600 branches of the Canadian Red Cross Society from Cape Breton to Vancouver Island, this vast organization has become a smooth functioning factory dedicated to the production of articles for the relief of human suffering.

From the workrooms of these active branches 6,816,804 articles poured into Red Cross warehouses last year ready for distribution. Included in the articles are hospital supplies totalling 1,966,353; comforts for the armed forces and Women's Auxiliary Services, 6,416,578; comforts distributed in Canada and Newfoundland 400,226 and civilian comforts and clothing for shipment overseas 2,239,821.

Careful buying on the part of the purchasing committee composed of an able group of business men and women, coupled with the generosity of merchants and the voluntary work of devoted women all over the Dominion has meant the output of an ever increasing supply of relief articles at a minimum cost. $4,867,817 worth of supplies were purchased last year.

The Canadian Red Cross has not made an appeal for funds since October, 1940. A nation-wide drive opening May 11 has become a necessity to raise the $9,000,000 required to face the still greater task ahead.

Red Cross Must Be Ready

As in the days of Dunkirk and the first great blitz of the British Isles, the Red Cross must be ready to open its doors on cabled notice. The same is true of any emergency in Canada and continuous distribution of comforts, medical supplies, food and clothing must go on apace.

Experience gleaned from past demands has made for smooth cooperation throughout. There has been intensive planning and constructive groundwork which makes for an efficient body working at top speed.

Assignments Made

Branches do not work on projects they feel like working on. They are assigned the immediate and pressing needs and comply with instructions sent out to their divisions from national headquarters.

The central workroom in Toronto is in reality a laboratory for research on ways and means to conserve and economise on materials, to eliminate waste time and effort, and to secure maximium production. Patterns are thoroughly tried out before they are distributed to the divisions. Suggestions submitted by branch workers are investigated and if practicable, adopted.

Finished articles must measure up to the standard outlined in instructions sent out, or upon inspection, be taken apart and all flaws corrected. Since the recent government rulings on made-up garments the Red Cross has complied, scrupulously measuring each garment as required. Red Cross work is skilled workmanship turned out as economically as possible with the finished article excellent down to the finest detail.

Hours and days of careful and intensive planning lie behind the steady influx of clothing, knitted goods, hospital supplies, etc., shipped back to central warehouses for overseas consignment and relief distribution. The greatest care has been taken to make clothing for air raid victims in the British Isles suitable to their needs—the kind of clothing they have been used to—mostly woollen in content.

Everything is tackled from the simplest elementary task of making sling bandages to the intricacies of tailoring waterproof reversible top coats for A.R.P. workers in England.

Knitting Directed

Nor is the knitting undirected. The day is long past when to knit for the Red Cross meant "sox." The wool is carefully weighed, and when it is given out the knitter is told what to make. Helmets, scarves, sweaters of many kinds, gloves for the army and navy suuplies, never with a surplus, for sea-faring is hard on woollens and after several voyages a new issue is a necessity.

No "special" is too unique for central workroom to tackle. One of the latest projects is a giant, navy cloth boot to wear over a paster cast. Requested by medical men with cast cases in an army camp they have become increasingly useful and coastal hospitals have requisitioned them for "frozen foot" cases. Aviators' belts, mine sweepers' mitts, leather-faced woollen mitts for drivers, all these articles have been experimented on and approved, and when the demand has become great the patterns given out to the disivisions for the branches.

Not a single scrap of material is wasted. Small pieces of vari-colored fabric, stout enough to stand up under sterilization yet soft enough for comfort, are made into neat slippers for the Women's Auxiliary Forces. Other pieces are sorted out for quilts. The shreds and bits that remain go into a big container. Sorted again the soft shreds are made into filler for cushions and the discards sold for scrap, and the money turned back in to purchase new materials.

There are no professional seamstresses in the Red Cross workrooms. All the work is done voluntarily on ordinary machines with no special equipment. Central workroom makes no impossible demands on its branches. Knitted comforts and garments are checked or weighed to tally with raw materials sent out.

Every articles turned out receives a careful inspection. Women in the various branches take special pride in producing garments up to standard skilfully made, with no time wasted.

Into bins for overseas shipment, or into warehouses in Canada for emergency distribution go the myriad articles of relief supplies. Toward the days of renewed bombings in the British Isles, toward any requisition call from any point, the women of Canada work unremittingly.

Approximately three hundred and fifty boats have carried shipments of Red Cross articles overseas up to February this year ,to be carefully sorted and sent out to the widely scattered distribution warehouses in the British Isles.

Hot Food For Hungry British Fire Fighters

One of 36 large mobile kitchens presented by the Canadian Red Cross to British Fire Fighting Services, the unit shown ABOVE has penetrated to the heart of a bombed area in London where it is prepared to serve as many as 250 hot meals to men who stay on the job until the last bomb victim is rescued and the last fire is out. Hundreds of Canadian Red Cross ambulances are doing their share too.

Maj. Power made the following announcements and observations:

He was in "definite disagreement" with the British air ministry in its "passion for anonymity" in accounts of the exploits of airmen and believed Canadians should be told in detail and quickly of the heroism and performances of Canadian airmen.

It was proposed to double the operations of air observer schools and to continue them under civilian management. He denied claims of the opposition that these schools were making undue profits.

The joint air training plan is producing personnel far in excess of requirements, providing excess crews for home war establishment units.

He was in favor of granting commissions to all qualified air personnel but found the British treasury board reluctant to pay commissioned rates.

Recruiting for the Air Force was, to use a commercial markets term, "easy" but it was conceivable that the time would come when the source would be limited. Necessity for recruiting ground crews and mechanics was lessening.

4,000 A Month Joining

Average enlistments in the R.C.A.F. now are running about 4,000 a month and the total establishment—exclusive of women and attached personnel from Britain and the Dominions—is about 115,000.

Consideration is being given a proposal to train glider pilots as a part of the R.C.A.F. program

Gross appropriation for the Royal Canadian Air Force in the present fiscal year is $625,462,000 but may be increased by $300,000,000 if increased aircraft and other equipment production is possible.

Out of 4,411 United States citizens in the Air Force 1,961 have signified their desire to transfer back to the force of their own country and an American travelling board is considering their applications.

The Minister paid high tribute to the gallantry and heroism of the Air Force personnel, and to those carrying on Canada's defensive patrols on both coasts, describing their task as lonely and "unglamorous" but highly important.

Ross Gray (Lib. Lambton West) brought up the proposal that all men with wings or with one wing be granted commissions.

He is a veteran of the First Great War in which he served as a private. He said there should be no class distinctions among men who studied the same course together and graduated with the same standing. Many other members endorsed this argument and Maj. Power agreed.

government from its pledge not to invoke conscription for service overseas.

Major. Power said: "At the very moment when the United Nations are meeting here to discuss a project of our united Canadian nation (the joint air training plan) we are in the midst of an internal crisis the gravity and seriousness of which I would be the last to minimize Separation a Sad Blow.

"When one hts campaigned and marched and bivouacked and fought for 25 years with friends, it is a sad wrench indeed to be separated from them, even temporarily.

"Our own country is apparently torn asunder, not on the question of the war itself but on the methods to be employed by Canada in waging war.

"There is, I am glad to say, no difference of opinion with respect to the air war, either as to the raising of men or money or the sphere of action.

"I wonder if, during the time the representatives of all our Allies are here, it would be possible to call a truce to our internal dissension and show by a united front, temporarily if you will, our determination to join with them in defeat of the common enemy."

Political observers believed that debate on the Mobilization Act amendment would be delayed for some days in any event since it is reported to be the government's desire to pass the $2,000,000 war appropriation bill before taking up any other business.

Canadians Clothe English Children

Evacuated from London, these English children have been outfitted with warm, well-made clothing provided by the women of the Canadian Red Cross Society. In the thousands of Red Cross workrooms across Canada more than 6,800,000 pieces of clothing and hospital supplies were produced last year for distribution to the men of Canada's armed forces and to British civilian victims of the Nazi air raids. The Red Cross is now asking for $9,000,000 with which to continue this and other essential humanitarian work during the next year.

Britishers Still Roam Greece Get Every Help

LISBON, May 13—(AP)—George Beys, a 19-year-old American of Greek extraction who is awaiting repatriation here, said yesterday that British troops still are at large in starving Greece and that one officer recently killed seven Italian soldiers on the streets of Athens before he himself was slain.

Beys, whose home is in New York, spent ten years in school in Athens and left there at Christmas to join Americans waiting to be moved from Italy under an exchange agreement.

He told this story of Axis-occupied Greece:

"The Greeks, despite their own suffering, have cared for British soldiers who failed to escape during the occupation. Recently one British officer walked out of a Greek's home to find two Italian carabinieri waiting for him.

"The officer drew a revolver and shot them dead as they were lifting their rifles. Then he ran to a garage. A furious battle developed between this lone soldier and Italian 'reinforcements' armed with tommy guns. The Briton killed three more and wounded five.

"In another dash into the open, German soldiers shot him down at Concordial Square. Those Axis soldiers were so scared they continued to pump at least thirty bullets into his body.

"I myself encountered another English officer in a cafe. He was starving and on the run. A Greek bought him two pounds of grapes which he wolfed down. He also was given new clothing and a place to hide. His name was 'Johnnie' and he'd lived in Alexandria. He said good-bye and said 'it's only fair that I should keep moving. Anyway, I always find a new friend at every corner.'

The Greeks are that way. Despite their own troubles they are still fighting. Immediate reprisals follow any demonstrations. One example was the beating to death of a Greek youth outside a theatre. I don't know what he'd done. But he died under a rain of fists, boots, and rifle butt blows.

"The death rate from starvation is such now that nobody looks when the carts of dead pass through the streets. The money long ago ran out for many. They eventually just drop on the streets.

"An orange used to cost the equivalent of 2½ cents. Now one costs 50 cents. An egg is about 93 cents.

"I've seen the looting by the Germans. And also the crowds whose noses press against the outside of restaurant windows while German officers inside eat meat and butter, and drink beer."

"The women cry; the men stand, take it, and say 'Our day is coming.'" thrusting "far beyond the Parpatsch positions," and that "resistance of the first Soviet defence line has been broken by artillery fire and infantry is being thrown into the attack."

Parpatsch is in the neck of the Kerch isthmus at its narrowest point.

Heavy Fighting Rages.

The Soviet Information Bureau's midnight communique said "severe battles took place with the enemy" on the peninsula yesterday, but gave no details.

Earlier dispatches, however, indicated the invaders had been repelled in all except one area of the combat zone.

(The Germans said the Russians were numerically superior. Hitler's high command said fresh Soviet divisions and large quantities of munitions were marshalled at the rear of "a strong and deep defence system" behind a wide anti-tank trench.

(The Red Army concentrations were described as part of a Russian plan to attempt to recapture the whole Crimea and threaten the German flank in the Ukraine.)

Soviet troops on the Kalinin front —nearly 1,000 miles north-west of Kerch— were reported in a communique to have beaten off a series of Nazi thrusts and counter-attacked.

They "drove the Germans into a bog and almost completely annihilated them," the communique said.

Northern units of the Red Fleet have been newly strengthened. The British Ministry of Information announced that a group of whalers outfitted for minesweeping had been delivered to the Russians at Murmansk after a voyage through ice, formations, mist, mined areas and bombing attacks.

Favors Joint Idea

MONTREAL, May 13 — (CP). — Ralph P. Bell, Director of Aircraft Production, said yesterday at a conference of the newly-formed Quebec War Labor Organizing Committee that he is "heartily in favor" of the establishment of joint labor-management production committees in war plants.

While expressing approval of such a plan, as embodied in a seven-point war labor program charted by the committee, Mr. Bell warned that 'if this movement is to succeed—and I am convinced that it can succeed—there must be no strings attached to the proposal."

South Monaghan Mourns Mrs. J. Byers

Residents of South Monaghan are mourning the loss of an old and valued friend with the death of Mrs. Joseph Byers, late Tuesday afternoon after an illness of two years.

The late Mrs. Byers, formerly Annie Perrin, was born on the farm where Reginald Perrin now lives, ninty-three years ago. For over sixty years she has lived on Lot 11, Concession 1, and was a staunch member of the community. All her life she was a member of the Bailieboro Baptist Church. On April 19, her family had a birthday party for her and there were about forty people present. As much as a week ago she was still enjoying the visits of her friends.

MRS. JOSEPH BYERS

She is survived by her two sons, Bert Byers, Bailieboro, and R. F. Byers, Toronto, and two daughters, Gertrude Annie, at home, and Mrs. James Greer, Oxbow, Sask.

The funeral service will take place Saturday, from the family residence at 2 p.m., the Rev. A. H. McConnachie, Peterborough, conducting the services. Interment will be in Little Lake Cemetery.

HE KEEPS HIS JOB Though TURNED 70

House Painter Who Takes His Kruschen Every Day

How many painters can continue to work when they are over 70? Here is one who can—and he still does some of the most trying jobs in his trade. How does he do it? He tells us in this letter:—

"I have been in the habit of taking a pinch of Kruschen Salts in every cup of tea I have had for a great number of years. I may state that I am turned 70 years of age. I am a house painter by trade and still at work. I can work off any ladder, no matter what height, or in cradles which are hung outside high buildings. I have been asked many times how I carry my age so well, as I only look about 50. Well, I tell them all that I take Kruschen Salts regularly every day."—J.S.A.

Kruschen is a combination of numerous mineral salts which assist in stimulating your liver, kidneys and digestive tract to healthy, regular activity. They ensure internal cleanliness, and so help to keep the blood-stream free from impurities.

Kruschen is a British product, obtainable at all drug stores, 25c and 75c.

The Peterborough Examiner

VOL. LXXXV, No. 112 — PETERBOROUGH, WEDNESDAY, MAY 13, 1942 — PAGE 9

MAIN STREET TOPICS

IN THE PARADE

Lieut. Jack Hughes, former Examiner reporter, and now stationed at the Training Centre, paraded with members of the Prince of Wales Rangers now at the Training Centre, to the Armouries and back again on Tuesday evening. He is still wearing the badge of the Prince of Wales Rangers, but has not been posted to any special unit. Another Examiner reporter, Corp. Berkeley Boyle, moves out with the Rangers on Thursday morning.

RESPECT THE COLORS

Many men stood with their hats on, as the Colors, representing the King, were marched on to the parade ground at the Armouries on Tuesday night. This condition existed along the main street also, where by far the majority of the men failed to doff their hats in salute to the Union Jack as it was carried past them in the route march. Senior N.C.O's of the unit remarked on the fact that many of the soldiers who stood and watched the parade did not stand to attention as the soldiers marched by.

HEARD IN OTTAWA

Howard Young, a former member of the Salvation Army here and well known in the city, telephoned the Examiner from Ottawa on Tuesday night. He wished to extend his congratulations to the Salvation Army Songsters who were broadcasting over station CHEX. The program came in clear at Ottawa, he stated. Mr. Young is in charge of a men's institution in the capital city, a job he has held for the past six years.

BAN STEEL USE

Venetian blinds may no longer be made of metal, according to an order by H. H. Forman, administrator of fabricated steel and non-ferrous metals for Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

ON ROAD TRIP.

The county road committee set out this morning on an inspection trip into east Peterborough, returning to the west section of the county this afternoon. They were making a day of it.

FRILLS ARE BACK.

Wartime fashions are adrift these days without a directive hand. From slacks or just plain pants to frilly laces and stuff like that at the throat and generally as an appendage to blouses or whatever the ladies wear. That sounds like an exceedingly clumsy and inexpert reference to the one redeeming charge in women's wear from as far back as the year in which they all began painting their finger nails.

MILITARY PROCEDURE

An old soldier who watched the marching on of the colors at the regimental parade at the Armouries on Tuesday evening said the bayonets of the escort should have been corked, because the colors were not cased. This precaution is taken to avoid having the colors catch on the tips of the bayonets. However this was apparently not a breach of military procedure, as the color bearers kept the colors folded, and did not unfurl them to wave in the breeze.

SMALL FIRES CONTINUE.

A call was turned into the Fire Department at 12.04 Tuesday noon, from S. Deal, 641 Reid street. There was a small fire in a barn which resulted in some slight damage done, as part of the floor was burned. It is thought that perhaps children playing with matches might have caused it. Then there were two chimney fires at 6.02 and 8.33 p.m. The first was at the home of H. Spence, 268 Thomas street, and the second was at the Plaza Billiards, 178 Charlotte street. There was no damage at either of these.

FINAL PARADE.

Members of the Prince of Wales Rangers (Active Force) will parade south on George Street behind the Rangers band on Thursday morning at 6.45, from the Armories to George and Dalhousie Streets, in full battle dress. It is the fourth unit recruited for active service overseas from this city.

WEEK-END SCHEME.

The 4th Field Battery (Reserve) will go on a scheme on Sunday in conjunction with the 45th Battery (Reserve) from Lindsay, somewhere in this district. It will be an all-day jaunt. Capt. W. Smith, of the Grove School, Lakefield, is acting officer commanding of the Lindsay Battery.

IN SCOTLAND.

Gnd. Jack McTeague, formerly employed with the Quaker Oats, and now serving in Britain with the 12th Field Battery, is visiting his father in Scotland. This information was given in a cable received by his wife, who was formerly Mary Ronco.

SMART LOOKING GIRLS.

Women in uniform may cause a curl of the lips to many an old-timer, but the women in the fighting forces and auxiliary services today know their stuff. As the Rangers paraded down George Street on Tuesday evening, three members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps snapped to neat salute as the colors passed by.

GETS COMMISSION.

W. T. (Bill) Fanjoy of the C.G.E. Engineering Department, has been taken on strength with the 4th Field Battery (Reserve) with the rank of 2nd Lieutenant. Three other 2nd Lieutenants have been named Lieutenants, as follows: R. A. Phillips, R. D. McKimmie and F. R. Duncan.

JOINING RESERVE UNITS.

Members of the various service clubs will be approached soon, to join the reserve units at the Armories, the 2nd Batt lion Rangers, and the 4th Field Battery. Already two members of the Lions' Club, Ed Bent and Vert Reynolds, have signed with the Rangers, and several other Lions are likely to sign up with the Battery. F. J. Hopgood, Braidwood Avenue, and Frank Buller, Simcoe Street, joined the Battery this week.

DAIRY STUDENTS.

Successful students in the dairy diploma course at Kemptville for the term ending March 27 included D. S. Barker of Warsaw, G. E. Williamson of Norwood and L. F. Lewis, Havelock, R.R. 2; W. J. Gray, Campbellford, R.R. 2; J. Embury of Frankford, and L. F. Holmes of Tweed.

"THREE STAR" GONE.

Hennessy's "XXX" has been off the market for several months, and the substitutes are Australian and Canadian, and just how high they rate in the cognac category possibly may be known to Joe Hill's staff. Obviously it isn't news now, but there may be many persons like the reporter who heard the report for the first time last week. For the first time in ages, at least the longer part of a century, you can't buy Hennessy's brandy in Peterborough. It used to be plentiful and fairly cheap before governments had to look around for things to tax and cracked down on liquors. And now a shortage of butter is looming.

AN M.O.H. QUERY.

"Has this Board anything to do with public morals?" Dr. Avison asked the Board of Health on Tuesday night. "The officers of the military camp, I understand, are wondering what steps should be taken to deal with certain conditions in this city." The M.O.H. said he had visited a certain home recently in the round of his work, and even then there was a soldier there "with his arm around one of three girls. I had no doubt about that place." He said that certain drastic legislation was expected from Toronto, but in the meantime the community was tolerating conditions which should be vigorously combatted for the same of public health.

IMPORTANT MEETING

Mayor Hamilton has invited some 50 citizens to attend a meeting in the council chamber tonight for the purpose of making plans to assist in a recruiting campaign on behalf of the 2nd Battalion of the Prince of Wales Rangers It is desired to bring this reserve until up to strength as soon as possible and with that end in view a civilian organization to assist Lieut. Col. M. Park and his officers will be launched tonight. The meeting will start at 8 o'clock sharp.

ENLARGED A WEEK

A charge against Donald Lloyd, Lakefield car salesman, of the theft by conversion of eleven automobiles from the Industrial Acceptance Corporation, Limited, was enlarged for a week when called this morning. It was impossible for T. J. Carley, K.C., representing Lloyd to be present today and Crown Attorney McElderry voiced no objection to the postponment.

CARELESS BICYCLE RIDING

Careless riding of a bicycle cost Jack Kidd a fine of $2 and $2.50 costs in police court this morning. The youth pleaded guilty to riding two abreast and refusing to pull over when other traffic approached.

OVERDRAFTS.

Proof that the need for Community Fund support is great, comes with the report that several of the organizations which benefit from this drive, have already made overdraft at the banks. This condition is due almost entirely to the fact that the country at war, brings new and more problems, resulting in extra work, and extra expense to these service organizations.

Two Battalions Of Rangers Parade Together

Circumstances trivial to the average spectator combined on Tuesday evening to provide a setting striking in its symbolism of world conditions, as the 1st Battalion, Prince of Wales Rangers (A.F.) joined with the 2nd Battalion, Prince of Wales Rangers (R.F.) for their last regimental and route march, before moving along to Camp Niagara, one step closer to the actual theatre of war.

High overhead rain clouds darkened the dome of the sky to remind the civilians and soldiers alike, that the threat of Nazi world-domination sweeps ever nearer, while at the same time merry shouts of children at play, emphasized the ideals for which this clean-limbed, broad chested band of warriors had donned the khaki to protect and perpetuate. Behind the solid platoons of soldiers, the stone-turreted Armory looked down like a huge lion watching her cubs at play, and this rugged bit of architecture seemed symbolic of the British Lion, unchanged by time, unmoved by the threats of mad invaders, ready with the ever-old, ever new slogan, "The Empire Shall Stand."

This same Armoury has looked down on many units composed of Peterborough men, who have marched to battle, marched to keep the doors of freedom and liberty open, so that all would not be slaves.

There was a snap and smooth rhythm to three companies of active service men that amazed the spectators, who had watched the same boys, less than a month ago, walk past in civilian clothes.

At the north side of the parade ground the Reserve Unit was drawn up, and it presented an odd mixture of 'teen age boys and World War veterans, and the ribbons and grey hair of the latter bore testimony that the years were piling up. These men have flocked to the reserve unit, to bolster the ranks of the men who have already volunteered for home defence, and there were close to 250 on parade in the 2nd Battalion alone.

Colors Marched Out

With both battalions drawn up in close companies and officers posted in review orders, the colors were marched on. Lt. N. C. Gell carried the King's color, while Lt. W. R. C. Perry carried the regimental color, emblazoned with battle honors, won by fighting men from the district in other wars. The escort consisted of R.Q.M.S. H. Chate, and Sgts. A. Lloyd and D. G. Clark.

Both units then went on a route march through the downtown business section, and hundreds lined the streets, and the parade ground to see the exhibition.

On their return to the parade ground, His Worship Mayor James Hamilton and Alderman R. S. Cotton, dean of the City Council in point of years of service, were introduced to the soldiers by Col. J. A. Dewart, M.C., E.D., officer commanding the Prince of Wales Rangers (A.F.).

Mayor Hamilton and Alderman Cotton brought greetings from the citizens and the city fathers, and extended to the men of the 1st Battalion the hearty good wishes of

Students Are Put On Farms

E. R. Hall of the farm service force of the Ontario Department of Agriculture was in the city this morning to deal with the placement of some students as agricultural helpers for the summer. Four of the boys who have applied are attending St. Peter's School.

About sixty of the Collegiate Institute students are going to be employed on their father's farms, or, in the case of city boys, on farms selected for them.

"Three weeks ago we had 800 hundred applications on our list in Ottawa, and while others have been received in the meantime the total is now down to 300. Mr. Hall said. "We have twelve applicants from the Peterborough Collegiate who are not yet placed."

"Fruit picking camps for girls in the Niagara district will open about May 24 when the strawberry crop comes in. Some girls have already been working on asparagus already, but the main picking season does not begin until the end of the month."

The girls' camps are placed under Y.W.C.A. supervision. Twelve to sixteen of them will be distributed over the Niagra district. Last year 750 girls were assigned to this week and the present number of applications from their successors is around 1,000.

"We have warehouses or other suitable buildings for them," Mr. Hall explained. "Fruit farmers in the peninsula apply for so many girls to report at specified times for their work, and the girls spend the day there, returning to the camps in the evenings."

Baby Chicks Have Been In Demand

The shipping of baby chicks has been steadily increasing in the past few months, and according to C. A. Goold, Bray Chick Hatchery, the trade has almost doubled since last year.

This increase is due partly to the war, because there is big export of eggs to England and partly to the good price eggs are bringing now. This price has risen considerably in the last two years. It is probable too, that the season will be a long one this year because it has been impossible to begin to fill all the orders.

"As long as eggs continue to be shipped to England, it is probable the increase will continue. The fact that labor is scarce might serve to cut down production quite a bit and already there is the possibility of a scarcity of dressed poultry, since the emphasis is laid on buying pullets which are easier to take care of," he said.

Steam Shovel Mired On Staff House Job

Excavation for the basement of the Wartime Housing Company's staff house on the west side of Monaghan road, opposite the Canadian General Electric Company, were begun yesterday and suspended in mud this morning.

Hubert Eastwood, of the Eastwood Construction Company, contractors, explained briefly today that the steam shovel had become mired.

Recent rains have aggravated the natural excess moisture on the face of the Chamberlain Hill. Old residents recall the springs that flowed out of the ground at one time, and in recent years one of them was piped from the R. M. Wadell property into a house built by the late owner of the extensive acreage reaching from Monaghan road back to High street, and immediately south of the land on which the staff house is being constructed.

Bottling Plants For Milk Are Inspected

All the pasteurizing plants supplying city bottle trade were inspected during the past month by O. V. Ball, provincial dairy inspector, accompanying Sanitary Inspector MacPherson, whose report was received by the Board of Health last night.

"Mr. Ball's support was duly accepted by the dairy men and added weight to our suggestions. I refer to several plants where cross connections were found between city and private water supplies, and also to one instance when the danger of pollutions to the water supply was pronounced. At the very time of inspection a floor drain located within six feet of the private well was backing up and waters were flowing over the floor. The use of this well was ordered discontinued.

To acquaint ourselves with the most recent developments in dairy plant equipment both Dr. Avison, M.O.H. and myself visited the De Laval plant and were shown the latest processes in manufacturing such equipment. It is a decided advantage to know the workings of all dairy machinery, and we appreciate the courtesy of the management of this plant which, incidentally, is the largest plant in the British Empire devoted solely to the manufacturing of dairy equipment.

Several pasteurizing plants have been improved by repainting the interior with a light colored washable paint. Another dairy plant has taken a decided step forward in replacement of an old type surface cooler with a modern cabinet cooler which lends itself in every last detail to speedy, efficient cooling, protection of the product from outside contamination by dust, flies or condensation."

Mr. MacPherson said the department had forced a number of restaurants to obtain metal refuse containers as a protection against flies getting into kitchen wastes.

"The general sanitation of one restaurant was not good enough to warrant approval of renewal of license. The manager was required to whiten walls and ceiling of kitchen, clean up wash rooms, pie racks, refrigerators and obtain sanitary refuse containers. This work was done in time to approve a license."

These were a few of Mr. MacPherson's observations regarding inspections of restaurants and other places were food is served to the public. Renewal of a meat shop license was suspended on account of general unsatisfactory conditions.

"One vendor on the market was prohibited from selling unpasteurized buttermilk. One high standard certificate was issued this month to a barber shop which has "since its opening a year ago maintained rigid sanitation."

Three dwellings were freed of vermin by hydrocyanic gas. Two dwellings were closed as unfit for human habitation.

"Two dwellings lacking sanitary conveniences and water supply were brought to our attention. The owners have been instructed to provide the necessities, and a reasonable time has been given for completion."

Several of the dimmer lights of the report are omitted.

"One nuisance created by the keeping of dogs was investigated in company with Dr. Johnston of the Humane Society. We were of the same opinion as to the undesirability of location, size and cleanliness of the kennels. The owner was required to dispose of kennels and the Police Department requested to revoke the kennel license."

GET PLEDGE CARDS.

All captains in the Retail Division of the Community Fund drive were given their allotment of pledge cards at a meeting held in the committee rooms this morning. These will be distributed at once, so that the canvassers can start the campaign right on the dot Friday morning. At 3 o'clock on Thursday afternoon the Women's Division will be given cards at a special meeting to be held in the Y.W.C.A.

QUESTIONS GOVERNMENT

G. K. Fraser (Con. Peterborough West) has given notice of inquiry in the House of Commons on whether the munitions and supply department priorities branch issued permits for steel to be used in the construction of a building or a house for J. Franceschini, Toronto, recently released from internment.

Plans Completed For The Presentations Of P.C.V.S. Mobile Kitchen In Britain

Word was received to-day by the Peterborough Collegiate students that the final arrangements have been made for the presentation of the Mobile Kitchen, for which they forwarded their money to England some weeks ago.

The Hon. Vincent Massey's reply was as follows:

"My sincere thanks to the students of the Peterborough School for their most generous gift, just received. The canteen is being purchased and will be presented to the Civil Defence Workers of Peterborough, England. Your wishes regarding the inscriptions and invitations to the ceremony will be carried out, and newspaper cuttings and photographs will be forwarded after the ceremony."

The four Peterborough boys who have been chosen to represent the Collegiate are: Jerry Wooll, R.A.F., Hugh Davidson Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders, Grant Smedmore, 3rd Anti-Tank, and Jim Hall, Tank Corps. Jerry Wooll and Grant Smedmore have both written home that they have received their invitations from Hon. Vincent Massey, and they are quite delighted at the prospect ahead of them, although they said they didnt know why, out of all the ex-students, they merited the honor.

The students of the Collegiate can be very proud of the result of their year of effort. They worked very hard to raise the money for their objective, and it was a united effort. Keep up the good work.

Ashburnham Is First Area In Peterborough Where Systematic Salvage Drive Is Made

There is every indication that collection of salvage materials in the Ashburnham district tomorrow will reach unexpected proportions. It is the first of the districts to be undertaken in the systematic collection of salvage. Householders can clean out their premises of a lot of material that is practically worthless but of incalculable value to the war effort. Be ready for the trucks tomorrow. Paper and rag collection will start a 10 o'clock and a fleet of trucks and an army of works will start at 6 o'clock in the evening to pick up the rubber, metals and bottles of which there must be a vast quantity to be disposed of.

If citizens keep in mind that salvage is a vital war need tomorrow's collection will be an eye-opener for every one concerned.

Winner Of April's Stamp Selling Holds Lead In First Week Of May

Examiner Carriers are still hitting a fast pace in their war Savings Stamp campaign, selling $405.00 during the week ending May 9. Again Nancy Leith heads the salesmen with a fine individual effort of $49. Nancy was presented with the Examiner Gold Trophy only last Saturday for her record breaking sales for the month of April. She is again making the pace for May with this fine start.

Victor Doughty is again in the leaders with sales for the week of $33.50 and a youngster with a central district route, Walter Noble, following with $29. Keith Orde, former winner of the Gold Cup and prizes, sold Stamps to the value of $27.25. George Clark again shows his stuff with sales of $26.75 and Donald Pagett with $20. Two south end lads, Jack Harris and Adrian Langhorne are tied with $14.25 each and Joseph Ferren and Bob Shadgett with $13. Raymond Douglas, of the south end again, disposed of another $11 worth and Wallace Manbeck $9.50.

Others worthy of mention for their week's efforts are: Stewart Brown, $8; Bill Paterson, $7.75; Wellie Borland, Wilbert Edgar, Gerry Field, Alan Sage all with $6.75; Ted Payne, $6; Doug Burrows, $5.50; Dick Fulford and Bob Sugden, $5.25; Weldon Fanning, Jack Berwick, Alan Payne and Charlie Russell with $5 each.

If you are anxious to have your Examiner carrier call with Stamps regularly or at any time, please phone the office and the word will be passed along to the carrier concerned.

Laborers Ask 50 Cents Hour

A brief strike of laborers on the new building at the west side of the Canadian General Electric Company's property Tuesday afternoon encountered the Federal Government's "cost of living" records and folded up.

It was reported that forty-five men who were being paid the rate of 45 cents, which is five cents an hour more than is paid to the city's laborers, decided to ask for 50 cents. Information to the Examiner was to the effect that the gesture was something in the way of a sit-down strike. Wm. Mellis of the Federal Employment Bureau was called in, telephoned Ottawa, and wound up with the decision that there would be no increase.

Only yesterday the Government published an announcement over the signature of the Hon. Humphrey Mitchell, Minister of Labor, informing the public that the cost of living index for the month of April showed virtually no increase over October of last year, only a fractional change, and as a result of all the efforts of the government to sit on the lid of inflation and keep prices in control, the National War Labour Board announced yesterday in its advertisement: (a) There shall be no change in the amount or percentage of cost of living bonuses presently being paid: and (b) an employer who has not been paying cost of living bonuses may not begin to pay such bonuses.

This brief disturbance in the work on the new building did not consult the efforts of the government to prevent prices of commodities getting out of hand, and according to the records the cost of living as compared with last October did not justify any wage increase.

The men were all back at work this morning.

Lakes, Streams Are Restocked

Members of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association along with sportsmen in all parts of the district are co-operating with employees of the Ontario Department of Game and Fisheries to distribute fry and fingerling from the hatcheries.

During the past ten days, a million pickerel fry was placed in the Trent River at Healey Falls, and Campbellford; 300,000 went into the Burnt River at Kinmount, with 750,000 in Loon Lake near Apsley and a quarter of a million in Long Lake. A million more went into Paudash Lake up near Bancroft and a quarter of a million in Silent Lake, which is just south of Paudash, and connected with the latter.

There were 15,000 lake trout fingerling placed in Mississauga Lake of the Ketchecum chain and 5,000 in Sandy Lake. Eel's Creek, Deer Bay creek, and Mississauga creek all received 2,000 brown trout fingerling, to boost an already thriving brown trout population. In the fast waters of Eel's creek just below McColl's mill, a resident of Apsley caught a brown trout 16½ inches long.

Sale Of Stamps Drops In April

March has been the best month in 1942 for the sale of war savings stamps for the Collegiate Institute, when they sold stamps amounting to $1,830, but January was a close runner-up with only $5 difference. April shows a decrease in the sale of stamps all through the schools. That of the Collegiate dropped to $855. Their total amount for the year to date is $5,955. In the sale of certificates. March again was the peak with $1,328, but April shows a decrease to $836, although this is better than $385 in January and $224 in February. The amount received in certificates since January totals $2,773.

The Public Schools have done fine work in this field too. In January they sold their biggest amount and collected $1,330 and there has been a gradual decrease from $1,236 and $1,206 in February and March to $734 in April. Their total sale reached $4,506.

The Examiner News Boys are showing a fine record also. They sold $2,397 in March and have maintained a fairly even margin with $1,762 in January, $2,025 in February and $2,071 in April. Their total amount to date is $8,255.

The combined efforts of all three in every branch has netted $54,016 for the war effort.

Faulty Brakes Bring $15 Fine

On a charge of driving without adequate brakes, G. A. Fitzgerald, 18, was fined $15 and $2.50 costs in police court this morning after he had pleaded guilty to the offence.

This was the case that had been adjourned from last week when Magistrate Langley suggested that the crown attorney should be consulted as to whether or not a more serious charge should be laid.

Fitzgerald had been arrested after the truck he had been driving south on Park street had collided with seven-year-old Murray Grafstein, knocking the boy off his bicycle and injuring his leg.

Crown Attorney McElderry, K.C., informed the court this morning that he was satisfied with the charge as originally laid.

Sergt. G. T. Puffer stated that Fitzgerald had started a delivery system with his truck and afterwards discovered his brakes were bad. The stores he was working for were clamoring for deliveries and the boy had taken a chance with the result there had been an accident.

REPORTED TUESDAY.

Eddie O'Toole, local insurance man, and Gerry O'Toole, formerly employed as clerk in the United Cigar Store, both reported for duty with the Canadian Army Pay Corps at Kingston on Tuesday. Bill McFadden has enlisted with the Air Force.

Walking Stick Nets $62 To War Victims

In the very early years of this century, a walking stick, which in this country is more often termed a cane, was given to a local resident as a keepsake by a friend who had spent some time in the Holy Land, for the most part living in Jerusalem, acting as instructor in a carpentry school. From the very fact that the walking stick was made in this same school, and at that from some of the finest oak in existence, namely Oak of Bashan from the forests of Lebanon, mentioned in the Bible from which timbers were also used in building King Solomon's Temple, it naturally had much sentimental value for the owner. In itself it had quite a traveller's record having crossed and recrossed the ocean a number of times, and has rested in numerous countries and three continents. With a spirit, born of a feeling that the money it could possibly raise for the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund, was of more value to the cause of Empire than his own sentimental interest, the owner offered it to the Peterborough Hebrew Congregation of which Ben Rogow is president, feeling that they too would have some interest in it as coming from the Holy Land, and would be able through it to raise a fair amount to aid the victims of air raids in Briatin.

How well this was realized is evidenced by the nice amount of $52 in today's list of receipts for the fund as coming from the proceeds of this effort.

The draw was made on Monday by the Secretary for the Fund in the presence of Messrs. Irving Moldaver, S. Goldstone, B. Rogow, and Z. Levine, all of who had given previous help to the fund, and resulted in ticket No. 510 being drawn, which gave the prize to S. Goldstone, and was the first occasion when a winner had been picked who happened to be one of such a small group of witnesses.

Thanks are due to Messrs. Harris and Boddy for cleaning and bringing out the beauty of the wood after its many years of use and hibernation. Then as if too add a tiger in the matter of help to the people of Britain the winner made an extra donation of $5 to the fund in the names of his two daughters, Sheila and Carol Goldstone, followed by Mr. Rogow adding a like amount "In Loving Memory" of his son, Sgt. Pilot Sam Rogow, who met such a tragic end a short while ago in the service of his country. Thus another example of how every day goodness may be increased is brought to the light of day, and who can tell what further good may come from the money thus secured to help other people unfortunately situated to a better lot in their time of need.

TOMORROW – THURSDAY IS Ashburnham's (Including Auburn) Salvage Collection Day

Have you your Salvage Material ready to put out where you usually place your garbage. A fleet of trucks and an army of workers will be on hand to pick it up. Give them plenty to do.

Paper collection commences at 10 o'clock. Rubber, metals and bottles at 6 o'clock in the evening. You can honestly say you are taking a part in the War Effort if you make a good job of getting out every bit of Salvage material that can be found on your premises. Rubber, Metals, Bottles, (Not Tin Cans or Milk Bottles) and Newspapers, Magazines and other Waste Papers.

Remember—Salvage is a vital war need and it is expected Ashburnham will make a remarkable showing.

Cocoa Is Latest To Feel Curb In States

WASHINGTON, May 13—(AP)—The War Production Board yesterday made a clean sweep of Americans' favorite breakfast beverages, cutting cocoa processing about 30 per cent after previously curtailing tea consumption 50 per cent and coffee drinking by 25.

All these products are imported and are subject to the hazards of war and the shortage of cargo ships.

W. P. B. said the shipping space allotted to cocoa beans—the raw material for such delectables as chocolate bars, candy, cocoa and hot fudge sundaes—was cut to 30 per cent of normal for the rest of this year. The beans come mainly from the African gold and ivory coasts and from Brazil.

The United States, whose citizens consume about fifteen pounds of candy and confectionery apiece each year, is the world's largest user of cocoa beans. The average American does away with almost four pounds of chocolate annually, W. P. B. said—but that's all changed for the duration.

Supplies on hand April 1 would have lasted something less than one year if unreplenished and unrestricted, W.P.B. officials said. Under the new curbs they will be stretched out to last about sixteen months.

The curtailment was on the quantity of cocoa beans which might be ground or pressed by processors, and not upon the sale of the processed products. Therfore, it was not immediately possible to tell on which type of consumer the restrictions would fall most heavily, or whether they would fall on all equally. The order, effective immediately, carries through May and June. W.P.B. will issue orders for subsequent months at a later time.

Another W.P.B. order required that glass bottles have thinner walls and come in fewer sizes and designs. The purpose is to make the available moulds and glass-making materials produce about 30 per cent more containers than formerly without the installation of new equipment.

Bottles for beer, ale and other malt beverages henceforth may be made in three sizes only; 12-ounce, one quart and one-half gallon. Whiskey and other distilled spirits may come in quarts, "fifths" (four-fifths quart), pints and half-pints. This would appear to eliminate the miniature bottles frequently used for individual highball services.

Bottles for cordials, cocktails and "specialty" liquors may not be made with a capacity less than one-half pint, W.P.B. ruled.

The order will take effect gradually, through a provision requiring that no worn-out mould can be replaced except by a mould conforming to the specifications of the standardized containers approved by W.P.B. After Jan. 1, 1943, only standard glass containers may be manufactured.

Sight Rescue Plane After Being Adrift 12 Days

After being afloot 12 days on a raft, Terrence J. Bradley, of New York city, and Joseph Dieseltiers, a Belgian citizen, who also had a New York address, eagerly await the approach of a rescue plane. Both were members of a Panamanian vessel torpedoed April 20. Dieseltiers subsequently died.

Designs Limited In Furniture In Economy Move

OTTAWA, May 13 (CP).—Orders curtailing new designs of furniture and limiting designs material and finish of school furniture were announced today by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board on behalf of James E. Ferguson, administrator of furniture and brushes.

The Board said curtailment of new designs was designed to provide economies which would enable manufacturers to produce for sale at retail at current prices.

One regulation makes mandatory upon manufacturers the filing with Mr. Ferguson before Aug. 1 any design, pattern or style not used previously before April 15, and all new designs to be manufactured between July 31 and Dec. 31 this year.

"The (future) use by any manufacturer of any new design, pattern or style," the board said, "is to be conditioned upon discontinuance of a design, pattern or style previously used by him for the same kind and quality of furniture."

Furniture for hospitals, provincial governments, the Federal government or any agency of such governments may be manufactured in any design.

Manufacturers are forbidden by the orders to post date any invoice, ship furniture on consignment, or share retailers' advertising costs. They are required to charge dealers for samplees of upholstery covering when cut in sizes of more than 54 inches, and prohibited from exhibiting furniture, before Jan. 31, 1943, at any national furniture exhibition.

School furniture may not be manufactured from any material excepting than birch maple or such other Canadian hardwoods, excepting oak, as may be approved by the administrator, nor in any finish other than "school brown." These provisions do not apply to iron and steel standards for such furniture.

The Limited List

School furniture may be manufactured and supplied only in the types and according to the specifications listed in a schedule accompanying the orders. It lists eight types of desks, three of tables and two of chairs. Teachers' desks may be made in five types and sizes, students' "double entire desks" in three sizes, single commercial desks in one design and two sizes, and most of the other types in three sizes.

The schedule prescribes design and size of study tables, kindergarten tables, typing stands and typing desks. Chairs are hereafter to be made "in such present designs and sizes as authorized in writing by the administrator," except that tablet arm chairs are to be manufactured in two designs only, these to be authorized in writing.

Manufacturers, producers and other suppliers are allowed to exhaust manufactured stocks now on hand, including stock made from oak, of the standard lines formerly offered by them.

Girls Give Quilt For Red Cross

BRIDGENORTH, May 13 (ENS).—The Red Cross Brownies met at the home of Mrs. Frank Leach and had as their guest Mr. W. B. Glover, president of the local Red Cross.

During the evening Miss Inga Siedell read an address and presented Mr. Glover with a beautiful quilt top, batt and lining, and $4 in cash. The girls raised the money to buy the material by selling home-made candy and popcorn and they had pieced the quilt top at their meetings.

Mr. Glover, on behalf of the Red Cross, thanked the girls for the splendid work they had done.

W.A. Meets

The Women's Auxiliary of the Bridgenorth United Church met at the home of Mrs. R. T. Pettersonne. The meeting opened with a hymn followed by prayer. Miss L. Udy gave the scripture reading. The lesson thought was given by Mrs. W. J. Robinson.

Mrs. Clayton Telford rendered a solo, "The Stranger of Galillee."

The meeting closed with the Benediction followed by a social half hour.

Mr. and Mrs. Ken Weaver and Lois of Stirling were guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Telford on Sunday.

Mrs. Bailey of St. Mary's is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Sam Bell.

Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer of Peterborough have taken up residence in Mr. Wallace Crookshanks' home.

Mrs. Ball, Sr., of Vannacher is visiting at the home of her son, Mr. and Mrs. George Ball.

Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Manning of Peterborough have moved to their cottage for the summer.

Burleigh Falls News

Mr. Joe Yelland, of Peterborough, has been spending the past few days at his cottage on Stoney Lake.

Miss Ruth Shewen who is employed on war work, Peterborough, spent last week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Shewen, of Burleigh Falls.

Mr. Felix Brownscombe, of Peterborough, has opened his cottage at Stoney Lake for the summer.

One side of the Oregon Trail between Buckhorn and Burleigh Falls has been oiled.

Mr. and Mrs. Al Wagner and family of Apsley have moved down to Burleigh Fishing Club for the season. The club opens June 27th.

Miss Noreen Fraser has returned from Hamilton, where she was the guest of her aunt, Mrs. J. Carl Reed. Mrs. Reed returned with her.

In former years cars passed right through Burleigh Falls and on to Apsley, Bancroft and returned to Peterborough by way of Madoc; now due to the shortage of gasoline, it is noticed that Burleigh Falls is the limit for the Sunday drive.

Through the Blockade

Washington, May 13 (AP)

THE United States submarine Trout snaked through the Japanese blockade to carry badly-needed anti-aircraft ammunition to embattled Corregidor during the first days of February, Lt.-Col. Walter Cleer revealed last night in an NBC broadcast.

The army officer said the fleet-going submarine brought in a small quantity of new, three-inch anti-aircraft ammunition with mechanical fuses.

Noted Director Dies In London

LONDON, Ont., May 13—(CP).—Edgar William Goethe Quantz, for 35 years director of school music for the London board of education, and well-known organist, died in Victoria Hospital yesterday at the age of 66. He was a native of Port Hope, Ont.

Pioneer in the school choir movement in Ontario, he also developed elementary and secondary school orchestras. He organized public school festival choirs of 650 voices which have sung music up to seven parts.

Surviving are his widow, former Maria Marlatt, granddaughter of the late Captain John Marlatt who was associated with the late Colonel Talbot in establishment of the Talbot settlement at St. Thomas, Ont.

Mr. Quantz was past president of the music section, Ontario Educational Association; past chairman for Canada of the Music Educators' National Conference in the United States, and past president of the London Centre, Canadian College of Organists.

He began his professional life at the age of 19 as organist and choir master at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Ingersoll.

Before he joined the local board of education, he was organist and choirmaster of Chalmers church, St. Thomas.

He was a son of Rev. William Quantz and Cidele Quantz, of Port Hope, Ont.

FIRE AT EPSOM

Fire damaged 100 acres of furze and heathland on England's famous Epsom Downs.

Attic Blaze Caused By Stove Sparks

HASTINGS, May 13 — (ENS). — Sparks from a stove which he intended to move on Monday caused a small fire in the house occupied by Bert Lemoire here on Saturday afternoon.

Quick work on the part of Garlos McGuire and several members of the Fire Department limited the blaze to the attic, where it burnt a small hole through the roof. Fire Chief Fred Dodd estimated the damage at $50.00.

A chimney fire at the residence of W. Montgomery early on Saturday caused no damaged.

When taken out for a practice on Friday night it was discovered that the village's ancient but useful fire engine couldn't get up steam. The fire engineer, George Lynch, had a roaring fire in the box, and he finally discovered that a gasket was leaking in the boiler, thus allowing the water to flow into the firebox. This defect was quickly repaired and the engine is now in perfect running order.

RECOMMENDS ATTACK ON MOTHS

Moths just love to get into a nice woolly hiding place and carry on their sabotage. They do not respect persons, places or materials, and as they are most stealthy in their habits, it behooves each and every one of us to employ protection against their inroads. At this time when we are putting our woollens away is the time to apply that protection. It may even so happen that you unsuspecting the presence of these saboteurs have already put some clothes away without proper protection. In that event we recommend a re-opening and the addition of Moth Protection, and certainly from now on no garment or woollen piece should be stored away without the much needed protection. In making our recommendation we know that we are giving valuable advice, and we trust you will not neglect that protection, particularly as good, efficient protection is so reasonably priced—a fact borne out by a survey of our list of

MAYOR HAMILTON, CHAIRMAN

The Peterborough Red Cross and Community Fund
May 15 to 22

WEDNESDAY, MAY 13, 1942.

TO THE CITIZENS OF PETERBOROUGH AND SUBURBAN AREAS:—

The evil forces of Hitlerism and Fascism are already finding that their war machines cannot conquer the fighting spirit of free British people. Here in Peterborough, we have no opportunity to show our heroism under crashing bombs and against German fury. We have, however, the opportunity to SERVE ON THE HOME FRONT by contributing, to the utmost of our ability, to the Peterborough Red Cross and Community Fund.

Let us prove ourselves worthy of the bond of common allegiance between those brave people, who to-day crouch in damp shelters far underground, sacrificing all they hold dear in order that democracy may continue to exist and that we may live on in comfort and safety. Let us give freely, more than ever before, so that our City and Suburban areas may take their fair share of responsibility in seeing that our brave soldiers, our unfortunate blind and poor, may be provided with the comforts of which they are richly deserving.

I have confidence in the people of Peterborough and I know that they will not fail in this great cause, which means so much to us all.

Sincerely Your,

Jas. Hamilton

MAYOR.

George St. W.M.S. Learns Of Chinese Church

A very interesting meeting was held Tuesday afternoon by the W.M.S. of George Street United Church in the board room. The devotional period was taken charge of by Group B, under the leadership of Mrs. W. Burns, Mrs. W. J. Kelly read the scripture lesson and Mrs. Airess led in prayer. Mrs. Leslie Groombridge sang a very beautiful solo, "My Task," accompanied by Mrs. W. P. Purdy.

Perhaps the best review of the study book for the year was given by Group B, who took chapter 5, "The Chinese Church Comes of Age." Members of this group impersonated the officers and delegates attending the annual meeting of the Szechuan Synod of the Church of Christ in China. Mrs. H. Batten made the necessity explanations in introducing the program, telling of the beginning and growth of the Church in China. The Chinese delegates to the meeting of the Synod were represented by Mrs. James Brown, Mrs. M. Northey, Mrs. B. Manning, Mrs. H. Foote, Mrs. W. Burns and Mrs. W. J. Kelly.

The Church of Christ in China is the United Church formed by the union of 14 different missions, including missions of the United Church. At present, the United Church of China consists of 16 synods, of which the Szechuan synod is most westerly.

St. John's W.A. May Meeting

The monthly business meeting of the Evening Branch of the Women's Auxiliary of St. John's Church was held Monday evening, with the president, Mrs. Downer, in the chair.

The meeting opened with the singing of the hymn, followed by prayers, and the W.A. Litany. The scripture reading was taken by Mrs. F. Marshall.

The reports were read by the Secretary, Miss A. South; Treasurer, Miss A. Milburn; Dorcas, Mrs. B. Ottewell; E.C.D., Mrs. F. Marshall; Visiting committee, Mrs. W. Bell.

Miss M. Lancaster gave a paper on the closing chapter, "The Final Destiny of Medical Missions," taken from the study book for the year. Through the year Miss Lancaster has given this work much time and thought, and the appreciation of the guild was voiced by the president.

Mrs. B. Ottewell then gave a very splendid report on the annual meeting, held in St. Ann's Parish Hall, Toronto, the week of May 5, at which she was the delegate of the branch. She was most enthusiastic and brought back much seed for thought. In this very busy world, with all the extra work the war has brought, the work of the church and its organizations have not suffered but rather increased. There is a great amount of social service work done by the W.A. co-operating with the I.O.D.E. in relief work. There is a tremendous amount of work we can all assist with—remarking that, with what is being done, there is only one pair of shoes for each Polish person, whose home and country has been taken from them; and one pair of blankets for every fifteen. Mrs. Ottewell was particularly interested in the Dorcas work, and brought back numerous ideas for renovating used clothing, for relief and Western missions.

The meeting closed with prayers, after which refreshments were served by Mrs. P. Martyn and her committee.

Home and School News Association

KING GEORGE SCHOOL.

The annual meeting and election of officers of King George Home and School Association was held on Tuesday evening with Mrs. William Beggs, president, in the chair.

Splendid annual reports were heard from the secretary, Mrs. C. English; treasurer, Mrs. M. Seymour; and from the conveners as follows: Program, Mrs. E. DeNure; social, Mrs. F. Storey; war service, Mrs. Ada Stanger

The girls of Miss F. Rahmel's class had on display a lovely afghan made from scraps of wool donated throughout the winter. It is to be sent to the Junior Red Cross. Pot holders were also on display and were sold by Jean DeNure and Eleanor DeNure in aid of their war work.

Mr. Northey announced that the recent paper collection held at the school had been very successful and about $50 had been sent to the Junior Red Cross. It was decided to hold the school picnic in June as usual. The book-prize for attendance of parents was won by Miss Rahmel's class.

Mrs. C. Chambers, president of the Home and School Council, took the chair for the election and installation of officers as follows: President, Mrs. William Beggs; vice-president, Mrs. L. Cunningham; treasurer, Mrs. M. Seymour; executive, Mrs E. DeNure, Mrs. W. E. Thompson, Mrs. Stock. Mrs. Payne, Mrs. F. Watson. Mrs. Chambers welcomed the new officers and gave a short talk on Home and School Work.

DOROTHY DIX

TWO WOMEN ARE BEHIND DOOR OF MAN'S SUCCESS

They Are His Mother and His Wife —Mother's Influence Greater

According to the old proverb there is a woman behind the door of every man's success. It would be truer to say that there are two women behind the door of every man's success, or failure. These are his mother and his wife, and which one is the more important in deciding his fate, it is hard to say.

Generally the wife is accredited with her husband's rise, or his downfall. If a man prospers we cast bouquets at the feet of his thrifty Maria and recall how she pinched pennies when he was gettings his start in the world, and certainly no one can overestimate the assistance that an ambitious woman, who is a real helpmate, gives to her husband.

And on the contrary, when a man is a failure, we click our tongues against our teeth in sympathy and say: "How can you expect a man to make any headway when he is weighted down with a wife who keeps his nose to the grindstone with her extravagance, or who has given him chronic dyspepsia by her bad cooking, or who has broken his spirit by her henpecking and nagging?"

Granted that every wife does have an important part in deciding her husband's fate, I think it is the mother who really plays the leading role in determining his destiny. For while a superman may succeed in spite of being handicapped by a foolish wife, the man who is handicapped by having had a foolish mother has been deprived of the very elements that he requires to succeed.

A wife's influence can never be all-powerful with her husband, because when she gets him his character is formed, his habits fixed, his goal set; and while she can modify these and alter them to a degree, while she can stimulate his ambitions or wet-blanket them, she can never completely change him from what his mother made him

Mother Fashioned Him

But his mother has had him from the beginning. She has made rim what he is. She has set her seal on him. He hasn't a taste or a habit that she has not taught him. He looks at life, death and the great hereafter through her eyes, and whether he is strong or weak; whether he is a stand-patter or a quitter; whether he can stand up and take the blows of life on the chin and come up smiling, or whether he is a coward who never even puts up a fight against hard luck, depends entirely upon the ideals and principles his mother bred into him. She was the potter who fashioned him; and if the hand of the potter shook, no other woman can repair the damage she did.

If Mother has melted down Johnny's backbone while he was still in the cradle, no wife can supply him with a spinal column that will enable him to stand up to a man's responsibilities. If Mother has spent twenty or twenty-five years in coddling and petting Johnny and saving him from every harsh wind that blows, no wife can inspire him with a fighting spirit that will make him go out and do battle with the world. If Mother has worked while Johnny loafed, no wife is enough of a miracle-worker to turn him into a go-getter.

And this difference between a mother's and a wife's influence calls attention to what is perhaps the most curious phase of the whole matter, and that is that mothers undervalue their influence over their sons, while wives overvalue their influence over their husbands. No mother deliberately sets out to wreck her little boy's life by spoiling him. When she never teaches him to control his appetites, she doesn't think that she is bringing up a potential drunkard or roue.

Mother's Work Stands

When she thinks it is a mere childish prank for him to break the neighbors' windows or throw mud on a fine car, she doesn't think that she is rearing one of the hoodlums that fill our jails. When she never makes him do any work or do anything that he doesn't want to do, she does not realize that she is turning out one of the men who never can make a living but who drift from job to job until finally they end in a hobo camp.

No, she thinks that having made her son the kind of a man she doesn't want him to be, when he is grown he will turn into the kind of man she wishes him to be. But it never happens. Her work stands.

And if mothers are victims of their wishful thinking about the unimportance of a mother's influence, girls are even more the victims of their optimistic belief in a wife's influence, as is witnessed by the millions of them who marry drunkards in the belief that marriage is a cure for alcoholism; who marry philanderers to reform them, and good-for-nothing ne'er-do-wells, confident that they can make them get up fom the do-nothing stool and hustle.

So of the two women behind every man's door the mother is the more important, and wise is the babe who picks out for a mother a woman who will not only open the door of opportunity to him but shove him through it.

Where little hands rest or little bodies rub, grubbiness shows!

These grubby parts need

Sunlight's "EXTRA-SOAPINESS"

to get out all the dirt

HOW do you treat the grubby parts of your wash? The general grubbiness may come away easily with any cleanser—flakes, powder, or bar soap. But what of the stubborn grime at the cuffs and collar-bands of shirts; on the turned-down parts of sheets—where the dirt gets rubbed in? This is where you must have Sunlight Soap.

Sunlight's "extra-soapiness" is just what is needed for the really grimy parts. It enables you, with the merest touch, to leave a film of rich soap in actual contact with the dirt; and, because Sunlight is all pure soap, this light film is sufficient to draw out every scrap of grime safely and leave the clothes clean, sweet and fresh.

See how Sunlight's "extra-soapiness" helps to lighten your house cleaning as well as the weekly wash. Sunlight is safe for everything you wash—mild and gentle to your hands, too.

CARIBBEAN CRISIS ....

shirt clung to his skinny ribs. His eyes were enormous behind thick-lensed glasses, and he sniffed and said, "Talcott, you appear to be short in your accounts by $158,000. I suppose you've got some explanation?"

ON A SPOT

CHAPTER II

Bill Talcott's hand was out for a chair, his foot poised for a step. Thus he remained as if frozen, staring at the man behind the desk. "What's that?" he gasped.

The auditor coughed. "Under the system established by my firm you are required to procure duplicate vouchers signed by the authorized agents of the various vessels with whom you ship nitrates. The total of vouchers signed during the past year is short by that amount from your company ledger. In other words, $158,000 worth of business is unaccounted for."

Bill Talcott's reflexes automatically completed the task of capturing a chair and occupying it. Nitrate dust, smelly, all-pervading, eddied as he flopped down. "You say I'm short?" he gasped again. "But that's impossible! All my vouchers are catalogued, in numerical order. They're in regular form, consecutively numbered!"

Struthers leaned forward, pushing the pile stack aside. In his manner was the supercilious contempt of the brainy man for the brawny one. "They're NOT all here," he said flatly.

Dazedly Talcott accepted the vouchers, searched, discovered a gap in the numbers; another and another. Big shipments, all of them. His amazement deepened to anger. Hotly he said, "I don't understand this. I went over the whole business as soon as I received Winters' cable that he was sending Halsey. We keep a monthly inventory. The vouchers were positively here a week ago."

Struthers lifted his shoulders. "Sorry. Mr. Winters' secretary particularly instructed me to check your vouchers. She said they hadn't received all the duplicates. Needless to say, I'm shocked."

Winters' secretary — The Old Man changed them as frequently as he changed shirts, which gave him the reputation of being the toughest boss on the Street. Was this the trick of a new girl, trying to make a berth for herself by putting a plant manager on a distant island in a hell of a jam? That wouldn't answer why the vouchers were missing from this office; it was fishy, thin, too impossible to be taken seriously. Yet it was here. Cold sweat broke out along Talcott's spine.

"New York never called me about any missing vouchers," he said angrily. "Is this a frameup of the Old Man's to keep me on in this thinking hole? I've done my work, six years of it. Three years beyond my contract, twice as long as my best predecessor. If Winters thinks he can force me to stay here, he's crazy.

Angry lights darkened Struthers' eyes. "Are you insinuating that I would stoop to accusing you of theft just to satisfy a client? Let me tell you, Talcott, I'm a bonded accountant and my firm has been established for more than 50 years. I'm happy to say that this sort of thing doesn't happen to us very often, but when it does we know how to proceed. I'll be very happy to see the other vouchers. In the meantime you need have no fears about remaining here. Under the circumstances," he coughed significantly, "it would be out of the question.

Talcott choked back angry words and in baffled rage strode from the office. Avoiding his house he headed for the worn stone pier where short hours ago, Halsey and the auditor had landed.

The new man's arrival should have meant happiness for Bill Talcott; release after six deadly years. Economic affairs had been none too good when he and Lowell Byrd received their degrees; taking up their commissions in the army had been a logical step. Another hitch had followed for both of them, and at the end Federal Chemical had made flattering offers. Lowell Byrd, a captain now, had decided that the army was his career; Talcott, with a mother to support, accepted the bait of more money.

When viewed from Federal Chemical's plush sanctum in New York, prospects of life in the tropics had been thrilling. Bill Talcott had planned to send for his mother as soon as he was settled; he hadn't seen, until the moment of his arrival, how he was trapped. Months of patient, questioning letters passed to years until finally Lowell Byrd wrote of Mother Talcott's death. So he stayed on at Plant Number Six.

Something of Talcott's first crumbling hopes had shown in Halsey's eyes the moment the new man stepped from the mailboat. Was Halsey, realizing that Winters' flowery rhetoric didn't correspond to the facts, attempting a rotten trick to save himself?

Bill Talcott had done a good job; had spent a sixth of his life on a blistering, rain-swept, wind-swept chunk of rock. Only his daily swims in the shark-infested waters of Anegada Passage had kept him from utter madness. Was it to end in disgrace and possible prison?

The brassy sun was low over the jade green on the Caribbean when Bill Talcott reached a decision. Util Halsey, Struthers and the mysterious MacDowell had arrived, his affairs had been in perfect order. One or all of them had dealt the first hand; now Talcott, who knew something about poker himself, would wait for cards.

His eyes were thoughtful as he came up the path. With a start of memory he saw, on the terrace, the lax figure of June Paterson. She too had arrived on the mailboat. Was she who claimed to be his best friend's cousin also in the game?

As quickly as it had come he dismissed the suspicion and, avoiding the terrace, went down for a swim.

Dinner was a complete farce. Despite excellent drinks and marvelous viands conjured up by Black Sam, conversation was unbearable. Halsey was reluctant and hostile; Struthers gloomily silent. The moustached MacDowell, too, was preoccupied and Talcot repeatedly felt his searching, cold-eyed scrutiny.

At long last June Paterson became openly rebellious. "I'm going for a walk," she announced. "Alone. I enjoy my conversation. I think I'm the brightest person I know. You gentlemen may continue your stupid game, whatever it is. Don't bother to wait up for me."

Halsey sprang to his feet and grinned ruefully. "Really, Miss Paterson, I'm dreadfully sorry. Been preoccupied, you know. New job and all that sort of thing. Can't I accompany you?"

"I wouldn't think of tearing you away."

Halsey captured her arm firmly. "I have been a terrible bore. I shall make it up to you. Please let me."

Her sullen, long-lashed eyes swept Bill Talcott. "If you insist, come along then."

Arm in arm they had reached the door when Bill Talcott said coldly, "Please don't go out."

Halsey turned in surprise. "And why not?"

"Because it's scarcely safe."

"Rubbish! Do I look like a child?"

Talcott straightened a little in his chair. "I must insist that you you do not leave here at night unless I accompany you."

June Paterson whirled, and flushing hotly cried, "Being my chaperon doesn't include the right of possession. I'll go where I like!" And pushing Halsey ahead of her she slammed out.

Uniforms Can Be Chic As Well As Practical

Smart and serviceable are the new uniforms of the R.C.A.F. (Women's Division). This summer uniform is a washable shirtwaist dress of blue fabric, with a six-gore skirt and brass buttons.

Popular with cooks of the R.C.A.F. (Women's Division) is the one-piece overall of non-shrink white cotton, practical and protective for duties in a busy air force kitchen.

Blue-clad cooks of the R.C.A.F. (Women's Division) change to white uniforms as they go on duty—a crisp cap and the "Hoover" smock for free-swinging ease.

Airwomen of the R.C.A.F. (Women's Division) protect their uniforms with dungarees similar to those worn by airmen for strenuous work. The one-piece overall is of khaki cotton drill.

Tongue Pinchers Term Changed

TORONTO, May 13 — (CP). — Appellate Court at Osgoode Hall directed on Monday that sentence of Mrs. Madeline Morgan of Belleville should be changed to two years less a day in jail plus three months indeterminate so she can be transferred at any time to a reformatory hospital for observation and adequate examination.

W. B. Common, K.C., appearing for the Attorney-General, asked that the original sentence of two years less a day and three months indeterminate in the Mercer Reformatory be increased. The court laid the question of increasing the sentence over until the fall.

Mrs. Moragn was sentenced by Magistrate J. L. Lloyd at Belleville for wounding with intent to maim her 16-year-old daughter Edna, and also for assault occasioning actual bodily harm. It was alleged Mrs. Morgan pinched the girl's tongue with pincers and made her other children run barefoot in the snow.

Mr. Common argued the sentence was illegal because women could be sent to Mercer only for an indefinite period.

Chief Justice R. S. Robertson said that Mrs. Morgan's weight had increased from 119 to 300 pounds.

"Is it suggested that this came from any disorder?" he asked. "If it did, it is not going to help her to send her to jail."

C. A. Payne, K.C., of Belleville, pleading the woman's case at the request of neighbors, suggested she be sent to a place where she could receive adequate care.

Heavy Toll Of Reds

HELSINKI, Finland, May 13. — (AP). — The Finnish command claimed to-day that a Soviet offensive launched on the Louhi sector of the northern front on April 24 had collapsed, leaving the Finnish-German lines intact.

It claimed the Russians used three divisions, two infantry brigades and a ski brigade which lost 11,000 dead directly in front of the Finnish defences, plus heavy casualties farther in the rear from shelling and dive-bombing.

Industrial Division Ready For Peterborough's Drive

Reports from industry reveal that shop committees are ready to launch the community fund campaign early on the opening day, and in every factory the campaign organization is complete, and officials are confident that the objective of $60,000.00 will be subscribed before the closing date.

To save time, effort and expenses involved, all appeals have been combined in this one mammoth drive which starts May 15 and ends May 22. The objective is based on the actual requirements of the local authorized agencies and Peterborough's share of the Red Cross requirements for the current year. Last year the objective was $85,000, and the citizens subscribed well over the $100,000.00 mark. However, the action of the government in taking over the direct financing of the war service work of the Y.M.C.A., Salvation Army, Canadian Legion and Knights of Columbus means that less money will be required. That is the reason the objective has been reduced by $25,000.

Missionary Program Presented By Y.P.S.

HAVELOCK, May 13 — (ENS).— Miss Ruth Wilkinson was in charge of the missionary program at the Young Peoples League on Monday night. Fred Rogers gave the topic on "What God expects of His people," and emphasized that the tenth mentioned in the Bible does not refer to money alone, but to time, and talents, and no fraction is large enough because God deserves all of these. Rev. J. W. Wilkinson sang as a solo "Jesus, Lover of My Soul." Ruth Peters gave a reading "Florence Nightingale." There will just be one more league meeting as students are all preparing for final exams.

This might be YOUR LITTLE ONE who will need the Red Cross

BOMBED FROM THEIR HOMES, many robbed of fathers and mothers, the children of Britain have reason to bless the Canadian Red Cross.

Hear them: "I am ten and a half. I have been through a lot of blitzes. Thank you for the sweets and jam." . . . "The sweets were lovely after all we've been through. Never mind, we must be brave."

And the adults: "The clothing was a Godsend. My little girl had no coat to wear." . . . "I lost my husband in an air raid and cannot buy my little girl what she has been used to." . . . "I have written my husband in the army. He says to thank you, it makes his job easier." . . . "God keep you safe. My little boys send their love to all the children of Canada."

Simple words that say so much! This is YOUR job. YOUR money is needed to meet the growing need. Open your heart and your purse strings—GIVE generously.

Two Battalions

the people of Peterborough for a speedy victory and a safe return. It was a momentous occasion, as it marked the final parade of the two battalions until this war is over.

Mayor Hamilton said, "Ever since the war started over two and a half years ago, all those connected with the militia in Peterborough have been endeavoring to have the Department of National Defence designate the Prince of Wales Rangers as one of the active service units for overseas service. Not so much for the glory of Peterborough but with the thought that they who had lived, trained and associated together and had so much in common should also fight together. It was not until recently that their wish was granted. We commend you for your efforts and congratulate you on your final success. Since the war started officers of the regiment by the score, men of the regiment by the hundreds have gone overseas with such units as the S. D. and G. Highlanders, the 4th Anti-Tank unit, the 3rd Field Park Company, Engineers, the Air Force, the Navy and every other branch of the service that calls for men. Of course these enlistments reduced the ranks of the Rangers, but you still have the foundation and much of the superstructure of a splendid regiment."

History Was Made

"Now you are leaving Peterborough to go into active training at the Niagara camp, and we are here tonight to give you our most sincere good wishes. History is being made tonight and the fame and glory you will bring to the regiment, our own regiment, will be an inspiration for generations to come. And now let me on behalf of the citizens of Peterborough city and county, bid you God-speed, and success. Our thoughts and hopes will go with you wherever you may be, and we pray for the day when you will return safely to your dear ones, after our long-looked for victory will have been attained."

At this point, the active service soldiers, led by Major R. J. Bolton, second-in-command gave three rousing cheers and a tiger for the Mayor and members of the Council.

Alderman R. S. Cotton was called on for a few words, and he addressed the men as follows, "It was with some gratification and a tinge of sorrow, that we heard of the mibilization of the Prince of Wales Rangers. Gratification because he knew of the efforts that had been made to reach a high point of efficiency, and sorrow because so many fine members of the Rangers had preceded the unit into active service, because of the late authority to mobilize here.

"Your conduct as a militia unit has been exemplary, and we know that you will uphold the fine ideals wherever it may be your lot to go. May a full measure of success attend your every effort, and may God in His wisdom, guide you in battle and bring you back safely to your loved ones in this city."

Thanks City

Col. Dewart voiced the thanks of the officers and men in responding to the greetings from the Mayor and Alderman Cotton, and he also thanked the Council for the splendid gift of $1,000 which had been voted to the band to purchase new instruments.

Mayor Hamilton intimated that the City Council would at a later date, if permission could be obtained give a further grant to the regiment, not as indivdual gifts, but as a regimental fund.

Col. Dewart wished the 2nd Battalion good luck in his closing remarks, and promptly this unit, led by their commanding officer, Lt.-Col. Maurice H. Park, V.D., gave three hearty cheers for the First Battalion, and the cheer was returned.

Following this part of the program, the battalions marched into the Armouries, and the 2nd Battalion gave a demonstration of Bren Gun drill, using ten of these new weapons.

Officers and civilians who were at the saluting base included Lt.-Col. E. O. Keeler, M.C., E.D., officer commanding Basic Training Centre No. 32, His Honor Judge Sheldon Smoke, Hon Col. H. A. Morrow, Captain J. A. Kier, Training Centre; Major Jim McGrath, M.M.; Major Vincent Eastwood, M.C., Aldermen Adam Sands, Max Swanston, R. M. Glover and Wilfrid Huycke,, K.C., city solicitor.

Soft Fluffy Rug Will Brighten Boudoir

Use Candlewick Yarn

This fluffy tufted boudoir rug will set off your dressing table for you. And even if your fingers are "all thumbs" you can make it. Knot-tying is the hardest thing you have to do.

Your materials, for a striped design, are three soft shades of candlewick yarn—perhaps white, rose and blue—and a muslin base.

Pencil the stripes evenly along diagonal creases in the muslin and, parallel to the creases, rule lines an inch apart over the whole surface. Make dots an inch apart on the lines.

Now, passing a needle threaded with candlewick through a dot (see our sketch), take an ⅛-inch stitch and lay a tuft of 16 2½-inch lengths of yarn across it. Then tie ends of stitch around tuft in a tight knot.

Soon the whole rug's tufted and you're ready to sew rug to backing!

For complete directions see our 32-page booklet. Describes and diagrams exactly how to make the tufted rug; tells how to make hooked, woven, braided, crocheted rugs, in many beautiful designs.

For your copy of "How to Make Your Own Rugs" send 15 cents in coins or stamps to Peterborough Examiner Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

"The Authority on Authorities"

KEEP YOUR MOUTH SHUT

"TALKING across the table" is considered highly unethical, as thereby you give information to your partner which he is not entitled to possess. Even were that not so, informative remarks about your hand, except by means of the bids you make, come under the heading of very bad bridge. If you are trying to mislead an opponent, once again you are out of bounds from the standpoint of the proprieties, and if you are speaking the truth, you may find that the information gets used against you by a clever enemy. And it will serve you right.

East did not say a word during the bidding of this deal, but after West led the heart 9 to the J, he could not contain himself. "Here's one you won't make," he exulted.

W. Mark Noble, Boston insurance expert, bent a keen ear to the remark, and then decided upon the correct way to insure himself against defeat. Deciding to count upon East for all of the outstanding strength, and therefore to refrain from finessing either clubs or diamonds, he elected to build a beautiful "Vienna coup."

He ruffed the second heart lead and led to the club A, to deliberately set up East's K, and then ran off his remaining seven spades. As he led the last one, he retained the club 10-9 and the diamond 7, while in dummy he kept the diamond A-K-J, discarding the club Q. East could not discard the club K without making the 10 good, so tossed a diamond from the Q-10-8, whereupon the dummy's three diamonds finished the hand.

Radio Well Wrecked

NEW YORK, May 13 — (AP). — Radio men here said to-day that the Paris radio heard in London as broadcasting that Marshal Petain had returned to Vichy from the Riviera was probably a secondary station.

The key "Radio Paris" broadcasting station for Nazi propaganda in occupied France was wrecked by saboteurs during the week-end, according to the London Daily Mail, which reported that the "giant masts and pylons at Bourges, 130 miles south of Paris, were destroyed by a gigantic dynamite explosion." This report said the damage would take weeks to repair.

Restricted Limits On Men Called Listed By Varcoe

OTTAWA, May 13 — (CP). — Restrictions on the use of men called up for military training and service under the National Resources Mobilization Act were outlined in a written opinion of the Justice Department tabled in the House of Commons on Monday by the Justice Minister Hon. Louis St. Laurent for L. E. Cardiff, Conservative-Huron North.

The opinion dated January 5, 1942, was prepared by F. P. Varcoe, Deputy Justice Minister for Prime Minister Mackenzie King. It said the limitations of the Act would prevent the Government from despatching such men to Newfoundland Labrador, or other adjacent territories in this hemisphere, including the United States.

"Military personnel employed in Newfoundland or other islands in close proximity to the Canadian coast (exclusive, of course, of islands which are a part of Canada) could not be held to be serving in Canada and the territorial waters thereof," the opinion said.

Men called up under the National Resources Mobilization Act could, however, legally be placed on active service beyond Canada by action under the War Measures Act, Mr. Varcoe said.

Men who voluntarily joined the Reserve Army could be placed on active service outside Canada under provisions of the Militia Act but these provisions could not be applied to men who were attached to reserve units as a result of having been called out for compulsory training.

In a separate opinion, contained in a letter to the Defence Minister, Hon. J. L. Ralston, Mr. Varcoe said the Governor-in-Council had authority under the War Measures Act to amend any Act of Parliament and such authority applied to the National Resources Mobilization Act.

Mr. Varcoe gave as his opinion that, should the security of Canada require, the Governor-in-Council could amend the Mobilization Act by removing the limitation on dispatching men outside Canada.

No Marine CorpsFor Canada Fraser Learns

OTTAWA, May 13—(CP).—Navy Minister Macdonald told the House of Commons yesterday that "the greatest part" of armament used in the Royal Canadian Navy is produced in Canada.

He was replying to questions asked when the House, in committee of the whole, resumed consideration of the war appropriatoin bill.

He said some armament was obtained outside Canada because the demand for it was not great enough to warrant setting up a special Canadian plant to produce it.

G. K. Fraser (Con. Peterborough West) asked the minister if he had considered formation of a corps of marines as part of the Canadian navy.

Mr. Macdonald said Canada's navy was comparatively young and small and creation of a marine corps had not yet been considered and he was doubtful if it should be "for some little time."

George Fulford (Lib. Leeds) asked Mr. Macdonald to suggest to Revenue Minister Gibson that merchant marine officers be given the same income tax exemptions as those accorded naval officers on active service. He said there is no more dangerous work than that undertaken by crews of oil tankers and similar merchant ships.

Capacity Crowd Attends Final Service

MILLBROOK, May 13—(ENS).—Grace Presbyterian Church was taxed to capacity on Sunday at 7:30 p.m. for the farewell service to the minister, Rev. A. Raeburn Gibson, B.D., who leaves this week for his new pastorate at Chesley. The other local church withdrew its services to allow its members to worship with a sister congregation, and a special feature was the presence of the local Cadet Corps under its instructor, Percy Hamilton, and Cadet Captain Donald Pritchard, for its annual church attendance.

The official Mother's Day program was followed, the Sunday School superintendents Joseph Burns and Harold Hubbeard, being on the pulpit platform, as was also Rev. A. L. Sisco, B.D., of St. Andrew's United Church, who led in the opening prayer, after first mentioning his personal pleasure in being associated with Rev. Mr. Gibson during his three years' pastorate in Millbrook. Taking part in the program were Ruth Forsyth, and Cadet Jimmie Deyell, who read the Scripture lessons, Mrs. J. R. Thompson, who gave "Loving Mother" as a reading.

A feature of interest during the service was the unveiling of the new honor roll the pastor drawing aside the flags, reading the names of those enlisted for active service in this war, and closing with earnest prayer for their safety and well being. The list includes:

Gordon Armstrong, Ross Armstrong, A. T. Armstrong, Roderick Armstrong, John Blair, Murray Belch, J. T. Deyell, William Deyell, William Kerr Donald Kerr, and Gordon Larmer.

In all local churches for the day an urgent appeal was made for generous support of the Red Cross drive during the current two weeks, and mention made of the fact that over $150 was realized for this cause from the two nights the play, "Tillie's Tea Garden" was presented in the Town Hall, Rev. Mr. Gibson having been the capable director.

In his farewell message, Rev. Mr. Gibson spoke on the Mother's Day theme.

St. Andrew's United Church.

"The Church and Home Together" was the Mother's Day program followed at morning worship, with over two hundred in the congregation. Previous to coming upstairs from the school session, those assisting were Mrs. G. O. Fallis, Mrs. D. L. Lunn and Jean L. Burnham of the teachers. Jean Fisher, and Evans Hatherly of the pupils, the superintendent F. F. Fallis leading. A special feautre was the presentation of the awards to members of the Young Worshippers' League who had been present 26 Sundays and over during the year: Mary Fallis, Teddy Sisco, Gerald Hubbeard, Betty and Jessie Lunn, and Roy Dawson. Sickness prevented a large number of the boys and girls keeping up their usual record during the winter. The league reached its 25th anniversary this year, having been organized in 1917, during the pastorate of the late Rev. William Higgs, here from 1915 to 1919.

The minister, Rev. A. L. Sisco, spoke from the text: "Teach us what we shall do unto the child," Manoah's prayer for his son Samson and urged strongly parents' responsibility in training their children.

3 Great Tasks Face Anglicans

KINGSTON, Ont., May 13—(CP).—Three great tasks confront the Anglican Church today, said Rt. Rev. John Lyons today in his annual charge to the synod of the Diocese of Ontario. There were winning the war, winning and securing the peace, and the increasing necessity of working for the re-union of Christendom.

The Bishop of Ontario said:

"All thoughtful Christian people are deeply conscious of the weakness occasioned by our unhappy divisions and realize the strength latent in unity: This matter of reunion cannot be in the light of the present regarded as unimportant and treated with indifference."

Re-union, however, involved more than a federation of churches or some co-operative scheme, he said. "We possess much in common in the fundamentals of the faith. We have common action in matters on which the churches are agreed. We shall continue to press forward through mutual understanding and a fuller appreciation of the truth. We must pray and work for oneness in spirit and fellowship."

10,000-Tonner Fired

LONDON, May 13—(CP)—A Hudson bomber of the R.A.F. left a 10,000-ton merchant ship stopped and on fire after an attack on a German convoy within 200 yards of the Norwegian coast early today, it was announced.

The Air Ministry news service said the Hudson bomber attacked the Axis ship almost at deck level as it steamed slowly in a convoy with two medium - sized ships, escorted by three anti-aircraft ships. In addition, a communique said, a Hudson bombed and damaged an enemy supply ship near Mandal, Norway, on Sunday night.

Bombers Photograph Sea Battle As 500 Planes Score Warships Fight

SA NFRANCISCO, May 13—(AP. — To photographers witnessing the struggle from the vantage point of high flying American bombers, the battle of the Coral Sea presented a picture of 500 planes in endless combat, of Japanese warships manoeuvring desperately to escape attack.

This stirring scene was described in a Melbourne broadcast quoting Norman Stockton, a war correspondent who saw the photographic record of the engagement brought back by the bomber crews.

"The battle was fought at a point 150 miles from the north Queensland coast," the broadcast, recorded by CBS, quoted Stockton.

"At least 500 planes took part. Both sides used torpedo carriers and dive bombers.

"During the course of the battle the sky was completely cloudless. One astounding photograph shows six Japanee warships, including the two doomed aircraft carriers, weaving a pattern of white circles against the background of deep blue sea, each Japanese ship dodging American bombs in different directions, each frantically attempting to escape destruction.

"Another shows the aircraft carrier a few minutes before she was struck. The bombs are plainly etched against the background of blue sea, and manoeuvring white vessels.

"In an earlier picture, the doomed aircraft carrier is seen making a complete circle of 360 degrees in an effort to avoid the bombs. The speed at which the Japanese ships are travelling in their effort to avoid the Allied planes is shown by the huge white wakes of foam, almost as large as the ships themselves, which they are trailing behind them."

The Melbourne radio said it was informed by Stockton that the photographs were taken by United States bombers "returning from an independent mission when they observed the battle."

"They took up grandstand positions at 18,000 feet to make what is probably the most outstanding photographic coop on record."

Vanishes Over Night With Comrade, After Plane Last Trip

BOWMANVILLE, Ont., May 14 — (CP).—Provincial Police and military guards today are searching for Lieut. Frederick Oeser of the German air force for the third time since he was brought to the officers' prison camp near here last December.

Oeser escaped the camp with another German air force officer last night or early today. Their absence was discovered at roll call at 8 a.m., and within an half-hour Provincial Police and forces of larger Ontario cities had been notified to watch for the two men.

Both are small — among the smallest men in the camp. Everhardt Wildermutch, Oeser's companion in his latest attempt to reach freedom, is five feet 4¼ inches, and Oeser about the same. Wildermutch is believed unable to speak English but Oeser is known to speak English a little.

Tried to Get Plane.

Oeser's previous breaks came last December 30 and March 12. He was returned to the camp a few hours after his first break and on the second was arrested when trying to steal a flying suit at an elementary flying training school, R.C.A.F. at nearby Oshawa Ont. He had intended to attempt theft of one of the training ships at the field.

After a later escape a plane was stolen from an airport near Toronto and crashed about one-quarter mile away with the thieves escaping the wreckage.

Camp authorities did not release details of the break. which brought

British At Gates Of Indian Pass

NEW DELHI May 14—(CP).—The remnants of Britain's roughly handled defenders of Burma were reported tonight near the gateway of escape over India's Assam border, their withdrawal along the Chindwin river unimpeded by Japanese forces which were sharply checked four days ago near Kalewa.

A communique said "there has been no further contact with the enemy" since the May 10 battle at Shwegyin, five miles below Kalewa and some 140 miles northwest of Mandalay, in which a column or more than 300 Japanese thrusting up the Chindwin by motorboat, were thrown back to the south.

The R.A.F. was giving welcome aid to the tired British columns. A communique announced that barges used by the Japanese for forging up the Chindwin had been bombed.

Gunners Off Duty on St. Lawrence Trip

Torpedoing Last Thing Expected, Had No Time To Scatter Says Survivor

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL, May 14.—(CP)—Bill Middladitch, 25-year-old naval gunner aboard a freighter sunk in the St. Lawrence river Monday night, said today that a German submarine attack in the river was "the last thing we expected."

"We had no gunners on watch the night we were sunk," Middladitch on arriving here with 30 other officers and men who survived the sinking. "We never used watches in the St. Lawrence River and we were only due to start them the morning after we were sunk."

Middladitch, a resident of London, and another gunner, James Hulican, 24, of Welsey, Eng., said they were asleep when the torpedo struck amidships.

"We couldn't realize what had happened at first, but when we leaped out of bunks and stepped knee deep into water we knew we must have been hit. Both of us managed to get into a life boat. There were 22 of us in a boat that was built to carry 12."

Tommy Maxwell, a 21-year-old crewman, said the lifeboat was the only one of nine in the ship to get away. "The others were smashed to bits. And its a good thing the ships came along to rescue us when they did because the boat would not have held out for another hour.

"We were in the lifeboat about an hour and a half when the ships came along. We were bailing out water as fast as we could, but we would just dip out one bucketful when two or three more would come surging in."

Tommy said he would not have minded the sinking so much if his friends Albert Eager, 17, of Gateshead, England, had not been reported missing after the crew reached shore.

Eager was at work in the engine-room when the torpedo struck, Tommy said, and "I don't think he got away."

Jimmy Rudkin, 38, expresesd belief that the "Germans are looking for soft spots, because they can't get any cracks at our convoys. They are trying to sink unescorted ships."

Rudkin, who also got into the life boat, said "it was maddening to see men floating by and be unable to help them. We couldn't have taken any more into our boat or it would have causized."

The sinking was nothing new for Peter Turnbull who celebrated his 16th birthday last week. Peter, who measures about four-feet six, escaped death once before when his ship struck a mine.

It was the first time for Wille Kuyl, Johnny Martin, Jimmy Mulcahy and John Connor, but they like the rest of the crew were

6-Inch A.T. Guns Fail

LONDON, May 14—(CP). — Soviet dispatches from the Leningrad front said today the Germans had wheeled new six-inch anti-tank guns into action against the heavy Russian "Voroshilov" tanks, but that the land battleships continued to advance.

Shells of the new Nazi guns develop a temperature of 3,000 degrees centigrade —5,432 degrees Fahrenheit —when they explode, the dispatches said.

WASHINGTON, May 14 (AP). — French warships at Martinique are being immobilized, it was authoritatively disclosed today.

The immobilization is being carried out in co-operation between French and American naval and other officials on the spot.

Other important details of a comprehensive solution of the problem of French possessions in the Caribbean are still being discussed, it was said.

Responsible sources emphasized that these negotiations are being carried on directly with Admiral Georges Robert, French High Commissioner of Martinique, and that the United States is not in any sense dealing with or looking to the Vichy government in this matter.

Warships affected by the immobilization agreement include, it is understood, the aircraft carrier Bearn, and the cruisers Emil Bertin and Jeanne D'Arc.

Reports from Berlin and Berne that Pierre Laval, the pro-Nazi Vichy chief of government had advised the United States he is ready to immobilize French warships now at Martinique but would not hand over merchant ships berthed there met a cold reception at the State Department.

Not Dealing With Vichy

Repeatedly officials have pointed out that the United States is negotiating directly with Admiral Georges Robert as the "ultimate" French authority in the Caribbean, and that questions involved would be settled on Martinique.

Officials said flatly that no note has been sent the government at Vichy concerning the matter and that none has been received from Vichy.

Silence shrouded the actual status of the negotiations begun by Admiral J. H. Hoover and Samuel Reber of the State Department Saturday under the personal direction of President Roosevelt.

It was not immediately disclosed whether any French merchantmen are involved in the discussions now proceeding.

The German-controlled Paris press recently published that the United States had sought to requisition merchantmen lying at Martinique and that Admiral Jean Darlan, commander-in-chief of armed forces under Vichy control, had instructed the commanders of these vessels to scuttle rather than allow them to fall into American hands.

Full Russ Spring Offensive Surprise In Ukraine As Nazis Advance At Kerch

Germans Abandon Masses Of War Materials As Timoshenko's Troops Go Through; Soviets Shift Ominously On Northwest Front

MOSCOW, May 14—(CP).—The Red Army reported today that it was smashing at the very gates of Kharkov, important industrial centre of the Ukraine, in a full-scale spring offensive coinciding with German preoccupation of the Kerch peninsula 380 miles to the south, where the Russians admitted giving some ground.

The attack on Kharkov, which the Russians said already has smashed through the first line of German defences, and is hammering at the second, is no mere diversionary action to lesson enemy pressure on Kerch but is the real thing, all Soviet accounts emphasized. Although it may have that secondary effect, it has been long and carefully prepared.

Masses of reserves who have been training just behind the front have gone into action for the first time, and assembled tanks and artillery are striking at the Germans after a pre-attack bombardment of Nazi airdromes in the southwest zone, the Russians said.

The broad drive across the Ukrainian plains overshadowed both the German advance in the narrow Kerch peninsula and a new, vigorous Russian campaign in the north for the further relief of besieged Leningrad.

"The Germans are sustaining heavy losses in men and materials," declared Red Star, official army paper, in discussing the Kharkov offensive. "Everything is being abandoned by the Germans in great quanaities on the field of action."

A Himoshenko Surprise

The Soviet dispatches said Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's offensive thus appeared to have surprised the Germans who have held Kharkov since last October, and not only forestalled a major German assault but to have laid the foundation for freeing Kharkov. All winter, the city has been a major obstacle in the path of the general Soviet counter-drives.

While admitting a German break into Russian defences on Kerch, the Russians said they now are holding a new line in good order and are taking a heavy toll of the attackers.

Red Star, official army paper, said the Germans had broken through in one sector, and urged the Kerch troops to check the drive.

It said the Germans might win temporary successes in some sectors but the general situation is "firmly in our favor."

The Kerch Peninsula is a short-cut to the Caucasus and the oil the Germans so greatly desire. They captured the city of Kerch last November, but were unable to get across the narrow five-mile Strait of Kerch, and on Dec. 31 the Russians announced recapture of Kerch and much of the peninsula, which juts due eastward from the larger Crimean Peninsula.

On the Leningrad front, the Moscow radio said that despite mud the Russian troops with tank and air support had broken the first German lines and captured many important positions in the secondary lines in a continuing advance.

(The Leningrad attacks coincided with reports from German sources in Stockholm that the Russians had removed 2,000,000 persons from the city during the winter.

Couldn't Feed City

(A correspondent for the Stockholm paper Allehanda wrote that the Germans in Finland claimed they could have taken Leningrad last Autumn except that they felt they were unable to feed the population, which normally is about 3,000,000.

(This correspondent said the Germans asserted the population now had been reduced to "manageable proportions" and new Nazi troops and material are being concentrated for another assault.)

The Red Army reported it was maintaining the initiative all along the line through Bryansk, and on the Western Kalinin, Northwestern Leningrad, Karelian and Arctic fronts.

Soviet pilots reported destruction of 12 German planes and damage to six in aerial encounters in the Arctic as the Germans attempted to attack shipping.

As Red troops advanced over boggy terrain on the Leningrad front, the Red air force reported it was dominating the skies in that area.

On the Kalinin front massed artillery was credited with forcing the Germans to retreat after a counter-attack.

The Soviet Information Bureau said at mid-day that fierce fighting had raged overnight between Russian and German-Rumanian troops on the Kerch Peninsula, where the Axis seeks to clear a potential springboard to the Caucasus.

(The Rumanian high command was quoted in a roundabout report relayed by the Swiss radio as saying the invasion forces of Gen. Fritz

Sudden U.S. Swoop Likely for Martinique

Washington Believed Ready To End Fooling With Crafty Pro-Nazi Laval

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Anaylst

Whatever may be the purport if the note which Vichy has sent to Washington regarding the status of Martinique ,the indications are that it had better be good unless the Government of Pierr Laval is riding for trouble.

In short, the air is electric with signs that the United States Government is forcing a showdown which will be backed by action if necessary. What it proposes to do, of course, is to make it impossible for the enemy to profit by the French possessions in the Caribbean.

We have no official details regarding the Vichy note or the Washington note which preceded it. Berlin yesterday broadcast a Vichy report that in a communication direct to Admiral Robert, French High Commissioner at Martinique, Washington had demanded immobilization of French warships at Martinique and also had asked surrender of a number of cargo vessels in Caribbean ports, thereby raising "grave questions." Today a Swiss report says Vichy is notifying Washington that the warships will be immobilized, but that the merchant vessels won't be handed over.

If this Swiss report is correct, it means that the crafty Laval, who is trying to deliver the resources of his country into the hands of Herr Hitler, is pausing for further reflection before he essays the dangerous feat of going over Niagara Falls in a barrel. The British move in taking over Madagascar by force has inspired the Nazi-minded Laval with caution.

If it is necessary to seize warships or even occupy the French possessions in the Caribbean in order to neutralize them, why then it's a fair guess that Washington will proceed to do it quickly and without any fuss and feathers.

It is vital that the Allies protect themselves in this matter. President Roosevelt as long as a year ago summed the position up when he said: "We insist upon the vital importance of keeping Hitlerism away from any point in the world which could be used and would be used as a base for attack against the Americas."

Martinique and its sister island of Guadeloupe certainly fall in this category, and it matters not that France takes great pride in these discoveries of Columbus, and especially in the more important Martinique which is the birthplace of Napoleon's Empress, Josephine. The important fact is that they lie within America's island naval bases which form the eastern defences of the Panama canal.

Martinique and its sister are only about 1,350 miles from the canal—easy striking distance for warplanes. Ever since the collapse of France Martinique has been regarded as a potential loophole for an Axis thrust a the canal. And now, with Atlantic and Caribbean waters infested with U-boats the seriousness of the position is vastly multiplied.

Free French Flier Glum After R.A.F. Swoop

LONDON, May 14 (CP)—Bombing and machine-gunning their old home towns has ceased to be anything new for numerous Free French fliers operating with the R.A.F., but one who remained particularly glum after a raid was quoted:—

"That factory we smashed the other day—I am its principal shareholder; in fact, I practically owned it."

Others told of somewhat happier experiences.

Storms Of Storm Troopers

Being Brought From Red Front for Trouble at Home

MOSCOW, May 14—(AP).—Tass, Soviet news agency, reported today that 19 persons were executed in Hamburg May 7 "for expressing anti-war defeatist views," and that numerous others were being arrested in Hanover, Scherwin, Braunscheig and elsewhere for voicing discontent at the war.

Tass said that according to Stockholm reports from the German frontier German storm troopers are being called home from the front and new units are being formed and given intensive training in street-fighting because of Nazi fear of serious internal disturbances.

It said these forces back in Germany were placed at 1,500,000 men but actually are believed to be even more numerous. They are being issued new armament, including large numbers of machine guns, the report continued.

It said German discontent had not been appeased by a statement from Viktor Lutke, storm troop chief, that his men had taken an active part in front-line fighting since the start of the war.

SUBMARINE TRAILED SECOND ST. LAWRENCE VICTIM SIX MILES

By ROBERT CLARKE,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LEVIS, Que., May 14 (CP).—A German submarine that sank two freighters early this week in the St. Lawrence River was said today to have trailed one of its victims six miles before loosing a fatal torpedo, and speculation was that the underseas raider might have sent a third ship to the bottom.

Thirty-one survivors of one of the two ships definitely to have been sunk passed through here by train early this morning en route to Montreal. And at least two of them, one the captain and the other a gunner, thought it likely that a third vessel had fallen prey to the Nazi U-boat although they admitted they had no official confirmation.

Censorship prevented the name of the captain being given at this time.

The captain—master of a vessel which bore his name—said: "The submarine was out o get as many ships as it could naturally. And after it fired its torped into our ship it was still within hunting distance of other vessels. It would seem entirely likely to me that a third ship might have been sunk."

The captain revealed there had been 43 men aboard his ship which sank within six minutes of the time that a single torpedo hit the vessel. One man died of exposure and another 11 are listed at present as missing. The captain said "they can still be alive only through a miracle."

He said that other ships spent 2½ hours searching for the missing men around the spot where the ship was torpedoed "without any success." There were no Canadians aboard the vessel. Twelve of the men aboard were British while the remainder were Netherland seamen.

The crewman who died from exposure while on way to port in a rescue ship was a Netherlander. Only one of the Britons aboard the vessel is missing—a 17 year old trimmer who helped with stoking duties.

Whole Crew Escape.

The survivors en route to Montreal said they had no information concerning the sinking of the other freighter known definitely to have been sent to the bottom. Reports from a St. Lawrence river point last night said that this ship was struck by two torpedoes and that the entire crew of 46 had reached here in boats.

Two British survivors interviewed as they passed through here were George Brown, 20, of Lincolnshire and Leonard Clepson, 21, of Northamptonshire, both members of the freighter's gun crew. They said the ship had gone down 'so fast'

Western Canada Is Developing Great Cheese-Making Industry

CAMPBELLFORD, May 14 (ENS)—Confronted by lower grades and a box shortage that appears more critical than it was last fall upwards of fifty members of the Campbellford and district Cheesemakers' Association met here Tuesday night and after a thre-hour session during which they heard advice from Senior Dairy Producer Grade T. J. Hicks, Montreal; J. M. Bain, Chief Instructor for Western and Central Ontario; James L. Irwin of the Federal Grading staff and four district dairy instructors, they sat down to a lunch of cheese and buns. Their chief interest centred in the remarks of Dairy Produce Grader Hicks who came for his initial visit with makers of the Campbellford and Peterborough district. Having just returned from a trip to Western Canada during which he made a survey of the dairy industry there while participating in a short course on cheese Mr. Hicks highlighted his observations on its manufacture in the four western provinces which may soon be producing enough so that when the war is over they will no longer rely on shipments from Ontario and Quebec. He told of visiting one British Columbia factory which turned out 370,000 pounds of cheese last month and two years ago rated a 98 score for cheese they sent for exhibition in the East. In this province production is maintained on a nearly uniform schedule throughout the entire year since there is very little difference in the flow of milk in winter. One bit of advice he gave those present concerned the question of mold which is something the people in the West strongly object to.

22 Factories In Alberta

In Alberta, where great strides have been made in the cheese business, there are twenty-two factories and all are large. One of the plants he visited contained no fewer than seven vats and handled from 7 to 8 million pounds of milk last year. The cheese coming from that factory "was easily scoring 41 for flavor" (45 is the top) and their fuel problem was mainly a question of delivery since coal is very cheap. Some get it for as little as $1 a ton at the factory. During the present year he forecast Manitoba would turn out between 5 and 6 million pounds of cheese from its fast growing dairy industry.

34,080 Boxes Graded

Of more local interest were his figures regarding the output in Ontario and Quebec where last week a total of 34,080 boxes were graded as compared to 10,371 in the preceeding year. The total graded so far in 1942 is 333,819 boxes or exactly 253,822 boxes more than were handled during the same 1941 period and this, in Mr. Hicks' opinion, was one very good reason for the current box shortage. Hicks' opinion, was on very good reason for the current box shortage. Turning to the all important question of quality he suggested that one very good reason for the government bonus was to maintain quality during the heavier production schedule adopted as a war measure. "There was never a time when it was more important to keep up the standard." Cheese offers the only profitable way of getting rid of surplus fat and in case some might be tempted by the creamery he reminded that if all the milk went into butter instead of cheese "it wouldn't be worth ten cents a pound."

Urging the importance of the British Empire Dairy Show, which will again he held at Belleville this year, the speaker exclaimed that it was a wonderful advertisement and felt that every factory in the district should show cheese. He criticized the recently observed tendency among hard pressed cheesemakers to overlook the important matter of turning the cheese over while it stood on the range. A result of this neglect was cracked cheese and subsequent mold and waste.

Milk Testing

Chief Dairy Instructor J. M. Bain of Listowell took up the contentious question of milk testing which makers of this district, when advised the task was to be thrust on their shoulders, raised their voices in protest. He told them that in Western Ontario the testing was practically one hundred per cent done in the factory by cheesemaker and was deemed "very satisfactory." One reason why this change was being brought about was that when the Instructor or another man came around it was usually done anytime from the 20th to the 10th of the month following and by the time the work was completed a number of new patrons had started at the factory and the ground had to be covered again. "From the Department's standpoint it (testing by the cheesemaker) is far better. It is a good check for the maker, who should have some idea of what is in the milk." He added, "I don't think there's much you can do in opposition to the Department. Their mind is pretty well made up." Pointing out that the instructor's time was well taken up, he announced that when this plan was put into effect there would be a great deal more 'check testing.' The only alternative for those who continued

Military Guards Soon Quell Jap Outburst

VANCOUVER, May 14—(CP).—Several smashed windows and a missing iron grating in Vancouver's waterfront Immigration Building was the only evidence remaining today of the city's first outbreak of Japanese violence in which military guards used a powerful fire-hose to quell the demonstrators.

Today all was quiet and military guards paced a regular beat through the glass smashed to the ground late yesterday when Japanese housed in the big, three-storey brick building suddenly staged their short-lived outburst.

Apparently protesting a ruling preventing them from talking with Japanese friends outside through the building's big iron-barred windows, the Japanese smashed several of the windows. One of the iron gratings was torn loose and thrown to the ground. A fire-hose was brought out, turned on and thrust out through the window toward the guards below.

Scores of passersby were attracted to the scene by the shouting and crashing glass but military guards kept the crowds back.

The military authorities would give no information on how the outbreak was handled, but city police said they learned that guards had turned a powerful hose on the demonstrators to quell the disturbance.

After that explanation there was only one thing that could happen. The ticket was torn up and one officer suggested that the fragments might be mixed in with the confetti at the wedding.—C.

Obituaries

DANIEL TRIPP.

A resident of Peterborough for forty years Daniel Tripp passed away at his home, Monaghan Road, Tuesday, in his 93rd year, after an illness of one week.

The son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Tripp, he was born in Verulam township, Victoria county, and before coming to Peterborough he lived in and around the Bancroft area. He took quite an interest in farming.

He is survived by his widow, Annie McMillan, and two daughters, Mrs. Robert Ramsey, Lake St. Peter, and Mrs. S. Constanti, Tamagami. There are six sons, Daniel, Asquith Sask., Stephen, Bancroft Jack, Lake St. Peter, Nicholas, Wabewawa, Irwin, Kirkland Lake, and Herbert, South Porcupine.

The funeral service will be held Friday at 10.30 a.m. from the Nesbit Funeral Home, 347 Charlotte street, Adjutant Norman Buckley conducting the service. Interment will be in Little Lake cemetery.

SAMUEL MULLIGAN

Samuel Mulligan, a Peterborough resident all his life, and a member of the Oddfellows and the Orange Order, died after a short illness at his home 397, Murray street, Thursday, at 61 years of age.

He was the son of the late Samuel Mulligan and Isabella Robinson and he was a bronze moulder for many years. During the last war he was a member of the 93rd Battalion and before that he was in the 57th Regiment. He was a member of Knox United Church.

He is survived by his wife the former Mary Ann Bartley, and one brother, James R. Mulligan, Toronto.

The funeral service will take place Saturday at 1.30 p.m. from Funeral Home of A. Comstock & Sons, 305 Water street. The Rev. Mr. Mahoney will conduct the service and interment will be in Pine Grove Cemetery, Port Perry.

JOHN SIMONS.

The esteem and respect of the community for the late John Simons were expressed to his bereaved wife by the many friends and relations who visited the Bert Duffus Funeral Home and attended the funeral at St. Peter's Cathedral on Wednesday at 9 a.m.

The funeral was an exceptionally large one attended by many of the business men of Peterborouhg. Requiem Mass was sung by the Rev. James Greenan, and he also delivered a very appropriate sermon on death, and extended his sympathy to Mrs. Simons.

The many spiritual and floral offerings presented gave evidence of the numerous friends and acquaintances which the late Mr. Simons had.

He was a quiet, unassuming gentleman, a friend of all, and his passing leaves a gap among the business men of Charlotte Street, where he opened his store more than 25 years ago.

The committal service at St. Peter's Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. J. F. Finn.

Pall-bearers were Lewis Anthony, Fred Pepe, Marine Veneranda, Carman Carravaggi, Victor Miccoli, and B. R. Strano.

Relatives from out of town were here from Guelph, Toronto, and other places.

tion's Messerschmitt escort were lost.

(Two of the 13 were shot down by a Canadian Sergeant-Pilot from Druid, Sask., the Air Ministry news service reported in London.)

The full story of this strange encounter could be told by the R.A.F. participants only today, after yesterday's concise announcement in the regular communique from the R.A.F.'s Middle East headquarters.

Returning from a sweep of the Mediterranean on Tuesday morning, the R.A.F. fighters, led by an Australian Wing Commander who wears the Distinguished Flying Cross, sighted the large formation off the North African coast.

The score of Junkers-52's were strung out, only 50 feet above the sea, presumably en route to reinforce the battle-lines of Marshal Erwin Rommel's African corps in Libya.

Eluding the hovering Messerschmitt-110's, and downing two of them, the R.A.F. fighters dove in to attack the troops carriers.

The occupants thrust tommy-guns out the windows of the Junkers in vain attempts to beat off the British fighters.

"One after the other, at half-mile intervals, the Junkers crashed into the sea," one pilot said. In 15 minutes, 13 were destroyed and it was probable that some others never reached their bases.

Columns of black smoke rising out of the sea marked the spot where each of the German carrier crashed.

Only one of the attackers was lost.

anxious to get aboard another ship and head out to sea again.

For two Netherlands seamen, it was the second torpedoing within seven weeks.

"It all happened before we could open our eyes," said six-footer O. Nuzink, who was backed up in his statements by H. A. A. Overzier, who like himself is a native of Rotterdam.

"We were only passengers aboard the ship, resting up from a torpedoing in the Atlantic just seven weeks ago," said Nuzink. "It was about three a.m. when the Nazi raider fired it torpedo and the boat just seemed to sink right away." Overzier said that there was four survivors of the previous sinking who were passengers with him, but one of them, Chief Officer W. Koning, was killed and the other, Second Engineer D. Bais is reported missing.

A veteran of 17 years at sea, Overzier was still carrying the lifebelt which had help in his rescue seven weeks ago. "ILt's my lucky charm," said the Hollander, "and I'm going to hold on to it even when I have something to eat this morning."

Nuzink added that he had "heared' only one of the men who were in the engine-room, where the torpedo hit, had come out of it alive. "There were six or seven down there."

Both put the torpedoing down to experience and laughingly added, "we hope our next trip is not as rough."

Finds Many Wounded

G. Brrkrlaar, a Netherlands seaman, said he was sleeping at the time of the disaster. Awakened by the explosion, he rushed to the deck and succeeded in finding a place in a lifeboat. The boat contained many wounded survivors and was in the water for several hours before reaching shore.

The torpedo struck squarely amidships, he said, trapping the men in the engine-room. Crys of agony came from below as escaping steam scalded the men to death.

Yon Der Braber, another Netherlander, said the torpedoing was unexpected as those aboard ship thought they were out of the danger zone when in the St. Lawrence.

"I had little trouble getting off the ship but I had to leave all my belongings behind," he said. "The submarine commander must have known the territory well to get in on the ships the way he did. Of course we had no chance to scatter, he caught us unawares."

Many other Netherlands seamen were in the crew including M. Kak, D. Plaay, A. Ammerung and D. Vosterveld. Ali told tales similar to those of Brrkrlaar and Der Braber.

Overseas Year Cousins Meet

Although they had been overseas a year, two Peterborough cousins in the R.C.A.F. met for the first time only a few weeks ago. They were Noe de Laplante, son of the late Osias de Laplante, a corporal and wireless operator with a fighting squadron, and De Sales Scully, son of Mrs. Cyril Giroux who is attached to the 411 fighter squadron.

Corporal de Laplante made his way into the R.C.A.F. through Manning Depot, Tornoto, and after his course of training in this country he reached England a year ago.

A.C.-1 Scully was a graduate of the Galt Training School and went overseas ten months ago with the ground crew of the 411th squadron of the R.C.A.F.

Both these boys are grandsons of the late Mr. and Mrs. N. T. de Laplante, prominent residents of the south end of the city for many years, living at the northwest corner of Lock and Romaine streets.

Noe de Laplante is their grandson, and De Sales Scully is a great grandson. The latter received leave of absence from his camp a few weeks ago, and visited his cousin at an unnamed headquarters of fighting planes.

He received his second medal in 1912 for rescuing Ignatius Roth from an ice-floe in the Niagara River, and his third medal for his part in the rescue of two men from a scow in the river just above the Falls.

In 1910 Hill was dared to go through the Niagara Rapids, in a barrel in which Bobby Leach previously had gone over the Falls.

Hill accepted the dare, was swirled through the Rapids and safely reached shore at Lewiston, N.Y.

Hill assisted many persons from the river who had successfully or unsuccessfully gone over the Falls in barrels, tanks or ruber balls. He himself in a steel barrel successfully navigated treacherous currents in the river from below the Falls to Queenston.

A veteran of the First Great War, Hill served overseas with the 98th Battalion and was wounded at Vimy Ridge.

He is survived by his widow and seven children, one of whom is now serving overseas. Hill will be given a military funeral, but the time has not been set.

Last Minute News

BOWMANVILLE, Ont., May 14—(CP)—Discovery of two broken crates in a baggage car on a railway siding here today gave authorities at a nearby prison camp for enemy officers their first indications how two lieutenants of the German Air Force escaped the camp last night. The crates were said by police to have been carried from the camp yesterday on a truck and loaded to the baggage car.

C.N.R. Employees Honor Veterans

Railwaymen are busy men these days in their all out efforts to keep traffic moving toward the front lines, for the confusion of Hitler and his gang of outlaws, but on Wednesday night a goodly number of the different staffs of the Canadian National Railways in this city took the night off to do honor to two of their fellow workers, now on the retired list. It was a merry gang that assembled in the Moose Hall, and a merry time they had, under the captaincy of such masters of fun as Bob Hendry, Jack Smith, and for good measure Homer Ouellette of Millbrook, and the program guided by Osborne Smith, Orval Kidd and 'Red' Suddards. Such games as bingo, carpet ball, darts, etc., occupied the first part of the program, interspersed by a singsong, jokes and stories. When the gathering was called to refreshments, Osborne Smith presented to John Page and Wesley Ford (in absenta) an address, expressing the regret of the gathering because of the retirement of these two men of the motive power department, from further participation with them in the activities of the Canadian National Railways in Peterborough. At the same time expressing the hope that they may long live to enjoy the leisure they have so well earned, and presenting them with tokens of their esteem.

Refreshments were served, and 'Red' Suddards proved himself a thorough master of that important part of the program. All the songs and ditties of the 'Kaiser' war were sung and many others, with great gusto, ending up with 'Auld Acquaintance' in traditional style, after which the company broke up in 'the wee sma' oors'—it was a braw nicht.

Home and School

QUEEN ELIZABETH SCHOOL

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Queen Elizabeth Home and School Association took place Wednesday evening with Mrs. O. Deyell, president, in the chair. Annual reports were given by the conveners. A very interesting talk was given by Mrs. C. Chambers, president of the Home and School Council. The aims and ideals of the Home and School Association were reviewed and the speaker emphasized the fact that parent education was much more important during these troublesome times.

Mrs. R. Parnall took the chair for the election and installation of officers as follows: president, Mrs. O. Deyell; vice-president, Mrs. C. Doughty; treasurer, Mrs. W. Ellison; corresponding secretary, Mrs. W. Rome; executive, Mrs. F. Christmas, Mrs. R. Batten, Mrs. K. Ward, Mrs. T. Davies. Upon her re-election Mrs. Deyell carried on with the remainder of the business. It was announced that the annual picnic would be held in Jackson Park some time in June.

Combat Training In Canada For Air Schools

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, May 14—(CP).—Air training in Canada is approaching the stage where graduates will be prepared for actual warfare before going oversea instead of completing operational training abroad, sa Air Minister Power.

He told the House of Commons this yesterday, adding that was the objective "and we are on the verge of reaching it."

This could not be done earlier, the Minister said, nor was it a part of the original joint air training plan.

"Under the joint air training plan we brought them up to a certain stage," the Minister said. "That was a part of the plan.

"Up until very recently it was not possible to have operational training here because we could not get operational type of planes as they were required both for fighting and training in Britain.

"But that situation now has eased and there are, fortunately, operationa units in this country and there will be many more of them.

"One of the shifts that we now are undergoing is to enable a longer period of training to be given here to train them in operational work so that there will be little or nothing in the way of training required when they reach overseas and have to use the biggest or fastest type of machines."

The Minister continued throughout the afternoon sitting to answer

More Babies At Health Clinic

Ninety-three children, examined at the Separate school clinic, during a three-month period ending April 30, were referred to their own dentists for proposed and needed attention, Miss Margaret Cunningham, Public Health Nurse, reported to the Board of Health Tuesday.

Miss Geraldine Conley in her extensive report for April informed the Board that eight child hygiene clinics were held during the month with a total attendance of 152.

"This month there is an increase over last month of 26 individuals attending child hygiene centres. This is perhaps due to the increased number of infant welfare visits made by the public health nurses during the month in their homes, also the fine weather and the lessening in the mumps epidemic."

Conditions were found satisfactory in infant boarding homes. Total number of individuals visited during April was 472. Acute communicable diseases 62, of which 40 were new

Salvage Drive For Cobourg Is Organized

COBOURG May 14 — (ENS). — Cobourg's big salvage drive on May 20th, which is being handled by the local branch of the Navy League, will be divided into six sections for convenience of operation. The skating ring is the main depot. The town has been divided into six districts, four north of King street and two south of King. These districts are in charge of Max Gifford, John Westington, J. Skitch, Ed. Morton, George Taylor and Dr. L. Jordan.

Out in the township the salvage material for Baltimore district is being received at Ball's Cooperage Shop; Gore's Landing, at Harris' shed; Camborne, the church drive shed; and Harwood, the canteen building in Memorial Park.

For the convenience of Cobourg and rural residents, the Cobourg rink and other district depots at Baltimore, Gore's Landing, Harwood, Camborne, Coldsprings and Plainville will be open on Saturday, May 16th, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m: The salvage committee has issued a request that citizens assemble their salvage material themselves and deliver it themselves, rather than wait for a collector to call, if possible, as this will save time and expense, particularly in the consumption of gasoline in delivery trucks.

In the present salvage campaign it has been decided to collect rubber, metal scrap, rags, old clothing, paper of all kinds, bottles, but not bones or tin cans. Following are more specific directions as to packaging of the salvage.

Waste papers, cardboard and cardboard boxes which should be flattened out and tied with strong cord or rope; books, magazines and newspapers. Rags—woollens should be separated from other rags and tied in bags. Bottles—these should be placed in boxes or cartons in order to avoid breakage; otherwise they cannot be picked up. Metals—these can all be placed together in a box or piled loosely in a heap. Fat, broken glass, tin cans or tin in any form are not being collected in this particular campaign.

OBITUARIES

GEORGE F. COVERT

HAVELOCK, May 14 — (ENS). — Mr. R. F. Covert received word on Monday morning of the very sudden death of his father, Mr. George F. Covert, Toronto, in his 81st year. His funeral was held on Tuesday from his late residence, thence to Castleton for burial.

He was born at Warkworth, and was employed for 20 years with the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co, Toronto, prior to his retirement 10 years ago.

He is survived by his widow, one daughter (Margaret) Mrs. Clarke, Toronto, and four sons, Ross of Havelock, William of Castleton, Reginald of Toronto and Lorne of Hamilton.

MRS. ANNIE MANLEY

FRASERVILLE, May 14—(ENS). The funeral service of Mrs. Annie Manley was held from the home of her daughter, Mrs. M. Clarke, Fraserville, on Sunday afternoon, Rev. Morgan Rowland conducting the service.

Mrs. Manley was eighty-four and had been quite active until about a year ago. Born in Muskoka she was the daughter of the late William Holden and spent her earlier life there coming to make her home in this community with her daughter since the death of her husband over twenty years ago. Her son, William, was killed in a mine some years ago.

Surviving members of the family are one daughter, Mrs. M. Clarke; one sister, Miss M. Holden, and three brothers, S. Holden of Bracebridge, William Holden of North Bay and Robert Holden of Fraserville.

On Monday morning the remains was taken to Bracebridge for interment beside her husband and son.

Trinity Church W.M.S.

COBOURG, May 14 — (ENS). — Good attendance featured the monthly meeting of the W.M.S. of Trinity United Church which was held in the Sunday School Hall. The program was in charge of Mrs. J. Patterson's group. Mrs. G. Immel gave a paper entitled, "The Tide Comes In", from the Study Book. The June Presbyterial, it was announced, will meet at Bethesda South at which time Mrs. Moulett, returned missionary from Japan, will deliver an address.

Reported Prisoners In Hong Kong

PTE. GEORGE MEDHURST

PTE. CLARENCE BEVAN

Parents in Cobourg of Pte. George Medhurst and Pte. Clarence Bevan, whose pictures appear ABOVE, are somewhat encouraged by the publication of a list of Canadian prisoners of war at Hong Kong in which the names of the two Cobourg boys appear. Previously they had been reported missing. However, the list is not official, having come through indirect channels to publication in an Ottawa newspaper, but the parents are relieved somewhat, nevertheless.

Navy League Endeavors To Make Voyage More Pleasant For Men

Men of the merchant marine, the hardy courageous seamen who man the ships in convoy carrying essentials of war, and troops to England, look to the Navy League of Canada for the comforts that make a voyage much more pleasant.

Regarded by every intelligent man and women as key men in a game where both sides play for keeps, the men of the merchant marine, face danger every day, and this danger from the enemy is coupled with the distress and discomfort of heavy seas, raging storms, ice, snow, sleet and biting cold, but they carry on in all kinds of weather, through all the hazards that face them, doing a job that must be done if Britain is to win this war.

Very Heavy Task

The Canadian Government has charged the Navy League of Canada with looking after the welfare of these men, and this year the task has assumed colossal proportions, being at least three times what it was in previous years. In other words, the Navy League must treble the number of ditty bags and other necessites for the merchant seamen and the boys in the Royal Canadian Navy. The Government has also requested that the sea cadet corps be increased from its present strength of 3,000 to more than 8,000 this year. All of these facilities in addition to many other services have to be financed by public subscription. That is why the Navy League of Canada is included in the list of agencies to benefit from the monies collected by the Peterborough Community Fund.

The Hon. Angus L. Macdonald, premier of Nova Scotia and Minister of National Defence for Naval Affairs made timely reference to the fine work of this organization when he spoke in the House of Commons, on May 7, last. He said:—

"Another organization to which I should like to refer is the Navy League of Canada, whose work, particularly on behalf of merchant seamen, has been of great importance and great value. These men are out in all kinds of weather and in all seasons, in the cold of winter and in the heat of summer; their calling is dangerous enough in peace time, but is trebly dangerous now, and anything that can be done for them is well deserved. The Navy League has given particular attention to these gallant merchant seamen. It has built hostels in coastal ports and ports on the St. Lawrence river; it has provided clothing and other comforts for men in many parts of Canada, not only for Canadian merchant seamen, but the seamen of our allied friends as well.

"The Navy League has always taken a special interest in the Sea Cadets. I may say that there are now 2,700 Sea Cadets in Canada who range in age from twelve to eighteen years. By the end of the present fiscal year we hope that that number will be increased to some 8,000. We have found from experience that many young men who have had training as Sea Cadets have been able to shorten considerably the training time ordinarily consumed by new entries into the Navy. Many of our best officers and ratings have been training with the Sea Cadet Corps."

Vichy Explains

LONDON, May 14—(CP).—The Star published a Vichy news agency report quoting Bucharest sources today which declared that a new type German land mine had caused the Russians erroneously to believe the Nazis had used poison gas on the eastern front.

That "most Russian casualties in the last few days bore no trace of wounds made the Russian high command believe that poison gas had been used," the dispatch asserted.

Actually, according to it, a new type of explosive "causes a considerable decrease in pressure and neutralizes oxygen in the air over a radius of 300 yards."

Western Canada Is Developing Great Cheese Making Industry

in opposition to the new policy, was for the group to hire a man to do the testing and make their own financial arrangements without any help from the Government. "Once the proper equipment for making the tests is installed in the factories and you have tried it for a couple of years, I believe you will find it very satisfactory. We had this same opposition in Western Ontario when the plan was first announced."

Mr. Bain reminded the makers of the free culture service being provided by the Kemptville school and urged them to take advantage of it. "We don't say that your cultures are all wrong but we do advocate a new one once in a while. Get one and propogate it or run two at the same time and compare them. The better culture you use the higher will be the cheese score. Get the milk moving—well firmed—cooked in the proper time, stir it out reasonably dry and you won't go far astray. An active starter together with proper handling and you will have first grade cheese—provided the milk is right." Another tip to the maker from Mr. Bain was that they should take greater advantage of the instructor service. "If you're in trouble don't make a secret of it. Call in the instructor."

Recalling last week's visit to various factories in this district with Dairy Instructor J. A. Murray he said the plants "as a whole were in very good shape and with their make up anywhere from 50 to 100 per cent a record year is in view." "But," he continued, "the percentage of first grade cheese is lower and we're going to need all the high scores we can get to keep the average for the season up."

Instructor Murray sounded off the box question which he described as one of the "disturbing" elements in the cheese business right now. He said although a number of the boxes being delivered were smaller "so far none have been turned down (by the grader) for that reason." He voiced the feelings of the maker on the testing question declaring that with many one-man factories and beginners they felt the testing should remain as it has in the past.

Note Of Warning

Chairman Bill Moore, cheesemaker at Rylstone factory and president of the Campbellford Association called on Grader J. L. Irwin. His voice carried a note of warning as he said, "We have a good reputation to maintain here and the past few days have made me wonder if we are going to maintain it." Mr. Irwin was referring to undergrade cheese and he felt that one reason for the lower quality might be the fact growth was at least two weeks ahead of last year. Both November and December cheese had been of "splendid quality" but now with such an early opening and the maker so busy, it looked as though in some cases he had not time to put the factory into proper shape. He described the box situation as serious adding that many headings didn't appear to be more than 50 to 60 per cent dry, and then he put in a plug for the dairy show which "has done a great deal to improve the quality of cheese." Mr. Irwin said colored cheese was being eliminated from the exhibition this year and expressed surprise that some factories were still making colored for the patrons. He extolled the virtues of "beautiful amber cheese" which will not become streaked in the course of six months as the colored product does.

Want 14-inch Boxes

Dairy Instructor George Pollard, Stirling, thought it was too bad more meetings of this type were not arranged and after estimating that probably few of the makers had made April cheese before said it was somewhat discouraging there were so many culls. He questioned whether last year's average would be reached again. O. J. McEvoy, instructor from the Madoc district, touched on the box question declaring makers in his district would be quite willing to pay 40 cents (instead of the 35 cents ceiling) for 14-inch boxes if they could get them. And to this W. J. Moore, Peterborough, added that with all the talk about boxes during the past six months "there has been mighty little done." Box and cheesemaker Grant Anderson of Campbellford confirmed this by stating the situation was bad and according to information he had received no material for them was being shipped out of Quebec this year. "If I don't get material by Friday of this week I'll be out of the box business." Speaking as a cheesemaker he declared the reason they were not getting boxes was that they were "looking for them too cheap." He explained the cost of manufacturing them had risen, claiming that the man who a couple of years ago worked for $1.50 a day now wanted $35 a week. The timber is still in the woods in Mr. Anderson's opinion waiting for someone to take it out at $3 a cord. He named five factories in this distrct who are without boxes and as a consequence will be unable to ship cheese this week.

"NEW OXYDOL washes WHITE WITHOUT BLEACHING!"

You'll agree... you get the WHITEST WASH EVER
Or OXYDOL Guarantees Double Your Money Back!

"Now my clothes come so clean they're white without bleaching. It's the whitest wash ever!"

That's what so many women tell us about the New Oxydol. You see, its new kind of "Hustle-Bubble" suds are much richer in washing power than before: Every ounce of New Oxydol is packed with more power to wash clothes white.

To an amazing degree, this livelier "Hustle-Bubble" sudsing prevents the gradual graying and yellowing that naturally settle in fabrics after washing. Except for stains or unusual pieces, of course, your wash fairly gleams — white without bleaching.

Safe For Colours and Rayons, Too!

Yes, New Oxydol is safety itself! Milder on hands than before! Not only safe for dainty washable colours, but safe for lovely washable rayons, too! It's modern soap!

So change to New Oxydol. And if you don't agree it gives you the whitest wash ever, simply return the package with name and address to OXYDOL, Montreal, and twice the purchase price will be refunded.

Germany Reaps The Whirlwind

"They have sown wind, and they shall reap the whirlwind," says the prophet Hosea; the whirlwind is gaining strength now; the first faint stirrings are gaining in power and Germany is beginning her long and bitter harvest. When Winston Churchill spoke last Sunday he said that more Germans have already been killed in Russia than were killed in the whole four and a quarter years of the last war; it is obvious that he spoke from reliable information. In the last war Germany lost more than two million men. A figure in excess of that is a heavy price for eleven months of horror on the Russian plains, with little to show for it and little to expect save further fighting and further losses. Two millions killed: how many are wounded and sick; how many will never fight or work again; how many have lost limbs—not by enemy action, for that might be bearable—but by the dark malignity of the Russian winter?

And what of occupied Europe? What of the 400,000,000 people who were to collaborate with their conquerors in the establishment of a New Order? Has not Germany been forced to immobilize troops in every country in order to preserve a semblance of peace and to watch for guerillas and saboteurs? Last week in France two trains loaded with soldiers and ammunition were derailed. German soldiers met death mysteriously, although twenty Frenchmen were slain to pay for every dead German. There were food riots in the streets of Paris. This week six hotels and restaurants which had been taken over by the Germans have been bombed.

Last week in the Netherlands seventy-two men were executed, upon charges of having assisted the secret service of the United Nations. But the mysterious murders of Germans and Dutch Nazis continue. The Gestapo has been forced to bring in reinforcements from Germany.

In Norway the unspeakable Quisling has been forced to leave the country, as he was unable to stand up to Church and national officials who opposed him.

In the mountains of Yugoslavia resistance to the Germans continues under General Draja Mikhailovitch. The "ox-cart army" which Hitler affected to despise has shown itself very much at home in the mountains, and Germany has been forced to send new regiments to launch a spring offensive against these patriots who will never surrender.

In Rumania, Germany's most important source of oil, a guerilla army under Ion Minulescu has begun to attack the Germans and particularly their oil transports. In Poland sabotage continues on a large scale, and Hungary is in the grip of an anti-Axis "White Terror." Even from Spain come reports of opposition toward any increased co-operation with the Reich.

These are but the beginnings — the darkening clouds and the oppressive and electric air. The whirlwind will not be long in coming.

Still Waiting For The Rains

The situation in northern Burma is taking on a new aspect. The Japanese, having seized Burma, attempted to cut the Burma Road, and found it easy enough. But having cut the Road they now find themselves in difficulties, for they are unable to use it. They have advanced a certain distance and they have been trapped.

The United Nations forces on this battle-front are divided into three sections: the British, under General Alexander, are in retreat up the Chindwin River, moving toward India; the Chinese under General Stilwell, are northwest of Mandalay; another Chinese army is on the Salween River in Eastern Burma. Further, the Chinese have brought fresh troops down the Burma Road from Yunnan. Stilwell's forces are driving east, probably in an attempt to join the other Chinese army at Salween. And the Japs who drove up the Road are in difficulties.

The Chinese used an ancient dodge to trap their enemies. A Japanese armored column moved up the Road into China about a week ago; then the Chinese closed in around it and forced it backward; when it was reinforced at the Burma border the reinforcements were decisively defeated. If Stilwell manages to join the Chinese at Salween the Japanese position will be a very dangerous one.

The Japs may save themselves by bringing up strong reinforcements. The United Nations forces are not large and they would be unable to cope with a greatly increased enemy force; but they appear to have the Indian sign on the Japs who are on the spot now. And any delay at present is valuable to the United Nations cause, for they are still waiting for the rains in Burma, and when the rains come fighting will either have to cease or assume a different and greatly modified form.

Meanwhile the few British and American fliers who are on the spot have done prodigies with the equipment available to them. They are forced to adopt guerilla air tactics—if the phrase is admissable—and their surprise attacks have been most successful and have even won them air superiority over the enemy in some places.

But the coming of the rains is what will make all the difference to the United Nations forces. It will provide them with a respite in which they can be reinforced and re-organized. When the Burmese forests are fit to fight in again the Japs will face a much more formidable army than that which has turned the tables on them at present.

World Of Illusion

It is a basic belief of advanced Hindu philosophy that the world of apparent reality is in fact a world of illusion, and that only spiritual things are real. Perhaps it is this belief which has led the All-India Congress to advise its followers to adopt a course of "non-violent non-cooperation" toward the Japanese should the latter invade their country. Certainly it seems to be a belief dear to the heart of Mohandas Ghandi, who behaves as though he thinks that the war will disappear if he pretends that it does not exist. Reports tell that when Chiang Kai-Shek visited him he sat cross-legged at his spinning-wheel and firmly refused to discuss the war. When Sir Stafford Cripps was talking to him Ghandi brought their conversation to a sudden close, complaining of a distress in his chest; Sir Stafford left, suffering from a distress in his neck. Either Ghandi is a saint who has been grossly misrepresented, or else he is the prince of all Indian fakers; from what we know the latter seems the more likely description.

There is a very slim chance that non-violent non-cooperation might work if everybody in India believe in it and was prepared to put it into effect. But there is absolutely no chance at all that it will work when all the Moslems and a great number of Hindus are opposed to it. Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru does not believe in it and urges his countrymen to fight. A former President of the Congress Party, Chakravarthi Rejagopalachariar, has resigned from that body to signify his opposition to non-violence and has come out in favor of the establishment of a separate Moslem state. He urges the formation of a national army to resist the Japs, saying that "even an armed national army would be better than the measures urged by Congress."

But Ghandi is probably the most stubborn man in India. He must know that his policy of non-violence has no chance of success unless it is adopted by India at large, but apparently he is prepared to place his country in great danger rather than modify his views. It looks as though the world of illusion were preparing to give him some illusory hard knocks.

French As a Teaching Language

A member of the Toronto Board of Education, Dr. William Butt, is anxious to have that body adopt a motion of his that French be dropped as a teaching language in this Province. We do not think that Dr. Butt has really considered the implications of this motion and we suggest that he reconsider it.

There are in this Province many communities where the majority of the school children are French-speaking; and there is no point in giving them primary instruction in English. They might learn some English if this plan were adopted but it is doubtful if they would learn anything else, and certainly such a scheme would prolong the process of primary education unduly. It is also a fact that certain things, such as the multiplication tables, have to be committed to memory so thoroughly that they can never be forgotten, and a child learns these necessary facts best in its native tongue. We also believe that if an attempt were made to teach small French children in English it would give them a fear of and distaste for education which would be most unfortunate and which would be a handicap to them all their lives.

Dr. Butt's motion sounds as though he were one of those people who is unsympathetic toward any Canadian who does not speak English. This attitude is unfortunately very common, and we feel that it arises from a lack of imagination. We English-speaking Canadians are among the luckiest people in the world; we have always possessed the right to speak our own language, and that right has never been challenged. But we must remember that, although English is our mother-tongue, it is not necessarily God's will that every man and woman in this country should adopt it or take the consequences. A language is the key to a nation's heart, and he who steals that key is guilty of a tyrannous and oppressive act.

Perhaps, in order to make this point clear, we may be allowed to go beyond these shores for an example, and return to the Principality of Wales in the eighties of the last century. English educational authorities, in an officious and oppressive desire to stamp out the Welsh language, forbade it to be spoken in schools, and any boy or girl who was caught using his native tongue was made to stand before the class for an hour, wearing a badge of disgrace which was called "the Welsh board"; it was a piece of wood, strapped over the shoulders, with writing on it which stamped the wearer as an ignoramus who chose to speak his own mother tongue instead of English. Did this tyranny do any good? No, it did not. But it did such harm to the cause of education in Wales that a more sensible policy had to be adopted. Languages cannot be killed by Boards of Education; they live in the hearts and in the tongues of men, and any man who attacks them will succeed only in filling the hearts with hatred and the tongues with abuse.

It is highly desirable that every French child in Canada be able to speak English, and Premier Godbout of Quebec is fighting a good fight in order to achieve this end. It is equally desirable that every English child be taught to speak French, in order that he may have the inestimable advantage of a second language and so that he may understand his fellow citizens in Quebec better than is now the case. But a high-handed attempt to rob children of the language of their homes and of their hearts is not to be tolerated, however strongly it may appeal to that element in Ontario which likes to affront French Canada at every opportunity. There are better ways of handling this problem than that suggested by Dr. Butt; the discomfiture of minorities is no part of the duty of a Board of Education.

SPRING SKY

This delicate, many-colored evening sky,
Fretted with gold, scarce the ranked alders screen
With strong, bare lines of branching tracery;
Rather there is some sacred pact between
Far sky, near tree, that beauty shall be seen—
Re-affirmation for the languid eye,
So used to seeing, it no more would see
Had not new challenge new authority,
Will not be questioned, may not be withstood.

Tranced stand the trees, but from the neighboring wood
Small birds come flying, dark against the light,
In scattered flight,
Soon to re-gather, soon to take their rest,
Adding winged shapes to the staid symmetry
Of those still trees seen plain against the west.

Here is earth heaven shown and heaven revealing,
Piercing dim sight and to the faint heart stealing;
Sky-communing, and blessing so, and blest.

In Defence Of Idlers And Idleness

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

NOTHING is of greater advantage to a busy man than a few hours of idleness now and again. Dr. Johnson, that great sage, said very wisely, "Every man is, or hope to be, an idler." Whatever moralists may say to the contrary, this is true. If we search our minds in an attempt to find what we consider to be the chief pleasure in life, most of us will agree that it lies in doing nothing at all.

This struck me with great force recently when I re-read a little book by Arnold Bennett called "How To Live On 24 Hours A Day." He wrote it in 1910 and it has been popular ever since. Bennett holds that most people waste the greater part of every day. They are forced by circumstances to earn a living at some sort of employment which probably does not interest them greatly, and the rest of their time they waste in useless occupations and in pursuits which give them little pleasure. The purpose of his book is to show such people how they may really enjoy life and upon the whole he succeeds. But I have one complaint to make; he fills the day too full. His plan for a really satisfactory day is so full of pleasure that it leaves no time for idleness, and this is a serious omission.

FEW pursuits are more thoroughly exhausting than enjoying oneself. In the days before the depression it was quite common to read of a dozen or more debutantes who, at the end of the social season, suffered from nervous and physical exhaustion for no other reason than that they had been enjoying themselves too much and too long. They were as tired as though they had been engaged in the most strenuous sort of domestic service, instead of dancing and parties. To call such people the "idle rich" was mere nonsense: the poor souls had not the least notion of the value of idleness. Indeed, it seems that few people have.

For examples of really profitable idleness it is best to examine the lives of literary men. Many of those who write for a living appear to be incorrigible idlers; only the importunities of publishers or the need of money will set them to work. Dr. Johnson, who has already been quoted on the subject, was superbly idle, though in the course of his life he managed to do a great deal of work; his greatest pleasure lay in conversation, and his favorite spot for conversation was a tavern: When he had to work he worked, but as soon as he could escape work, he did. Mark Twain was another great idler; he spent as much time as possible in bed, maintaining that his best ideas came to him there. Goldsmith never worked if he could find anyone to talk to. Indeed the man of letters is generally represented in books and on the stage as one who leads a thoroughly idle life, and there is some justification for this general opinion.

THE defence of the man of letters is, invariably, that he must have time to think before he can write, and there is much justice in this. And thinking is not always a conscious process. A man who is thinking need not sit in an empty room with one finger pressed to his temple, revolving his problem until he reaches a solution. Indeed, he is less likely to reach a solution that way than any other. When Sir Walter Scott was writing one of his novels he spent many apparently idle hours reading books entirely unrelated to his subject; while he was thus engaged his story formed itself in his head and he was then able to write it down. So too with Johnson; he was a lethargic man, requiring the stimulus of company and conversation to bestir his mind; as he sat in the tavern wrangling with Boswell he was collecting energy and ideas for his writing. The writers who write assiduously by the clock are seldom those who have most to say. The great idlers are the men who have the great ideas. The mind of an idle man may be vigorously at work, although his body is still and his conversation perhaps trivial. Einstein, when he was concerned with abstruse problems often spent his time playing the violin, or strolling about the streets to watch other people at work.

Not only men who live by thinking may profit from idleness. We all would be far better off if, every day, or every week, or whenever possible, we gave up a certain amount of time to doing nothing. It is the most refreshing of all pursuits. Britain has shown deep wisdom in allowing a considerable amount of spare time to her defence workers; these men and women have a chance to be idle and they return to their work capable of great effort. Germany has made the mistake of working her people until they are good for nothing but sleep when they leave their factories; as a result she has a labor problem now which may cost her the war. Idleness is a great thing, and we should never forget it. After all, God created man to be completely idle in a garden and every now and then we should attempt to recapture that happy primal state.

• Darker Crimean News

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, May 14 (AP)—The Russians' announcement that they have retired to new positions on the Kerch Peninsula gives a sombre cast to the war news, although there is yet no confirmation of Hitler's claims of a decisive victory in that area.

In fact the Russians deny the Nazi leader's boast that the battle has been concluded: they say the Red troops are retiring in good order and inflicting heavy losses.

Thus, the real import of the blow the Nazis have struck in this vastly important sector remains for events to determine.

The phrasing of the Nazi announcement, however, goes far to remove any lingering doubt as to whether the Kerch operations signal the opening of the long heralded "annihilation" offensive in the East. It uses that word to characterize the claimed results, including capture of 40,000 prisoners and vast war booty. It says that the Nazi forces are pursuing the Russians from the broken twelve-mile defense line at the western neck of the isthmus toward Kerch itself.

That and word pictures of the battle painted by Nazi press reports indicate that a massive force of men, planes, tanks and guns was mustered in the Crimea for the Kerch drive. It tends to verify the conclusion of observers at Berne that half a dozen German divisions and overpowering air strength were thrown into the five-day struggle.

VAST TURNING MOVEMENT

If that is true, as it seems to be it eliminates the possibility that the Kerch fight is merely a tactical operation to improve the Nazi position on the south flank of the long battle line or remove a dangerous Russian threat. There are various reports of synchronized Nazi attacks all along the sector extending from the Kharkov region in the Donets Basin to the German "island" advance base at Taganrog on the shores of the Sea of Azov, only sixty-odd miles from the all-important Rostov corner on the Don.

None of these reports has been yet mentioned in either German or Russian official accounts. They lend color to the belief, however, that a vast Nazi turning movement, in effect hinged on Kerch Isthmus but calculated to sweep the Don River front door to the Caucasus clear to the Volga, is beginning, if not already in motion.

In contradiction of the recent intimation by Prime Minister Churchill that no evidence of a massing of German forces for a major offensive in Russia had been detected, Berne onlookers have reported a Nazi army 2,000,000 strong assembled for a big push in the south. The Hitler claim of a smashing victory on Kerch Isthmus tends to substantiate that. It suggests that 100,000 or more German troops were concentrated on that twelve-mile front alone.

ONLY TWO ROUTES

That any such concentration could have been brought together in the Eastern Crimea undetected by the Russians seems impossible. Air observation and reports from Russian civilians must have revealed military movements on that scale. There are only two routes by which they could have entered the Crimea with all their necessary war gear, the Perekop Isthmus and the Melitopol-Simeropol Railroad.

It would follow, naturally, that Red Army preparations to meet a tremendous Nazi attack to regain the Kerch gateway to the Caucasus have been in progress on both sides of Kerch Strait. A Russian failure to hold that narrow water barrier, even if Kerch Isthmus is lost again, would undermine the Don defense line before the foe even reaches it.

Kerch Strait itself, coupled with Russian naval forces and air power, could afford the Red Army the means of fighting a prolonged delaying action if the Germans again reached its western shore. Its defensive possibilities have never been tested.

Lord Beaverbrook remarked in a recent broadcast in this country that Russia had developed "the best generals in this war."

And the best of them, beyond doubt, is Marshal Timoshenko, commanding the Southern Front.

He is a disciple of the Nazi flank attack technique. And if the Nazi attack front begins to swing like a gate on the Kerch hinge, he might have an opportunity for a crippling flanking thrust southward behind it from the Kharkov region.

• Quebec and Mr. Meighen

THE editor of Le Jour, M. Jean Charles Harvey, seems to have been considerably disgusted at the use which was made of Mr. Meighen as a sort of bogey-man in the plebiscite campaigning in the province of Quebec, and particularly by the advertisements of the League for the Defence of Canada in which Mr. Meighen's photograph was featured as the symbol of the alleged tyrannies from which a "No" vote would deliver French Canada.

"It is well to recall," says M. Harvey, "that at a time when a part of the Quebec press was loading him with insults, Mr. Meighen sent his son Ted to Laval University, a 100 per cent French-Canadian institution, where I had more than one occasion to see and speak with him. He was a tall fellow, affable and sympathetic, and I know that we could have been very real friends. His father had suffered from an inadequate knowledge of our language and could have no real contact with our people; he was determined that his son should not suffer from the same disability. The decision to make Ted a perfect bilingual Canadian was a fine example of breadth of view....In the light of facts Mr. Meighen is not the monster that he has been painted by the passions of the electoral conflict. He is an honest Conservative, and while I am myself a Liberal I affirm that he has a right to respect."

The reference to Mr. Meighen's son is interesting. He is a young man with all of his father's earnestness and zeal on public questions, together with a marked gift for making friends, and there are many who hope that at the close of the war he will play an important part in the settlement of the grave questions which will have to be dealt with. If this is to be the case it is highly desirable that he should not be handicapped in an important part of the country by an unjust estimate of his father's career and policies. — From "Saturday Night," Toronto.

• The Value of Criticism

THE immunity from criticism which the hostile dictators enjoy is sometimes cited as an advantage to them in waging war. That is a very short view. To the extent that the dictator imposes ignorance upon his subjects, he himself remains ignorant of something vital to his strategy, the real state of their minds; and public confidence founded upon ignorance must be brittle.

Sooner or later policy immune from criticism always lands itself in the fatal blunder—fatal because it cannot be retrieved. The power to retrieve blunders depends upon criticism, which gives the community a responsible share in the remedial action. Without the constructive force of criticism it is unlikely that this country would have survived the disasters of the past two years, or be in any position to confront the urgent perils ahead.

Should we have had new men to reinforce the Government, would it have been possible to make an attempt to settle the problem of India on new lines, could there now be new and promising machinery for the direction and stimulation of industrial output, if "the critics" had been silenced? There is nothing to recant in these long-accepted doctrines of free speech. Nor need it be thought that any of the national leaders has consciously gone back upon them.

Ministers, there is no doubt, are perfectly sincere in wishing to maintain the liberties of Parliament and the press. They are equally anxious to draw firmly the distinction which Mr. Churchill drew recently between responsible and irresponsible criticism, between liberty and licence. But they are not immune from psychological stress. When great defeats are suffered, criticism grows. In this country that is not a sign of downheartedness, but of overflowing eagerness for action.—The Times (London).

A Bible Message For Today . . .

In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth....And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness: and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth that creepeth upon the earth....Thus the heavens and the earth were finished, and all the host of them....

But there went up a mist from the earth, and watered the whole face of the ground. And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul.—Gen. i, 26; ii, 1, 6, 7.

Civilian Committee Established To Assist In Recruiting Of Two Home Defence Units

A civilian committee to assist in the recruiting of Peterborough's two home defence units, the Second Battalion of the Prince of Wales Rangers and the Fourth Reserve Battery, was appointed at a meeting of citizens in the Council Chamber last night.

A resolution by His Honor Judge Smoke, seconded by Alderman Glover, nominated Ian F. McRae, Gordon S. Matthews D. G. H. Melton, H. Steggles, Alderman J. E. Sullivan, Mayor Hamilton, W. Chris Hughes, Harold L. Garner, and G. Wilson Craw. The committee was authorized to "add to their number" if they wished to do so.

The action of the committee was a unanimous promise to Col. J. A. Dewart, officer commanding the First Battalion of the Rangers, as representing not only the otner officers and men of the unit, but also the other men who have preceded them into active service that their community will heartily undertake the recruiting to full strength of the two reserve units for the protection of the home fires as symbols of the security of Canada and its people at home.

The Rangers require approximately 500 men to complete their roster of 800 officers and men, and the 4th Field Battery Reserve needs about 100 men for its complement.

Men who are eligible for this service include all those from 17 to 50 years of age in C category; single men from 36 to 50 years in categories A, B, or C, and married men 31 to 50 in categories A, B or C.

Mayor Hamilton, chairman explained that the meeting was called in response to the suggestion recently made to the Council by a deputation composed of Col. Dewart, Lt.-Col M. H. Park, and Major V. M. Eastwood, who also attended last night.

A Home Guard.

Col. Dewart explained the purpose and importance of the reserve units. "Most of the military organizations have been mobilizing for active service, and as each moves out it leaves behind a second or reserve unit," Col. Dewart said. "This affords an opportunity for all persons in the city to get training in the nature of a Home Guard. In the last war this was done without assistance from the Department of National Defence. It was voluntary action by the citizens, but to-day they can do the same thing with the added advantage in joining organized units with proper training, weapons, and quarters."

Col. Dewart mentioned again the threat of Japan on the West Coast especially if they were to gain freedom of movement on the sea. "And if they came it would be with a powerful striking force. The Department of National Defence is anxious about maintaining home units so as to have armed forces ready and available at all times. Their alternative is to keep the active units here or to bring the reserve units to full strength. This latter plan would enable the Government to direct the active force to fronts where they can be best used.

The officers and non-commissioned officers of the Prince of Wales Rangers are giving their time to the details of organization and training, and it seems to me a citizens' task to supply the men for training. In the German invasion of France cycle corps gained complete control of towns within a few hours. With adequate reserve forces for home defence that sort of thing could not have succeeded."

Col. Dewart pointed out that men up to 30 years and in the categories from A to C-2 were eligible for the reserves.

Challenge to Citizens.

Mr. Melton first of the citizens to be called on by Mayor Hamilton to discuss the proposed enlisting plans, said he wished to pay tribute to Col. Dewart and all ranks of the First Battalion (who left this morning for Niagara) and to wish them in their departure Godspeed and the best of luck.

"In leaving us they present a direct challenge to the men of Peterborough to see that we do not fall short in the responsibility of protecting our country as they themselves would do," Mr. Melton said. "The challenge to us remaining behind is to fill up the gap. We feel very keenly that this group of our fellow-citizens who like ourselves have been following peaceful pursuits, are going from us to defend our own city and our country."

Duty of Citizenship.

Citizenship in Canada is acquired by birth or adoption, Mr. Melton said, but the time comes when we have to earn it. Payment of taxes, one of the responsibilities of citizenship, was comparatively easy, but in times like these when the country calls for defence it means the taking up of arms "for the protection of our own loved ones and of those who are gone abroad." The officers of the reserve units deserve and need all the support the citizens can posibly give them. "We cannot expect them to carry on the work of training and also to go out and enlist men too. Churchill said in one of his appeals "Give us the tools and we'll finish the job." Our officers are now saying to the rest of us, "Give us the men and we'll train them."

Mr. Melton suggested that the various organizations engaged in A.R.P. and similar work might be brought together in one group. A campaign for reserve recruits could be made by approach to the service clubs, the members of the ministerial profession, "for there comes a time for the Church to become militant," the appointment of zone committees.

"By these and other methods it should be possible within a short time, because time is a factor, to get accomplished what is being proposed, and to assure the men leaving us that we do not treat lightly the responsibility they are leaving with us."

Other citizens who followed this keynote by Mr. Melton were Alderman Glover, Mr. McRae, Alderman Sands, L. H. Ingram, Rev. J. T. Finn, representing Bishop O'Connor, Mr. Steggles, Mr. Matthews, G. A. McCague, Alderman Swanston, Judge Smoke, J. E. Girven for the Lions Club, R. L. Dobbin of the Rotary Club, Adjutant Buckley of the Kiwanis Club, and also Lt.-Col. M. H. Park and Major Eastwood, and Col. D. J. Lawrie of the 4th Field Battery.

Alderman Glover said he endorsed Mr. Melton's ideas to the fullest extent. "People have been saying that it can't happen here, but that notion has been exploded by what has actually happened elsewhere, and we have all come to realize that it could happen here too. The German submarine in the St. Lawrence brings closer to us the need of the adequate defence of our own borders."

Mr. Melton referred to the opinion that men of the reserve would have to spend several weeks in camp with their units. While that was desirable, some satisfactory arrangement might be made so as not to interfere unduly with production in the manufacturing industries.

Camp Not Compulsory.

Col. Park said the regiment expected to go to camp for two weeks, "but our main job is training in the evenings and we can arrange to train the men in the afternoons or mornings if necessary. We can also do field work and use the ranges, taking fifty or sixty men out at a time. It is not compulsory to go to camp, but we would like to take as large a number of the men as possible. We do not want men to think that if they can't go to camp they can't join the Rangers."

"A lot of our boys and girls are on active service," said Ian McRae, works manager of the C.G.E. "More of them will be going, and I would like to see all our boys and girls belong to some reserve unit. Industry, however, must function to the full as called upon by the Department of Munitions and Supply. We have to meet our industrial schedules. There are two obligations on the industrial plants, to do the job that is required of them by the Department of Munitions and Supply, and there is the moral job in which the personnel should be able to defend their country and their city. We should prepare for the time when it is going to happen here, and train and get ready on that basis, to take care of any invasion.

Rev. Father Finn said he believed there "would be a magnificent response' if the purpose of the reserve units could be explained to the men of Peterborough as Col. Dewart has explained it to us. We are one hundred per cent behind any organization that is appointed to carry on this work and to remind men what is their duty."

Mr. Steggles of A. Wander Company, Gordon Matthews of Canada Packers, L. H. Ingram of Quaker Oats, Judge Smoke, and others, all expressed themselves as being heartily in accord with the proposed campaign.

Regiment's Efforts.

Col. Park said the regiment was conducting a campaign for some time in its own way. Each recruit to the reserve received a button with the regimental crest. Six thousand explanatory pamphlets have been distributed, and posters are ready, but even more important would be the personal contacts which could be made by citizens in a neighborhood canvass.

Mr. McCague said the members of the Life Underwriters' Association would be glad to co-operate, and would welcome a speaker to explain the work of the reserve. Alderman Sands said the Kinsmen were making a recruiting drive on Friday night. Alderman Swanston declared that the Council was "one hundred per cent in support of the campaign," and he believed the citizens were equally behind it.

Col. Lawrie told of the training the 4th Battery is carrying on, and said that it is joining in field work with a Lindsay battery next Sunday.

Chinese Blast Salween Span Hold East Bank

CHUNGKING, China, May 14. — (AP).—The Chinese have destroyed the bridges across the upper Salween river, called the Lu in China, and are holding the east bank against Japanese vanguards about 60 miles west of Paoshan, a Chinese military spokesman reported today.

Paoshan is 180 miles inside Yunnan from the Burma border as the Burma road twists, but only about 100 miles by air.

(The principal bridge across the Salween or Lu in Yunnan is the Huiting bridge, the key to a road-building 'miracle,' in which the Burma road reaches the crossing by dropping from 7,500 feet to 2,785 feet in a 28-mile stretch, then climbs again into the towering mountains. The bridge is 125 miles by road from the Burma border.)

Another Japanese column, branching northward from the Burma road is threatening the ancient city of Tengyueh (also called Tengchung and Momein), on the caravan route between China and Burma, the Chinese spokesman said.

Cobourg Institute Re-elects Officers

COBOURG May 14 — (ENS). — Cobourg Women's Institute had a good year it was revealed at the annual meeting of the Institute. Mrs. A. Barton gave the report on the Sunshire Committee. Other reports were given by Mrs. Fred Earle on "Peace"; Mrs. W. Hendry on "Education"; Mrs. W. Sloper on "Health and Child Welfare" and Miss Dorothy Cowin on "War Work." Mrs. G. Page gave a report on the general meetings throughout the past year.

The financial report given by Mrs. H. Wicks showed receipts totalling $348.26 and expenditures $310.58. Besides cash donations to various war charities, the Institute turned out a large quantity of clothing for shipment to Great Britain during the year. The officers were all re-elected.

Sport Snapshots Across Canada

By SCOTT YOUNG
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, May 14. — (CP).— Canadian race tracks have survived higher wartime prices. Attendances have exploded the theory that people would spend so much on war savings certificates they would have nothing left for pari-mutuel tickets. Good or bad, that's how it has been.

But gasoline rationing has teeth. Some tracks already are feeling the bite. Little has been made public to indicate exactly how much racing men believe gas rationing will affect their industry. The few signs have been strong.

Tommy Gorman, executive chief of Quebec racing, has been reported as wanting to swing the Ottawa Connaught park race meet to Blue Bonnets, near Montreal. He thinks Connaught is too far from the centre of the capital, will be poorly attended because of rationing.

In Toronto there is a movement to have this city's four spring meetings at Woodbine park to save gasoline and tires. Woodbine is about the same distance from downtown Toronto as Dufferin, but is considered (people like to argue about this) a better track. Long Branch and Thorncliffe, are suburban, harder to reach. Developments in both proposals shouldn't be long coming.

The expert says:

Ken (Edmonton Journal) McConnell, commenting on Scotty Kennedy, Winnipeg Rugby Football Club secretary, paying only 37 cents for a race horse: "That Scot has not been secretary of the Blue Bombers all these years for nothing....He has outfumbled many a demanding football player, too."

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

Owing to the fact that the main grandstand at Riverside Park requires repairing before it can be used the executive of the City Softball League announced last night that for the time being the league games will be played at the Bowl instead of inside the enclosure as had been originally planned. There will be games at the Bowl on Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights of next week with the big opener between Adam Hat Royals and Plaza Billiards scheduled for Monday night. The entire proceeds of opening night will be turned over to the British War Victims' Fund. The Royals and Plaza should stage a real battle to get the season away in proper fashion. The former Chesterfields and the hockey club squad have been jockeying each other plenty all week over the coming battle and both outfits are well steamed up over the affair so that there should be plenty of excitement when they go into action against each other. Incidentally the City League now comprises five teams. The De Laval club made formal application for a franchise last night and have been accepted. Harold Dormer has been appointed umpire-in-chief of the loop this season and will appoint his own assistants, the executive announces.

Thirty years ago today Peterborough was for the first time in its sporting history represented in a professional baseball game. On May 14, 1912, the Canadian League season opened, and the Petes, a new entry in the loop went into action against Hamilton in the Ambitious City. It was a gala affair. A large Peterborough delegation including the directors of the club and other well known business and professional men accompanied the ball club to Hamilton the day before and were on hand for the parade and other ceremonies that ushered in the season. As for the ball game the Petes lost a tight struggle 3 to 2 although they outhit the Hamilton club 9 to 6. The Peterborough team, managed by Curtis H. "Old Folks" Templin scored a run in the first frame but the enemy replied with three in the second and although they failed to cross the plate again, the trio of counters was enough to give them a win. The Petes squeezed a run over in the eight to make it closer but could not get the equalizer.

* * * * * *

Not many of the Peterborough squad who performed in that opening battle were destined to see long service with the Petes. Johnny Derr, left-handed pitcher from Haverhill, was on the mound and Jim Mooney behind the bat. In the infield were Frank "Cosy" Dolan at first base. Templin himself at second and two Reading Pa., products, Babe Tully at short and Earl Hartman at third. In the outfield were Peg Swartz in left, Jimmy Beard in centre and Brode, second-string catcher in right. Of that array only Swartz and Beard lasted the season with the club. Templin, Tully and Hartman faded out of the infield long before the middle of the campaign and Dolan got in wrong with the directors and was allowed to go to Ottawa where he promptly proceeded to bat himself into the league leadership and to hold on to the top spot for the rest of the summer. As events proved, the Petes' management, in releasing Dolan let go the best ball player they had in the squad and the big first-sacker took a special delight in breaking up ball games with his big bat every time he accompanied the Ottawa club to Riverside Park. He'd come up with a couple on, crack out a long hit and then yell at the grandstand: "Call a meeting of the board of directors" as he ran down to first.

Jim Tobin, 30-year-old Boston Brave pitching star whose defensive work this season has been largely responsible for the Braves being in third place in the National League race, broke loose yesterday as a power on offense as well as on defense. Tobin pitched against the Chicago Cubs and although he only allowed five hits his teammates kicked in with four errors that helped the Cubs' manufacture five runs. But the Boston pitcher did not allow that to bother him. On the contrary he walked out to the plate three times during the afternoon to pound out home runs, the third time with a runner on the paths. His three circuit clouts and homers by Lombardi and Miller gave the Braves six runs and that was just enough to win. Day before Tobin went in as a pinch hitter and came through with a homer so that in two successive games he built up a total of four home runs which undoubtedly is a new record for a pitcher. Incidentally the last time the Oakland, Cal., right-hander batted yesterday he drove a mighty smash to the centre field barrier, only to be caught.

* * * * * *

The American League race tightened up again yesterday when the Cleveland Indians took a 7 to 2 fall out of the New York Yanks to cut the world champs' lead down to the scant margin of half a game. Lefty Gomez and John Lindell who pitched for the Yanks were touched up for nine hits by the Indians while Chubby Dean who only has to throw his glove out there to beat the Yanks held the New Yorkers to six scattered blows and would have had a shutout if he had not tossed two home run balls to Joe DiMaggio. Detroit improved their hold on third place by bumping off the Washington Senators 6 to 2 behind three-hit pitching by Newhouser. Buck Newsom tried to control his old teammates but took a lacing and failed to go the distance. The tightest American League battle of the day was at Chicago where the White Sox nosed out the Boston Red Sox 2 to 1 in a 10 innings affair. Charlie Wagner who went the route was the losing pitcher while Haines who relieved Humphries got the win.

* * * * * *

Brooklyn, held the previous day by Junior Thompson's fine pitching came back with a twirling performance about as good when Curt Davis held the Cincinnati Reds to two safe blows and shut them out 4 to 0. The loss was marked up against Johnny VanderMeer who started for the Reds. With Lon Warneke pitching five-hit ball the St. Louis Cards smothered the Phillies 9 to 1, getting 15 hits off a flock of Philadelphia gunners. The only Phillie run was the result of a homer by Danny Litwhiler. Max Butcher pitched steady ball for Pittsburg Pirates as the second-placers triumphed over the New York Giants 3 to 1. Butcher held Mel Ott's talent to six hits. Dave Koslo was the Giants' pitching choice and absorbed the loss.

* * * * * *

With the Catholic League just nicely under way the first shutout of the season has been recorded, Pitcher Ken Fleming of the Cubs holding the Barons to five well spaced safeties while the Cubs were pounding out thirteen off the delivery of two Baron pitchers to win the argument 11 to 0. Fleming is in training at the Military Training Centre and is expected to do the twirling for the Soldiers in the City League this season. He would have made the Cubs favorites to repeat their last season's triumph if he were eligible for the East City team for the season.

Members of the St. James and George Street Church League juvenile teams are asked to note that their league game scheduled for King Edward Park tonight will be played instead at Nicholls' Oval. There will be another game tonight in the juvenile section, the All Saints and St. John's teams clashing at Queen Mary School. The bantam section schedule calls for a game tomorrow night at Nicholls Oval between the Knox and Mark Street teams. Speaking of the bantam section that 47 to 9 score piled up by George Street against St. James last night must be something of a record. The George St. kids scored seven in the first frame, 13 in the second, 18 in the third and 9 in the fourth and then called it a night.

Curlers Support Red Cross Unit

The Canadian Red Cross campaign for $9,000,000 has been helped to the extent of $2,000 by the Ontario Curling Association. Throughout the winter, bonspiels, "jollification nights" and other entertainments were held under the various auspices of the 82 curling clubs throughout Ontario. Proceeds from those entertainments are being turned over to the Red Cross. So far, 22 clubs have turned in receipts averaging $100 a club. They are Barrie, Unionville, Brampton, Parry Sound, Midland, Orillia Ontario Hospital at Orillia, Chatham, Meaford, Kitchener, Lindsay, Oakwood, Peterborough, Sarnia, Forest, Petrolia, four Toronto clubs —Granite, High Park, Victoria and Royal Canadian. Detroit, Mich., also has a membership in the Ontario Curling Association, and divides its proceeds between the Canadian and American Red Cros Societies.

NEW YORK, May 14 — (AP). — Note of unlimited optimism: Boxing Commissioner Bill Brown figures that the gas shortage may be one of those blessings in disguise for the folks affected by it because it will teach them to use their legs again...."When I first opened my health farm," Brown explains, "I used to start them with a five-mile walk and after a week or so I'd send them 13 miles around the lake.... Now I start them at three miles and they come in with their feet blistered."....The way Bill reasons, too many people have become too soft by too much riding...."Another thing," he adds, 'we used to have a lot of little neighboring athletic clubs that are all gone now. The boys would go there and spar a little and maybe get a bloody nose, but they made themselves a lot healthier and tougher."

Short, short story:

The Yanks' Buddy Hassett, a working plumber during the off season, recently attended a pipe-bender's beefsteak in the Bronx.... During the festivities he encountered an old friend who remarked: "Buddy I haven't seen you since we worked at Rome, N.Y., last winter. Where are you working now?" ....With becoming modesty, Hassett replied: "The Yankee Stadium."

Cubs Shut Out Barons 11-0

Pitcher Bucky Fleming of the Cubs who pitched a four-hitter in his first start of the season and yet lost had revenge last night when he tossed a five-hit shutout against the Barons in a Catholic League game at Memorial Park and the Cubs won in hollow fashion 11 to 0.

Fleming had too much stuff on the ball for the losers and the five hits he allowed were well scattered.

Garvey started on the mound for the Barons but was chased to the showers in the first innings after five runs had been scored. Mongraw went to the rescue and after one shaky frame settled down and pitched nice ball.

In addition to his good pitching Fleming also starred at the plate for Cubs, having four singles in five times up. McCormick had a homer and double and Brady a triple and single for the Cubs, while none of the Barons got more than one safe blow.

Both teams fielded well, but Frank McCormick stole the show with a one-handed grab of Rome Mongraw's long fly which was labelled for a homer.

It's a Small World

COBOURG May 14 — (ENS). — Mr. and Mrs. George Page of Cobourg are in receipt of a letter from their son, Donald, who is with the R.C.A.F. overseas, in which he relates that while attending a "Y" show in which every week smokes are given out to the boys, through the Overseas League, he received a quantity of cigarettes in which he found the name, Arnold Hall, New Royal Hotel, Cobourg. It is a small world, reflected the writer with big hearts.

Opening Day Thriller At Suffolk Downs

Neck-to-neck and hell-bent for the wire are, LEFT to RIGHT, Mrs. L. Palladino's Little Beans and Ben Lister's Bell Tower, both fighting for the $2,000 prize to the winner of the Town Lyne handicap, feature race of Suffolk Downs' inaugural. It was Bell Tower who finally pulled away to win.

Protest, But It Won't Help

Pittsburg players, LEFT to RIGHT, Bob Elliott, Aldon Wilkie, Elbie Fletcher and Babe Phelps, protest a decision during a game between the Pirates and Giants in Pittsburg. But it's to no avail, for the umpire, John Barlick, has made his decision and it stands.

Hastings Boys To Form Village Loop

HASTINGS, May 14—(ENS). — With the sudden and unexpected collapse of the Hastings entry in the Peterborough City League, every effort is being exerted to create a league within the village itself. Roseneath is definitely "in" and the Tannery plus a team composed of village youths will round-out the league.

Games will be played Monday, Wednesday and Friday, t locally and one in Roseneath. A schedule will be drawn up Saturday night immediately after an exhibition game between Roseneath and Hastings.

In addition to a contemplated girls' league, two and possibly three 'teen-aged teams will be formed. These will be composed of boys in the two local schools and will be under the supervision of W. H. Kumpf and Stanley Stevenson.

Discussing the withdrawal of the local entry from the City League, Joe Jones intimated that lack of transportation facilities, gas rationing and loss of several expected players were all contributary factors.

He said that the juvenile league now being formed would constitute the nucleus of a future local contender in the City League.

Conserving Gasoline

COBOURG, May 14 — (ENS). — The Cobourg committee of the Northumberland Music Festival has announced that in view of the desire to conserve gasoline and tires, arrangements are being made to take the Cobourg contestants in the Festival down to Colborne by rail. The list of entrants from Cobourg is the largest since the festival was inaugurated some few years ago, and this made transportation by rail all the more necessary.

BROWNS BUY DAHLGREN WITH NO SPOT OPEN—NEW DEAL LOOMS

Yankees Lose 7-2 Braves' Tobin Clouts 3 Homers

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sport Writer

St. Louis Browns, who have absolutely no money to spend providing homes for transient ball players, have just purchased for cash a well-known and well-travelled combination first and third baseman named Ellsworth T. (Babe) Dahlgren.

The Browns already have a talented first baseman in little George McQuinn and equally competent third-sacker in Harlond Clift and no mirrors are needed to see that the Brownies have in mind some sort of a deal.

This might assume any one of a number of shapes, because at one time or another almost every club in the American League has shown an interest in both Clift and McQuinn. But the most likely tie-ups now would be with Washington, Detroit or Chicago. All three of these clubs could use Clift to advantage. The market on McQuinn has cooled off, but some National League clubs, notably Boston Braves could use him and waivers no longer seem an obstacle to inter-league trading.

The chances are the Browns will hold a private auction while the pennant contenders get steamed up to a prosperous pitch. Right now the races in both leagues are becoming feverish.

Cleveland Indians halted New York Yankees' seven-game winning streak yesterday 7-2 and moved within half a game of the American League leaders. Lefty Lovill (Chubby) Dean pitched six-hit ball and handcuffed all the world champions except Joe DiMaggio, who hit his sixth and seventh home runs to account for all New York's scoring.

Tigers Grab 6-2 Win

Detroit Tigers continued a bloodthirsty third, just a game and a half from the lead, by whipping Washington 6-2 on the three-hit hurling of Hal Newhouser. The Senators' only scoring came on a two-run homer by Bob Estalella. The victim of the Tigers was Buck Newsom, their former teammate who had pitched a one-hitter against them previously.

The National League squabbling was about equally furious.

Curt Davis, the old righthander of Brooklyn Dodgers, pitched a two-hit spectacle to turn back Cincinnati Reds 4-0. He retired the Reds in perfect order for the last six frames after his mates had taken advantage of John Vander Meer's wildness to provide an early lead.

But Pittsburgh Pirates, who open a three-game series at Brooklyn today, kept their range 2½ games in the rear by downing New York Giants 3-1. Max Butcher and Rookie Dave Koslo waged a fine pitching duel until the Pirates scored three runs in the seventh on three hits, one of them a double by John Barrett with the bases loaded.

The day's most sensational individual performance was contributed by big Jim Tobin of Boston Braves, who not only pitched five-hit ball to beat Chicago Cubs 6-5, but hit three home runs to set a major league record for pitchers. His teammates made four errors behind him, but Ernie Lombardi and Eddie Mille also hit home runs.

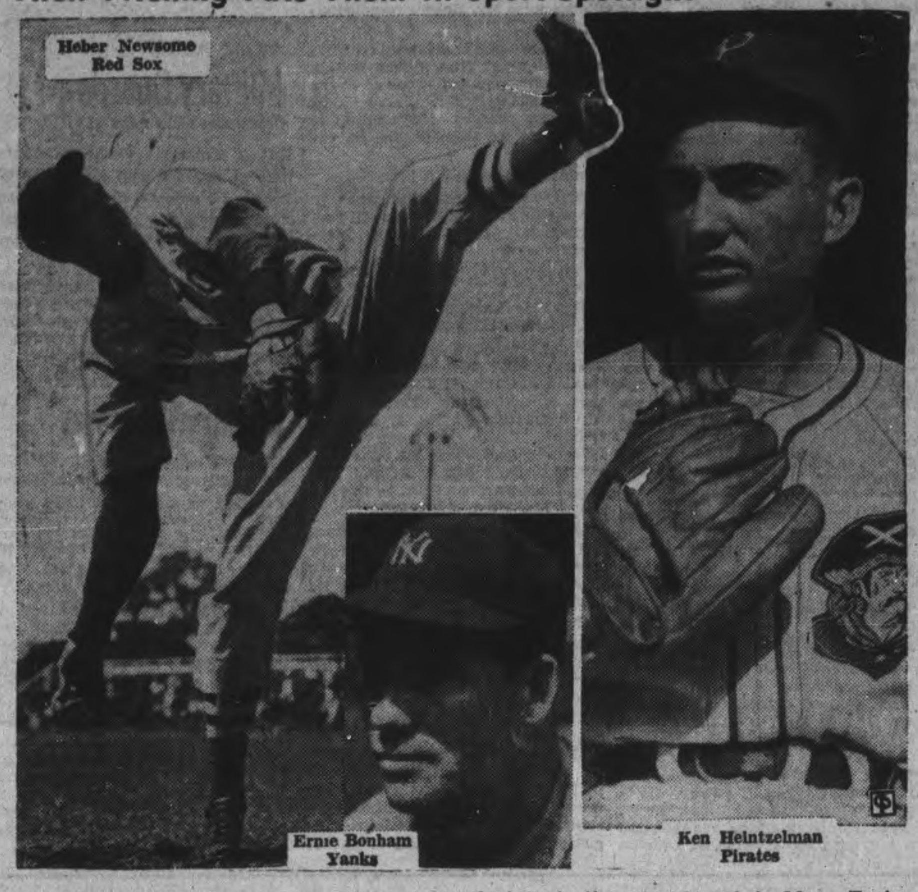
St. Louis Cardinals, who had been held to two runs in three games, unleashed a 15-hit assault to beat the Phils 9-1 with old Lon Warneke pitching five-hit ball.

Philadelphia Athletics captured their fifth straight victory by a 10-9 count from the Browns and ousted Washington from fifth place in the American League.

The affair at St. Louis was a free-for-all that saw the two teams use 10 pitchers and four catchers and make 28 hits and seven errors.

Chicago White Sox set down Boston Red Sox 2-1 in 10 innings for their third victory in four games.

Their Pitching Puts Them In Sport Spotlight



Heber Newsome Red Sox — Ernie Bonham Yanks — Ken Heintzelman Pirates

Mound work of these three young major leaguers projects them into the sports spotlight. Heber Newsome, ace of the Boston Red Sox staff, won four games without defeat up to the second week in May. Ernie Bonham of the Yanks has an equally-as-good record. Ken Heintzelman, Pittsburg southpaw, is leading the National League slabmen.

Call To Services Leaves Few Regina Riders

REGINA, May 14.—(CP).—Regina Roughriders of the Western Interprovincial Football Union, will have a record in this war 'that no other club can touch,' said Coach Dean Griffith to-day as he looked over a bunch of tattered uniforms with nobody to fill them.

"We have several teams in the services and last year's squad is almost completely wiped out."

Even the coach has ambitions to complete a flying course and become a training pilot.

From the 1941 team army men are Ray Powell, Gordon Perry, both with the Canadian Provost Corps; Toar Springstein, Francis Pyne, Gordon Mitton, George Cullum and Charlie March, all in the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps; Nick Palthouski, taking an officers course at Gordon Head, B.C., and Ken Thompson in the Canadian Army Dental Corp. All are linemen except March, who is a halfback.

The Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve attracted Bert Iannone, an inside wing, while Jim Kenny, a halfback, enlisted in the United States Naval Reserve.

Donning Royal Canadian Air Force blue were Steve Molnar, an outside wing, P. Pudawick, a middle, Eddie Geddes, Norm Geller and Wayne Payne, all halfbacks.

Veteran Applying

Bob Walker, the 32-year-old veteran of the club who made several Canadian Press all-star teams, has applied for enlistment in the R.C.A.F.

Two others, Bill Orban, is in college in California and Ken Charlton, 21-year-old backfielder, is still at home.

Trainer N. Nelson went to Montreal to take a radio course preparatory to active service.

Before last season's gridiron squad broke up, other outstanding players went to various branches of the armed services.

Halfbacks Don Thompson, Lindsay Holt, Ralph Pierce, Howard Cleveland, Jim Farasey Cy Cimonson and Bill Fogarty and linemen Norm Beattie Jack Edmundsen, Frank Stein Jim Partridge, Jack Thompson, Larry Hegan and Rollie Eldberg are now either in Canadian or United States forces.

Danaher, mainstay of the Regina backfield in 1937 when he came from St. Benedict College, Kansas, enlisted in the U. S. Army Air Corps as an officer. That same year Farasey came to Regina from Xavier College, Cincinnati, while in 1938 Edberg came from University of South Dakota to win Canadian Press all-star rating in the Western Union. Both Farasey and Edberg are Lieutenants in the U.S. army.

Williams Draft Scare Over Again

CHICAGO, May 14 — (AP). — For a couple of hours yesterday the draft status of Ted Williams seemed up in the air again, but it appears now the Boston Red Sox star won't be called into the Army right away.

Word from Cleveland that Major Ernest M. Culligan, public relations officer of the selective service system, had said Williams "probably" would be taken in his draft board's next call caught the slugging outfielder by surprise.

Surprise to Him.

"I can't understand it," Ted said. "I haven't heard anything like that from my draft board in Minneapolis."

His draft board of Minneapolis apparently shared Williams' surprise. Chairman George W. Price immediately declared Ted still is in a deferred classification and there is no intention of re-opening his case.

Told at Comiskey Park, where the Red Sox lost to Chicago White Sox, of his board chairman's statement. Ted laughed happily.

"I was afraid we were getting all mixed up again," he said. "Now I can go to work."

Williams was reclassified late last February, by a Presidential appeal board, from 1-A to 3-A because of his support of his mother. His draft board chairman said the fact Williams had drawn a month's baseball pay did not alter his status.

Price said the board's next call would be some time in June and that re-opening of his case is not under consideration.

The Minnesota draft headquarters also said the case is closed. It pointed out, however, that the national selective service director can order the board to re-open the case, but said no such order had been received.

Leafs Grab Two From Chiefs For Third Place

By The Associated Press

Jersey City Giants and Baltimore Orioles of the International League will meet tonight in the first lighted game in the New York area since the dim-out went into effect.

The Giants decided to go ahead with their night game after tests made by city officials disclosed that the lights from Roosevelt Stadium could not be seen 1½ miles out to sea to the East.

Yesterday at Buffalo, the Bisons pounded three Jersey City hurlers for 18 hits, including home runs by Mayo Smith, Ed Kobesky and Mike Rocco, for a 17-5 victory. It was the Giants' ninth loss in 14 away-from home contests.

The Orioles moved into Jersey City from Montreal, where yesterday's series finale was postponed.

Toronto Maple Leafs pushed into third place in the standings by taking a doubleheader from Syracuse Chiefs by 3-1 and 9-3 scores.

The first-game, a seven-inning twilight affair, saw Lefty Joe Sullivan hang up his third victory of the year, although he was relieved by Dick Conger when the Chiefs threatened in the last frame.

In the nightcap, Bill Brandt won his fifth victory of the season, as his mates, led by Burgess Whitehead, Johnny Wyrostek and Nick Gregory, walloped three Syracuse hurlers for 12 hits. Gregory hit a home run in the second inning with one on.

Newark Bears continued their heavy hitting by blasting six Rochester hurlers for a 10-4 triumph. It was the Bears' six straight victory over the Red Wings.

George Washburn and Ken Holcombe issued 13 bases on balls, but the Wings could garner only four hits off their combined offerings.

Yesterday's Stars

By The Associated Press

Curt Davis, Dodgers—Shut out Reds with two-hit hurling.

Jim Tobin, Braves—Pitched five-hit ball and collected three home runs himself to beat Cubs.

Hal Newhouser, Tigers—Stopped the Senators with three-hit pitching.

Chubby Dean, Indians — Held Yanks to six hits and himself drove in two runs with double.

Lon Warneke, Cardinals—Pitched five-hit ball to down Phils.

Giants' Pitcher

Dave Koslo, pitcher, New York Giants...Left-handed hurler from Milwaukee, where he won 13 games and lost 13 last year...He is a native of Menasha, Wis., and has shown great promise. Koslo is 22 years old, stands an inch under six feet and weighs 180 pounds.

Returns From Private War

Coddling his plaster-cast encased left hand, Pte. Billy Conn, of Uncle Sam's army, is interviewed by newspapermen at La Guardia field upon arrival from Pittsburg. A brisk go with Father-in-Law Jimmy Smith, at what was to have been a "hatchet burying" love-feast resulted in Billy's breaking his left hand. The injury is expected to force indefinite postponement of the Conn-Joe Louis title fight, tentatively scheduled for New York this summer.

Hamilton Man Top Trapshooter

HAMILTON, May 14. — Harry Kretschman, Hamilton, was crowned singles trapshooting champion of Canada here yesterday when he competed against twenty of the best shots in the Dominion for the crown. It was a 'hot' finish that won the title for the Hamilton Gun Club star, for in his last one hundred targets he broke ninety straight before registering a single miss. Shooting twenty-five at a time and from different ranges, Kretschman hung up three straight 25's and then 'killed' 15 more clay pigeons before he missed one. In second position in class 'A' was Dr. D. H. Stewart, also of Hamilton, who broke 97 of his last 100 targets, just one less than Kretschman.

Dr. G. D. Beierl, Toronto, showed the way in the class 'B' snipers with a score of 186 out of a possible 200. The Toronto marksman missed eight of the first 100 and then broke 94 in the second round to crowd the leaders. His closest contestant was J. D. Campbell of the Hamilton Club, who finished with a score of 183.

The 'C' class division found a woman shooter in the person of Mrs. Bertha Temple of Burlington, who made the snipers in her section go all out to beat her. As a matter of fact at the halfway mark she was leading with a score of 90, but on the last 100 she weakened slightly and broke only 84 targets. The winner in this section was Ernie Predhomme, Toronto, who broke 96 on the last round out of a possible 100 to win the event.

The eight prize winners of the day, in addition to the champions, were Campbell, Root, Vance, Beierl, Kretschman, Predhomme Dr. Stewart and Coleman.

On Thursday the two final events, the 100 yards handicap and the doubles, will be staged and the all-round champion will also be declared.

Need 35 pc Jump In Hogs To Fill Contract

OTTAWA, May 14—(CP)—An estimated 35 per cent increase in hog marketings will be necessary in the next 21 weeks compared with the same period last year if Canada is to fulfill her contractual obligation to ship 600,000,000 pounds of bacon to Britain in 1941-42 and the full allowance for domestic consumption is used, the bacon board announced today.

It will be "close figuring at best," the bacon board said, to supply the contracted amount by next October. It urged the public to restrict consumption of pork products and producers to assure every market hog "is up to good weight" before being marketed.

At the same time, the board paid tribute to producers' performance in the week ended May 9 when 11,700,000 pounds were purchased on a run of approximately 437,000 hogs.

"To provide 600,000,000 pounds in 52 weeks average weekly shipments of 11,600,000 pounds are required," the board's statement said. "The purchase of 11,700,000 pounds with a relatively light run in the early part of May thus is encouraging."

In the 21 weeks the contract has to run, a good increase in marketings is anticipated in Western Canada. Higher marketings also are expected in Eastern Canada, although they have been running lower than last year. In the 31 weeks already elapsed western hog marketings were 17 per cent above last year while Eastern Canada was down 12 per cent, a net increase of 3.7 per cent.

On the theme of heavier hogs, the board said average dressed weight of all hogs slaughtered by exporting packers in the week ended April 25 was 159.8 pounds, about seven pounds higher than last year. This represented, the board said, about 900,000 pounds more bacon for Britain per week from the same number of hogs.

Germans Gain

Von Mannstein had thrust to the tip of the Kerch Peninsula and occupied the ports of Kerch and Takil and almost all of the Kerch strait coastline.

(This found no confirmation from Berlin. The German high command said that pursuit of the Russians continued; that "the port of Kerch and shipping concentrations in these waters were successfully bombed.")

There was widespread action in the north, across the Kalinin, Northwestern and Leningrad fronts.

Hot Action in North.

(The Vichy radio reported that the Russians had launched "massive attacks" against German positions at Staraya Russa and Novgorod, respectively south and north of Lake Ilmen.)

"The days of fierce new battles are beginning," said a Red Star editorial. "The Red Army is entering the battles full of strength and unfailing certitude of its victory over the enemy.

"The most critical days are far behind," the army organ continued, but admonished troops that victory could be won only by a hard fight.

The Germans failed to prepare a full Spring offensive, but collected considerable number of tanks and planes which might win temporary successes in some sectors, the newspaper said. It declared these could not alter the general relation of the forces, "which is firmly in our favor."

(Reuters News Agency said action on the Leningrad front was intensified despite adverse weather and that foreign observers in Moscow believed the German drive in the Crimea may be only a feint to cloak Hitler's real intentions. These quarters suggest that Leningrad is a logical goal for the great invasion offensive long awaited, it said. The Russians, however, were reported to hold the initiative there.)

A midnight communique gave the first sign of a large-scale Soviet Spring offensive in its announcement of the action against Kharkov, German-held steel and railway centre that shares strategic attention in Russia's deep south with Taganrog and Kerch.

At the same time the German high command claim to victory in the battle of Kerch with the capture of many tanks and guns and 40,000 prisoners from Lt.-Col. D. T. Kozlov's forces was officially described here as "nothing but a lie."

"During May 13 our troop, opposing numerically-superior forces of Germans, retired to new positions," the Soviet Information Bureau announced on the conflict on the Kerch Peninsula.

Retreat In Good Order

The withdrawal was in good order, Russian troops are inflicting heavy losses on the attackers and "fierce fighting still is going on," it said.

(Neither Axis nor Russian dispatches definitely announced the current site of the peninsula fighting, but the invaders apparently still are 30 or 35 miles from Kerch, the strait port that is a nerve-centre of the Soviet defence system before the oil-rich Caucasus.)

(The German high command yesterday claimed that "pursuit of the remnants of the beaten enemy is being continued incessantly." A Berlin radio commentator reported the Soviet supply service had been handicapped by the sinking of four small transports and damaging of nine others by Nazi bombers in the Kerch area.)

There were no details of the new attack upon Kharkov, a major target for Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's southern command, but it is known that reserves have been flowing steadily to the front.

Soviet dispatches said a German flier taken prisoner on the Kharkov front told Red army officers that all preparations had been made by the Nazi command for a lightning withdrawal from the city.

(Stockholm dispatches last March 20 said Kharkov, 400 miles south of Moscow, was almost surrounded and that remaining communication routes—a road and one railway—were regarded as insufficient to supply the 500,000 Germans centred in the region. Kharkov was identified as the new field headquarters of Field Mashal Gen. Fedor Von Boch under Adolf Hitler's revision of commands.)

43 Nazis Downed

Forty-three German planes were destroyed Tuesday, making a three-day toll of 145, and presumably most of these were from the Crimean squadrons assisting the ground troops of Gen. Fritz Erich Von Mannstein.

Fierce aerial activity over the southern front was accompanied by an intensification of air combat in the northwest, where the Germans may be renewing efforts to relieve their units at Staraya Russa.

Tass said 229 Junkers-52 transports had been destroyed on the ground and 37 other German planes downed in dogfights over several days in that region between Smolensk and Leningrad.

The Information Bureau said Soviet Barents Sea Fleet vessels had sunk an Axis transport of 12,000 tons.

Supplemental details of the Soviet dim-day communique stressed actions in central and northern sectors of the long front, crediting Red Army men with slaying or wounding 750 Germans and guerillas with killing 500.

Concentrated fire of light arms—rifles, automatic rifles and machine-guns—was authoritatively reported to have disposed of a tank-supported attack by a German infantry battalion on the Kalinin front.

Opened up at short range, the Information Bureau said, these weapons repelled the battalion and opened the way for a counter-attack. Nearly 400 Germans were killed or wounded several tanks were smashed and prisoners were taken. the Bureau said.

North-western front units killed 350 Germans in two days of fighting, one tank crew accounting for 50, it said.

A guerilla detachment was said to have been "waging stubborn battles for the last three days" against the Germans in the Smolensk region west of Moscow in which they killed 500 officers and men.

Sub Trails

that there had been no time to get in any shots at the submarine.

"We heard after we reached land that the submarine followed us for six miles up the river," said Brown. Like the captain he expressed the opinion that a third ship may have been torpedoed by the first enemy underseas raider to prowl river waters.

Brown and Clepson were in the icy St. Lawrence for about two hours before they were taken into a lifeboat dispatched by a rescue ship. They disclosed that only one lifeboat—actually a jolly boat (much smaller than a lifeboat and usually only used in quiet harbor waters to row from roadstead to pier)—and a life raft got away safely from their ship. Other survivors clutched timbers and packing cases.

Water Heats Boilers

The jolly boat, built to accommodate only 13, was jammed with 22 survivors when the rescue ship picked it up.

"Then men had to bail like hell, but as fast as they'd get one bucketfull of water out three more would come in," said Clepson. And Brown added: "The boys in the jolly boat no sooner got picked up than the boat sank."

Clepson said he "passed out cold" while he sprawled out on a bobbing packing case. He had started out with a lifebelt and got extra support from a drifting plank but later he switched to the packing case on which Brown was already riding.

"I didn't have a lifebelt on and I was wearing lighter clothes than Len but the cold water didn't seem to affect me as much as it did him," said Brown. "Len was affected so much that he finally said to me 'Shall we go over?' And just as he got the words out I said, 'There's a ship in sight.' He never said another word until long after we were rescued."

The two young Britons said they did not have time to bother much about launching a lifeboat since the ship obviously was going down fast. Brown made an attempt to get one boat in the water but he abandoned the attempt when the mechanism jammed.

He Did Some Praying

They plunged over the side and Brown took up the story: "That was the only time I was afraid. I had no lifebelt and I was sucked down far under water as our ship went down. I really did some praying then."

Clepson couldn't remember being lifted into the lifeboat or being taken aboard the rescue ship. Although 48 hours have elapsed since his ship was sunk Clepson's feet were still numbed from the icy waters and Brown said he had no feeling in several fingers.

Brown told of one of the oddities of the sinking. The first engineer "hadn't a stitch of clothing on him when the torpedo struck." He grabbed a lifebelt and hustled to jump into the water "and naturally he was still naked when he was picked up."

Four of the men aboard—all Netherlanders—were listed as "passengers." Actually they were sailors who had survived another torpedoing in the Atlantic some time ago and Brown explained they were given "passenger" rating because of this.

6 Miles Off Shore

Clepson said the sinking of his ship had occurred close to land—"We could see the lights of the shore about six miles away." Although neither Brown nor Clepson saw the submarine, Brown said he had been told by the captain that the U-boat was less than 500 yards off when the torpedo was fired.

Survivors were picked up by two freighters following in the stricken vessel's wake. Injuries were scarce among those rescued. Brown said the most seriously hurt was the cook, who suffered a gash on one leg. He added "the cook is all right now."

The steward and the second cook, said Brown, were quartered where the torpedo struck and he thought it likely they had been killed. However they are listed as missing.

The first terse account of the German torpedoeing of the two freighters in the St. Lawrence River Monday night was given last night at river port by an unidentified officer of one of the ships.

14 Dead Or Missing

He told a Canadian Press correspondent that 14 crewmen were dead or missing and there were 74 survivors.

He said the 46 crewmen on one ship got off in boats after two torpedoes had struck. They all reached land safely. Only 28 crewmen of a second ship, struck by a single torpedo, were saved, he said. Thirteen crewmen were missing and there was one known dead. The survivors were picked up by a third ship and taken to a nearby port.

Previous reports were that 87 or 88 were rescued, including a mother and child, and that two were missing. Navy Minister Macdonald in announcing yesterday that a second ship went down in the same locality and about the same time as the one he announced Tuesday did not amplify his previous statement that 41 had been landed safely.

questions on his share in the $2,000,000,000 war appropriation bill which has been before the House in committee since April 20.

He told questioners that he was in complete accord with the desire of many that the Royal Canadian Air Force overseas should be a distinct unit in the same degree as is the Canadian army insofar as that is possible in the light of operational problems.

This question was raised by Rev. T. C. Dougals (C.C.F. Weyburn) who thought the Canadian airmen overseas should be an independent entity and not merely a part of the Roy Air Force.

"Nothing in the whole department is nearer to my heart than Canadianization of the Royal Canadian Air Force overseas," Major Power said.

"I do not know when I have had a greater sense of frustration than in my attempts to Canadianize the Royal Canadian Air Force overseas."

The Minister said there was resistance to this from the Royal Air Force and from some Royal Canadian Air Force officers who trained with the R.A.F., and desired to maintain their association.

Question on the possibility of airforce regiments being formed to protect airports in Canada, the Minister said the force was responsible "within the perimeter" of the fields, "while the army defends us against anything else."

John Blackmore, leader of the New Democracy, asked the minister if he thought he was getting enough of the $2,000,000,000 appropriation.

Always After More

Major Power said he was "always asking for more" but there was no disposition on the part of the Government to stint him in airforce expenditures.

A feature of the day's abbreviated sitting was a brush between John R. MacNicol (Con., Toronto-Davenport) and Munitions Minister Howe.

Mr. MacNicol raised the question a few days ago of whether Canada was making as many planes as could be produced and he brought it up again today. Maj. Power said his job was to supply pilots and he was doing so in a larger number than necessary to fill requisitions. Planes were Mr. Howe's responsibilitq

"We are supplying planes on Government order from Great Britain and on Government order from the United States," Mr. Howe said. "But the industry is expanding as rapidly as we think it can be expanded."

Denies Shutdown

"But were we not shut down in the making of Hurricanes at Fort William last year?" asked Mr. MacNicol.

"No, we were not," Mr. Howe replied.

"Yes, we were, for six months," Mr. MacNicol insisted.

"I was asked a question and I answered it," Mr. Howe retorted. "And I am now told that my answer is untruthful. Fort William is within three miles of my own riding."

"I know that," said Mr. MacNicol.

"That plant has never had less than 5,000 men employed in the last year," Mr. Howe continued.

Mr. MacNicol said he had it from one of the heads of the company whose name he would not mention that production stopped five or six months last year.

Mr. Howe said the plant had been operating continuously on a Hurricane order received in 1940 and had never closed down one day for lack of orders.

"I do think it is disgraceful to peddle that sort of gossip," the Minister added. "There has been too much of it here."

"I resent the Minister's use of the word 'gossip'," Mr. MacNicol exclaimed. "The information was given to be by the head of one of the airplane companies in this country."

The exchange ended when L. E. Cardiff (Cons. North Huron) asked Maj. Power about the length of training courses.

Australia Plans To Draft Mine Strikers

CANBERRA, Australia, May 14—(CP)—Prime Minister John Curtin called upon groups of striking coal miners today to return to work tomorrow or face governmental action and said "the government shall stand or fall by the issue."

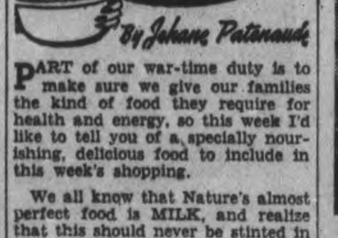
If the miners do not go back to the pits, the prime minister told parliament, authority will be invoked "to compel them."

Declaring that a majority of the coal miners were loyal in the war crisis, Mr. Curtin addressed his statement to those who joined strikes called, for a variety of reasons, in 10 mines. Seniority and wage disputes are involved.

Mr. Curtin said he had been a trade unionist 37 years. Nevertheless, he asserted there was no other course for the government to pursue than to enforce the law and maintain the supply of fuel necessary for the war effort.

Mr. Curtin proposed invocation of the national security regulations, which would permit the government to compel idle miners under the age of 35 to enter the armed forces and those from 35 to 40 to serve in a labor corps.

Miners now are exempt from military service.



PART of our war-time duty is to make sure we give our families the kind of food they require for health and energy, so this week I'd like to tell you of a specially nourishing, delicious food to include in this week's shopping.

We all know that Nature's almost perfect food is MILK, and realize that this should never be stinted in the home. Unfortunately, some children, and adults too, don't like drinking milk alone, so here's how to popularize this very necessary food. Simply serve it with Fry's Cocoa.

Fry's Cocoa is rich in Calories (the name given to describe the energy value of food) and is also rich in IRON. Now Iron is practically the only important constituent lacking in milk, so by adding Fry's Cocoa to milk you increase the amount of Iron consumed by 50%.

Plan to serve Fry's Cocoa every day—Its delightful chocolaty flavour makes it a most welcome food in your home.

Fry's Cocoa is very economical and today actually costs less than before the war.

See how easy it is to serve.
Fry's Cocoa

FRY'S COCOA

For each cupful required, mix together DRY, half to one teaspoonful of Fry's Cocoa, with sugar to taste. Add enough cold milk to make cocoa and sugar into a smooth paste. Pour on boiling milk and stir well.

Note: The flavour of Fry's Cocoa is improved by whisking with a rotary beater just before serving.

You can make 80 large cups from one pound of Fry's Cocoa.

TROUBLE-SHOOTER Georges, here, helps keep power lines open to key industries in Northern Quebec. Braves blizzards; handles high tension wires! A tough job! But like thousands of other hard-working men, he has discovered THE "SELF-STARTER" BREAKFAST gives him staying power—"and for real zip, give me Kellogg's Corn Flakes! They sure taste grand!" says Georges.

NURSEMAID TO MOTOR CARS! Pretty and vivacious June Kellard makes success of new job as gas station attendant. But June must be at work at 7 a.m. "That's why I vote for the 30-second breakfast; saves time, no mess to wash up afterwards." Yes, June, and Kellogg's Corn Flakes are the thrifty breakfast too—enough for the whole family costs only a few pennies.

MEN FROM MARS? No, Bruce Young and Martin Hurst, Ontario ARP workers learning "gas decontamination." These war workers both have full-time jobs. They get the right send-off to the day with Kellogg's Corn Flakes. "Swell is the word for that exclusive Kellogg's flavour!" says Bruce. Right! And the flavour that 4 out of 5 in Canada vote first—is just as tempting between meals!

STEPPING OUT! Gordon knows just how long he must allow for that last-minute dash to the bus. He knows, too, that a big bowl of Kellogg's Corn Flakes with milk and sugar gives him the needed food energy to run more than two miles! No wonder so many people in Canada vote it THE "SELF-STARTER" BREAKFAST!

JOHNNY'S ON THE JOB to see that mother buys THE "SELF-STARTER" BREAKFAST! "If my family's any indication," says Mrs. Valleau, "it's no wonder that all across Canada Kellogg's gets the vote as the favourite cereal, year after year! I often give Johnny Kellogg's for supper, too. When he's off to bed early, Kellogg's Corn Flakes are best—nourishing and easy-to-digest." Get some tomorrow, in either of the two convenient sizes.

HE'S A "SELF-STARTER"! When on furlough, George goes into action with a zoom! Makes fast aquaplane dash; swims; has fun at the lake. Sports like this help keep him fit; but the right food is important too. For needed food energy, thousands begin their day with THE "SELF-STARTER" BREAKFAST—a big bowl of Kellogg's Corn Flakes with milk and sugar! Made by Kellogg's in London, Canada.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

HOSPITAL STATEMENT.

The financial statement of Queen Mary Hospital from the first of the year to the end of April showed expenses of $4,505.00 and receipts amounting to $3,002.12, with some accounts not paid.

CAMPAIGN SPEAKER.

Wills Maclachlan, renowned safety engineer, of the staff of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, has been chosen to address the Community Fund campaign personnel at the opening dinner to be held in the Empress Hotel on Friday, May 15, at 6.15. He is a member of the National Council of the Canadian Red Cross, a member of the National Executive and Sub-Executime, and chairman of the National Purchasing Committee.

SENATE WAR-MINDED.

Gossip in the coffee shop Thursday morning indicated that the "Senate" was getting war-minded. One member stated they might join the 2nd Battalion Rangers, Reserve Unit, in a body, and another stated he planned to bat man, to one of the charter members. Another suggested Ross Dobbin would make a capable sergeant.

OPTIMISTIC FOLLOW-UP.

Announcement was made over radio station CBL at eleven o'clock Thursday morning, telling that two more German prisoners had escaped from Bowmanville. Then when the news item was complete, music came on and the piece they played, quite by accident, was "I'll See You Again."

LINDSAY MAN FINED

A Lindsay man arrested on George street last night pleaded guilty in police court this morning to a charge of drunkenness and was fined the usual $10 and costs. His arrest followed a report to a constable by some soldiers that the Lindsay visitor had been annoying women on the street.

ADJOURNED TWO WEEKS

A charge against Mrs. Cecilia Clark of not sending a child to school was again adjourned for two weeks when it was called in police court this morning. The adjournment was ordered to see how the promise to have the child attend school regularly was kept by the accused.

FOR THE SPITFIRE FUND

Inspector James F. Reid, Dominion treasurer of the Canadian Police second Spitfire fund received a cheque this morning from J. Milton Cork, head of Loblaw's for $500. The fund has now passed the $12,000 mark, Inspector Reid reports.

CHART ON BUILDING.

The huge illustration of the Peterborough Lift Lock which was used in the Victory Loan Drive has been repainted and will be used to indicate progress in the campaign to raise $60,000 for the Red Cross and Community Fund. Workmen were hoisting the sign into position on the west side of the Customs House building at George and Charlotte this morning.

IS STILL MISSING

No trace has been found so far of Maurice Gainey, elderly East City man who has been missing from his home since last Friday afternoon. Police have searched the city thoroughly but beyond a report that the missing man was seen on Hunter street on Saturday last, nothing has been heard of him.

SCENIC GUIDE POSTS.

Members of the Peterborough Horticultural Society were busy on Wednesday evening putting the signs in place along city streets, to guide people who wish to drive over a chartered scenic route. The route includes all the major beauty spots of Peterborough city and its suburbs.

SHOPPING TROUBLE

Housewives are having a little difficulty once again in obtaining meat. For the past two days beef and pork has been almost unobtainable in many meat stores. This is a little taste of what the people in fields close to the war zones have been undergoing for a long time.

BANK CLEARINGS

Total clearings in Peterborough for the past week ending today amounted to $796,486 while for the same period one year ago the total was $685,646.

A PLEA FOR SCRAP

Is there in Peterborough any factory building, warehouse, mine or quarry not in use and containing machinery, equipment, water tanks or any other idle materials that could be re-used or converted into scrap? A letter from S. Godfrey, Toronto, administrator of used goods for Wartime Prices and Trade Board, has been received by Mayor Hamilton enquiring about such materials. "We would appreciate it if you would make a survey in your municipality and surrounding territory and advise us what is the situation. This will enable us to make such dsposition of the matter as will be of greatest benefit to our country."

NO PERMIT ISSUED

No permits for steel to be used in construction of a house for James Franceschini, Toronto, recently released from internment, have been issued by the munitions and supply department's priorities branch, said a return tabled in the House of Commons yesterday for G. K. Fraser (Con. Peterborough West).

JOINS MIDLANDS

Otto Lionel Dalgleisch, former owner of the Grand Hotel in this city, and a veteran of World War 1, has been given a commission with the 2nd Midland Regiment.

PETERBOROUGH BOY

Senior N.C.O's from the Hastings-Prince Edward Regiment who were posted recently to the Rangers reported that the Rev. Walter Gilling is one of the army chaplains of the First Division. He will be remembered by many in this city, as he was curate at St. John's Anglican Church for a couple of years.

IN A HURRY

An American who has been a fishing season visitor to Canada for the past five years, wrote to the Examiner this week, stating that he wished to get a spot of lake trout fishing in May. He said in part: "My uncle with the long grey beard has a job for me starting June 1, and I want one more fling at the fish, before I start gunning for yellow suckers."

NIAGARA IS AS CLOSE

Men getting the call to report for compulsory military training are receiving an additional jolt, in that they are being posted to basic training centres far from Peterborough. Quite a number have been notified to report to Connaught Camp on May 21, and the men who refused to join the Rangers because they wanted to be near home for an extra two months, have missed the boat.

JOINS THE NAVY

William W. Jordon, O'Carroll avenue, a former member of the 4th Field Battery, has been struck off strength of the reserve unit. He was accepted by the Royal Canadian Navy for active service on May 5.

Jimmy Paisley Seen Action On Many Fronts

By PETE McGILLEN

Lashed by bursting bombs at Narvik and Dunkirk, and by the awful pounding of the Japanese at Singapore, Boatswain Jimmy Paisley, 52-year-old merchant seaman, the local man who was two inches to short to serve as a hydro guard at the Auburn dam in 1939, is back in this city on extended leave. Veteran of World War 1 as well, this doughty Scot has escaped so far without a scratch despite the fact that his motor launch, carrying No. 13, was blasted into a hulk at Dunkirk, and he was posted in official war records as missing and believed killed on active service.

On Three Fronts

The story of this little man, who is packed with muscle and courage reads like the imaginative ramblings of a front line war correspondent, and few people who see this unassuming, friendly fellow wearing the blue uniform of the merchant marine realize that he has carried on through the three greatest battles of this World War 2.

"Singapore was lost to Britain because of inadequate aerial support," he stated, and went on to say that when the troopship on which he sailed arrived at Singapore harbor, it was two days too late, just in time, however, to get a full course meal on the Japanese aerial blitz which played such an important part in vanquishing the heroic defenders of this Empire stronghold.

"The bombs were falling like hail stones on the harbor, and in this rain of death the troopship crew picked up 100 crew members from a troopship that was sunk, and 300 women and children as well, mostly whites from the island."

"Singapore was a second Dunkirk, except on a smaller scale, and we could not land our shipload of troops so we took them to Bombay."

"The Japs got this troopship which had landed its men, when a Jap bomber pilot, unable to get through the curtain of anti-aircraft fire, dove his plane straight at the deck of the ship, and suicided with his load of bombs, splitting the decks wide open.

Too Short for Guard

The amusing part of the whole story of this merchant seaman was that he had obtained a job with the Veterans' Guard as a patrol officer at the Auburn dam, then this branch of guard work was put under the jurisdiction of the Provincial Police and all the men had to go to Belleville for a medical examination. Paisley was turned down because he was too short. He is five feet four inches, and the standard is five feet six inches.

"I appealed to Attorney-General Conant, pointing out that I had served three years in the last war but, I got nowhere." He claimed Mr. Conant said they must have a standard and stick to it, so in disgust, the seaman anwered an advertisement for seamen from New York. He received a wire on a Tuesday and on the following Wednesday evening he was aboard ship in New York harbor. This was on Nov. 28, 1939. The ship sailed to Halifax and carried the first contingent of Canadian troops to Britain, landing them the week before Christmas. One of the ships in this convoy was the Empress of Britain which has since been lost through enemy action.

At Narvick

He was on one of the ships that took the first contingent of British troops to Haasted in the Lofoten Island near Norway and a short time later he was on the same ship bringing British troops to Narik. The troops landed under a protective barrage laid down by the navy, including the Warspite. In this battle the Hardy, a British destroyer, was lost, and though the landing party had no air protection the Nazi airmen had such a healthy respect for the British gunnery they dropped all, bombs from a height of five miles, keeping up the bombing day and night. The Germans sunk one Norwegian fishing boat which was being used to carry troops ashore, and it was returning for a load with three men in it when hit.

A Polish destroyer was sunk in the engagement, and while the survivors tried to swim ashore in oil and bitter cold water, Nazi machine gunners peppered them from hidden spots on the edge of the fiord. Fortunately, gunners on the Warspite spotted the cafe where the guns were and two big shells wiped out the machine gun nests.

The boat on which Paisley was serving carried back more than 100 of the Polish destroyer's crew to Scotland, where the British government turned over a new destroyer to these gallant fighting men from a conquered country.

Paisley then went to visit friends at Folkestone, England, and while there, the evacuation at Dunkirk started. His host, an elderly photographer, named Gilbert, offered Paisley his motor launch, a 35-footer to aid in the rescue. Paisley could not man it alone, so he stopped two civilians on the street and asked them if they wished to go for a ride.

"Where to?" they asked.

"To get the boys out of Dunkirk," he replied.

"Well, let's get going," was the shot that came right back and they hurried across the Channel. The shallow draft boat was used to carry troops from the beaches to the Channel ships, anchored in deep water. "We carried 25 men at a time, for three days and two nights, without any food or sleep. We got gas from the other ships and kept at it. One man was busy bailing all the time, for there was at least 15 machine-gun holes in the boat. The Huns were bombing us, dive bombing, and machine-gunning but the work went on. At ten o'clock on the third morning, a bomb fell and it was a premature explosion. A hunk of shrapnel smashed our gas tank, and the boat started to keel over so we jumped overboard and swam to a pleasure steamer, which was about twice the size of the Stoney Lake."

Paisley said little ships such as that steamer were evacuating upwards of 1,000 troops during the rain of bomb and shellfire. It so happened that every boat on the job had been given a number and the number of the motor launch which Paisley operated was No. 13. He returned to Dover, then went right on to Glasgow.

"I was dead tired and my nerves were a frazzle. When I left this city in '39 I didn't have a grey hair, now I have more grey ones than black ones," and this is true, for his hair is turning grey rapidly.

Paisley did not report at shore, and when his boat drifted ashore, he was listed as missing and believed dead, and this was posted in the English papers. Five days of rest and he signed on an oil tanker as bos'un, and he stayed with this ship until February of last year, when he returned to England, and went back to convoy duty. For a year and three months he has served on ships convoying troops to the Middle East, Australia and from Canada, and all arrived safely. In brief it means that since leaving Canada in November, 1939, he has been exactly two weeks ashore.

While sitting in a beverage room in Cape Town, South Africa, Paisley was tapped on the shoulder by a Highlander, who asked if Paisley remembered him. He did not, but the soldier replied he was one that Paisley had pulled into a boat at Dunkirk.

"Don't you remember as you pulled me into the boat, a bit of shrapnel hit my wrist, and the blood got all over your clothes?"

This incident brought back the recollection, and this man was one of 20 Cameron Highlanders saved in the evacuation by this one boat.

Paisley has good reason to hate the Germans. His wife, a bride of six weeks, was coming to see him while he was in the hospital during World War I., in London when she was killed in an air raid, and he did not marry again.

He says that to him one of the most amazing things about this war is the growth of the Canadian Navy. "These little corvettes are staunch, powerful boats, and they are manned by good Canadian lads, who are doing a swell job." This was high tribute from an old sailor to the younger generation of "men who go down to the sea in ships."

He was born in Scotland in 1890, and went to sea at the age of 12 on a four-year apprentice course on the four-masted barque Loch Torridon. One voyage took two years three months, and the second took two years six months. This gave him a second mate's ticket in sail.

Down through the years he continued at sea in different berths until he took a job as quartermaster on the Corinthian, in the Allan Line. On June 22, 1914 he came to Canada and took a job in Hamilton as a rigger.

He enlisted in June, 1915, in the 76th Battalion, but was discharged some months later, when he had a recurrence of malarial fever, which he contracted first in Guatemala in 1912. He re-enlisted one month later with the 114th Battalion at Oshwekan. He as a sergeant of an all-Indian company from the Six Nations Reserve at Brantford, and the officer who was the only other white man in the company was Major MacDonnell, a brother-in-law of Morley Smithson in Otonabee. Paisley served overseas with the 19th Battalion, and was gassed on May 10, 1917, at Fresnoi. On returning to France in September, 1918, he took the 'flu and was crossing the Channel homeward bound in a hospital ship when the armistice was signed.

He sailed the seas again until 1929, when he came to Peterborough and after working two years with Morley Smithson, did decorating in the city. He worker as a structural steel rigger and steeple-jack in the States for a while, and served five years as a sergeant with the Prince of Wales Rangers. In 1936 he was on a pleasure boat plying between New York, Kingston, Jamaica, and Havana. In 1937, he was wheelsman on an ore carrier on the Great Lakes, called the International. He was sweeping chimneys and doing odd jobs in Peterborough when he was accepted by Inspector Hammond of the C.I.B. for special guard duty at the Auburn Dam.

He is back in the city he calls home. Peterborough, which is, in his opinion, the grandest spot of all the world. He will leave soon for sea life again to resume the adventures in all corners of the world. "To me coming back to see Jack Smith, Scottie Gracie and the rest of the boys is the best part of it all," he said.

Royal Interest

During a recent visit to a Canadian division stationed in England, the King witnessed a demonstration of a "wounded" man being lowered from a tank.

25 Years' Service With C.P.R. Express

Two familiar figures in the Peterborough business world, Claude Fleetwood and Leland J. Wade, are celebrating the completion of 25 years of service with the Canadian Pacific Express Company, today.

Claude Fleetwood has been driving one of the trucks since he started with the company. His hurried entrances and exits, amidst a shower of chaff, are a vital part of the day's routine in the downtown section. He has never been known to be at a loss for a comeback.

Leland Wade began to work for the company, at the age of 16, as a warehouseman at the depot. From there he moved to the uptown express office as junior clerk and seven years ago took over the position of chief clerk. Around this time of the year, he and his cronies can be heard discussing the merits of fishing and there have been some interesting tales of fishing exploits.

Twenty-five years of service with one firm is worthy of recognition and it is to be hoped that these two men continue to contribute to the life of the community for as many more.

Rangers Leave Peterboro For Niagara

A crowd estimated at more than 2,000 people jammed the platform at the C.P.R. station to bid farewell to the Prince of Wales Rangers (AF), the fourth unit to leave the city for active service. The soldiers are moving into camp at Niagara-on-the-Lake, for their basic training and to take reinforcements to bring them up to full war establishment.

The send-off brought the war home to a great many city families which had up to now, been unaffected by the ebb and flow of the armed forces, and many mothers and sweethearts, found it difficult to keep the tears back, although the boys are still a long way from the actual theatre of war.

Band Leads Parade

The striking thing about this regiment of men was their youth, and the boys appeared like high school students on a lark. Parading in full battle dress from the Armouries to the C.P.R. station, the unit was headed by the Prince of Wales Rangers band. Senior officers of the Training Centre staff were on hand to see the regiment off, and the officers were drawn up in a line at the point where the soldiers marched on to the station platform.

Farewells were brief and the arrangements were well timed, just giving the men a few minutes for a word with loved ones, before they streamed single file into the coaches shouldering kit bags, and rifles. The station platform was close-packed with citizens and city officials, store managers and heads of industries were in the group. Mayor James Hamilton, gave a final send-off greeting and handshake to the senior officers of the unit, and among the many who were with the Mayor were Ian McRae and J. E. Girven of the C.G.E. and Clare Collins, manager of Neill's.

George street had a Saturday noon-day appearance as factory workers, and hundreds of others including Roman Catholics en route to the churches to attend Ascension Thursday masses all lined up to wave a greeting to the khaki-clad crusaders.

Tribute Is Paid Members CWVS

To the members of the Canadian Women's Voluntary Services, Colonel J. A. Dewart, M.C., paid a special compliment at the recruiting meeting in the city hall Wednesday night on the eve of the Prince of Wales battalion leaving for Camp Niagara.

Taking a cue from Ian F. McRae's mention of the work that is being done in war industries and elsewhere, Colonel Dewart recalled an appeal he had made to the C.W.V.S. when the regiment began recruiting, telephoning to Mrs. J. G. Wharry for clerical help.

"I asked for eleven women or girls to help us, and the next morning they reported for duty and have been with us to the present. They gave us invaluable assistance," Col. Dewart said. "I was really amazed that they could spare us so much of their time, because I knew some of them had children to take care of. I would like to pay a very warm tribute to them for their willing and efficient help."

Mayor Hamilton said he had been informed that the Peterborough's Women's Service Corps, another feminine war auxiliary, had sent thirty-five women into the active service, and Miss Mitchell was now looking for other recruits.

Incidentally, Ian McRea referred to the substitution of women for men at work within their capabilities, and intimated that even more of that replacement would be put into effect wherever possible.

PETERBOROUGH RED CROSS BLOOD DONORS COMMITTEE

War—25 Years Ago

By The Canadian Press

MAY 14, 1917. — Zeppelin L-22 destroyed by naval gunfire in the North Sea. Italian offensive launched from Tolimino to the sea. Russian military authorities estimated Germany had withdrawn 600,000 men from the Eastern Front to oppose Anglo-French offensive.

Bottle Salvage Urgently Needed

TORONTO, May 14—Bottle salvage and redistribution is being fostered by the used goods administration of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board under the direction of Henry Rosenberg, deputy administrator.

Collection of bottles through the traditional rags, bones and bottles men and through salvage as conducted on a national scale is the prime factor in the success of the plan, according to Mr. Rosenberg. "B" or secondary dealers will purchase the bottles from the collectors and channel them to authorized dealers, who, Mr. Rosenberg said, will file the containers in bins for thorough sterilization before returning them to the original users.

In conformance with board orders limiting the price of used goods to a figure lower than the price of a similar new article, the authorized dealers will re-sell the receptacles to the users at prices lower than the price of new bottles. Mr. Rosenberg urged all persons to forego any monetary consideration in turning over their bottles, having in mind the importance of salvaging the material, which the country urgently needs.

Men skilled in the manufacture of glass will be employed to identify the bottles for re-sale. It is expected that millions of bottles used by pharmaceutical and drug manufacturers, foods, turpentine, wine producers, distillers, brewers and the bottlers of carbonated drinks will be reclaimed in the salvage operations. Mr. Rosenberg anticipates the complete co-operation of all housers in saving containers.

Reeve Allan B. Mann's Condition Is Improved

The many friends of Reeve Allan B. Mann of Smith township who is in St. Joseph's Hospital suffering from injuries sustained in an accident last Sunday is reported today from the hospital as better today.

Reeve Mann was riding a horse bare-backed on his farm when the animal reared up and fell back on him with the result that the Smith reeve was crushed beneath the horse. He was removed to St. Joseph's Hospital for treatment.

Church Groups Give Aid To War Victims

Numbered amongst the thousands of donations that have come in to the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund, to give help to the people of Britain, has been a very fair proportion to come from many church's and the various organizations connected with them of mostly all denominations and creeds. In this respect, some have given persistent help by giving on more than one occasion, and in today's list for the fund, there are two church groups, who have both been listed on former occasions.

On May 6, the Anglican Young People's Association District Council held a coming of age party in St. John's Parish Hall, and at the banquet was a regular birthday cake. The top layer of this cake was auctioned off in a rather unusual manner, by each bidder paying the difference between his or her own bid, and the previous bidder, the first bidder of course, paying the amount of the initial bid. Jack Marshall acted as auctioneer, and in this manner the nice sum of $10 was raised, which is perhaps representative of all the Anglican Churches in the city and district.

Then the Women's Friendly Bible Class of St. John's Church had a bowling team which is composed of members of the class itself. As a class they have made regular contributions to the fund, and from the team itself, today's $6 recorded in their name, per Mrs. C. Willison, the president, marks the second time that the members of the team have contributed as such, which is in addition to the share that they had in the six donations already listed received from the class itself.

The penny boxes located in the Bank of Montreal contribute $4.80, when collected on Wednesday to bring the total for this type of fund activity up to the $950 mark, and one personal donation is listed.

"CARE IN DRESS WINS SUCCESS"

War Workers Making Quilt Patches

HAVELOCK, May 14—(ENS). — There was an attendance of 18 ladies at the Red Cross meeting on Monday. One crib quilt was quilted and bound, and all the rest of the ladies were busy with needles and thimbles piecing crazy patch-work quilt blocks.

Two accounts, Chiles store $2.67, and E. J. Leeson and Son $5.10 were ordered paid. A letter was received received from Mrs. J. C. Fraser, chairman of the Ontario division, asking our branch to send in all finished knitted articles and to knit up the wool we have on hand, while waiting the arrival of the new quota.

A letter as read from Mr. Gordon Haggerty, in England, thanking this Red Cross branch for socks he had received. Gordon said he was at present recuperating at a coastal hospital from an injured knee.

The meeting next week will be held in the basement of St. John's Anglican church, owing to the fact that the Chest Clinic will be held in the Town Nall. Mrs. Robert Jones, the social convener, asked for suggestions as to ways and means of raising money, but no definite decision will be made until the meeting next Monday.

56 Commissions Awarded Young SA Cadets

TORONTO, May 14. — With the admonition to spread the Gospel of Jesus Christ and to aid in social reclamation, fifty-six young men and women from all sections of Canada were given commissions in the Salvation Army on Monday night at a service in Massey Hall.

The Cadets, who completed a session of training at the William Booth Memorial Training College, were commissioned by Commissioner Benjamin Orames and assigned to posts from British Columbia to Halifax. Three of the young Probationary-Lieutenants were sent to Bermuda.

Two district girls were among the probationary lieutenants— Lorna I. Davidson Port Hope, and Dorothy M. French, Peterborough.

In an address to the large audience before the granting of commissions, Rev. W. A. Cameron, secretary of the General Board of Missions of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, voiced a demand for a "struggle against paganism at home as well as abroad."

"Too many say to the Christian Church that those things for which the Church stands must be left aside while we get on with the war," Rev. Mr. Cameron asserted. "However, we are in this war fighting for the things for which the Church stands. We are fighting for freedom of religion, of speech and for the maintenance of the value of human personality."

Reviews Session.

In a review of the session at which the Cadets received their training, Lieutenant-Colonel R. A. Hoggard, principal of the William Booth Memorial College, said the average age of the Cadets was between twenty-one and twenty-two. Their studies included courses in Bible study theology, public speaking and accountancy, he added.

Presentation of a Silver Star and certificate to Mrs. T. Homewood, mother of Cadet R. M. Homewood, was made by Commissioner Orames and Mrs. Colonel Peacock. These tokens are presented to the mother of each new Salvation Army officer. Mothers of all the other officers will be similarly honored in the future.

Little Rest There

BERNE, Switzerland, May 14—(AP).—Two more restaurants used by the Germans in Paris have been bombed, advices from the occupied French capital said today.

Dispatches yesterday reported a series of bombings of Paris hotels used as barracks by the Germans, apparently a crescendo of anti--German demonstrations covering the past 10 days. It was suggested that these were inspired by the appointment of Maj.-Gen. Oberg, one of the right hand men of Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler, as head of police in the Paris area.

Permits Needed

OTTAWA, May 74—(CP)—L. F. Jackson assistant commissioner of customs advised collectors today that permit are required for import into Canada of any "vehicle, machine or implement or other article equipped, or designed to be equipped, with rubber tires."

Happy Over Release From Italian Prison Camp

The joy of being home again shows clearly on the faces of these British soldiers who were exchanged for Italian prisoners at Smyrna, Turkey. Nine hundred and nineteen Italian wounded, sick and protected personnel were exchanged for 129 British soldiers, including South Africans, Indians, New Zealanders and Australians. Most of these men were taken prisoner in the western desert, and had been in Italian camps for six to eight months prior to their arrival at Alexandria.

Minister Howe Denies Idea Of Seizing Tires

OTTAWA, May 14. — (CP). — New regulations affecting the sale and use of pneumatic tires will be announced later this week, Munitions Minister Howe said last night. At the same time Mr. Howe denied reports that the Department is considering seizure of tires from less essential vehicles and that the Government intends to commandeer about half the trucks now in operation in Canada.

"Both statements are completely inaccurate," said Mr. Howe. "Neither report was issued by this Department and neither had the authorization of this Department. The suggestion that tires might be seized is a direct contradiction of a statement issued on my authority by the Controller of Supplies (Alan H. Williamson) on April 23."

Mr. Howe said the forthcoming tire regulations are designed to provide sufficient tires for vehicle owners whose needs are essential to the national economy in wartime. Promotion of the war program, protection of public health, public safety, and essential transportation, excluding home delivery will be given priority in that order.

"From this it will be seen that the new regulations will be more drastic than any heretofore issued," said the Minister. "But because they answer our present requirements, they will not call for the commandeering of tires. Such a drastic step is certainly not necessary to-day. And would be taken only as a last resort."

LAKEFIELD

Cooking Sale Proves Success

LAKEFIELD, May 13.—(ENS)—Despite rainy weather, the annual tea and sale of homecooking, put on by the W.A. of St. John's Anglican Church, in the parish hall, Tuesday afternoon, was a success.

A special feature of the afternoon was the display of the Indian boys' outfit. This year the Lakefield branch of the W.A. supplied certain articles of clothing for a fourteen-year-old boy attending "Oldsun" an Anglican residential school in the west. These articles were expertly made by members of the W.A. and displayed by the Dorcas, Mrs. B. Q. Dench and Mrs. William Armstrong.

The tea tables were under the capable management of Mrs. John Twist, assisted by Miss Amy Watson.

Mrs. Ernie Waldon and Mrs. W. Webdale were the very efficient saleswomen at the home cooking booth.

Also for sale were some victory pins, made and donated by Miss Annie Atwood. Cashier for the afternoon was Mrs. S. F. M. Touchburn.

Miss Merle Crawford spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Crawford.

Mr. and Mrs. George Coleman, Sr. and daughter, Phyllis of Peterborough were also Sunday visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Crawford.

Group Conducts Meeting

OMEMEE, May 13—(ENS).—The Christian Fellowship Group of the Y.P.U., with convener Lillian Race in charge, held its regular weekly meeting in the basement of the church Monday night.

The scripture lesson was read by Lillie Brandon and the commentary on the lesson was given by Marian Rea. Christine Connell gave an interesting account of the last chapter in the study book and the meeting closed with the missionary hymn, "The Morning Light is Breaking" and the Mizpah Benediction in unison.

GORE'S LANDING

Seeding Is Done In N. Hamilton

GORE'S LANDING, May 14. — (ENS).—Farmers report that seeding in the north end of Hamilton township was finished this past week. On account of abundance of rain, growth has been very rapid in gardens. In the Plainville area, tractors and combines are being purchased and through the use of the tractor farmers are partially overcoming the scarcity of help.

With the call for more and more farmerettes to help on farms, many people envy the parents of two enterprising young ladies, Misses Evelyn Brisbin and Ruth Brooks, who can make a tractor do all the tricks necessary to seed a field in short order. The past week these young ladies put their tractors through the fastest manoeuvres, including a race to see which could get through their field in the shortest time, and a new record for speed in spring work was established.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Wallace and Tommy, Jr., spent Sunday in Peterborough with Mrs. Nelson.

Col. and Mrs. Garnet Greer of St. Catharines, formerly of Peterborough, arrived on Saturday to open their summer home.

Mr. and Mrs. Atkinson and Miss Shaw of Toronto spent the week-end at their cottage.

Mrs. Bob MacIntosh has received a letter from her husband, who arrived in England quite recently, reporting his trip across the Atlantic.

Mr. and Mrs. James Smart, Toronto, spent the week-end with Mrs. F. W. Pratt, Cedar Springs. Misses Agnes and Belle Smart, who motored down with their brother, expect to occupy their renovated home some time this week.

The meeting of Red Cross canvassers was held in the Township Hal, Coldsprings, on Friday night, when plans were made for the drive for funds in the next two weeks. Mr. and Mrs. Milton Ames, Mrs. Melville Harris and Mrs. Harry Hastings represented this village.

District President Speaks At Millbrook

MILLBROOK, May 14—(ENS)—Mrs. Ira Lowe, district president of the East Durham Women's Institute was the guest of honor at the May meeting of the local branch, held at the home of Mrs. J. L. Byam, on Saturday evening. Included also in the guests of the evening were Mrs. W. H. Armstrong, and the members of the Junior Girls' Stitch Club, two of the latter, Martha Belch and Wilma Armstrong, giving interesting report of the recent conference at the Kemptville Agricultural School, which they had attended as delegates. This year the girls' project is sleeping garments, and several members modelled pyjamas and house coats, in attractive materials and designs, practical evidence of the fine work being accomplished.

The treasurer Mrs. M. W. Ball, reported a balance of $38.26; total receipts $149.21, expenditures, which included $6.00 for the overseas jam fund, $9.20 for a new flag for the Town Hall, and $6.00 toward the girls' expenses to Kemptville, $139.09—balance $10.12.

Mrs. J. W. Hilton gave the secretary's report showing 29 members; 12 regular and two special meetings; programs each month under the standing committee conveners; money raised by means of a travelling shirt; dances, card parties, and a sale of baking and afternoon tea. Eight boxes were sent to sick members; cigarettes and Christmas boxes to local boys overseas; and Christmas cheer boxes to sick and shut-in members at home.

Mrs. Hilton reported a large amount of work done for the Red Cross; a layette given the local branch, and another in process of making; 30 quilts pieced and 3 completed; a balance of $21.38; $22.27 raised in 1941-42; cash donations of $20.00 twice given the Red Cross; $3.55 on hand. Red Cross collections are taken at each meeting.

Mrs. Lowe was introduced by the president, and gave a most informative address covering W.I. work over the Dominion as far as war activities were affected; she also urged the course on nutrition since "health is vital to success in the war." Later it was decided that the local branch would vote for this course at the district annual, to be held at Mount Pleasant on Wednesday May 27, Mrs. Lowe urging a large delegation. The guest speaker read part of a letter received from a W.I. worker in Scotland, a member of the party which toured Canada two years ago, telling of similar war activities carried on over there, and of conditions in war time.

The district president was warmly thanked for her constructive address and after the National Anthem the hostess, assisted by the junior girls, served lunch, and a pleasant social hour was enjoyed.

WE ARE FIGHTING FOR JUSTICE IN The World and in almost every phase of the war the women of Canada are playing an important part.

Keeping up the morale of the women of Peterborough is every bit as important as keeping up the morale of our fighting forces. Women are playing a big part in our war effort, and their part will grow larger as time passes.

In war work, in industry, in offices and the home, our women need the recreational and social facilities of the "Y." Women from out of town find in the "Y" a safe home. The educational facilities, swimming and showers, dancing and musical facilities provide health and interesting activities for our young girls.

CARIBBEAN CRISIS . . . .

By EATON K. GOLDTHWAITE

THE STORY.—After six years on a little Dutch island in the Caribbean, Bill Talcott is to be relieved of his branch manager job with an American chemical firm and join the Army. His successor, Halsey, arrives with an auditor who immediately charges Bill with a $158,000 shortage in his accounts. Bill, innocent, is furious. That evening June Paterson, cousin of Bill's college roommate, goes for a walk with Halsey, who she has met on the boat. Bill warns her it is not safe, but stays behind with a stranger named MacDowell.

"YOU'RE A DETECTIVE"

CHAPTER III

Talcott was at the door when MacDowell moved suddenly, blocking his path. "Let 'em go," the moustached one grunted. "If I know my women, that one can take care of herself."

He stood tensed, glaring down. "You may be a very smart man where you come from, Mr. MacDowell, but you don't know Abas Island!"

MacDowell shrugged. "Why all the ruckus? She's got Halsey with her. And believe me, he's the kind that don't scare so easy. Or maybe," MacDowell sucked at his teeth, grinned knowingly, said, "Maybe you go for her yourself, huh?"

Bill ignored the thrust, stepped back and slapped his hands. In immediate response a shadow loomed from the darkness of the terrace behind MacDowell and the moustached one turned defensively.

Bill said quietly, "Bucka white man and missy go out against my orders. Make Sebastien follow them."

The black boy nodded, said, "Yes, baas," and disappeared into the night.

MacDowell exhaled with relief, wiped sweat from his face, bit off the end of a cigar and remained in place before the door. "What is this?" he drawled. "Mean to tell me nobody can take a walk around here?"

"You may take all the walks you like. It so happens that there are several hundred blacks on the island, and they're bad sometimes. Miss Paterson will be the first white woman that some of them have ever seen. I wouldn't care to be responsible for what might happen.

MacDowell's face became gray and the unlighted cigar sagged. "Good Lord, man, why didn't you tell us before? If I'd known it was like that, I wouldn't 've stopped you!"

Talcott smiled icily. "I presume you were afraid I might prevent Halsey from telling Miss Paterson something I wouldn't want her to hear."

"Maybe," MacDowell hedged. He found a match, popped it into flame and dragged on the cigar. "Who's this guy Sebastien that you sent after them?"

"My overseer. He's half native. Under usual conditions the men will obey him."

"Under usual conditions—" MacDowell frowned and glanced uneasily at the terrace. "Suppose we ought to follow them?"

Talcott didn't answer. Indicating a chair he said, "Sit down. It's time you and I had a little talk. In my correspondence with Federal Chemical, Halsey and the auditor are accounted for. Your name was never mentioned. I want to know who you are, and your purpose on Abas Island."

The directness of the attack caught the moustached one completly off guard. His eyes rounded, his facial muscles sagged and his mouth made an O. "You mean," he said, wetting his lips, "you don't know who I am?"

Talcott leaned forward until his calloused big-knuckled hand rested on the other's knee. "You are not an employee of Federal Chemical and you're not an auditor. I might have thought you were a travelling companion, but I doubt of Halsey and Struthers are seeking company just now. So what is your connection?"

Sweat showed above the moustached one's collar and the cigar revolved in his mouth. His face, for a moment, became even grayer. And then, unexpectedly, he laughed.

"That's pretty good!" he chuckled. "You claimin' you don't know why I'm here. For a minute you had me goin'."

Startling as it was, the change of front served only to increase Bill Talcott's cold wrath. "I doubt if it has occurred to you," he said icily, "that this frameup of the missing vouchers is as weak as water. By merely lifting a finger I could have the lot of you tossed in jail. Have you ever seen one of our tropical jails, Mr. Macdowell? That have no roofs, and the sun boils down and there are rats and scorpions—"

"Threatenin', are you?" Ugly red crept through the gray of MacDowell's cheeks. "And I thought you looked like a decent kind of guy. Why, you cheap crook!"

"Be careful how you talk," Talcott said calmly. "It happens that for every one of those vouchers there are two facsimilies. One is in the possession of the steamship lines that carried the nitrates, the other with the Netherlands government official who collects a tax on every pound taken from the island. The remittances have all been made to New York and the bank in Willemstad has a complete record." Bill Talcott leaned forward and his long fingers closed in a steel-like grip on MacDowell's knee. "You and your friends haven't a leg to stand on. Now, who are you and what is your game?"

"Leggo my knee!" MacDowell yelled.

Bill Talcott's strong fingers released with a disdainful movement and the moustached one rubbed vigorously. The words had brought to his face a mixture of doubt and surprise, and Talcott followed his opening swiftly. "If Halsey pocketed those vouchers thinking he could force me to remain here, he'd better devote some of his time to studying Federal Chemical procedure. Only he and Struthers had access to those records and one of them must be the thief. Now, where do you come in?"

MacDowell stopped rubbing his knee. Plainly, he was annoyed. his was being rudely shaken. His eyes clouded and the burned-out cigar sagged. As if wighing HTalcott against some mental standard he sat. Then, slowly, his hand moved to his pocket. It came away, bearing not identification papers, but a wicked snub-nosed pistol.

"You claim Halsey and Struthers rigged a game on you?" he grunted. "That's what they all say. I had you sized up for a decent sort of guy until you started to use threats. If you're innocent and got something to prove it like you say, I don't see what you're worryin' about. As for you not knowin' why I'm here, that's a laugh. Do I haveta show you my badge?"

Talcott stared. "You're a detective?"

A painful flush stole through Bill Talcott's cheeks. He might have guessed the man's identity. If indeed he was the victim of a plot, the locus of origin was now swiftly removed from Abas Island; thrust back 1,600 miles to the leather-chaired offices of Federal Chemical itself. But why? Had Old Man Winters gone crazy with war worries? Or was the "new" secretary attempting something more than merely holding her job? Was she in a conspiracy to take Federal Chemical for better than $150,000? Or was a bigger game, one in which Talcott and Halsey and Struthers

Regulation Smartness

By ALICE ALDEN

SOME OF THE VERY smartest fashions are the simplest and a good designer isn't at all worried by the suggestions of the WPB as to amount of material, simplicity of cut and elimination of extraneous trimming. Helen Hubbell is one American designer who takes such regulations in her stride and comes through with a dress that meets all requirements. Miss Hubbell used less than three yards of greige crepe to make the frock shown above. It achieves smartness through line, quality and color and is a dress that should give plenty of service right through the year. A broad-brimmed hat of bright green grosgrain matches the belt.

This delicious cereal has proved itself!

So now we call it Shreddies

TWO YEARS AGO a tasty new breakfast cereal was introduced to Canadians. We wanted this cereal to win its own way in the world. So we simply called it "Cubs".

Since that time Cubs has won a favoured place on thousands of Canadian breakfast tables. So today, we are proud to receive it under the new trade mark, "Shreddies"*, as a member of the Shredded Wheat family. It is made in the Shredded Wheat bakeries of Niagara Falls.

"Shreddies", in their attractive new package, come to your table crisp, crunchy, toasted a golden brown. "Shreddies" contain all the goodness of whole wheat—the bran, the minerals, the protein, the precious wheat germ. Get a package of "Shreddies" from your grocer today.

No change in FLAVOUR
No change in SIZE
No change in SHAPE

Contains the precious WHEAT GERM

The wheat germ is a recognized source of Vitamin B1. This vitamin is vital to the normal development of children, as well as adults. "Shreddies" are made from whole wheat in which the wheat germ is retained.

*SHREDDIES is a registered trade mark owned in Canada by the Canadian Shredded Wheat Company Limited.

Letter From England

This week the boys of Grades VIII and VI, St. Peter's School, received a letter from Captain the Rev. W. C. McCarney from England, in acknowledgment of a gift of clothing made and sent, two months ago, to the refugee children in the locality in which Captain McCarney is stationed.

These boys themselves, assisted by their teachers, knit one large afghan and seven scarfs. To each block of the afghan and to each scarf was attached the name of the boy who knit it.

From several of the boys' homes, knitted sweaters, baby outfits, such as caps, jackets and bootees, were donated. In all, a total of two large parcels landed safely in England.

Knox Y.P.U.

On Tuesday evening Gladys Gerard took charge of the Young People's meeting at Knox church. Her theme was "Capital Letters" and she spoke on how, through words of faith in letters, others may be helped greatly. Kenn Kidd and Jack Clarke assisted her in the worship service. After the meeting the group adjourned for games led by Gladys Gerard and Kenn Kidd.

57th Chapter Will Hold Carnival To Aid War Work

The May meeting of the 57th Chapter I.O.D.E., was held yesterday afternoon in the Armouries. The Regent, Mrs. A. W. Turner, presided.

The usual heavy volume of business was transacted and the numerous reports from the various conveners were received. Mrs. Turner was selected to represent the local chapter in Montreal at the National Convention which is to be held in the near future.

Plans are being made for the carnival which is scheduled for the evenings of July 10 and 11 in James Stephenson Park (Riverside) and which is being jointly sponsored by the Y's Men's Club and the 57th Chapter. Tickets may be obtained from the members of both organizations. Proceeds are for war purposes.

A street dance is to be held on Friday evening, June 12, at the corner of Aylmer and Charlotte streets. Refreshment and bingo booths will be in operation. Everyone is urged to join in the fun and by so doing will help the Chapter in its war efforts.

All members of the Chapter are reminded of the annual visit to the cemetery on May 22 to honor our fallen heroes of the First Great War.

To Wed Soon

Miss Madeline Fitzgerald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fitzgerald, Peterborough, who is engaged to marry James Joseph Ludlow, son of Mrs. Ludlow and the late Edward Ludlow, Toronto. The wedding will take place in the near future.

Prior to the close of the meeting a pleasant surprise was enjoyed in the form of a very inspiring and educational talk by Mrs. Avison. Her topic was the little country of Korea, where Dr. and Mrs. Avison and their family lived for over twenty years. Korea is situated between Japan and Russia and is obviously no place for which people during the present conditions. The Avison family, along with numerous others, left there about three years ago.

To Wed in Toronto

Miss Gratia Maude Gordon, who will become the bride of Arthur Pomeroy Stinson, on June 5, in Deer Park United Church Chapel. Both are graduating from Victoria College and the wedding will take place on their graduation day. The bride-to-be is the daughter of J. F. Gordon, Windsor, and the late Mrs. Gordon, and her fiance is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Stinson of Peterborough.

Everybody's War

By MOLLY BROWN

Nobody — that is, nobody who is sane — would advocate war as a means of bringing about improvements; but nevertheless, it is inevitable that out of such chaos and upheaval as is caused by a war there should come forth some lasting changes for the better in our way of life. We have been told that this will be the making of Canada. It is to be hoped it is true. Perhaps with world markets and sources of supply cut off, we will learn better to appreciate and make use of our own resources. Artistically, if in no other way, this will be of enormous benefit to Canada generally, and to Peterborough in particular. With the war making heavier and heavier demands on our pockets, we will be less able to bring out-of-town talent here for our entertainment. We shall have to look about us, for talent nearer home. Some of us will have to discard that baggage label brand of artistic snobbery that makes us reject any artist who has not a New York, or at least a Toronto, background. We shall have to realize that genuine interest, talent and appreciation can do much to make up for lack of a glamorous career and approval of faraway critics. Not that we need expect to find very many Percy Graingers, Ruth Drapers or Thomas L. Thomases in our own backyard. But we will find real talent and genuine artistic appreciation and from these we shall build a sound foundation of artistic knowledge among our citizens that will be the foundation for a richer, fuller and more abundant life in the years to come. And the time may come, oh! Heavenly day! when we will hear less guitar playing and nasal wailing of cowboy songs, and more real music, at amateur concerts. And the competent, if not brilliant talent apparent in some of our church dramatics might be turned to something more worthwhile than farce-comedies. And who knows? We might discover a Paderewski, a Barrymore, or a Tibbetts in our midst. If we did, it would be nice to be able to say that we recognized and appreciated them long before New York and Toronto had even heard their names....The North End Workers, that small but hard-working group of war workers, are having a tea this afternoon and this evening at the home of Mrs. E. Doughty on Barnardo avenue.... Blessed is he that walketh to work; for his gas shall help to ferry a bomber to Britain. And blessed is the housewife who tieth up her newspapers; for the Salvage Collector shall speak well of her on the Judgment Day....Shortcakes are good sugar-free deserts — no sugar is required in their biscuit dough base....There will be no more false bottoms in fancy stationery boxes. Thank the Lord for small mercies! ....In England gas and electricity for domestic use will be rationed. People will read their own meters and govern themselves accordingly. If the ration is exceeded after the first two months the supply will be cut off....And yesterday afternoon another neon sign was seen being driven down Water street to adorn a store front somwehere or other.... In England there will be no gasoline for private motoring after June 1st. It can happen here.

St. James' W.M.S. Holds May Meeting

Following the theme prescribed for the W.M.S. for 1942, "The Faith by Which We Live," and for the month of May, "The Church, the Household of Faith," St. James' United Auxiliary carried out a most inspiring program on Tuesday afternoon in Wesley Hall with the president, Mrs. Wesley Rose in the chair. The business session showed the reception of two new members, Mesdames Ellis and Langhorne who were welcomed by the president and official staff. Instead of the usual annual mother and daughter banquet, the Auxiliary decided to canvass the members and the church and realized in cash over $41.

Mrs. E. M. Davis then took the chair for the devotional service when the scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Wagstaffe and prayer offered by Mrs. Woodley, Mrs. Cripps and Mrs. Ingham.

In honor of the recent Mother's Day Mrs. Rose made a brief address on "Mothers and the Home" and Mrs. R. B. English read a letter from a missionary teacher in China.

Departmental reports included Temperance by Mrs. Beavis, Christian stewardship by Mrs. S. Hanlon and community friendship by Mrs. George Rowe.

The Lord's Prayer in unison brought the meeting to a conclusion.

Three Young Singers Aid Kinsmen Milk Fund In Beautiful Recital

No one who has attended recitals by pupils of Dorothy Allan Park can fail to be impressed by the splendid taste with which the programs are chosen, and the graceful, almost professionally composed conduct of her pupils on the platform. Such characteristics, combined with the excellent technique, and fine musical appreciation shown by her pupils, make their recitals exceptionally pleasant to attend.

The recital of Wednesday evening, given by Olga Westbye, Alicia Langley and Margaret Westbye was no exception to the rule. These three young singers show talent and artistic ability and exceptionally fine voices. Their trios, notably a Nursery Rhyme Suite arranged by Custance, made enjoyable listening. Cohen's "In Our Boat" and "The Butterfly Chase" were very lovely and two folk dances tunes, "The Staines Morris," and the familiar "Kerry Dance" had grace and charm.

Margaret Westbye's voice is sweet and clear and she sings carefully, with fine technique. She seemed most at home in swift gay airs, and sang Mozart's "Batti, Batti" from Don Giovanni with skill and charm. Two Hebridean airs arranged by Kennedy Fraser, "The Christ-Child's Lullabye," and "Eriskay Love-lilt," seemed peculiarly suited to the haunting quality of her voice. Carey's "A Spring Morning" and Benedict's "The Wren" were also charming, but "Angels Ever Bright and Fair," by Handel, seemed a little lacking in expression.

Alicia Langley possesses a lively voice of remarkable purity, with a quality somehow reminiscent of the cool sound of a bubbling spring on a hot summer day. It's naturalness, and effortless grace rendered it an ideal vehicle for three simple songs, "The Cuckoo" by Liza Lehman, "In Summertime on Bredon," and "Ferry Ahoy" by Herbert Brewer. Of these "In Summertime on Bredon," was the most outstanding for Miss Langley showed a delicate feeling for the dramatic value of the gentle ballad. Two waltz songs, one by Edward German, and the other the brilliant "Ah! Je Veux Vivre" from Gounod's Romeo and Juliette, were graceful, but not quite so well suited to her voice. Thomas' charming "Me Voice dans son Boudoir" from Mignon she sang carefully and very beautifully.

Olga Westbye, in addition to a flexible voice of depth and richness, with a fairly wide range, is possessed of a keen dramatic sense that adds much to the effect of her songs. This quality made Handel's recitative, "I Thus Did Hope" and the aria "Conquered Is Love" and the Mozart recitative "E Susannah Non Vien?" and the aria "Dove Sono" from Figaro, outstandingly successful.

In her group of Scottish songs, Miss Westbye was a little inclined to overdo the dramatic effects, but her technique was unassailable and her Scottish brogue beyond criticism. Of the songs, perhaps the most effective was the vivacious "Whistle and I'll Come Tae Ye," but all had that authentic lilt and vigorous rhythm that seems to be a quality of Scottish airs. The other songs were "Bonnie Sweet Bessie," "Charlie is My Darlin'" and "Robin Adair."

A word should be said about the fine accompaniment of Gwen Craw or in several of the numbers her skill and artistry were outstanding. Mrs. Park's conducting of the trios, showed all the skill which Madrigal fans have learned to expect of her. Proceeds from this recital are in aid of the Milk for Britain Fund. Pupils from the studio of Dorothy Allan Park have already given $155.86 to war work to date.

C.G.I.T. Girls Entertain Their Mothers

A jolly group of mothers and daughters gathered together in the C.G.I.T. rooms of George St. Sunday school on Tuesday evening last.

Betty Blewett and Evelyn Roberts greeted the parents, whose names they pinned on them. Nancy Moore, the president, gave a pleasing address of welcome after which a shake-hand contest served to get the group better acquainted with each other. Mrs. E. Brown was first in this.

A short musical program was enjoyed, during which Miss Dorothy Ballard sang very beautifully, 'That Wonderful Mother of Mine.'

Much laughter was a result of an open forum during which mothers offered kindly suggestions for daughters and daughters suggested slight improvements for the mothers. Miss Hart and Mrs. L. Copp leaders, followed these up by some general suggestions.

Mrs. E. Brown and Mrs. H. Blewett presented a pleasing duologue entitled 'Letters for Mother.'

Prizes were given for the mother and daughter composing the most words from the letter 'Mother.' These were won by Mrs. F. Barrett, Mrs. Buck and Rev. Mrs. Roberts.

Animals and birds were made from cases, feathers, etc. Mrs. E. Brown, Mrs. (Rev.) Roberts and Margaret Avison received prizes for wonderful creations.

Mrs. Edwards was presented with a bouquet of flowers for the honour of being the youngest mother present.

After the program lunch was served. The table was beautiful with a yellow lace cloth upon which was a silver bowl of tulips and narcissi. The Misses Nancy Moore and Betty Blewett poured.

A vote of thanks was given by Rev. H. L. Roberts. Mrs. Copp replied fittingly.

With the singing of taps closed a very pleasant evening.

PERFECT FEMININE CHARM IS A VERY POTENT FORCE
In Its Essence It Perhaps Is Femininity Raised to Its Highest Power

Dear Miss Dix.—We hear a lot about certain girls possessing feminine charm. What is feminine charm? In what does it consist? Can it be acquired?—Agnes.

Answer. — Well, daughter, it is one of the most potent forces in the universe, yet no scientist has ever been able to classify it or separate its component parts. It is the intangible something that makes the women who posses it draw men to them as the magnet draws the needle, and that enables them to get away with murder and all the minor crimes, yet it is as difficult to describe as the bloom of a rose or the perfume of a lily. In its essence it is perhaps femininity raised to it 'nth power, and when you say that, you are trying to explain one mystery by another.

It is hard to enumerate just the qualities that go to make up feminine charm. Looks are one of the ingredients. Not beauty necessarily. Never hard, cold, bold handsomeness. But the woman who has feminine charm must be easy on the eyes and pleasant to look at. She must be exquisitely neat and dainty and her clothes must be soft and lovely and womanly. We may admire and respect a woman for her intelligence and her sterling qualities of character, but she throws away all of her feminine charm when she puts on breeches and gets herself up in imitation of a man. Nor would we ever speak of any slovenly and sloppy woman as having feminine charm.

Must Be Sweet and Gentle

Manners also go into the making of feminine charm. To have feminine charm a girl must be sweet and gentle and low voiced and soft-spoken. She must be gracious and considerate of other people's feelings. No woman who is rude, who says cutting and sarcastic things, who is loud-mouthed and quarrelsome can never be described as having feminine charm.

The girl who has feminine charm must be sympathetic and understanding., She must be pitiful to all weak and helpless creatures. She must be kind to the old and tender, to little children, and have that something about her that makes you want to tell her your troubles. No hard-boiled girl who is cynical and disillusioned has any feminine charm. No woman who can fight her weight in wild cats, and who is aggressive in trying to get the best of everything for herself, who considers babies brats and thinks old people should be sent to a Home for the Senile, or who is a wisecracker, has any feminine charm.

The girl who has feminine charm is not necessarily better than her sister who lacks it. She is just different and somehow more attractive, perhaps because she is more restful and more lovable and comes nearer to our ideal of what a woman should be.

Of course, feminine charm in its perfection is a gift, but an excellent synthetic brand may be made by any girl who will wear chiffons and mind her manners and cultivate a low, sweet voice.

Easy To Get First Date, But——

Dear Dorothy Dix.—I am a one-date man. It is no trouble for me to get the first date with a girl, but generally the first one is the last one. When I take a girl out I do my best to show her a good time, but apparently it isn't good enough to interest her. When I ask for another date I don't get it and usually the girl won't even speak to me again, yet I have no idea what I have done to offend her.

I am 27 years old, averagely good-looking, dress neatly but not flashily, but I have come to the conclusion from my experience that I am just naturally destined to remain a bachelor. What do you think is the matter with me?—Perplexed.

Answer.—I am sure I don't know, for in these days when everything male, from the kindergarten to the Home for Senile Grandpas, is being drafted into the army, and dates are as scarce as hen's teeth, I should think that any bachelor would have to go about encased in steel armor to protect himself from the ladies.

Of course, the dateless man is a far rarer species of fauna than the dateless girl, because a man can go out and hunt up girls to step out with him, whereas a girl has to wait until she is asked. But no doubt there are certain men who are allergic to girls and who date them only as a last resource.

Girls Are Not Choosy

When this is the case, it is almost invariably the boy's fault, for Heaven knows girls are not choosy and don't expect the average lad to have the looks of Robert Taylor and the technique of Clark Gable. So I would advise you to have a heart-to-heart session with yourself and try to find out what faults and foibles you have that make you non grata with the feminine sex.

Are you, by any chance, one of the lads who think that the way to give a girl a perfectly entrancing evening is by making her listen to your monologue about yourself? Do you spend hours and hours telling your date about when you were a little boy with pale green freckles on your hands, and all about your school days, and about your job and your automobile, and what you said to the boss and the boss said to you? If the price of being taken to the movies is being bored stiff, most girls would rather spend the evening at home with Papa or Mama.

Or, just as bad, are you a boy without a line? Have you the conversational range of a clam on ice so that a girl has to work like a coal heaver to keep the talk going? Can you never suggest any pleasant and amusing thing to do when you go out on a date? Do you never know what movie everybody is going to see, where there is a good band, a swell place to dance, where there is a restaurant that has good food? Do you tramp all over a girl's feet when you dance so that she fears she is crippled for life? Do you argue with waiters? And—oh, horrors!—do you carry a little book and set down the price of everything you spend?

And are you a petter? Do you expect a girl to pay for a hamburger and a soft drink with five dollars' worth of being mauled? If you do any, or all, of these things, you probably will find out why girls don't date you but once.

Missed His Chance

Dear Miss Dix.—Nine months ago I was going to marry a girl, but I did not want to get married for two years. She wanted to marry at once, so we broke up. I saw her a week ago and I know I still love her and she loves me, but she is now married. I told her I was a fool for not marrying her then, and she said she should have waited for me. I see her very often and we always want to be together. What should I do?—E.

Answer.—You should do exactly what you should do if another man had a car that you coveted. Quit thinking about it. Accept the fact that it was another man's property and not try to purloin it. Wife-stealing is the worst form of dishonesty.

CUTICURA SOAP and OINTMENT

Plains Tops, Printed Skirts

By ALICE ALDEN

A REVERSAL of last year's flowered top and plain skirt is appearing in many of the newest collections. This season the boldly printed fabric is used for the skirt and monotone for the top, especially for dinner dresses. Bette Davis likes this fashion so well that she has chosen it in more than one color scheme. This frock has an interestingly draped top of brilliant green that dominates the floral print used for the skirt. The top has a twisted front, V neck and cap sleeves, and the fabric is a fine silk jersey. A tailored belt with buckle set with cabachon stones is an added detail.

CARIBBEAN CRISIS . . . .

By EATON K. GOLDTHWAITE

and even Old Man Winters himself were tiny unwitting pieces, relentlessly underway?

"Who hired you?" Talcott demanded.

MacDowell hesitated, hefting the revolver. His eyes masked his thoughts now, the veiled cunning eyes of the paid manhunter facing his quarry. To MacDowell it didn't matter whether Talcott was guilty or not; he was doing a job for which he was being paid. His orders were to bring Talcott back if the auditor proved a shortage. The fact that Abas was a Dutch island meant nothing to MacDowell. There hadn't been any officers at the dock. So far as he could see he was the only law on the island; there wouldn't be any embarrassing matters of extradition to worry about. MacDowell's biggest worry was the prospect of six more days of trying to keep something on his stomach.

That worry vanished from MacDowell's mind when he saw Talcott's face. Strained, white, tense, blackness beyond the terrace. And then MacDowell heard it. Above soughing wind in the palms sounded the sudden, imperative bleat of a whistle.

DINNERS OF THE WEEK

By MARY MOORE

SUNDAY
Tray of Appetizers: Radish Roses, Cheese Stuffed Celery Sections, Carrot Curls, Watercress
Roast Loin of Pork
Pan Roasted New Potatoes with Skins on
Asparagus
Orange Pudding (see note) Coffee

NOTE: This pudding is unusual in its treatment of a meringue—the pudding itself is delicate in flavor and has the texture half way between a custard and blanc mange. First scald 1 pint milk in top of double boiler. While it is getting very hot, beat two egg whites until very stiff, and when stiff add 2 teaspoons sugar. Drop this onto the top of the scalded milk, let it rest there for 1 minute, then carefully turn over, to cook the outside of the top of the meringue. After 1 more minute remove meringue to bowl. Do not put whites on top of milk until it is scalding.

To the 2 egg yolks remaining add ¾ tablespoon cornstarch, rind and juice 1 orange, 3 tablespoons sugar, 1 drop of vanilla, dash of salt, and 2 tablespoons cold milk. Stir to a smooth paste and gradually stir into the hot milk, until it begins to thicken, and immediately remove from heat and pour into cold bowl. Tip meringue on top of it while hot, garnish with fine strips of orange rind, and chill thoroughly before serving.

MONDAY
(Vegetaran Meal)
Cream of Corn Soup
Stuffed Baked Potatoes with Cheese
Harvard Beets
Buttered String Beans
Strawberry Shortcake Coffee

TUESDAY
Clear Tomato Soup
Beef Cakes Baked in Tomato Juice
Escalloped Potatoes
Asparagus
Cabbage and Celery Salad
Sliced Bananas and Cream
Coffee

WEDNESDAY
"Swissed" Pork Liver
Baked Potatoes
Cold Canned Tomatoes
Shredded Head Lettuce
Pumpkin Pie with Whipped Cream
Coffee

THURSDAY (Economical)
Cheese Strata Pudding
Mashed Carrots
Cabbage and Parsley Salad with Boiled Dressing
Rhubarb Upside Down Cake
Coffee

FRIDAY
Boston Fish Chowder
Asparagus on Toast with Hollandaise
Peach or Apricots Betty with Cream Coffee

SATURDAY
Cold Sliced Roast Pork (from Sunday
Casserole of Escalloped Cabbage with Crumbs (see note)
Canned Limas
Fruit Cup of Fresh Pineapple Cubes
Orange Sections, Banana Slices
Cookies Coffee

NOTE: Recently researchers have found that cabbage loses as high as 70 per cent of its magnesium and calcium, and 60 per cent of its phosphorus when boiled, and the boiling water is poured down the sink. So when you see us advocating escalloped cabbage or shredded cabbage cooked in milk in top of double boiler, remember we are conserving your minerals. The ideal way to serve cabbage is raw, any cooking has a deleterious effect on vitamins.

Massage Can Smooth Away Those Lines

Easy to Learn Beauty Care

Learning modern, scientific beauty methods will help you hold off those ageing lines about the eyes and mouth for a long, long time.

A trained beauty operator would provide special massage to tighten the drooping temple muscles that cause crow's feet. And you can give yourself the same professional treatments.

After cleansing the face thoroughly, work cream into the skin, kneading and stroking upwards on the forehead from just in front of the ears to the hairline and from the eyebrows to the hairline, as the diagram shows.

Now knead and stroke outward from the outer corner of each eye. Follow with a brisk patting with cream and a final patting with astringent.

How to correct drooping mouth corners, a double chin? Expert facial treatments are explained in our 32-page booklet. Tells how to apply make-up, care for hair and hands. Advises on correcting dry and oily skins, coarse pores and blackheads, removing superfluous hair.

For your copy of "How to Give Beauty Treatments" send 15 cents in coins or stamps to Peterborough Examiner Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

LEARN THE PATTERN

UNTIL YOU learn the pattern necessary for making a double squeeze play, you are not very likely to put one over, except by sheer luck. Usually, besides the card on which neither opponent can follow suit, there is a card in the same hand which you can lead to the top card of its suit in the opposite holding, and also a single card of the third suit which can be guarded only by the defender at its right, and in the opposite hand, another single card of the fourth suit which can be guarded only by the defender at its right. If you build that arrangement, the opponents are squeezed beyond repair.

North: ♠ A K J 8 2 ♥ Q ♦ 8 7 ♣ A Q 9 7 6

West: ♠ 10 7 ♥ 10 5 4 ♦ 9 5 4 ♣ K J 8 4 2

East: ♠ 9 5 3 ♥ K 8 7 6 ♦ Q J 10 6 3 ♣ 3

South: ♠ Q 6 4 ♥ A J 9 3 2 ♦ A K 2 ♣ 10 5

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♥	Pass	3 ♣	Pass
3 NT	Pass	4 NT	Pass
5 ♥	Pass	6 ♣	Pass

At one table of a Bridge-for Ambulances tournament in Boston, the declarer tried for a double squeeze to make an extra trick, but failed. After the spade 10 to the Q, he sent through the club 10, then finessed the 9, brought the heart Q through and then ran the rest of the spades, which he followed with the club A. This seemed to bother East, who cut down to two diamonds in order to hold two hearts, but when West followed with the club J, he was also able to hold three diamonds, so that a diamond was dropped at the end.

The real mistake here was failure to take the heart A early and leave only the J as a squeeze threat against East's K. The squeeze could be made still more simple by cashing the diamond K rather early, so that the last spade would be led to the eleventh trick, with the proper setup, as was done by Mrs. Richmond H. Skinner, Massachusetts state chairman of the Bridge-for-Ambulance campaign, who with her partner won the tournament.

When she finally called the spade 8, she had in the dummy also the diamond 8 and the club Q. East could not discard the heart K, or it would make the dummy's J good, so trashed the diamond J. Now the heart J was thrown from the South hand and West was squeezed. If he tossed his club K, the Q and the diamond A would have ended the hand. He put off one of his two diamonds, whereupon the diamond A and 2 brought in the last two tricks.

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠ J 8 6 ♥ Q 5 ♦ J 9 8 7 3 ♣ J 9 2

West: ♠ A K Q 5 ♥ 6 ♦ K Q 10 5 4 ♣ K 8 4

East: ♠ 9 7 3 2 ♥ K 9 8 7 ♦ 2 ♣ A 6 5 3

South: ♠ 10 4 ♥ A J 10 4 3 2 ♦ A 6 ♣ Q 10 7

(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

If South bids and rebids hearts on this deal, and then leads the diamond A and 6, how would you play this hand in the East to make 4-Spades?

MILLBROOK

3-Act Comedy Brings $100 For Red Cross

MILLBROOK, May 14—(ENS)—A capacity audience greeted the presentation of the play "Tillie's Tea Garden" in the Town Hall on Friday evening, all receipts, which amounted to approximately $100, going to the local Red Cross. Rev. A. Raeburn Gibson directed the three-act comedy and introduced the characters after the raising of the curtain for the first act.

Mr. Gibson also mentioned the many ups and downs encountered, a number who had been taking characters being called up for military service, while others were out through illness; this meant that two of the cast, Percy Hamilton and Jean Burnham had filled in during the week, and had had the benefit of only three practices. In spite of these drawbacks, the play was remarkably well presented, and it is hoped will be invited to a number of outside points in order to increase the funds of the Red Cross.

The Tea Garden Plot.

Briefly, the play is concerned with the venture of Tillie Thompson (Mrs. M. W. Kinsman) to mend her fallen fortunes by utilizing the old home and surrounding orchard, all that was left of her father's property, as a tea garden. Opposition to the success of the enterprise came from Duke Hennigan (Tom Beich), owner of the nefarious Happy Days Club, who was determined to secure Tillie's place for his own organization, and used to aid him Nick Shane (Gordon Muspratt), his gangster pal.

Standing loyally by Tillie, heroine of the play, who filled an exacting role with marked success, were Roy Elliott (Eric Fallis), editor, proprietor, "and even the office boy who sweeps out the place," of the town paper known as the Sentinel; Silas Hilton (Clifford Larmer), the town banker, who finally broke with Hennigan with whom he had been secretly allied; his son Bob Hilton (Gordon Might), who influenced his father's decision to help Tillie to the limit of his power; Myrtle McGee (Lillian Footit), a waitress, who walked out on Hennigan when she found the evil character of the place he was running; Beth Harding (Jean Burnham), the cashier whose persistent gum chewing apparently helped out with the odd idea that found a lodging place in her head; and last, but certainly not least, Uncle Andy Crump (Percy Hamilton), who had a leading part in the play, kept the audience in a gale of laughter throughout, particularly with his tall stories, which he asserted were "pretty true," and who deserves special credit for the manner in which a role, assumed almost at the last minute, was carried through with little prompting, and a clever response to every situation which arose. Connie Dean (Beatrice Fallis), a manicurist, and intimate friend of Bob Hilton's, was another loyal helper of Tillie's.

Another character taken with outstanding dramatic ability, was that of Mrs. Tuttle (Mrs. Franklin Bannister), president of the Silver Thimble League, who had a deep aversion for Uncle Andy Crump, generally known as "a modern Ananias," as well as for Duke Hennigan, Nick Shane, and the other gangsters. Her league members, Mrs. Gargle (Mrs. F. J. Smith), Mrs. Perchpole (Mrs. C. Thorndyke), Mrs. Pickerel (Mrs. J. McKnight, Mrs. Horseradish (Mrs. H. W. Johnston), and Mrs. Starchfield (Mrs. T. A. Campbell) were always ready to follow their leader in the search for news, and especially when it came to investigating late hours and visitors at Tillie's Tea Garden.

All Ends Well.

In the end Tillie's love affair with Roy Elliott turned out happily, Henigan, by a clever ruse, is driven out of town. Nick Shane, who hadn't been as true to Hennigan as the latter supposed, accepted honest employment with Mr. Hilton, Mrs. Tuttle, and the other Thimble Leaguers were appeased, and Uncle Andy Crump, as the final curtain fell, was still asserting his improvement in character "since I got religion back in the Red Hills."

Costumes and staging were excellent, and the welcome to the large audiences on both Friday and Saturday evenings when the play was repeated was extended by Rev. A. L. Sisco, president of the Red Cross. While the people were gathering and between the acts, Mrs. Gordon Muspratt played piano selections, and between the first and second acts John Bradshaw of Peterborough made a strong plea for generous support of the Red Cross drive, which began on Monday, May 11, and for which the levy on Millbrook, Cavan, and South Monaghan is $3,000. T. A. Campbell is the local campaign leader.

Previous to the National Anthem at the close of the Red Cross play on Friday night, the members of the cast presented Rev. A. Raeburn Gibson with a Waterman desk pen and holder in token of their appreciation of his fine services in directing the three-act comedy. Mrs. Franklin Bannister made an informal address, and the gift was presented by Mrs. M. W. Kinsman.

Fight, Withdraw, But Always Fight Tale Of British Retreat On Burma

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associatd Press Staff Writer

CALCUTTA, May 11 (Delayed)—(AP)—Across cactus plains seared by desert heat, through steamy jungle swamps, hidden deep in black leech-infested mud the survivors of the British Army in Burma are fighting on in the toughest evacuation of the second Great War.

Harassed by enemy fighters and bombers which for nearly seven weeks have been overwhelmingly supreme, stabbed at from ambush by blood-crazed bands of native traitors, the haggard and weary riflemen of half a dozen one-time crack battalions of British regiments, armored force crews and wiry sepoys from Indian units are approaching within a few scores of miles of the mountainous Assam frontier of Indian—a frontier where the Japanese invaders can and must be held at bay.

What happened in Burma constitutes a military tragedy for the United Nations—as bitter in its way as Singapore, Java and Manila.

For the pitifully small handful of soldiers from two divisions which lost lower Burma, for the few understrength Chinese divisions which stemmed the Japanese conquest for more than a month in central Burma observers have had nothing but praise.

They were ordered to do what events proved impossible. Their casualties were appalling.

For hundreds of miles it was a case of fight, withdraw and fight again.

No Air Aid by April

Every mile backward Allied air support faded until in April there literally was nothing left.

Always enemy troops and Burmese treachery increased.

The fall of Rangoon March 8 doomed Burma. The British in the ranks knew it as well as the officers. They kept on fighting. They are fighting today.

What British troops reach the rugged Indian frontier will make their way on foot. Their 12-ton tanks with the cherry red desert rat insignia, their six-wheeled and four-wheeled trucks, their mobile anti-aircraft artillery, their field artillery admittedly cannot be manhandled over 150 miles of sandy wastes and swampy morasses to the nearest Assam passes that can be negotiated by motors.

Upper Burma never was linked to neighboring India by even one good road. If there had been one the Burma disaster might not have happened.

Instead of one lone battalion sent to Burma from India by air after the loss of Rangoon, several divisions might have been hurried across by road to throw back the reinforced Japanese.

Thirteen days ago on military order I left the bomb-smashed town of Shwebo, 60 miles northwest of Mandalay coincident with the transfer of British army headquarters to Myitkyina which is halfway from Shwebo to the eternal snows of Tibet.

Defeat that had stared the British army in the face since the enemy broke through to the Rangoon delta in February as no longer a probability. It was an acknowledged fact.

In a thunder storm before dawn I drove past a ramshackle school where the bomb-wounded lay groaning on bare tables.

Fresh forces of the Indian army are manning the Assam frontier. They appeared calm, determined, mentally ready for the first clash with the enemy.

London Buries Blitz Days Crowds Streets

By ALLAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, May 14. — (CP). — The cabby waved towards milling crowds along Piccadilly Circus of a sunny afternoon and said "it's just like before the war—never saw so many people out since we had our first bombings."

He was right. London is full. Her people have returned in great numbers to scenes they left as evacuees just prior to or while German bombs blitzed whole blocks of buildings.

After long suffering, the commando raids on Nazi territory and increased air offensive with waves of 300 British bombers smashing at the Axis industrial cities, have brought cheer to these people of Britain. Smashing of the German city of Lubeck by the Royal Air Force and the R.C.A.F. is to these people the start of that long-promised offensive and at home there now is more faith than ever in the eventual victory of the United Nations.

Shops are crowded. Long queues form at cinemas, theatres, favorite eating spots, tobacco stores and dog-food shops. People jam night clubs and pubs.

To-day it is a different London indeed. Few buildings remain as they were left by fire and bomb. There are no roads blocked off on account of time bombs. There are no bomb holes in roads to send buses by roundabout routes.

London, since those grim days, has been cleaned up. But none who went through the blitz forgets it and in all the all-night shelters in Greater London 25,000 people still sleep night after night. This is the figure given by the Health Ministry.

Shelters Community Spots

Social workers agree that fear isn't the reason for the bulk of these sleepers using shelters. Rather, it is said, great friendships were formed in shelters during the all-night blitzes of last year and now the shelter has become a communal hotel or club where each occupant has his own bunk reserved.

The women gather in groups gossiping, knitting, playing bridge and drinking tea. The men play cards, read, or pick their favorites at the greyhound races.

Hereabouts they call these underground night dwellers "shelter cabbages." But it is a term used affectionately. Many of them seek companionship because their husbands are in the armed forces, or their wives were evacuated to the country and stayed there.

And about the children of London—officials say those who have slept in these shelters every night for 18 months are remarkably healthy. They consider such health due to the air conditioning and general cleanliness of present day shelters—and to general Cockney resistance.

Arms, Legs Stiff, Sore And Swollen—Tells Of Relief

"Suffering of Eight Months Has Left Me Since Taking Syntona." Also Relieved Gas Bloating and Dizziness.

Nearly every day you can read in the paper how some one has obtained good results by using Syntona, but perhaps no one is more pleased than Mrs. D. McLean, 195 Victoria Avenue North, Hamilton, Ontario, who has reported the following splendid experience:

"For over eight months I was a terrible sufferer with stiff, swollen joints of my legs and arms. My limbs were so sore and painful that I had great difficulty going up or down stairs. At the same time I had a lot of trouble with my stomach. Gas always formed after meals, causing a heavy, full, bloated feeling. I felt so tired and weary all through the day, but because of the pain and upset condition of my nerves, I just couldn't seem to get to sleep after going to bed at night.

"I tried a great many different things but got no real relief until I found out about Syntona. In the few short weeks that I've been taking this medicine the pains, stiffness and soreness have gone out of my arms and legs. I can get around fine now and it helped my stomach, too. The gas and that distressed, uncomfortable feeling do not trouble me, although I eat heartily. Since I am sleeping better at night, I do not feel tired-out like I used to and you can imagine how thankful I am. I earnestly recommend Syntona."

Syntona is made from the finest grade Herbs, Roots and Barks. It acts on stomach, kidneys liver and bowels and accomplishes these good results by aiding in the elimination of excess acids and poisonous waste matter, and in the assimilation of food for increased energy and resistance. It contains no minerals or harsh drugs.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Peterborough at Elliott's Drug Store.—(Advt.)

British Heads Arrive For Air Meet

Power Out To Achieve Standardization To Pool Aircrews

OTTAWA, May 15—(CP).— The British delegation to the Ottawa Air Training Conference, except Harold Balfour, Under-Secretary for Air and leader of the British group, has arrived at Dorval Airport near Montreal, it was announced today.

Mr. Balfour is on this side of the Atlantic but came a different route and will arrive in Ottawa tomorrow night, the announcement said.

Members of the delegation coming here to represent the United Kingdom, as named several days ago, are: Capt. Balfour, Air Marshal P. Babington, Air member for personnel; Air Marshal A. G. Garrod, air member for training; Sir John Abraham, deputy undersecetary of State for Air; Air Marshal L. D. D. McKean, head of the United Kingdom Air Liaison Mission; Air Marshal L. N. Hollinghurst, Director-General of Organization, Air Ministry; Group Capt. D. V. Carnegie.

Other representatives will be Rt. Hon. Malcolm MacDonald, United Kingdom High Commissioner here, and Gordon Munro of his office.

Wants Standardization

OTTAWA, May 15—(CP).—Standardization of air training methods with a view to making possible a certain degree of pooling of aircrews among the United Nations is seen by Air Minister Power as one of the objectives to be sought at next week's air training conference.

Burma Gone, Britons Reach India

Battered Remnants Escape Jap Trap Cross Manipur Line

NEW DELHI, India, May 15 — (CP).—British forces retreating up the Chindwin River Valley of Burma toward the Indian frontier have extricated themselves from their dangerous situation, it was said officially today.

A small British force which had been left in the port town of Akyab to carry out demolitions has been successfully evacuated by sea to India. The Japanese now hold Akyab.

London reported the last weary remnants of the British army in Burma—estimated at 5,000 men—were reported today to have crossed into Manipur State in eastern India, ending a gallant but disheartening five-month battle against the Japanese invaders.

The final withdrawal of the small British force from the turbulent colony where native treachery and lack of air support made British positions untenable was accompanied by recurrent Axis reports that the Japanese had crossed into India.

These remained unconfirmed in London or elsewhere, however.

The Vichy radio quoted vague reports that the Japanese were advancing along the bay of Bengal to within 16 miles of Chittagong, which is 80 miles inside India.

Japs 125 Miles Into China

On the other side of Burma, the Japanese at last report were about 125 miles inside China in a push up the Burma road.

The Chinese who fought the Japanese half way across Burma were engaging one invader column at Tengyueh, in Yunnan province, China, while another Japanese force was reported on the west bank of the Saleen river. The Chinese were reported holding the east bank after having destroyed the bridges.

Thus the Japanese have been forestalled in their move to get between the Indian border and the British forces in Burma.

Coinciding with the withdrawal,

U.S. Cruiser Sunk On Arctic Run Is Berlin Claim

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts), May 15—(AP)).—The German high command claimed today that its air force, flung into battle on the Arctic supply line to Russia, had destroyed a United States cruiser and destroyer as well as a 3,000-ton icebreaker and a 2,000-ton merchant vessel.

The communique said also that a 10,000-ton freighter was set fire from stem to stern in a connected action while at a southern English port bombers destroyed four British merchant ships totalling 7,500 tons.

The communique said the cruiser was of the 9,100-ton Pensacola class (which normally carries 663 men) and identified the naval formation as an American squadron operating between the north cape of Norway and the Arctic island of Spitsbergen.

(The locale of the action — apart from the German claims, which might have been drawn to gain information on disposition of the United States naval power—was the first indication that American fleet units were operating so deeply on the supply route to Murmansk and Archangel).

"Destroyer Down Too"

The communique gave no details. DNB, the news agency, however, said that the cruiser was bombed on Thursday, took fire and sank at mid-

MINDEN, May 15. — A $100,000 blaze swept through half Minden's main business section early this morning gutting nine buildings and two gas stations, leaving thirteen people homeless. The village is only 16 miles from Kinmount, less than a month ago burned out in an even worse disaster and citizens of this village are convinced a firebug is at work.

About the time of the blaze which started in the back of W. Brinteli's Bakery near the bake ovens at 4.30 a.m. several residents reported they were awakened by a noise as of someone falling over some obstacle giving rise to the firebug angle.

First noticed by L. Winch, hotel proprietor, a general alarm brought out a bucket brigade of almost every citizen and about 150 workers swung water from the nearby Gull River onto the flames. The community without fire fighting apparatus of any kind was fighting a losing battle as the fire sweeping from the bakery ignited buildings on both sides and continued on down the street.

Arrived With Small Pump

Tom Archer of Mattahanick Inn, 16 miles north on Highway No. 35 brought down his Johnston Motor fire pump and a long string of two inch hose and the Lindsay pumper arrived after a hair-raising 52 mile dash in 54 minutes, pulling in about 6.30, and then the flames were given a fight in earnest.

Fortunately a light southwest breeze fanned the flames away from the stores on the south side of the street and together with tarpaulins hung in front of the stores across the road and roof watchers, the entire side was saved.

Despite the fact that there were three explosions when gas in the two service station pumps went up and ammunition in Hartle's store let go, no one was injured.

Buildings Destroyed

Places razed were the fruit market, now closed; Minden Echo printing plant with town library above; Cliff's Cafe, owned by Mrs. Lott; the Post Office; Garnet Lytle's Radio store; Phillip Taylor's Shell gas station and garage; W. Brintnell's Bakery; Lorne Dawson's insurance office; J. Eason's butcher shop; Bert Hartle's general store; Hartle's B.A. service station and ice cream parlor.

Families left homeless in five apartments were Mr. and Mrs. Bert Hartle, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Brintnell, daughter Margaret, Mr. and Mrs. Bert McKelvey and four children, Philip Taylor and Roy Steele.

Telephone communications were cut for several hours but the pumper arrived in time to save the central office and a barber shop owned

Nazi Ambassador To Japan Told To Increase Pressure For Jap Attack On Russia

Sevastopol Garrison Lunges At Nazis In Effort To Ease Peninsula Pressure; Hitler Taken Aback By Power Of Soviets

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, May 15—(CP).—Sweeping across the Donets River on a 50-mile front, Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's Red Army was reported tonight to have crashed through the inner defences of Kharkov in at least two places, driving the Germans before them.

Diplomatic sources in London said they had heard that Hitler was so taken aback by the unexpected power of the Soviet attack that he has instructed his Ambassador to Tokyo to increase pressure on Japan for an attack on Russia.

The argument to Japan was said to be that Russia had concentrated so much on the European front that she could offer little resistance to an attack against Siberia.

Reuters dispatch datelined "on the German frontier," said Russian troops had forced their way seven miles west of the Donets River and the Germans are "retirin slowly" while awaiting reinforcements.

"A major tank combat took place in one sector, with a large number of tanks participating on both sides," said Red Star.

Wedge In Defences

"Forcing a water barrier, our tanks by a powerful thrust split the enemy's concentration of troops and drove a wedge into his defences.

"Then our infantry moved into the breach and consolidated the occupied positions."

More than 20 wrecked German tanks were found at a single point, the Russian accounts said.

Apparently referring to the same action, other reports said the Red Army was operating on the west bank of a large river which it had crossed earlier while the stream still was ice-coated.

The Germans blew up all bridges, but the Russians threw up new ones and poured across during a storm of German aerial bombs. Then they fanned out on the western shore.

The first line of German defences, which the Russians said was captured two days ago, was described as a vast zone of pillboxes, anti-tank obstacles, minefields and fortified farmhouses, covering every open space with a heavy crossfire of artillery.

But the Red artillery pounded gaps in the series of fortifications, then the tanks rolled forward and the infantry charged to clean up the positions with flashing bayonets.

(In London a Reuters dispatch from "the German frontier" said the Russians had pushed seven miles west of the Donets River, apparently the stream the Russian accounts did not identify.)

Details were not available immediately, but it was said the captures occurred at approximately the same time, 11 a.m.

Germany Blitzed Worse Than U.K.

OTTAWA, May 15—(CP).—British air raids on German war targets are inflicting damage far beyond that suffered by Great Britain at the height of the blitz, Malcolm MacDonald, United Kingdom High Commissioner to Canada, said today at a press conference.

Mr. MacDonald returned last week from Britain where he spent six weeks. During the visit he stayed at Royal Air Force bombing headquarters for a day and a night and saw photographs of damage caused in raids on Rostock the Paris suburbs and Hamburg.

"The destruction being done in Germany is terrific," he told interviewers. "I would not have believed it if I had not seen the pictures.

"Acres and acres of factory buildings and other centres from which Germany wages war have been destroyed."

"Of course," he added, "this is only the beginning and a fraction of the destruction we shall have to do if we are going to knock Germany out."

Delay Accepting Chinese Army Aid Lack Of Planes Behind Burma Loss

By DANIEL DELUCE
Associated Press Staff Writer

CALCUTTA, India, May 15—(AP).—Two factors shaped the course of the war in Burma which so far has been so disastrous to British and Chinese forces.

One was the delay in accepting and bringing in veteran Chinese troops who, in proper numbers, would have been capable of making the Rangoon delta as tough a nut to crack as Crimea.

The second was the expulsion of Allied aircraft from Burma bases by concentrated Japanese bombing and strafing of all available landing grounds.

The first factor decided the campaign; the second turned reverses into evacuation because the Allied armies had to fight blindly without aerial reconnaissance.

This opinion comes from senior officers—British, Chinese and American.

By the maximum use of an army authoritatively estimated not to exceed four divisions and an air force probably not more than 450 planes, Japan drove a wedge from the Bay of Bengal nearly to the borders of Tiber in a four-month campaign that practically separated two of her greatest foes.

Chinese Halt In Shan

In February one Chinese brigade magically appeared in the Shan states, hiking there on foot. One crack division of the Indian army docked in Rangoon and was sent overnight by train to the Salween river line. More than a month elapsed before the Japanese broke into Rangoon March 8, but in all that time not a Chinese trooper was sent southward from the Shan states.

Observers agreed that an Indian

Hard On Neutrality

Mexico Threatens Berlin After Lighted Ship Sunk

MIAMI, Fla., May 15—(AP)). — Mexico's efforts to preserve neutrality in the present war were strained today after an Axis submarine stalked at night a fully-lighted oil tanker and sent a torpedo crashing into the illuminated Mexican flag painted on her side.

Fourteen men died, including the captain and deck officers who had gathered on the bridge when the undersea boat began its cat-and-mouse game half an hour before the torpedo finally came. Twenty-two survivors reached shore, but Rodolpho Chacon, 54-year-old seaman, died at a hospital of internal injuries. An undetermined number of Canadians were in the crew.

The ship, the 7,500-ton Potrero del Llano, became an inferno. Thousands of persons gathered on the sands of Miami beach, after the torpedoing Wednesday night, and for hours watched the flames and towering pillar of smoke from the tanker before it sank.

In Mexico City, the Government addressed a note to Germany, Italy and Japan last night demanding "complete satisfaction and a guarantee of damage reparations" by May 21, threatening otherwise to "take a position in accordance with Mexican honor."

There were calls for a declaration of war on the Axis.

Purges, Gestapo Fail on 'Slave' Saboteurs

Belgians Make Powderless Shells — Czech Planes Run Only 60 Hrs. — Lose Freight

By J. F. SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(CP).—Reports are reaching Washington of widespread sabotage among the captive states of Europe despite brutal suppressive measures by the Gestapo and the wholesale execution of hostages by the German occupation forces.

One report, relayed here from London, told of Belgian workers failing to fill 1,500,000 cartridges with powder at a plant at Herstal. From occupied France come stories of burning of food stocks requisitioned by the Germans, the wrecking of trains and radio stations. German soldiers are shot in Norway and the Netherlands while even in Italy a tank plant at Aosta had to shut down because the supply of electricity had been sabotaged.

Not much is heard from Czecho-Slovakia but it is generally agreed here among men qualified to pass an opinion that the Czechs are the most scientific saboteurs in Europe and are causing the Axis more industrial damage than any other people.

The Czechs do not go in for shooting Germans from ambush, pushing them into canals or setting before German officers a tasty-looking dish afire with pepper. The Czechs go in for sabotage on a scientific scale despite all the efforts of the Germans to crush their spirit.

Col. Vladimir Hurban, Czech Minister to the United States, explained it in these words:

"The Czechs build an airplane engine for the Germans. It will fly—but only for 60 or 100 hours. Then the plane falls apart.

"Detouring a train is more effective than derailing one. Chalk marks are put on freight cars to indicate their destination. Those marks can be changed. And the cars end up by going in all directions except the distribution point for supplies to the German front.

"It is hard for the Germans to trace such acts and thus we avoid losing our bravest and most resourceful men."

Other forms of resistance are less sensational. In huge factories like Skoda, a slow-down can cause a terrific loss of production if a great many workers figure out seemingly innocent ways to waste time.

This was so widespread last fall that the Germans executed 400 men and recently have launched a new and drastic anti-sabotage campaign. The Nazis always refer to these men as Communists or Jews.

On the farms, too, the peasants are doing their part to harrass the Germans. Arrests have been frequent recently and many peasants were put to death for failing to deliver sufficient crops to the Germans.

Even the Nazified puppet state of Slovakia has given off some rumblings of discontent recently. Relatively speaking, Hitler was lenient with the Slovaks when he overran Czechoslovakia after the Munich agreement, the idea being to split them from the Czechs. The Nazis didn't starve the Slovaks. They left minor officials in office and the peasants, not coming into contact with their overlords were reasonably content.

Then Hitler called on the Slovaks or aid in his war against Russia. Many deserted to the Soviets. Discontent among the home folks grew, particularly because the Czechs had never been mobilized.

Bail Out In Thunderstorm

2 R.C.A.F. Fliers Safe—Civilian Pilot Lands It

TORONTO, May 15 — (CP). — Two young Toronto members of the Royal Canadian Air Force stationed at the Air Observers' School, Malton Airport, were forced to bail out of their training plane near Wardsville, Ont., late last night during a violent thunderstorm, No. 1 Air Training Comamnd announced today. Neither was injured.

Officials said Lac. J. W. Gibson reported back to headquarters shortly after landing but that an all-night search was conducted for PO. J. R. Bradley, who reported back to the Training School this morning. No reason was given for the latter's delay, and officials said PO. Bradley's mother had been informed the flier was missing.

Headquarters said the airmen were told to jump from the plane by J. W. Jenkins, a civilian pilot attached to the school who landed the plane at London Airport.

"The plane was buffeted around for some time by a violent storm," said an official.

"The terrific wind blew the aircraft all over the sky and the rain was coming down in torrents," Jen-

ALLIED ACES OUTGUN JAPANESE FLIERS OVER RABAUL HARBOR

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, May 15 (CP). — For the second successive day, long-range Allied bombers hammered yesterday at Japanese shipping in the harbor of Rabaul, New Britain, and scored a smashing victory over enemy fighters which tried to intercept them, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

Seven of 17 Japanese planes which engaged the raiders in a furious battle were shot down. All Allied raiders returned safely from their mission, a communique said.

The Allied planes damaged a transport in the strategic harbor, one of the bases from which a Japanese fleet sallied forth less than two weeks ago to meet defeat in the Coral Sea.

Another formation of Allied bombers simultaneously attacked the Japanese seaplane base in the Deboyne Island group in the Louisiade Archipelago off the southeast tip of New Guinea, sinking an enemy seaplane and setting fire to shore installations, headquarters said.

The Japanese struck back by twice attacking Port Moresby, Allied outpost on the southern shore of New Guinea, but were reported to have lost two fighter planes in these assaults without doing any important damage.

Thirteen Japanese fighters strafed the airdrome in the first assault upon Port Moresby and 26 heavy bombers, escorted by fighters, attacked shipping in the harbor in the second raid.

Too Hot For the Japs.

The strength of the opposition encountered by the Allied planes over Rabaul was interpreted by observers as a tribute to the effectiveness of previous attacks upon that target.

These quarters said it was evident the Japanese felt called upon to take stern measures in an effort to break up repeated Allied attacks which apparently are making Rabaul too hot for comfort.

Only the day before yesterday Allied raiders surprised 15 Japanese bombers on the runway of Rabaul airdrome, plastered them with bombs and then attacked shipping in the harbor without being engaged by enemy fighters.

The Deboyne Island group — a cluster of three islets in a coral-Girt Lagoon—was last attacked by Allied air raiders on Monday, when a tank, seaplanes, stores and buildings were reported damaged.

The same area was hammered for five successive days the pre-

100 Trees Planted On Burnham's Point

Wartime Housing Limited has planted one hundred trees in their Burnham's Point community as part of a landscaping plan for the beautification of the entire property.

Lawns have been laid out and built up with top soil and planted with grass seed, and from six to twelve shrubs have been set out at each house. H. S. Longhurst, administrator of the houses, said the company was carrying out its work of improving the appearance of that new realty section.

The roads will be treated with calcium chloride to lay the dust and bind the surface, in the expectation that it will serve instead of walks. If this method does not come up to expectations a tarvia surfacing will be used although probably not until next year.

Young Men Of Italian Descent Respond To Call For Recruits

A deep reluctance tends to deprecate and retard the telling of this story about the enlistment of a group of local boys in all three arms of the Canadian forces.

Above all it is unsought and uninspired by their parents and other relatives who are probably more than content to let action continue to take the place of words. Actually it has been told in the routine enlistment and joining up of the young men individually, and in that ordinary course of war time affairs it lacks the reflection of human interest and a certain pathos which sympathetic citizens will understand. Possibly they can visualize themselves in the background as having contributed to a situation which presents bright and compensating aspects in looking back over its development.

Without any further hesitation or misgiving of possible invidious effect the story is briefly a reference to the young men of Italian descent who have responded to the call for recruits. Some of them have been overseas for a year or more, and others were caught in the same draft that took so many of their young fellow citizens.

The first one to join up was Michael Lucano back in the early part of March, 1940. At a later date his younger brother, Joseph, enlisted in the R.C.A.F. The following list may be incomplete. A reporter obtained it by request from a citizen who was born in Italy and has lived here many years No person kept an exact record of these young men, and the information is is somewhat sketchy, but comes sufficiently close to being correct.

Earl Alberico, Michael Lucano, Michael Carravaggie, Anthony Basciano, overseas.

Albert Bianco and Joseph Berardi, with the Navy.

Leonard Bianco, Prince of Wales Rangers; William Gaspari, overseas; Joseph Lucano, R.C.A.F.

Anthony Carravaggie and Ludvic De Carlonis, with the Prince of Wales Rangers.

Rocco De Carlo with the Midland Regiment; John De Carlo, at Kingston.

Pat Prete with the R.C.A.F. overseas.

Alex De Maio, overseas; Louis Giardino, at Kingston.

Don White (Bianco), Lakefield, Sergeant Pilot.

Sgt. L. (Babe) Anthony, 4th Anti-tank Battery, overseas.

Guy Chimenti with the Ordnance Corps at Ottawa or Kingston.

Pete Vitarelli, overseas; Anthony Vitarelli, R.C.A.F., and Louis Vitarelli, with the Prince of Wales Rangers.

Carmen Asta, Prince of Wales Rangers; Donato Morrocco, overseas. Dominic Morrocco, R.C.A.F.

Donald Di Noble, Prince of Wales Rangers. Three other boys who enlisted but were discharged were Joe, Louie and Dominic Ronco.

If any names have been omitted it is entirely unintentional because the Examiner did not set out to ascertain the number of Peterborough boys of Italian descent who are in the services.

Avoid Any Difference

"We do not wish to be singled out in any way," said the Examiner's informant. "We want to feel just the way other citizens feel about this matter of citizenship. Some of the boys joined up early, some did not. That is about the way most other boys did. Nobody went around telling the boys of our people that they ought to join up—say, for the look of things. There was never any thought of that at all. They went when they took the notion that they ought to go. Of course we are proud of those who went soon, but we do not want to say anything against other boys who took their time about it."

"We were broken hearted when Mussolini led the Italian people into war on the side of Germany," this man said. "But, there was nothing we could do about it. Now, that you have asked me about the boys who joined up, I would like to say for myself, and I feel sure I speak for all the rest, how much we appreciate the people of Peterborough. In the beginning when we were hit hard by what had taken place there was some feeling against us. I know that from things that were said to me where I work, but after all they did not amount to much. All we could do was simply take it. I feel like mentioning the place where I work for the way they treated us, I mean the foremen, and I believe the head of the plant, and the man who was before him and is now gone a year or more. They treated us the way I am sure they would like to be treated in the same conditions."

Tribute to Peterborough

"The citizens on the whole have really made us feel during those several years that they took us for what we are and what we always want to be, citizens. Of course some of us have relatives in Italy, but we have been long away from there. Our children have been born here and the are growing up here, and you know how it would feel, as I say, that we at first we all felt broken hearted because of what had taken place. Now, we feel because those boys joined up just as they wished a lot happier about things. Of course we are anxious about the boys, the same as other people are about theirs. We hope they will come back, but more than that we hope they will make good soldiers and be a credit to their people. Thy think of themselves as Canadians although their names are Italian."

Tat's about the whole story, and it does not call for any amplification by comment. The significant impression to the reporter was the stress on the claim to Canadianism in behalf of these young men. The suggestion was that they did nothing more than did other Peterborough boys, that is in a general estimate, and on the whole they did nothing less—not much at any rate.

That's about the whole story, and been consistent silence on their part. Let time and event guide the final evidence and judgment. In their own hearts they knew that the old ties with Italy were severed. Of course a deep sentiment remained. That was only natural, and it was this sentiment that was so keenly hurt by the Fascisti. That was a comprehensible reaction of the elders, but to the new generation Italy has become just another country in Europe. The only future these fathers have is in their children, and according to the Examiner's informant they sincerely desire their sons to earn and to have a place here in Canada.

Opposition Withdrawn To Wartime Project

Harold B. Rye informed the Examiner yesterday that he had decided not to oppose Wartime Housing Company's expropriation of the Chamberlain estate on Monaghan Road, had accepted their offer for the property of nearly nine acres, with the residence, and would vacate the place as soon as possible.

In the meantime he has purchased the house on the south bank of the Otonabee River, opposite his boathouse and boatbuilding shop, which was built by Fred Holmes and latterly was owned by Charles J. Seymour, clerk of the Division Court.

"I guess I'll be moving down into Otonabee soon," Mr. Rye remarked.

Springs in the Chamberlain Hill and rain in the last twenty-four hours have been making difficult the excavation job for the basement of the staff houses for which Wartime Housing bought the Monaghan Road property.

Raccoon Hunt Causes Stir On Main Street

By FRED D. CRAIG

There was a raccoon hunt in the heart of the business section Thursday afternoon while hundreds of citizens on George street, a few feet away from the scene went about their usual business, unaware of the excitement.

Just where the central figure in the episode, a fully grown 'coon, came from, nobody has been able to find out. Anyway two small girls discovered him and of all places, neneath a grating outside the basement window of Barrie's Limited.

That firm is not accustomed to have its fur walk in on the hoof and none of the store staff and any explanation of how a live raccoon managed to get himself in the position in which this visitor from the woods was discovered.

Anyway there he was crouched down in the corner, shivering nervously and his bright eyes glaring suspiciously at any one who approached.

The next problem was what to do about him. The staff at the zoo at the Filtration plant was contacted. They hadn't lost any coons and furthermore they were not interested in acquiring any more.

Then Charles Kingan, president of the Fish and Game Association was communicated with and he promised to lead an expedition consisting of himself and Fish and Game Overseer I. J. Lyons to the scene.

News of the presence of the raccoon was sent to the Humane Society and Gerald Dunford was sent to the spot to take over the situation.

Meanwhile a squad of police including a sergeant, a constable and a motor cycle officer of the city department and Provincial Constable Price Morris arrived, took a good look at the coon, decided there was nothing he could be charged with, and waited developments.

About the same time some of the staff of the Empress Hotel decided to do a little Frank Buck stuff on their own account. A beverage room attendant and a Polish chef led the attack, armed with a string and an empty potato sack.

The first five rounds went to the coon. He snarled, scratched and bit and the hotel employees had a busy time trying to get the string snare around his neck. After five rounds they finally succeeded but just as they were about to pull the frightened animal into the bag, the string broke and he was at liberty again. That round was called a draw.

However Gerald Dunford arrived at this time and the seventh round was a knockout for the intruder. The three men finally succeeded in getting Mr. Coon into a bag and the Humane Society representative drove him over to Armour Hill where the coon was released and lost no time in streaking for the nearest tree in record style. His impressions of civilization were evidently not very favorable.

night last night. "One of several accompanying destroyers was hit and sunk, the agency reported.

DNB said that the icebreaker and the 2,000-ton merchant vessel were bombed in a fjord at Spitsbergen, whereas the high command gave no locale.

This might be taken to suggest some move pivoting on the large Norwegian island, 400 miles off northernmost Norway, which Canadian, British and Norwegian shock troops raided last September in an errand of destruction against valuable coal and mines and removal of several hundred Soviet miners and their families.

The Pensacola class of cruisers consists of the Pensacola and Salt Lake City, each 9,100 tons with a crew normally of 663 men.

The ships carry 10 eight-inch guns as their main armament. Each has four planes launched by catapults. Both were built in New York, the Pensacola being completed in 1930 and the Salt Lake City the previous year.

Maritimes Gas

"The rising demand for crude oil on the east coast and the seriousness of tanker sinkings have precipitated a serious shortage in New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island," said Mr. Howe.

"We are moving oil from western Ontario and Montreal to the Maritimes as fast as possible but it is physically impossible to move it fast enough to meet the needs on the basis of the five-gallon unit.

"There is, therefore, no alternative but to reduce the allowance in these three provinces.

"It is to be hoped, however, that so drastic a reduction may be only temporary."

Oil Controller G. R. Cottrell said the reduction in gazoline coupon unit value was made today because by the close of the 15th day of every month service stations must turn in to their bulk stations the coupons they have received up to that date from purchasers of gasoline. By the same token, the bulk stations must close their ledger sheets at midnight tonight and open new ones tomorrow morning.

"Choosing this date makes the accounting under the new unit value as simple as possible, Mr. Cottrelle said.

army division, if helped by an equal number of Chinese, could have kept the Japanese pinned at the Salween indefinitely and have raided Thailand.

Two Australian divisions, withdrawn from the Middle East, were reported en route to Burma. A number of vehicles with the Australian device—a kangeroo—appeared in Rangoon. But the Aussies themselves did not come, and instead were directed to go home.

In the Riverside capital of Burma, political intrigues, bureaucratic friction and careerist ambitions contrived to hamstring the war effort behind the lines.

The Burma premier, U Saw, was arrested abroad but the evidence supporting the charge he was a Japanese tool was never published.

Eventually Hurricanes appeared with veteran pilots. But the numerical odds against the Allied fighters in combat remained great—about four or five to one.

Only Two Blenheims Left

On Feb. 11 as Martaban fell, the Ualween estuary and Moulmein were bombed and strafed by Blenheims—the only two Blenheims in all Burma which were flyable that day.

Because of the inadequate number of troops poorly equipped for jungle fighting, British army tactics were confined to a defence of line positions.

Although it was announced in mid-February that Britain intended holding Rangoon, the fire-gutted and looted capital was occupied by the Japanese March 8 while the British army was scattered along a road 20 miles to the north.

The Allied military collapse was revealed suddenly in mid-April. The British army's remnants of the Burma division, falling back on the Plains of Mandalay, became encircled, while the war-worn Indian division pursued a different route 10 miles eastward along the rail line and was unable to come to its assistance.

A few hundred airplanes and a few thousand more troops might have meant the difference between victory and disaster.

T. Harry Adams Veteran Merchant Passes

T. Harry Adams, proprietor of the Dickson drygoods store, died on Thursday evening in Nicholls Hospital.

Born in Ashburnham 74 years ago, Mr. Adams was a son of Samuel Adams and his wife Mary Williamson, one of their nine children of whom only two survive, Frank Adams of this city and its former municipal treasurer, and Robert J. Adams of Calgary. With the exception of three years' absence as a commercial traveller he had resided here all his life.

On leaving school Mr. Adams began work in the drygoods business of the late Robert Fair, remaining there for twenty years. In 1913 he severed that connection, and turning his thoughts to the North-west he took up travelling mostly in that part of Canada with the intention of eventually returning to the retail trade in business for himself.

On one of his periodic trips home, after the death of A. G. Dickson, he was requested by Mrs. Dickson to take charge of the store for three months. Shortly afterwards he bought the business and had continued its sound policy of merchandizing in the tradition of its founder, Mr. Dickson.

For some time Mr. Adams had been in declining health, but his last illness was of only two weeks' duration. He was a former member of the Board of Education, a past warden of St. Luke's Church, and was a widely known and respected citizen.

Harry Adams was one of the last of the vanishing group of independent merchants whose connections extend back to the beginning of this century. Actually he is the last of the drygoods men, and was engaged here in the days of Richard Hall, Robert Fair, T. T. Turnbull, and others. He is survived by his wife, the former Florence May Tivey, who was an encouraging partner in every enterprise he undertook, and his two brothers.

The funeral will take place on Saturday at 3:45 p.m. from St. Luke's Church to the Little Lake Cemetery. Rev. G. J. Bousfield will conduct the service. In the meantime the body will rest at the Comstock Funeral Home, 305 Water Street.

Torpedoing Toll Reaches 18 In St. Lawrence

A ST. LAWRENCE RIVER PORT, May 15.—(CP)—In the two freighter torpedoings in the St. Lawrence River Monday night one man died from exposure, 17 are missing and 111 are safe, a review of survivors stories showed today.

Last night an officer of the first vessel torpedoed said that six of a list of 86 crewmen and passengers from his ship are missing. He said the ship carried a crew of 84 officers and men and two passengers, a mother and child. The passengers are among the rescued.

Earlier in Montreal the stories from 31 survivors of a second torpedoing in the same area showed that 11 men were missing from their ship and that one died from exposure.

This latest recapitulation of missing and safe indicated that only two ships had gone down in the U-boat raid in the River by virtue of the fact that all known survivors have now been identified with the two ships. Yesterday there had been speculation that a third freighter might have been torpedoed. This brought a statement from naval authorities in Ottawa that no word had been received to indicate more than two had been attacked.

The Captain's Theory

The unidentified captain of the second ship struck speculated on the possibility of a third loss when he told interviewers that after the U-boat fired its torpedo it was still within "hunting distance of other vessels."

The officer ho told of the sinking of the first ship said that two lifeboats and a raft, laden with surviv-

Oeser's Third Dash

It was the third time Oeser had been recaptured after escapes from the Bowmanville camp. His third disappearance was first noted at yesterday morning's roll call when it also was learned that Wildermutch was missing.

Later yesterday police found two large crates, used for transporting clothes and other articles owned by prisoners who were being transferred to another camp, broken open in a baggage car on a Bowmanville railway siding. The crates had been packed by the prisoners themselves and it was thought the Oeser and his companion, both small men, had hidden in the big boxes which were carried from camp Wednesday on a truck and loaded on the baggage car.

Oeser's other breaks were made on December 30, when he was recaptured in nearby Oshawa a few hours after he escaped. He had hidden in a laundry truck in the camp grounds and was captured as he stepped out of the truck in Oshawa. On March 12 he was apprehended as an elementary flying training school near Oshawa. He was said to have been attempting to steal a flying suit.

Caught in Freight Car

BELLEVILLE, Ont., May 15. — (CP).—Lieut. Friderich Oeser, diminutive officer of the German air force, was captured to-day as he was spotted in the Canadian National Railway yards here, two days after his escape with a companion from the prison camp at Bowmanville, 60 miles west of here.

Oeser was spotted in an open freight car by Larry Amo, a switchman, and Harper McIlwraith, senior clerk at the yards. They recognized the five-foot-four Nazi from broadcast descriptions and immediately asked his identity. Oeser admitted he was an escaped prisoner and submitted quietly while railway police were called.

J. W. Campbell, C.N.R. policeman, turned the man over to city police who lodged him in the local cells here to await arrival later to-day of officers from the Bowmanville camp.

The Nazi, speaking perfect English, told his captors that he did not want to cause any trouble and that he had been well treated and the prison camp. He said he had no complaints and that he liked the country and the Canadians.

But he said that he wanted to get home to Germany and he smiled as he added that he would try to escape any time the opportunity offered. He had escaped twice previously, and to-day was the third time he had been recaptured.

Oeser said that he had made five operational flights over Britain and on the last one his plane, a Junkers-88, was disabled. He was forced to land and was wounded while still in the air.

FLOWERS RUINED

An act of vandalism was perpetrated at Central School Thursday night. There is one of the most picturesque bed of tulips in the city before the smaller building and someone visited there and broke 64 tulips about five inches from the top of the stem and left them hanging there in a most bedraggled condition. It is a pity that when something has been done to further the beauty of our city, that it has to be despoiled by careless souls.

No Word Received On Housing Project

The local office of Wartime Housing Limited informed the Examiner today that no decision had been received yet from the company's headquarters in Toronto respecting the North Monaghan petition to acquire some property other than the Hatton farm for additional temporary houses.

James McLaren, consulting engineer, with Gore and Storrie, Toronto, came to Peterborough Wednesday afternoon as substitute for Kent Hamilton, real estate adviser for the company. Accompanied by H. S. Longhurst he visited a number of properties which had been suggested by the township committee.

Jute And Hemp Very Scarce

Take care of jute bags and hemp is the substance of advice, especially to farmers, from the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

A. M. Shaw, chairman of the agricultural supplies Board of the Federal Department of Agriculture, recently informed the Deputy Minister for Ontario that he was greatly concerned over the increasing difficulty of obtaining new supplies.

"There is no more good quality hemp," F. C. Paterson told the Examiner this morning. "Good rope is going to the navy, and farmers are being urged to make the best possible use of the bags and rope they have on hand."

This is another deprivation resulting from the Japanese overrunning of the East Indies.

Farmers are asked to patch their old bags and try to get more use and life out of them. Use paper bags if they will do instead of jute and cotton. Hay fork rope should be stored over a beam where it is dry. Try splicing weak spots; bind the ends to prevent fraying.

Very little was saved so fast did the fire spread, though some furnishings from the cafe and a few from some of the apartments were tossed out.

By eight o'clock little was left of the whole north side of the street, and the Lindsay pumper was allowed to head home.

Heavy District Loss.

The fire brings losses in the district to well over the half million mark, including the Hogg and Lytle grain elevator at Mariposa, leather tannery at Omemee, Gelert blaze in April when the post office, a store and two homes went up followed by the disaster at Kinmount.

Provincial Constable Wallace G Hendren, a resident of the hamlet, and who played an active part in the battle to save the village, is working on an investigation in an effort to track down the firebug angle, though he stated with the bakery a mass of ruins clues were scarce.

400 A Month Canada's Plane Pace

Being Stepped Up Says Howe, Bill Under Fire

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

OTTAWA, May 15 — (CP). — Canada's aircraft industry now is producing machines at the rate of 400 a month and soon will go on a seven-day week with three eight-hour shifts daily, Munitions Minister Howe told the House of Commons in a review of the work of his Department.

Mr. Howe gave an outline of the progress of the aircraft and other war industries in the House yesterday. Subsequently he faced a barrage of criticism from members of all parties, including his own on Munitions and Supply Department operations.

He gave must of the credit for plane factory expansion to Ralph P. Bell, Director-General of Aircraft Production, but he agreed with John Diefenbaker (Con. Lake Centre) in condemnation of Mr. Bell's part in a recent "morale building" effort in the industry.

Corespondence tabled in the House on Wednesday and exchanges between Mr. Howe and Mr. Diefenbaker during last night's session established these points:

Some months ago Mr. Bell wrote the aircraft industry asking for contributions up to $500 to create a fund to finance the efforts of E. G. Hirst, head of Might Dectories Ltd. Toronto, as a 'morale" builder.

Mr. Bell advised the industry that these contributions could be charged to "overhead," and arranged for a Montreal aircraft factory official to act as treasurer of the fund.

Mr. Diefenbaker said his chief protest was that when this matter came to light he had asked a question in the House and had received an answer that Mr. Hirst was serving without remuneration.

Four Fishermen In Crash At Kendry

Four American fishermen had a narrow escape from serious injury when their car went into the ditch off Highway 28, near Kendry early this morning as they were headed for Peterborough.

The automobile was driven by J. N. Kundtz, 3676 Melbourne Avenue, Cleveland, O., who momentarily lost control of the machine which shot off the highway. The car was not badly damaged and after being hauled out of the ditch was able to proceed on itsown power.

Passengers in the car with Kundtz were Horace Gwilym, West Park Road, Cleveland, O., Roy Schroh, Mastic Road, Parkview, O. and W. J. Arnold, Fairview, O.

The first two received a number of scratches. Arnold and the driver escaped unhurt.

would be the pooling of all trained men, just as aircraft are pooled, but difficulties such as human nature, language and national pride made that impossible.

"But it should be possible" he said, "to work out some way whereby, making all due allowances for the very obvious and necessary difficulties and objections, we can get to some kind of co-ordanation."

Maj. Power said the official name of the conference is "The Ottawa Air Training Conference."

It was brought about as a result of the recognition by all the United Nations of the importance of air power. There had been scarcely a single victory achieved or defeat suffered in which air power was not a factor. The nations were taking more and more to the training of the human element in air power, the air crews.

"It takes longer to produce a pilot an observer, or a gunner than it does to make an airplane," said the minister.

Owing to developments, a greater specialization in air crew training had come. The British Commonwealth Air Training Plan started with training three types of specialist, the pilot, observer and wireless operator-air gunner. Now 12 types were required and 10 are to be trained in Canada.

"This means changes in training technique which need to be standardized as between nations fighting on the same side," said the minister.

Maj. Power said he believes the basic systems of training used in the United States and in the British Comomnwealth are the same. Both use the "Gossport System." which was developed during the First Great War.

VICTORIA.— (CP) — Provincial Police headquarters here were advised 12 United States army men, including two officers, drowned yesterday near Fort St. John, B.C., as a pontoon capsized.

Farm Women Cancel Teas

CAMPBELLFORD, May 15 — (ENS)—Gas rationing and additional farm work are two items invariably considered when activities are being planned throughout rural areas of this district. It was, however, lack of farm help and the extra work women folk are called on to do that was the paramount reason for Zion Women's Association cancelling their annual June Tea. Announcement to this effect was made at the meeting held at Mrs. Alfred Barnum's on Wednesday when after some discussion they voted to replace the affair by a collection from members. As a part of their summer program they have set aside sufficient funds to repaint windows at Zion Church and also plan to have the piano tuned as a part of their contribution to the general welfare of the church. Several pairs of sox for the Red Cross were brought in at the meeting and another quilt top was also contributed with Mrs. Alfred Barnum the donor. Next month the ladies, together with their husbands, will be guests of Rev. J. R. Bick and Mrs. Bick at a social evening. The president Mrs. Albert Petherick presided for the meeting.

W. A. Meets

Mother's Day was the theme of the theme of the regular meeting of Rylstone W.A. whose monthly meeting was held on Wednesday afternoon at Mrs. Edward Anderson's. Appropriate to this member answered the roll call by naming Biblical mothers and during the program they heard readings by Mrs. John S. McKeown, Mrs. Roger Lain, Mrs. James Barnett, and Mrs. Lillian Anderson, all of whom paid tribute to the occasion. Mrs. Robert Mumby and Mrs. John McKeown were appointed as delegates to the annual W.A. Convention which is being held in Marmora on May 28th. One welcome bit of news members received came with the announcement that the Happy Helpers Girl's Club would cease to function as an independant organization and would affiliate with the W.A. This it was reported had been decided by the Girl's Club who had met for their meeting earlier the same day. Chief reason for this step, according to a spokesman for the Girl's Club, was their feeling that by becoming a part of a larger organization they could increase the scope of their war work. Plans were made to hold a pot-luck dinner early in June at the home of the president, Mrs. Sanford Meiklejohn.

Box Social Planned

A box social and program are being arranged for May 22nd by members of Zion Y.P.U. who held their regular meeting at the church Wednesday. Purpose of the social is to raise funds for general work and as conveners of the program they named the vice-president, Miss Norma Arkles, Rev. J. R. Bick, Mrs. Thos. Fry, Mrs. Albert Petherick, Mrs. M. Brunton and Miss Isobel Irwin. Mr. A. Petherick was devotional convener for the evening and Mr. Wilson Hennessey assisted while Mr. Thomas Fry gave the topic. The recreationalp eriod, in charge of Mrs. Bick, comprised an interesting contest in which member supplied the names of famous personalities whose pictures were shown.

Hornpipe In A Convoy

In immaculate whites the sailors aboard a U.S. man-o'-war do what seems to be a mixture of buck and wing and sailors' hornpipe during physical drill while en route to a battle zone with a convoy. Note the luxuriant beard of the gent left of centre.

Port Hope Bowlers Are Given Awards

PORT HOPE, May 14.—(ENS). — Seaton Hall was the scene of a bowling banquet when on Tuesday afternoon the Ladies' Bowling League finished theier season.

After the banquet the presentation of prizes took place with the high team, of which Mrs. Marion Smith was captain, holding the count of 41,175 while the other bowlers on this team were Mrs. Dorothy Currier, Mrs. Hilda Corbett and Mrs. Nellie Hood.

Prizes of war saving stamps were given the high flat score on each of the three teams and were won by Mrs. Dorothy Currier with a 307 flat, Mrs. Mable Nichols with a 263 flat and Mrs. Nellie Duke with a 317 flat.

The evening was spent in playing court whist, with the prizes of war savings stamps going to Mrs. Phyllis Maybee high and Mrs. Nellie Hood low.

Peterborough Youths Remanded A Week

COBOURG, May 15.—(ENS)—Charged with theft of two diamond rings and a ruby set ring, Frederick Revoy and Wallace Coombs of Peterborough were remanded for a week when they appeared in police court yesterday. Bail was reduced from $1000 to $500 in view of the fact that all but one ring had been recovered.

The two youths were arrested a week ago by Provincial Constable David Adair who was investigating the theft of three rings during an auction sale in Cavan Township early in May.

Stewardship Discussed At Worship Meeting

COTTESLOE May 15 — (ENS). —Mrs. Harry Patterson was leader of the May program. "The Church, the Household of Faith," at the home of Mrs. Merd Clysdale. There was a splendid attendance. The worship service was followed by Mrs. Charles McMillan reading the Scripture. Mrs. Johnston Blakley gave the chapter in the study book. "The Tide Comes In," Mrs. John Gallagher rendered a solo, Mrs. Joseph Gallagher gave a paper on Temperance, and Mrs. William Forsyth spoke on Christian Stewardship. Arrangements were made for the spring thankoffering service to be held in the church on Sunday morning, May 24.

Paint Jobs Let In City Schools

An increase in the cost of painting materials and labor boosted tenders on the program of work, laid out by the property committee of the Board of Education, necessitating some curtailment of work which had been planned. The committee has let the contracts, and trimmed its works program to fit the money voted in the estimates.

Smith Bros., well known firm of painters and decorators, were awarded all the contracts as follows:: Painting interior King Edward School—$1,400; painting exterior Queen Mary School—$360; painting boys' and girls' washrooms at Queen Mary—$100; painting boys' and girls' washrooms at King George—$100; painting auto mechanics department, South Central—$210; painting a portion of the interior of the Collegiate auditorium—$100.

The Peterborough Lumber Company was given the contract for one drum of linseed oil, and 200 pounds of white lead while Scarfe and Co. Ltd. will supply 25 gallons of extra flat white enamel, and 10 gallons of turpentine. Pratten Hardware will supply 75 gallons of primer and sealer, and 100 gallons of Lite paint.

Tenders for coal were let as follows, 280 tons of Red Jacket lump coal, at 10.00 a ton to H. B. Taylor and Sons; 165 tons Red Jacket lump coal at 10.00 a ton to J. E. A. Fitzgerald Estate, and 495 tons of screenings at $7.70 a ton to the Peterborough Fuel and Transfer.

An amendment to the motion by G. W. Craw, committee chairman, to adopt the report, was made by D. G. H. Melton and second by D. V. Canning, that the work on the Collegiate auditorium be struck off, but the amendment was lost.

UNDERGOES OPERATION

CAMPBELLFORD. — Jim Bibby, 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Bibby, Frank street, was rushed to the Campbellford hospital on Wednesday evening where he underwent an emergency operation for appendicitis. According to a hospital bulletin released on Thursday Jim is progressing favorably.

175 Cobourg Entries In Music Festival

COBOURG, May 15.—(ENS)—Cobourg will have 175 contestants in the Northumberland County Music Festival which takes place at Colborne on May 27, 28 and 29. The town will enter three choirs, one from the west end school, one from the central school and a boys' junior choir of 20 voices. The junior choir will be conducted by John Spragge, one of the public school pupils, and another pupil, Teddy Taylor, will be accompanist. This year's entry list from Cobourg is the largest one the local schools have entered in the festival since it was started.

The Cobourg Collegiate Institute will enter two quartettes, a double trio, duet numbers and girls' solos. The Cobourg Women's Institute chorus which won the shield the last two years, is busy rehearsing for competition in this year's festival. The ajudicator of the Festival will be Mr. Leonard Richer of Oshawa. The Cobourg choirs are directed by Mrs. Lettice Bingham, music teacher in the Cobourg Public schools and Collegiate Institute.

Thieves Are Busy At Hoard's Station

CAMPBELLFORD, May 15 (ENS) —Thieves active in Campbellford early Thursday morning also visited township citizens and the heaviest loser was Jack Brown, proprietor of the general store at Hoards Station, 9 miles east of here. They broke into his place of business by forcing a rear window and after gaining entrance made off with assorted small merchandise valued at from $65 to $70. Chocolate bars, flashlights, pens, cigarettes, watches, and even shaving brushes were listed as stolen. Provincial Constable D. M. Carruthers in investigating.

Trapped In Wrecked Train

Rescue workers strive to free John Schaffer, brakeman, from crushed cab of wrecked New York Central freight train. The locomotive and seven cars of the speeding freight were flung from the tracks and set afire. Authorities said one of the rails had been tampered with. Schaffer was freed and rushed to a hospital where he is in a critical condition, faced with amputation of both legs.

Children Outfit Refugee Girl

PORT HOPE, May 15—(ENS).—Over $17.00 was realized from a raffle and toy display under the direction of Grades 1, 2 and 3 of the East Primary school, of which Miss Myrtle Long and Miss Theo Black are teachers.

A sale of tickets took place for a doll in a basinette and this draw was held on Thursday afternoon with the winning ticket going to Mrs. J. W. S. McElroy, 85 Brown street This doll was beautifully dressed and the basinette decorated in pink, both being made and donated by Mrs. Fred Gruber.

Earlier in the week a fine toy display was held in the class room and was well attended by the pupils of the school as well as interested parents and friends. Toys of all descriptions were displayed from a sand table showing the fighting forces in miniature with soldiers, guns, ships and airplanes, while from the ceiling of the room were strung all the different model airplanes. Dolls were displayed in a variety of costumes, while some were in army attire, Red Cross nurses and the native costumes of many nationalities were represented.

Several different setups of trains were displayed, both electric and wind-up models.

Two children dressed in their Red Cross nurse uniforms were at the door while displays were supervised by a soldier and three cowboys.

Something over $7.00 was made at this toy show and the remaining $7.37 came in later as donations and from the sale of tickets on the doll and basinette.

On Friday afternoon in the same rooms was displayed the articles bought with this $17.37. The classes are outfitting a six-year-old refugee child with an Alice blue coat, hat and purse set, shoes, rubbers, dress, skirt, two blouses, long and short stockings, wool undies, white gloves, hair ribbons, hankies, comb, soap, tooth brush, tooth paste, gun, chocolate bars and cut-out book.

Bowmanville Boys Drowned In Pond

BOWMANVILLE, Ont., May 15—Maurice Howard Armstrong, seven, and his brother, Melbourne, nine, of nearby Maple Grove, were drowned yesterday in a small pond on which they were playing with a raft, provincial constable Arthur Dymond said today.

The mother, a munitions worker, was absent when the drownings took place.

The two boys are survived by both parents, two brothers and a sister.

Gasoline Thefts In Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, May 15. — Gas thieves had a busy time in this district early yesterday morning. In their wholesale theft of gas no fewer than eight cars were reported to police with tanks nearly empty and one revealed an unsuccessful attempt made to steal a tire. Police are of the opinion the thieves must have been carrying several containers to hold the amount they took. Whoever did the job made an almost complete circuit of the town as indicated from the sections where the thefts were reported. Charles Brown, Concession Road, had gas taken from a sawing machine; William Hollings, Inkerman street, from his car parked in front of the residence; Charles Collins, Inkerman street, from the Canadian National Express truck parked in front of residence; Charles Collard, Simpson street, gas taken from car in front of residence; James West, Sebastopol street, gas from truck; Davidson's garage, gas from truck parked in lot; Ron Hazel, Canrobert street, car ransacked and attempt made to steal tire; William W. Little, Seymour East, garage entered and gas taken from car.

Another Unit Leaves

Peterborough said farewell to the Prince of Wales Rangers, 1st Battalion, on Thursday morning as this unit left to go into camp at Niagara-on-the-Lake. Since the commencement of the war four units in all have left for active service and now three of them are in Great Britain. Where the destination of the Rangers will be we do not know but we are safe in saying that this latest Peterborough battalion will carry on the proud record which the battle honors of Rangers Color carries.

Commanded by Col. John Dewart, M.C., himself a veteran of the Great War, officered by some of the finest of Peterborough's young men and its nucleus of men made up of the flower of youth in this district the Rangers carry with them the best wishes of this community as a whole.

Peterborough Rangers have since the commencement of the war made a most notable contribution to Canada's army. First there was a heavy enlistment from the ranks into the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment of the 1st Canadian Division, then came the mobilization of the third division and Lt.-Col. A. T. E. Hicks-Lyne and a great majority of his officers formed the headquarters and headquarters company of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders, in all more than 60 officers from the Prince of Wales Rangers are today serving in other units.

Left behind to carry on as a reserve unit for the guarding of Canada is the Prince of Wales Rangers, 2nd Battalion, under the able command of Lt.-Col. M. H. Park, who is now calling upon all able-bodied men to fill up the ranks for this all-important task.

To Defend Canadian Soil

The undertaking of citizens the other evening to promote the recruiting of Peterborough's two home defence units to full strength projects itself upon the attention of the citizens with every prospect of cheerful and rapid accomplishment.

At least five hundred men are needed to fill up the ranks of the Prince of Wales Rangers' second battalion and the Fourth Field Battery Reserve whose operations in any emergency will be confined to Canadian soil. Assumption of a deep sense of citizenship throughout this community disarms the necessity of urging Peterborough men to swing into positive war action by joining either of the two units.

Some suggestion that they are broadly similar to the Home Guard of the last war should not be considered too literally. The western coast was unmenaced in those years from 1914-18. In fact the enemy of today was the ally standing guard throughout the Orient. The Home Guard was a pleasantly serious organization that required no hard and fast adherence to its light and tenuous purpose and rule. No one ever expected that anything beyond some local auxiliary policing would be required of them.

The reserve units face serious business and their importance in the nation's military scheme is reflected in the provision of full equipment, qualified officers, regulation pay, and generally the entire background of military establishment. The fact that officers concede exemption from attendance at the regimental camp should not be regarded as indication of unconventional set up. True, less emphasis is being directed to the old monotony of drill, and training to being concentrated more than ever on skilful use of standard equipment. However, any man signing up with a battalion would be the last to be satisfied with slackening in smartness and the general company awkwardness of a cook's parade.

In adjusting the new units to the limitations of industry both officers and men will no doubt be equally reluctant to depart from the standard of smooth and fluent movement exhibited by the First Battalion of the Prince of Wales Rangers in their final parade Tuesday evening. And as a final suggestion it might be just as well to leave the details of training, even in their contemplation, to the officers of regiment like Lieut.-Colonel Park and Major Eastwood. They are just as keen about mechanical efficiency as any recruit, and they are not likely to waste any time on non-essentials.

Future For Fish

The Canadian public was informed some time ago that all the 1942 salmon pack would be sent to Britain, where this highly concentrated and nourishing food is badly needed. As substitutes we are to have more lobsters and sardines, with a certain amount of cod and haddock. No one will grudge the salmon to Britain; that fish-loving island has gone short for some time, owing to the perils of deep-sea fishing in wartime. And we can hardly regard a diet of lobster and sardines as hardship.

At the outbreak of war Britain classed tinned lobster as a luxury and forbade its importation, thereby killing our most profitable foreign market. But in the past two years the Canadian and American markets have been built up under the care of the Dominion Government and a lobster-control plan has resulted in a marked improvement of quality.

Canada's fisheries, in spite of war, are doing well. Last year the total catch was valued at $25,570,000, which is a 36 per cent. improvement over 1940. The future for fish is bright.

What Price Isolationism Now?

Two freighters have been torpedoed in the St. Lawrence River, and it is suspected that a third has met the same fate. Who now can say that we have not been directly threatened and that our country will be safe enough if we mind our own business? The enemy is in our own great waterway, successfully menacing our shipping. He is well within hail of the shores of the Province of Quebec. What, we wonder, do the Quebec isolationists think about it?

It might be well at this point to define the attitude of the Examiner toward Quebec and toward our French fellow-citizens. We sympathize strongly with Quebec's wish to preserve its individual character and the flavor of Old France which makes it one of the most interesting and charming parts of the Dominion. We sympathize with its desire to create its own French culture within this British Dominion. We realize the difficult position which the French, as a minority group, occupy in the political and cultural life of this land, and we are prepared to defend their rights as a minority with all the fervor at our command.

What we are not prepared to defend, however, is the desire of some French citizens to wield a disproportionate amount of power in the government of this country, and to trade upon the natural desire of most Canadians not to hurt their feelings in order to achieve this end. In particular we have no intention of attempting to defend that isolationist attitude which crops up in wartime.

But deeds are notoriously more eloquent than words, and the Germans have struck a blow at Quebec isolationism more effective than all the editorials ever written on the subject. The procrastinating argument—"When they attack us we shall fight them"—no longer means anything. They have attacked us, right in our own waters, and the question is whether we want to fight them here in greater numbers or whether it would not be better to go abroad and fight them there. In our opinion, the sinkings in the St. Lawrence knock the props from under the pet argument of the isolationist group in Quebec.

Well Done Young Folk

During the first four months of this year the young folk of Peterborough have either purchased for themselves or sold to their customers War Savings Stamps and War Savings Certificates to the amount of $21,489. This is a very notable achievement for the junior workers in this city.

In the lead are the students of the Collegiate Institute and Vocational Training School whose sales of stamps and certificates amount to $8,728, but a close runner-up were the Examiner's carriers who only handle stamps, and their sales totalled $8,255. Pupils of the Public Schools also came in with the nice sum of $4,506.

Possibly the only jarring note in the whole thing was the general decrease noted in all sections during the month of April. And while it is to be expected that the effort of the schools will fall off during the summer the Examiner's news boys and girls are always ready to accept orders and sales when the schools are closed. It need not be stressed in Peterborough that the money is needed and also that War Savings Stamps and War Certificates are a good investment for the period after the war when there will be a period of getting back into the ordinary routine of life.

A Co-ordinated Censorship

From the outbreak of war until last week Canada had four separate censorship organizations, one of which dealt with the press, one with the postal department, one with telegraph, telephone and cable censorship, and one with radio; these four branches were under the control of four different Government departments and operated with the aid of a "censorship co-ordination committee." This system had certain advantages but it had also many disadvantages and of late these have increased to the point where a closer co-ordination of censorship was a necessity.

From now onward there will be only one censorship organization which will include the four branches already mentioned, but it will be under War Services Department, under the eye of Mr. Thorson. Its immediate head, who will be known as Director of Censorship, is Col. O. M. Biggar, and the former heads of the four departments are now Assistant Directors.

Col. Biggar is an admirable choice for this position. He is one of the ablest lawyers in this country and he has had unusual experience in governmental matters. In the first Great War he was Judge Advocate-General of the Department of Militia and Defence, and he was British Secretary of the Commission at the Versailles Treaty deliberations. In his hands censorship will not become a repressive instrument, which is always the great danger attaching to it.

Possibly many people will ask why we have not had a co-ordinated censorship since the outbreak of war. The answer is simple: We have not needed one. Until recently, the four department system, although not perfect, has functioned very well and it has had certain advantages. In the realm of press censorship, for instance, it has evolved a system whereby information of value is kept from the enemy without depriving the public of news which it might legitimately have. In fact, a system has grown up which provides the necessary amount of censorship with the least possible infringement upon ordinary democratic rights. The changes which will come about under the new scheme will be changes of administration rather than changes of interpretation. It is an admirable thing that the news and communications organizations in Canada have had the chance to work out a voluntary censorship which is agreeable to the Government.

Now that the increased pressure of war has brought a co-ordinated censorship into being it will have a twofold purpose: the first will be the suppression of any information which might be of value to the enemy and the second is to see that information which the public has a right to know and which will assist in keeping the public well-informed is made available with the least possible delay. Col. Biggar has a heavy task before him but we are sure that he is equal to it in every way.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The U.S. National Academy of Science has put off its annual meeting because most of its members are busy with war work. Now who says that scholars lead a cloistered life?

The Victoria Cross is no longer made from the metal of guns captured at Sebastopol, for the supply is exhausted. But the courage for which the Cross is awarded is apparently inexhaustible.

A coin-operated mailbox is in use in Chicago which automatically stamps, postmarks and mails letters. The next invention will be a mail-sorting machine which automatically reads all postcards.

Here is a note of cheer from the Channel Islands: At the end of the last school term every child in the Islands was given a toy with a picture of Hitler painted on it. The next day the Nazis ordered a compulsory street-cleaning to get rid of the mess of smashed toys. It takes more than a cheap German gewgaw to buy an Islander.

ITS VALOR

A little scarlet emblem
On a field of snowy white
But who shall judge the measure of
Its valor and its might.
It braves the fierces battleground
It sails the seven seas,
And floats wherever people live
On every Summer breeze.

The wounded call it blessed,
And the sick and maimed and old
Bend trembling lips in agony
To kiss each shining fold.
The homeless lift their weary eyes
Above a bombed-out street
And see in it a blessed hope
Their dire need to meet.

A little home-made scarlet cross,
So often frayed and torn,
Circling the world on ships and wings
And ever proudly borne.
The symbol of our Christian faith
In love and mercy blows;
God keep it flying brave and white
Wherever suffering goes.

Canada's Part Assailed By U. S. Editor

By I. N. S. of The Ottawa Journal

WASHINGTON. — Some of the Imperial die-hards among us will be annoyed with this column and ask why paper and ink should be wasted on the foreign editor of the Washington Times-Herald.

For this man, Mr. Frank Waldrop, feels and writes that Canada is a vacuum, and implies that what that vacuum needs and is going to get is a heaping dose of Americans to fill it.

But annoyance is not the way to treat any body of American opinion, large or small. At least we should hear them and not play ostrich.

Mr. Waldrop told me his views with both clarity and courtesy—but this story has a prologue.

MARCH 14 Mr. Waldrop wrote a long signed article on his paper's editorial page giving thanks that Canada had permitted the United States to build a road through Canada to Alaska.

"At last," he wrote, "the hard rock of inertia and natural selfishness has been blasted. But we must have not just one road but a whole network of them....and a railroad....and access by air."

Mr. Waldrop wrote that he could understand Canada's insistence upon retaining sovereignty. "It is a tough proposition to face, but it is a tougher one to ignore. Canada is, in the national sense, a vacuum."

Then followed an attractive summary of our country's natural resources and a vivid picture of our starvation for population. Also an account of our French-Canadian troubles...."weaknesses that are especially dangerous for a country so rich. Canada would not last five minutes without the protection of the United States....so why this stalling? Does Ottawa want to become another Singapore?"

A week later Mr. Waldrop had another go at us. He began by saying that Australia's Mr. Curtin had "turned to the U.S. for leadership because Australia wants to survive this war."

And then the vacuum again:

"Nature abhors a vacuum....Australia has been a vacuum and the rush is now on to see who fills it, we or the Japs."

The Australian surfeit of acres and resources was outlined, the shortage of heads made clear. "Australia's hope of survival is the U.S. alone, and we are doing our best at a very late date. The Australians should have let us in sooner."

But the rest of this piece was devoted to Canada, for Australia's plight should be a lesson to Canada. Our square miles and our heads were counted again and our resistance to the U.S. road projects (real or imaginary) outlined as before. Then:

"Canada....will you learn. Must you wait until, like Australia, you are making a last-ditch stand? Or will you come in now for your great profit and security as well as for our convenience. Remember, Nature hates a vacuum."

WELL, these were the pieces of Mr. Waldrop. But pieces aren't written out of air or on soap bubbles. So I set out to talk to him, being quite convinced that a good many Americans think as he does.

Did he mean his vacuum threats to indicate the U.S. will be ready to send people to populate Canada after the war? Yes, not immediately, but soon.

Also to Australia? Yes, not immediately, but soon.

Would there be an American Empire? No, but near-sovereignty over North and South America and a certain voice in European and world trade.

What about England? Probably England would never regain her pre-war position; and the British Empire would never be the same again, nor nearly so.

Did he think Canadian people would object to U.S. military roads in Canada? No, but there were difficulties in "officialdom."

Mr. Waldrop felt the greatest wrong in American history was the American entry into the First Great War. He didn't talk of U.S. entry into this war but was not happy about Pearl Harbor et seq.

The U.S. must build a strength that will make her never again dependent upon Britain's navy. Armed strength was the only thing the Americans knew how to use, he said. Diplomacy was not their game, nor statesmanship. There was only one body in the world equal of the British Foreign Office and that was the Vatican. Both were built and are motivated on the same principle: survival.

(Mr. Waldrop said he was speaking only for himself and not for his paper. But it might be mentioned that it is of the Chicago Tribune and New York Daily News family, its owner, Eleanor Patterson, being a cousin of Colonel McCormick. A trio of "anti" papers, fanatically isolationist before Pearl Harbor and "anti" just about anything you want to vote in favor of.)

WE talked around the world several times; and if Mr. Waldrop's opponents thinks him unread or a fool they'll be sorry. Moreover, a lot of people read his stuff.

As I sat down I noticed a large printed sign on the reverse side of his desk, facing the visitors' chair. I didn't comment on it, but after staying purposely for 30 minutes I thanked him and left. The sign read:

WHAT, YOU AGAIN?
Another Half Hour Gone to Hell.

• Kerch An Outpost Affair

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, May 15 —(AP)— Marshal Timoshenko's action in hurling powerful segments of his Ukrainian armies against Kharkov is of first significance whether it represents a diversion to relieve German pressure on his Crimean front or a major offensive on his own hook, as Moscow contends.

It reflects strikingly the relative strategic values he sees in holding the Kerch Isthmus and in achieving a break-through at Kharkov.

And those values rest not so much upon Kharkov itself as the access its recapture would give Red armies to the Nazi communication network south and west of it.

Russian incursions which by-passed Kharkov to the south in preparation for the assault on the city already have seriously hampered German north-south direct communications. The Kerch-Melitopol-Kharkov Railway is the prime link supporting the Nazi jump-off positions in the Donets Basin and the Crimea.

The main stem of that line had already been cut by the Red Army southwest of Kharkov. There have been insistent reports in the last few weeks of Russian cavalry dashes or guerilla operations perilously close to Dniepropetrovsk.

VITAL COMMUNICATION ROUTE

At that point, on the northern curve of the great southern bend of the Dnieper, the east-west railroad connecting Stalino in the lower Donets area with the west makes its river crossing. It intersects the Kerch-Kharkov north-south line a short distance east of Dniepropetrovsk, forming a vitally important Nazi communication route for a wide sector of the Donets front south of Kharkov.

Traced out on any map, the Timoshenko drive at the Kharkov protective bastion for Nazi communications seemed grooved to reach or threaten Dniepropetrovosk in an attempt to paralyze the Nazi southern offensive before it even gets going full strength. Red recapture of the city and an advance southwestward through the breach to the Dnieper could force a German retreat in the lower Donets instead of a major attack.

There is another reference to be drawn from Russian stress on the Kharkov operations. The implication is that the fight for Kerch Peninsula is only an outpost affair of heroic size in Russian strategy; that the main Russian defense front for the Crimean backdoor to the Caucasus lies east of Kerch Strait, not on Kerch Peninsula.

Maps showing that the land east of the strait is broken by lakes and estuaries support that conclusion. While at its narrowest point the Strait is only four or five miles wide, it is a ten-mile span at the points of the only road or rail connection east of the strait.

INVALUABLE SERVICE

The western panhandle of the Caucasus is far more difficult terrain to overrun than the Kerch eastern panhandle. Only two narrow tongues of solid ground, both dominated by small heights, afford passage eastward toward the plains or to take Rostov and the Don front in the rear. It now appears certain that Timoshenko is relying on that broken terrain and its water hazards to halt the German Crimean push, not upon Kerch Isthmus.

As an outpost Kerch Peninsula and its garrison have already rendered invaluable service. They have forced the foe to the costly business of massed frontal attack on a narrow front and for six days absorbed the first shock of the offensive. There can be no doubt that some of the steam has been taken out of the Nazi drive even before it has reached the main obstacles in its path, Kerch Strait and the water-guarded terrain beyond it.

That has justified Timoshenko's own Kharkov offensive whether his immediate purpose is defensive, to effect a diversion, or to strike boldly at the very outset of the struggle to cripple German communications on the Donets-Crimean front.

• Hitler, Richest Man Alive

HITLER'S new diatribe against "democratic plutocrats" may be an expression of his contempt for their inefficiency. Compared with him they do appear to be infants in the craft of money-making.

The Diplomatic Correspondent of the Times has collected some facts about Hitler as publisher from a private capitalistic concern greater than that of any other man alive. He is the sole owner of the Zentral Verlag, the German publishing combine, which has a turnover of about £70,000,000 a year, with over 100,000 workers on its pay-roll and with a net profit which varies between £7,000,000 and £10,000,000 a year. No balance sheet is ever published. There are no auditors. By the terms of the contract drawn up between Hitler and Amann, the director of the whole structure, Hitler has complete and absolute control over the income and Amann is responsible solely to Hitler.

Hitler's control began in 1921. At first its development was slow, but after Hitler took power it grew quickly by the simple process of confiscating almost all competitors. Among its confiscations is the famous Wulf News Agency. Now known as the German News Agency, this service has a complete monopoly in the German news field. The Zentral Verlag owns practically all the advertising agencies. All party books and periodicals have also to be published through the Zentral Verlag, which means that it gets all the profits not merely from "Mein Kampf," but from the innumerable and lengthy books published by Rosenberg, Goebbels, and other party members.

In addition, almost all technical and professional periodicals in Germany are published through the same channel—Hitler's Zentral Verlag. Its greatest business is in the publication of newspapers. It now owns two-thirds of all the German newspapers outright, in addition to drawing advertising revenue from all the others. The revenue from newspapers alone stands at £24,000,000 a year.—London Times.

Letters To The Editor

THE NEW ORDER

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—"Give us liberty, or give us death!" This has been the watchword that has marked the advance of the human race. Man as he is compared to what he should be must go through the process of a second creation. The innocence of youth sees the world as it should be, not as it is. And it is well for the race if the institutions of society are such as do not offend these moral enthusiasms, but rather develop them through life.

This will be exactly what the new modern society will do for youth of noble aspirations and high dreams of duty and perfection.

Souls on earth will be much sweeter when the earth is much fitter for them. That will be when there will be ethical equal treatment for all. Thanks to economic equality which illustrates the highest ethical idea in all its workings, the youth going forth into a world of justice will not find a moral idea higher or more complete than that of economic democracy. It is sad to relate that under this old order youth finds its great dreams of possibilities mocked at every turn. Youth finds himself compelled, whether he would or not, to take part in a fight for life and his ideals are derided and the first condition of success is, cut the acquaintance of his conscience.

The laying aside of the ideals of youth in the accepted sordid struggle is termed "learning to take the world as it is"; "getting over romantic notions"; "becoming practical," and in plain words the debunching of the soul. In the modern society of tomorrow that day will be gone forever. The ideals of perfection, the enthusiasms of self-devotion, honor, love and duty will no longer be surrendered to baser motives. As Wordsworth said:

"Heaven lies about us in our infancy, Shades of the prison house begin to close upon the growing boy."

As another poet says:

"As we look this old world o'er
There's much of strife and sin,
And if a change of heart must come
Just where would we begin?

A change of heart and mind you say,
But I have not a doubt,
And don't you think, in God's good time
These things will come about?"

TALBOT KIRKPATRICK.

A Bible Message For Today . . .

And the Lord God planted a garden eastward in Eden; and there he put the man whom he had formed. And out of the ground made the Lord God to grow every tree that is pleasant to the sight, and good for food; the tree of life also in the midst of the garden, and the tree of knowledge of good and evil....

And the Lord God commanded the man, saying, Of every tree of the garden thou mayest freely eat: but of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt not eat of it: for in the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die.—Gen. ii, 8, 9, 16, 17.

Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers: for what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness; and what communion hath light with darkness?

And what agreement hath the temple of God with idols? for ye are the temple of the living God; as God hath said, I will dwell in them, and walk in them; and I will be their God, and they shall be my people.

Wherefore come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing: and I will receive you, and will be a Father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters, said the Lord Almighty.—II Cor. vi, 14, 16-18.

MARRYING A DEAD SOLDIER

THE Munchener Neueste Nackrichten cites the case of a German officer, Lieutenant Fritz Storch, who declared before witnesses on October 17, 1941, that he intended to marry, but who delayed the wedding and was later killed. The marriage has just been solemnized at Schonigen. The place before the registrar where the bridegroom would normally stand was occupied by a rosette of crepe and a helmet and sword, as symbols that the bridegroom had fallen in the defence of the fatherland. — London Times.

Japanese Ship Torpedoed With High Toll

TOKYO, (From Japanese Broadcasts), May 15—(AP)—A government announcement said today a large Japanese merchant vessel has been torpedoed and sunk in the eastern part of the South China Sea by an enemy submarine, but added the submarine itself is believed to have been sunk.

The War and Navy ministries said the merchant ship was under naval escort when attacked on May 8.

"The sunken vessel," said the announcement, "carried as passengers persons engaged in economic activities in the southern regions.

"A torpedo hit the vessel and instantly set the ship ablaze. It is revealed that up to the present 541 persons have been saved."

(The large number of survivors shows the ship to have been a large one, possibly carrying Japanese workers to one of the conquered islands in the tropics for development or exploitation work. The scene of the sinking might be to the west of either the southern Philippines or Borneo.)

"Many persons perished, since darkness and high seas made rescue operations difficult," the announcement said.

"Japanese naval forces went into action immediately and the enemy submarine is believed to have been sunk."

According to the caption, this group of Germans was found waiting to surrender when the Red army advanced to capture their trench on the eastern front.

Young Trainee Badly Shot In Foot

TWEED, May 15 — (ENS). — Bernard Goulah 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Goulah, suffered a badly wounded foot when a shotgun accidentally discharged at his father's ranch near Otter Creek. He is a patient of Belleville General Hospital.

The young man, who is a trainee at Peterborough Military Camp, went out to shoot groundhogs, taking along a .12-gauge shotgun. While he was climbing over a fence on the ranch, the weapon accidentally went off, mangling his foot badly. He was carried to the road on a stretcher, and was rushed to Belleville General Hospital.

Apsley War Workers Report Busy Month

APSLEY, May 15.—(ENS)—The Apsley War Service Club held their monthly meeting on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. Lean. The president, Mrs. T. W. Lean, opened the meeting with prayer for the armed forces. Several letters from overseas were read thanking the members for boxes of comforts and boxes of cigarettes. It was decided to send 100 cigarettes each to three more boys for this month. Money for prisoners of war was discussed and it was decided to send $3 each month instead of $2 and a 5-month donation of $15 was ordered sent at once. The salvage campaign held last week brought about $24 and another collection of salvage will be held about the first Friday in June. The president reported about 90 letters sent out during the past month and asked for salvage to be brought to the village and also for quilt blocks as nearly enough blocks are available to make a quilt. Three more layettes are to be made for British bomb victims.

Personals

Born—At the Apsley Red Cross Hospital on Monday, May 11, 1942, to Mr. and Mrs. Vernal Earnshaw, a daughter.

Afternoon Tea

A dainty afternoon tea was held on Tuesday afternoon at the Apsley Red Cross Hospital in honor of Florence Nightingale. Every year on May 12 the hospital is opened to visitors. Tea and refreshments were served by the resident nurse and by the visiting nurse, Miss Knox. The table was decorated with a lace cloth and beautiful centrepiece of spring flowers. Many visitors called during the afternoon and were entertained after signing the hospital register.

Mrs. W. Marshall of Toronto, who, when a child lived with her parents in this district and is the sister of Mrs. James Downing of Apsley is a great worker for war charities. She celebrated her 83rd birthday recently and during the past year she made 20 quilts, 127 pairs of socks, 25 pairs mitts, 1 scarf (72 inches long), 2 pair seaman's stockings and bed socks, besides many garments for British bomb victims and mission bales.

Mrs. Marshall's only son is with the Canadian Forestry Corp somewhere in England. Two grandsons are overseas in the active service, one since the early days of this war.

Mrs. Marshall is well known in Apsley, always spending many weeks during the summer with her sister, Mrs. James Downing.

Coat Is Shipped Via Plane For Storage

Do you value storing your fur coat enough to send it by airplane to a storage plant? For the past three years, Wm. Lech & Sons has been receiving a fur coat, sent by airplane back to civilization, from Uchi Lake, a gold mining centre in the far north.

So accustomed have all become to the benefits of civilization and its conveniences, that everything is taken for granted. When people want to put their coats in storage, they just go to the telephone and ask to have it picked up. But for some people it is not as easy as that. There are coats coming in all the time from distant centres. At present there are about 75 coats that have been sent here from London, an undetermined number from Toronto, and others from such local points as Cobourg, Port Hope, Lindsay and Havelock.

Keith Lech was unable to explain the reason for sending coats from such as distance, as they do only local advertising. All the large centres like Toronto and London have the same modern set-up.

There has been a decided increase in the storing business in the last 15 years and even the depression did not affect it. At present there are between 3,500 and 4,000 coats being cared for during the summer season, whose value, decided by the customers amounts to a quarter of a million dollars, and which it is estimated is closer to half a million.

The most scientific methods are used in this storage plant. There are two store rooms, one small and one large, exactly alike. The walls and floor are lined with cork and the ceiling covered with aluminum paint. The sprinkler system and a thermostat, like that on an oil furnace, are regular parts of the equipment. The temperature can be set at any point but is usually kept between 40 and 50 degrees. Once in a while they turn it up to make it a bit warmer and then plunge the temperature down to 'shock it," Mr. Lech said. Every coat is checked for moths and dust before it enters the storage rooms.

For cleaning the coats, they use a corn product imported from Minneapolis, that looks something like fine meal. This is slightly dampened with cleaning fluid and put in with the article in a large rotating cylinder. Then it is removed to another covered with heavy mesh and undergoes a similar process to shake off the flakes. This does a complete job of cleaning.

Coy Norma Hawkins, one of the thousands of visitors to the Niagara Parkway system, protected the title of "Tulip Queens of Niagara Falls" from all comers when she squatted in the middle of a bed in Queen Victoria Park, Niagara Falls, Ont., and immediately proceeded to see how many of the 200,000 tulips now in bloom she could eat. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Hawkins, Fort Erie, Ont.

Alberta Floods Begin To Subside

CALGARY, May 15 — (CP). — Spring floods which have ravaged a wide area of Southern Alberta for three days doing untold damage were receding rapidly to-day, but many people still are unable to return to their water-loged homes.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Pratt, who were marooned on a small section of high land about a mile west of High River on Monday, are still reported in a serious plight. Unsuccessful efforts were made to rescue the cauple by teams and wagons and by men or horseback yesterday. Further attempts will be made today.

The couple spent last night under a tent, dropped from a Royal Canadian Air Force plane.

At Lethbridge where the Old Man River went on the rampage driving 60 people from their homes, flood waters had dropped four feet and danger was believed to have passed.

Bancroft News

The play entitled "O Promise Me" sponsored by the Bancroft Chapter No. 157 O.E.S., was presented in the Bancroft community hall on Thursday and Friday evenings. A large crowd was in attendance on both nights and those attending made mention of the excellent way in which all the players in the cast played their parts. Following the play on Friday evening a dance was held. The local Chapter netted over eighty dollars from their efforts.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Towle returned home from Toronto Friday evening, having spent several days in the city visiting with relatives.

He Took 2 Pills

NEW YORK, May 15 — (AP). — Charged with drunken driving when his automobile ran off the road and struck a pole, and a policeman said he acted "dizzy" and gave off an aroma of alcohol, Daniel Cookes was acquitted in traffic court on this explanation: Ill, he had been to a doctor who prescribed rubbing alcohol on his chest and taking a pill. Cookes said he took two pills instead of one, which accounted for his dizziness, and declared the alcohol was on his chest—not in it.

Business Boom Seen After War

OTTAWA, May 15.—(CP).—Full employment for every Canadian after the war is the nucleus around which the Government's advisory committee on post-war reconstruction is building its program for the period of demobilization and re-establishment. Dr. F. Cyril James, principal of McGill University and chairman of the committee, said yesterday.

Dr. James was appearing as a witness before the House of Commons committee on reconstruction and rehabilitation.

"Employment of every employable Canadian is essential for the full prosperity of the Dominion," he said.

This meant that demobilized service men and munition workers must be absorbed into the Canadian economic and social structure with, if possible, an increase in the standard of living.

He predicted that a business boom will follow this war as it followed the First Great War, the Civil War in the United States and the Napoleonic Wars.

After the last war the post-war boom and consequent depression was accelerated by accumulation of consumer spending power due to high wartime wages and soldiers spending their cash bonuses.

High present-day taxes and wage and price controls would confiscate the large surplus purchasing power which existed after 1918. War savings would be the only large available spending fund.

Springville News

Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Staples and family were Sunday guests of Mrs. Staples' mother, Mrs. Armstrong of Bailieboro.

Miss Zetta Wilson of Bowmanville spent the week-end with Miss Dorothy Cathcart.

The Young People presented their play "Only Sally Ann" in Bailieboro on Friday evening.

Harold Cathcart has returned home after spending some days in Quebec.

JACK ADAMS SUGGESTS USING OLDER HOCKEY PLAYERS IN N. H. L.

Fate In Hands Of Government Adams Declares

TORONTO, May 15—(CP).—Jack Adams, manager of Detroit Red Wings, in a brief interview before the annual meeting of the National Hockey League opened today, said he hoped the league would be able to function next winter with persons not eligible for military service.

Adams, under suspension for striking a referee during the Stanley Cup finals last winter, said he thought enough older players and players under military age would be available to enable the clubs to ice teams.

"The public needs sport in war time and professional baseball is being well received at the present time," said Adams. "Our fate, however, is in the hands of the Canadian government and we are ready to do anything we are told."

The general feeling among other delegates was along the same line as that of Adams but they declined to be quoted. President Frank Calder said unfinished business of last season would be cleaned up before the prospect for next winter would be discussed.

Heir To Orioles Due For Call

PRINCETON, N.J., May 15 — (AP). — Jack Dunn, heir-apparent to ownership of Baltimore Orioles, eats, sleeps and lives baseball—and plays rightfield for Princeton Tigers.

Only 20, and a university junior, Jack is the youngest baseball executive in the United States. As road secretary of the International League club for three years, he books the team's hotel reservations, buys its train tickets, and arranges its meals.

On graduation next year, or on return from war duty, he is scheduled to take over the reins of the club which his grandfather of the same name guided to 11 consecutive first places in the league while he held control from 1917 to his death in 1928. Babe Ruth and Lefty Grove were two of the stars developed at Baltimore in that era.

Since Grandfather Jack's death, his widow has owned the Orioles, but she has been just pinch-hitting for her grandson.

Young Jack dreamed of a professional playing career, but shelved such hopes after he had injured his arm playing football at Boys' Latin Prep, Baltimore.

The injury was aggravated last spring after Dunn had made a promising start with the Princeton Varsity. He had the arm treated during the summer vacation and this spring regained his old spot in the varsity lineup, where he bats in the cleanup position.

His biggest worries at present are whether he can be graduated before being drafted and whether the Orioles will "get a pitcher who can stop Newark."

He has already received his draft questionnaire.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

In a little over a week those of us who follow the lawn bowling game, as a recreation, will be tossing bowls up and down the beautiful greens located at the corner of Monaghan Road and McDonnel St. We have been anxiously waiting for this date—it has been a long time Sept. 30, 1941. However now that the time is slowly but surely, rolling around we will be all ready to go.

We understand that the greens are in good condition—came through the winter well—and we believe that the club house has been thoroughly renovated and we do know that the games committee have done a lot of hard work and are now prepared to present to the bowlers a complete list of games for the coming season.

We are not going to elaborate on the season's activities at present; our duty today is to prepare our bowlers for the opening day, Monday, May 25th.

As in former years the opening day will be on the holiday and the games commence at 1.30 p.m. It will be a mixed tournament, drawn from the board—no fee and prizes will be given to the two top rinks. In other words this tournament is on the "house". Everybody is invited to be present.

Early next week we will print the activities for the week, May 25th to May 30th. After that the bowlers will have to consult the schedule book; and speaking about schedule books, we expect they will be ready for distribution one week from today.

Angott Favored To Hold Title

NEW YORK, May 15—(AP).—The circus and Lew Jenkins have departed, so Sammy Angott and Allie Stolz bring Madison Square Garden and the lightweight championship back from the ridiculous to something resembling the serious again tonight.

Sammy and Allie, a couple of quiet young fellows who do all their fighting in the ring, tangle at 10 p.m. E.D.T., for the 135-pound crown Sammy won from Jenkins a few months back. Promoter Mike Jacobs hopes some 14,000 customers will chip in to a pot of $40,000.

For the last six weeks, the circus and its freaks have occupied the Garden exclusively. For the last couple of years, Jenkins' antics have been the big noise of the lightweight division.

Angott is a crowding, rough, charging type of warrior, out of Washington (Pa.) and Louisville, who has been probably the most under-rated beak-buster in years. It took a long time and a lot of victories for the fans and the experts alike to realize that while he may not be spectacular, he's better than a green hand at mashing a nose.

And now that he finally has the folks convinced that he has something more than just a pleasant smile up there in the ring, he comes up against a youngster who is the best boxer among the lightweights since Lou Ambers and a walloper who can make the birdies sing.

Despite the fact that Stolz has more than an outside chance to hit the target on which he's had his sights trained before he ever drew on a glove five years ago, the betting boys have installed Angott a 1-to-2 choice to hang on to his title in this first defence of it.

For the first time Sammy Angott will be risking his lightweight title tonight, when he puts the 135-pound diadem on the line against Allie Stolz of Newark, N.J., in a 15-round bout in New York. Angott, Louisville, Ky., battler, won the title from Lew Jenkins last winter.

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

Judging from the manner in which the players of the two teams are already riding each other the opening battle in the City Softball League billed for the Ashburnham Bowl Monday night at 6.30 o'clock promises to be a honey. Both outfits, the Adam Hat Royals and Plaza Billiards have a lot of jockeys who delight in ribbing their opponents and the initial contest should be full of verbal fireworks. Manager Roy Parnell of the Royals who piloted the Chesterfields to a championship last season has a couple of dark horse pitchers to toss in against the hockey squad Monday night and the puckchasers come back with the crack that the fans will get a chance to see the whole Royal pitching staff in action on the one evening, adding the warning that the crowd had better be on hand for the first inning if they want to see the starting twirler perform. All of which adds up to a lot of rivalry and the kind of tobasco that should keep the city loop humming all season. Monday night's opener is a benefit for the British War Victims' Fund and there will be special draw prizes and other features. Fans are asked to be generous when the hat comes around as the league hopes to turn over a record amount to the fund to aid the victims of Hitler's bombing raids.

Some day the ball ground at Riverside Park is going to have a new grandstand but that happy event will be a post-war activity. In the meantime the city fathers may decide to erect temporary bleachers behind the home plate to take the place of the old main grandstand which seems destined to pass off the map. Some of the joists beneath the structure have been discovered to be rotten and to further endanger the safety of the stand some pirate has got away with several pieces of sound timber from underneath so the grandstand is no longer considered safe. To repair it would cost a nice chunk of jack—and it is likely the council will arrive at the conclusion that the wisest plan is to raze the structure and substitute bleachers until the times arrives for the erection of a new and modern stand.

The Giants Show Punch

Just what Manager Mel Ott is using to make the Giants steam along is not clear but at all events the New Yorkers show occasional outbursts of surprising power. Take yesterday for example. At one stage the Giants were down 6 to 0 and the Cincinnati Reds looked to have the contest all tied up in the well known gunnysack. And then the Ott outfit cut loose in the eighth with a rally that could not be shot down until ten big runs had scampered over the home plate. The great little manager, who pound for pound is perhaps the hardest hitter in the majors blazed the way by hammering out a homer with two on. Both clubs used a flock of pitchers and the Giant win was credited to Feldman who came in after Carpenter and McGee had been excused from pitching duties. The Giants' neighbors, those Bums from Brooklyn increased their lead to three and a half games yesterday by taking the Pittsburg Pirates for a 5 to 3 ride. Aden Wilkie, the Saskatchewan boy started on the hilltop for the Bucs and was just in there long enough to get the loss. With two runners on he made the mistake of pitching the wrong kind of a ball to Medwick and Ducky powdered that one for a home run.

* * * * * *

Big Bill Lee, Chicago veteran right-hander is apparently in for a big year. He picked up his fifth victory as against one defeat yesterday as the Cubs triumphed over the Phillies 5 to 3. Lee held Hans Lobert's gang to seven scattered hits. Melton started on the firing line for the losers and was credited with the defeat, although Naylor finished the game. Lee has pitched a whale of a lot of good ball for Chicago and the form he has been showing this season indicates that he has lost none of his cunning. The Boston Braves-St. Louis Cards game was washed out.

* * * * * *

There were only two games played in the junior circuit. Jimmy Dykes' Chicago White Sox, picking up momentum, after a dismal start, are travelling under forced draught now and yesterday they picked up their sixth win in seven starts by taking a fall out of the Philadelphia Athletics. The final count was 9 to 4 and the A's helped in their own downfall by contributing four fielding misplays. Bill Dietrich went the route for the winners, holding the A's to seven hits. Knott was Connie Mack's selection but he was driven to the showers. In the other American League game, the Boston Red Sox who seem to have lost a lot of their batting punch were beaten 6 to 3 by the St. Louis Browns with their ace Heber Newsome taking the rap. Roy Cullenbine and Chet Laabs contributed homers to help the Browns to garner the win. Johnny Niggeling who is a sort of jinx for the Red Sox was the victorious pitcher.

Trenton Slipping

Apparently even in softball circles there is difficulty in getting action these days. Down in Trenton, long a leading softball centre, the situation is far from cheerful according to Ken Colling who tells about it thusly in the Belleville sport sheet: "Over in Trenton softball seems to be a dead issue in Jess Baker's loop. For the past few years the Trenton softball moguls have operated one of the most successful softball leagues in Eastern Ontario, a real credit to the community. However, the future does not seem at all cheerful for Messrs. Baker, Anderson, et al. First, their chief drawing attraction, the Trenton R.C.A.F., withdrew their entry, as did the No. 6 Repair Depot. For the past half decade or so the Air Force has been a potent power in Trenton mushball circles and with the service men gone the loop blew higher than one of the flyers' bombers on a raiding party. However, it seems there are some still sufficiently interested in softball to organize one team in Trenton and seek a bye into the O.A.S.A. playdowns. In the meantime the Trenton team is seeking a berth in the Belleville and District Softball League, according to President Harry C. Knott."

* * * * * *

Another hot spot for softball for years has been Point Anne, but even the cement village is rather indifferent about the whole affair this season, Colling reports. In fact the Cementmen who won the league championship last year are undecided whether they will enter a team or not. They have lost four members of last season's championship squad. Art Genereux, Ski Brant and Nicky Sero are with the armed forces and Pitcher Ding Luffman was injured in an accident during the winter and will be unable to play softball this season.

Allan Cup ChampFliers Feted By The Capital

OTTAWA, May 16 — (CP). — Thousands of Ottawa fans turned out last night to pay post-season tribute to Royal Canadian Air Force Fliers, the city's first Allan Cup championship team in thirty-four years.

An estimated 3,500 gathered around Confederation Square in downtown Ottawa to give a cheering send-off to the Fliers on the second half of celebration ceremonies.

Dance Follows Banquet

They gathered to join in a monster victory parade through downtown streets, led by the glittering silver R.C.A.F. band and flanked by members of the R.C.A.F. and the R.C.A.F.'s Women's Division. The players rode in a giant air force bus.

The victory march followed a private banquet in an Ottawa Hotel (Chateau Laurier), given jointly by the City of Ottawa and the City Senior League.

Mayor Stanley Lewis, and surviving members of the Ottawa Cliffsides team which brought the capital its first senior hockey championship in 1908, presented civic crests to members of the cosmopolitan military service unit which lost only two in twenty-four Allan Cup playoff games.

After the bansuet players and officials joined in the parade to Ottawa Auditorium for a victory dance open only to airmen, airwomen and their friends. Players and guests wore big red roses in their lapels.

Sterling silver cigaret boxes and windbreakers with R.C.A.F. crests were presented to the team by H. F. Gordon, Assistant Deputy Minister for Air. Mr. Gordon replaced Air Minister Power who was unable to attend.

Cecil Duncan of Ottawa, past-president of teh Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, gave each player C.A.H.A. medals and wrist watches were presented by A. E. Lyon, vice-chairman of the Ontario Athletic Commission.

C.A.H.A. to Promote Service Hockey

Mr. Duncan sharply pointed out the future prospects of service hockey when he said that the C.A.H.A., governing body of amateur hockey in Canada, intends to "foster and promote" service hockey next winter.

"A service league with teams from the army, air force and navy is likely to be operating in Ottawa next season," he added.

Mayor Lewis said the Fliers were a credit to "Ottawa, the City League, and to themselves."

"Hockey fans in Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto," he said, "will agree that no team, as far as I can remember ever stood up on the ice to the public as this team in front of us."

Other speakers included Lorenzo LaFleur, chairman of the banquet and president of the City League; and Group Captain W. D. Van Vliet, president of the R.C.A.F. team.

Lionel Conacher, former hockey great and chairman of the Ontario Athletic Commission, was unable to be present.

Every member of the team—including the celebrated Kraut line of Milt Schmidt, Woody Dumart and Bobby Bauer—attended the ceremonies.

Sport Snapshots Across Canada

TORONTO, May 15.—(CP)—Two of the toughest babies in the National Hockey League last winter were Ken Reardon and Pat Egan. If all the forwards they socked at the blueline and battered in the corners were laid end to end they probably would be content to stay there.

Now it comes out that Reardon likes and admires Egan, despite distinct presence of mayhem at their every meeting. Reardon said the other day that Egan is the best hockey player ever to come out of Calgary (remember Sweeney Schriner, Lorne Carr?).

Reardon added: "I'd sure like to play on defence with him. Egan has everything that goes to make a good hockey player—determination, courage and a great shot."

Present Whereabouts: Reardon en route to Ottawa to join the army; Egan in a shipyard on the Pacific Coast.

DODGERS LIKE SOUTHPAWS, WHIP PIRATES' WILKIE BY 7-4 SCORE

Giants Lace Reds By 12 to 6 Score 10 In 8th

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Brooklyn Dodgers have most of their power concentrated in left-handed batters—Dolph Camilli, Pete Reiser, Dixie Walker and Arky Vaughan—and some of their rivals figured the National League champions could be stopped this season by southpaw pitching.

This is just one more theory that has been shattered by the Flatbush Follies, who have succeeded in beating the last five lefthanders sent against them and now have a record for the season of eight victories and five defeats by portsiders.

Yesterday they routed Aldon Wilkie, one of the lefties who had whipped them previously, with five runs in three innings and battled on to a 7-4 triumph over the second-place Pittsburg Pirates.

By capturing the first session of their three-game series, the Dodgers increased their margin to 3½ games and destroyed any hopes the Buccaneers may have had of grabbing the National League lead while in Brooklyn.

The raid on Wilkie started with a three-run homer by Joe Medwick in the first inning.

Pittsburg chased Kirby Higbe, the Brooklyn starter, with one run in the first on doubles by the former Dodgers, Jim Wasdell and Babe Phelps, and two more runs in the third on a single by John Barrett, an infield out and an error by Higbe and a homer by Phelps.

Giants Get Even.

New York Giants gave Cincinnati Reds a taste of their own medicine by scoring 10 runs in the eighth inning to win 12-6 and ease the sting of the 12-run inning which the Reds staged against New York on May 4.

The Reds made all their runs yesterday in the first three innings while Elmer Riddle pitched scoreless ball. Then the Giants began getting up steam and Manager Mel Ott switched on the big rally in the eighth with a three-run homer. During the inning Pinchhitter Babe Young came up twice and delivered a double and a triple and Hank Danning knocked in two runs. Bucky Walters, who tried to stem the tide, was belted out with two hits, each on the first pitch.

In the only other National League game big Bill Lee of Chicago Cubs added more proof to the supposition that he is making a big comeback by pitching a seven-hit 5-3 victory over the Phils. It was Lee's fifth triumph. The Bruins themselves made only eight hits off Rube Melton and Bill Naylor.

Action in the American League was confined to two games, neither of which involved New York Yankees, who now have been idle on six of the last eight days.

Chicago White Sox halted the five-game winning streak of Philadelphia Athletics 9-4. The A's made four errors and were held to seven hits by Bill Dietrich while Myril Hoag drove in four runs with three singles.

John Niggeling pitched six-hit ball and Roy Cullenbine and Chet Laabs hit home runs as the St. Louis Browns beat Boston Red Sox 6-3. Bobby Doerr got half the Red Sockers' hits and drove in two runs.

PEAK SEASON? By Jack Sords

Leafs Get Tips On Running Off Track Coach

TORONTO, May 15. — Burleigh Grimes could well afford to make several deep bows, sit back and take things easy for a while, in view of the lively baseball he's egged out of his charges for the benefit of Toronto customers, since the Maple Leafs opened their home stand.

But because he never played that way, he isn't that type of manager. At a time when everybody's lauding the base-running antics of your Leafs, extolling their sprinting prowess to the skies, Burleigh took time out to inform his men yesterday, that there was room for improvement.

Phillips to the Rescue.

It was an off-day for the Leafs, because the schedule opener of a three-game series at Rochester had been put back to a later date. So Burleigh prevailed upon Varsity Track Coach Hec. Phillips to come down to the Stadium and give the boys a lesson in speed.

As any good manager would, Grimes realizes what benefits can accrue from a batter getting a good start away from home plate on those slow infield grounders. That's why a really fast left-handed swinger will continually outhit a right-handed batter o fhigher calibre.

Phillips, rated one of Canada's leading track instructors, showed the Toronto players how to improve their speed in getting to first from home plate. A great part of the workout was devoted to getting the locals into their best stride as early as possible after bat and ball make contact.

The Leafs move into Rochester to-day for a pair of single games in a series ending Saturday. They head for Montreal and a double-header on Sunday, one game on Monday, returning home to face Buffalo Bisons at Maple Leaf Stadium on Wednesday.

May Extend Deadline.

Nick Strincevich, who will report to the Leafs in Red Wingville, will do mound duty for one of the two games if he's ready to go, Grimes intimated before his departure. Jack Hallett who turned in a great 12-innings job against Baltimore on Saturday, should be ready for the other game.

This is the scheduled "cutting-down" day for International League clubs, but there's a possibility the deadline may be extended for another ten days, the same as the major leagues. Shag Shaughnessy was taking a telegram vote of the eight clubs, and an announcement is expected at any time.

With Jimmy Russell on the inactive list, due to his ankle injury, the Leafs will be down to the 21 player limit, even when Stincevich reports in Rochester. Therefore the Leafs don't favor an extension of the time limit. A few other teams, with a few playing problems still to be settled, may force the extra ten days.

Thought Hitler Funny Little Guy Back In '36

EDMONTON, May 15—(CP)—Aircraftsman 2 Bruce Humber of Victoria, a potential pilot in training at the Manning Depot here and in 1936 a sprinter with the Canadian Olympic team, in an interview here yesterday said Hitler appeared to him only as "a funny little guy with baggy pants."

When the Canadian Olympic team arrived in Berlin in 1936, they were taken to the City Hall where they formed up in a long line to shake Hitler's hand.

"It's six years since I was there," Humber said, "and I don't remember all the details. But I do remember he was wearing a sloppy uniform and everybody made a lot of wisecracks under their breath. This, of course, wasn't in keeping with the atmosphere."

The Canadian members waited in a room for Hitler. He came in a back door, clicked his heels and then went ahead with the job of shaking hands with the assembly.

"I don't know how to describe him much. I can't say he had bloodshot eyes or anything else. But he seemed like a funny little squirt—something like Charlie Chaplin in his movie, The Great Dictator."

The airman thinks that Hitler's greatest asset is his ability to speak.

GerheauserClips Baltimore 14-3 For Bears

By The Canadian Press.

Lefty Al Gerheauser of Newark Bears may be New York Yankees' answer for a successor to Vernon Gomez, who shows signs of being in his last days as a big league pitcher.

Last night in the first nocturnal game of the year at MacArthur Stadium in Syracuse, Gerheauser turned in his third victory of the year, as the International League leaders pounded Red Barrett, Clayton Lambert, and Lynn Nelson for 16 hits and a 14-3 victory.

Gerheauser was provided a four-run lead in the first inning, which was highlighted by Bill Johnson's eighth home run of the year, placing him in a three-way tie with his team mate Francis Kelleher, and Bob Lemon of Baltimore in that department.

Bobby Adams, sensational young second baseman of Syracuse, got two hits including a double, and fielded flawlessly. Aaron Robinson of Newark walloped a home run in the ninth frame.

In the only other game played, Jersey City Giants defeated Baltimore Orioles 5-4. Montreal at Buffalo wa postponed and Rochester and Toronto enjoyed an off day.

Big Mike Naymick of the Orioles had a 4-0 lead when the Giants knocked him out of the box in the sixth with a two-run rally. They added single tallies off Ray Roche in the seventh and eighth frames, and counted the winning margin on Joe Orengo's single with the bases loaded in the ninth off Ken Trinkle.

Bobby Coombs gave up all the Baltimore hits and runs. Sal Maglie, who relieved Coombs, was credited with the victory, his second of the year.

Hal Seiling, who this season is playing the outfield for the Orioles, got three hits including a two-bagger.

4 Saskatchewan Ice Aces Join Up

REGINA, May 15.—(CP).— Four of Saskatchewan's better-known hockey players two o of them National Leaguers, report to the army to-morrow in Regina. All passed medical examinations and will immediately enter active service.

Heading the foursome is Don Mets of Wilcox who played sparkling hockey as Toronto Maple Leafs won the Stanley Cup last month. The other N.H.L. player is Murray Armstrong of Regina, who plays centre for Brooklyn Americans.

Vince German, who played at Philadelphia and Hershey before returning to perform for Regina Rangers and Calgary Stampeders last winter, has also received his call and the fourth is Bill Red) Tilson, winger with New York Rovers. He is the older of the two Red Tilsons, the other starring as a junior with Oshawa last season.

Admits Japs Erred

BERLIN, (From German Broadcasts), May 15—(AP).—Rear Admiral Luetzow, German naval spokesman, said to-day in a weekly talk over the Berlin radio that first Japanese reports of the Coral sea naval battle had greatly exaggerated Allied losses.

Luetzow cited specifically the reported sinking of the British battleship Warspite but said "such errors were promptly put right in later Japanese reports."

ANCIENT PUDDING

LONDON—(CP)—A tinned plum pudding, one of a consignment sent by Queen Victoria to men serving in South Africa during the Boer War, 1899-1942, was auctioned for the Red Cross prisoners-of-war fund.

Cattle Market Gains 50 Cents, Veal Stronger

TORONTO, May 15. — (CP).— Cattle receipts were cleared at prices fully 50 cents higher for the week, in trade on the livestock market here. Veal calves were strong with sheep and lambs 50 cents higher. Hogs opened 10 cents down but recovered the early loss.

There were more buyers than cattle on the market this week. Trade was active and more cattle could have been absorbed. Weighty steers sold at $10.50 to $11.75 with one at 12. Butcher steers were $10 to $11.25 and heifers $10 to $10.75.

Butcher cows were $7 to $9.50. Canners and cutters sold at $5 to $6.50 Bulls brought $8 to $9.35. Fed yearlings were $10.75 to $12 cwt. Light stockers sold at $8.50 to $10.50 with stock calves at $10.75. Good milkers and springers sold at $100 to $115 with a few at $125 each.

Veal calves were $14 to $14.50 for choice with good export demand. Common lights sold downward to $8.

One car of western lambs made a new top price of $13.50. Spring lambs sold in small lots at $8 to $13.50 each. Sheep were strong at $5 to $6.50 cwt. according to quality.

The Louisiade archipelago, of which the Deboyne group is a part, stretches for nearly 300 miles athwart the north-easterly approaches to the Australian coast and offers scores of hiding places for seaplane tenders and other craft. The islands are thinly populated by natives, virtually all the white population—which consisted mostly of gold-miners—having been evacuated three months ago.

word came of an offensive action from Sevastopol, a thorn at the Axis rear.

The Red Army garrison of that Black Sea naval base, 150 miles by air west of Kerch Strait, slashed anew at Axis siege lines and guerillas worked with rifles and bombs to harass the invaders.

Tass said Sevaspotol snipers alone had killed 1,600 Germans in the first 10 days of May and are continuing to mow the invaders down. A Nazi supply train was reported blown up.

The information bureau again referred to "superior enemy forces" in the Kerch theatre, however, and said the defenders had again "retreated to new positions."

Guarding a zone from which Gen. Fritz Von Mannstein's airmen and troops might strike across Kerch Strait at Caucasian ports, petroleum fields and communications, the Red Army men were reported still fighting stubbornly.

(A German high command spokesman said last night the Russians had launched a counter attack along the "Tartar Ditch," an old line of fortifications 13 miles west of the strait port of Kerch, but claimed the counter attack had failed.)

ors, got separated in the night and reached shore at various isolated points.

This and a tight censorship apparently was the cause of an earlier confusion as to just how many men made up the crew and passenger lists and also whether the survivors belonged to different ships.

The officer said that just after the boats had been lowered after the first explosion rocked the ship another torpedo struck. 'Forty-one sailors piled into one boat and 28 others, including the mother and child, got into another. A raft was tied to the back of the second boat and it carried 11 men. We stayed adrift in calm water until morning when we managed to reach shore.."

400 A Month

It was revealed, when the correspondence was subsequently produced, that Mr. Bell had also asked the aircraft industry to give printing contracts to Mr. Hirst.

He Didn't Like It

Mr. Howe said he had heard of the letter "some two months ago" and "naturally my reaction was similar to that of the member for Lake Centre."

"It is one of those things that occur and after it was discovered you can only do what you can about it. I made sure that the payments would not become an element of overhead cost no the part of any of the subscribers.

"Obviously the director general of aircraft production should not have had any part in the payment of a man to be employed at the expense of the industry.

"I am quite willing to say that the letter was a wholly improper letter. I have considered it as such and have done what I could to correct the situation.

"I could have dismissed my director-general of aircraft production," the minister proceeded when he was interrupted by Conservative House Leader Hanson.

"Nobody has suggested that," Mr. Hanson said.

"What else could I do except what I did?" Mr. Howe went on. "I had to weigh the fact that he came in full of enthusiasm, took an industry that was moribund and built it into a most excellent industry. It has expanded 400 per cent.

"But his methods are not always the methods I would have used. I am more methodical generally than my director-general of aircraft production, but nevertheless I do not know that I could have made as good a job of that industry had I taken it over at the time he did."

Mr. Howe took his turn among the key ministers engaged in the war effort to answer questions regarding his department. The house still was in committee of the whole on the $2,000,000,000 war appropriation bill resolution. Air Minister Power's presentation was completed early in yesterday's session.

The Mine-Sweeper Job

Mr. Howe was assailed by Tom Reid (Lib., New Westminster) who declared an officer of the department had discouraged an order offered by a British official for 70 wooden mine sweepers—an order that had subsequently gone to the United States and was being filled by the use of British Columbia wood.

Mr. Reid said there could be no claim of a total Canadian war effort while such things occurred and he contended that Canada could easily have filled the order.

Mr. Howe expressed disbelief in the report and said no officer of his department would discourage such an order and that Canada had been building and continued to build wooden mine-sweepers.

Mr. Reid said he would give the minister privately the name of the official reported to have told the British agent that the ships could not be produced in Canada.

George Cruickshank (Lib. Fraser Valley) said that there could not be any suggestion of a total war effort industrially while there were idle plants and men in British Columbia.

This complaint was carried further by two New Democracy members, Victor Quelch (Acadia) and C. E. Johnston (Bo River).

Mr. Quelch said he visited a large number of war plants including aircraft factories in Montreal and in one instance had been told that it could easily double its output if it had any encouragement from the government.

He said the industry was "hounding" the government for orders instead of the government pressing for more production. He said also that there was no labor shortage according to his information from plant officials.

Room for 35,000

There was mention of 35,000 unemployed and Mr. Howe said he could employ 35,000 men and "we had better get together."

Mr. Johnston renewed his contention that the government was not making full use of steel production possibilities in Canada and Mr. Howe recalled the member's charge some days ago that the Calgary rolling mills were not working at near capacity.

He said he had made inquiries and found that the Calgary Rolling Mills had been working three eight-hour shifts 24 hours a day. An argument on this point was ended by the 11 p.m. adjournment.

W. Earl Rowe (Con. Dufferin-Simcoe) advocated the adoption of a compulsory savings law which would create a constant flow of money to the treasury for war purposes and set up a back-log of savings for the people for the post-war period.

During the course of the discussion Mr. Howe said he did not like the frequent newspaper reports indicating more rigid gasoline rationing and reduction of the amounts available for civilian use.

He said these reports were bad for morale. The gasoline situation was serious and the Department would endeavor to make the best distribution of available supplies, but it would act immediately without advance inormation when action was necessary.

Percy Black (Con. Cumberland) asked the minister if the Government was considering development of oil shale deposits in Nova Scotia, but Mr. Howe asked him to make his inquiry later.

OBITUARY

ALLAN B. McINTOSH

PLAINVILLE, May 15.—(ENS)— A shadow of gloom was cast over the entire community on learning Tuesday noon of the sudden passing at Coldsprings of Allan B. McIntosh.

Mr. McIntosh, with a neighbor's help, had been working at a rockery in his back lawn and had been as well as usual. The neighbor left for approximately half an hour and fifteen minutes previous his wife had been speaking to him. On the neighbour's return he found Mr. MacIntosh had been stricken fatally.

Mr. McIntosh was well known having lived at Coldsprings all his life and with his wife has been the operator of the Coldsprings telephone system for many years. Mr. McIntosh has also been a busy electrician during the past number of years. He was a member of the Coldsprings United Church and of the local L.O.L.

His sudden passing is greatly felt by a large circle of friends who gave testimony to the fact by the number who attended the funeral service filling the Coldprings Church Wednesday afternoon, when the pastor, Rev. I. Wesley officiated. A short service was held at the residence previously.

Left to mourn his passing are his wife, formerly Henrietta Smith, two brothers, Arthur of Cobourg and Norman of Coldsprings, and a niece, Mrs. Paul Harris (Irene Smith) of Toronto, who has lived with her uncle and aunt since childhood.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. Newton McIntosh, Robert McIntosh, Ernest Bowman, Percy Grieve, Clifford Mills and Hilton Manley.

The very many and beautiful floral tributes were borne by the school children of Coldsprings and Ronald and Murray Manley. Interment was at Coldspring Cemetery.

MRS. JAMES MOFFATT

MARMORA, May 15—(ENS). — Another pioneer of Marmora Township was laid to rest in Zion Cemetery, North Marmora, on Tuesday afternoon in the person of Mrs. James Moffatt. Service in Zion United Church was taken by Rev. Dr. W. P. Fletcher, assisted by Rev. S. Skelding.

Mrs. Moffatt, whose maiden name Margaret Elizabeth Sharrow, was in her ninety-seond year. Her husband predeceased her about twenty years ago and since then she has resided with her daughter, Mrs. William Hamilton, of Marmora Township.

For some time she had been confined to her bed and she passed away on Saturday, May 9. She was a kindly and friendly disposition and always ready to help others in time of need.

Six daughters and two sons survive, namely Mrs. James Mark (Annie) and Mrs. William Fletcher (Ellie), Western Canada; Mrs. Frank Bedore (Sarah) Peterborough; Thomas, Marmora township; Peter, California; Mrs. Robert Chambers (Clara), Montreal; Mrs. Royal Gawley (Margaret) and Mrs. William Hamilton (Bertha), Marmora township.

MRS. T. JOHNSTON

Mrs. T. Johnston, wife of the late Lt.-Col. T. J. Johnston, and a life-long resident of the district, died at her home, 136 Reid street, Thursday afternoon after an illness of three weeks, at the age of 83.

She was the former Francis N. Moncrief, daughter of the late George Moncrief and Sara Clark, and was born in North Monaghan. After her marriage, she and her husband resided on the 7th Concession in Otonabee Township, and 15 years ago they moved to Peterborough. The late Mrs. Johnston is a member of Knox United Church.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Roy Porter, Otonabee, and Mrs. Everett Hales, Peterborough. There are two sons, Stanley, Home Guard, Farnham, Que., and Ernest, Peterborough; also two sisters, Mrs. M. Morrison, Peterborough, and Mrs. George Lockie, Kamloops, B.C. and one brother, Richard Moncrief, North Monaghan.

The funeral service will be held Saturday at 3 p.m. from Knox United Church. The Rev. J. H. Mahoney will conduct the service and interment will be in Little Lake Cemetery.

ARRIVES IN ENGLAND

Word was received today of the safe arrival in Britain of Ted Clarke son of Mr. and Mrs. George Clarke of 491 Homewood avenue. Ted is a member of the R.C.A.F.

DOCTORS APPOINTED.

Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., appointed two doctors to examine and report on the mental condition of a youth who appeared before him in police court this morning to answer charges of vagrancy and of being mentally ill. The young man was remanded until tomorrow when the reports of the doctors will be presetned to the court.

NEW CLASS.

A new class for training girls for war work was started at the Peterborough Vocational School Tuesday. This course will last for six weeks, when the girls will go into a "finishing school" at the plant, and their own alertness will decide how long it will be before they will actually go into production.

EARLY CALL.

A hurry call was received at the Fire Department from the Canadian General Electric, at 1.45 a.m. The main trouble was the result of a defective fuse on heavy power lines caused by the heat which overloaded the wires. Chief Gimblett reported that there was not much damage.

GETS COMMISSION.

Miss Dorothy French of this city, recently commissioned by the Salvation Army, has been assigned to the corps at Galt as a probationary lieuteant. She formerly was employed at the Dominion Woollens and Worsteds plant here before leaving to attend the Army's training college.

A MINOR ACCIDENT

As Richard N. Grace, Western Avenue, was driving his car east on Albert street, another machine driven by Murray Johnston, Aylmer street, pulled out from the curb and there was a collision in which the rear fender of Grace's automobile was damaged.

PATRIOTIC

Patriotic citizens are doing their duty by the rubber salvage campaign and have nearly filled the large barrel in front of Neill's store. All this is a most vital part of the war effort and everything possible should be contributed.

A.R.P. NERVE CENTRE.

A request from Mayor Hamiton for the use of a room in South Central school to be used as a report and control room for A.R.P. work in the Civilian Defence Program was approved by the Board of Education. It was pointed out, however, that the room has no wiring for lighting nor heating units at the present time.

TEN APPLICATIONS.

Ten applications from teachers seeking positions on the Public and Collegiate staffs in this city were received by the secretary of the Board of Education during the past month. These were referred to the supervision committee for consideration. The resignation of Miss Mary Kirkwood from the teaching staff of the Collegiate was accepted with regret.

NEW CLASSES.

Home Nursing lectures will begin next Monday evening at eight o'clock for the C.W.V.S. members. The same lecture will be given on both Tuesday and Wednesday nights. This is a splendid opportunity for those who have not been able to attend other home nursing courses, and all the meetings will take place in the Y.W.C.A.

TRANSIENT FINED

A plea of guilty to a drunk charge cost a transient a fine of $10 and costs or ten days in jail when he appeared in police court this morning. Inspector Reid said that the man had been very drunk on King street when he was taken into custody.

FOR THE SPITFIRE FUND

Inspector James F. Reid received a cheque this morning from the Young People's Union of Mark St. Church for $3.50 for the Canadian Police Spitfire fund. This is the first local donation received in some time and the police department appreciate the helpful gesture on the part of the young people of the East City church.

I.O.D.E. Chapter Repeats Aid To War Victims

In this city there are a number of Chapters of the Daughters of the Empire, whose consistent work, both in war and peace time has ever been of a patriotic nature, and it follows from their very name and associations that they would be found particularly in the forefront during these days of crises in the nation's history.

From the moment that the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund was organized, these various chapters have for the most part been behind this particular Peterborough and District war effort to help the people of Britain, and among them a notable place has been taken by the Otonabee Chapter, of which Mrs. Etta Robinson is Regent and Mrs. W. A. Davern is treasurer.

Some time ago this Chapter made one of the outstanding contributions to the fund in an amount of $300 and in today's list of receipts for the fund, can be found one in their name for $25 which marks at least the fourth donation that they have given to date for this fund, irrespective of all the other work they have been doing on behalf of the boys serving in the forces, and the general war effort.

Then another group who have previously given help to the fund, are also listed in today's list, with a nice donation of $10.25 coming in from the Knox Church Ladies' Bowling Club, to make the second such to come in from Church organizations in as many days, and one nice personal donation of $5 from "M. A. H." is also in the day's list. The box at the Bell Telephone Office added another $4.05 to its already good record when collected on Thursday by the secretary of the fund, bringing their total to date to $64.13.

Norwood Reports

From the funds representative, D. B. Cutcliffe at Norwood comes collections from two penny boxes, that at King's Hotel contributing $3.43 and the one at the Royal Bank adding a further ninety-six cents.

The girls in the Peterborough branch of the Sun Life Assurance Co. office have made a beautiful afghan in maroon and grey, which has also a crocheted edging completely around it, and now they are starting to sponsor the sale of tickets for a draw on it, which will be sold at the popular price of ten cents each or three for twenty-five cents. The afghan will shortly be displayed to give those interested an opportunity to note its real value, and the service it can give.

KINMOUNT THANKS

Reeve David Curtin of Galway-Cavendish has written to Mrs. George Benton, secretary-treasurer of the Victory Workers, gratefully acknowledging receipt of boxes of clothing and bedding for the Kinmount fire victims. "On behalf of the Unfortunate ones I thank your organization for their sympathy and the very substantial aid given," Reeve Curtin concluded his letter of appreciation.

CALL FOR GULL'S EGGS

With hens' eggs on a strictly rationed basis in England, seagulls' eggs are in greater demand than ever.

Red Cross Concert On Sunday Night

A concert broadcast from the auditorium of the Collegiate Institute Sunday from 9 to 10 p.m. on behalf of the Peterborough Red Cross and Community Fund will be carried over CHEX.

Entertainment features include Dorothy Allan Park, soprano; Harry and Stan Northrop, piano duo; the Temple Band Ensemble; The Trail Blazer, new radio baritone, community singing led by Andy Rutter.

Interspersed with the numbers will be addresses relating to the Red Cross campaign that is now in progress in Peterborough city and county.

Ashburnham Turns In A Record Salvage Collection

Ashburnham went to bat on Thursday and turned in a hundred per cent. score in the first city area to undergo a genuine combing for salvage in Peterborough.

ABOVE is seen one of the city trucks picking up a load and the driver is being assisted by a Boy Scout. It is proposed to collect the salvage from one area in the city every week.

Three Airplanes Reported Lost

Three planes were lost in Otonabee township last Sunday but unfortunately no lives were lost. In fact the reason no lives were lost was because the planes carried neither pilot nor passengers. The loss, however, amounts to more than $100 and the planes may be found any place within a nine mile radius. The owners of these three gasoline motored model planes are willing to shell out five dollars for each one returned, either intact or with crash damage.

It must have been a great day for flying or else the boys forgot to set the cut-out engine switches, for the last they saw of their models, the ships were up 2,000 feet and still climbing. The planes were released at Downer's Corners, down at the southeast corner of the city on highway 7. One went southwest towards the river, the other went due east, and the third was a mere dot in the blue heading in the direction of the radio towers, southeast from Downer's Corners. It may travel as far as Keene, but in so much as some models have glided from 90 to 200 miles, there is no telling where the vagrant will come down. Another interesting thing about these models is that when they strike heat pockets, they gain altitude rapidly, thus enlarging their cruising range, and sending them still further from the starting point.

All three are high wing monoplanes, powered with single cylinder gasoline engines, and the largest has a wing spread of 27 inches, the smallest of three, 15 inches. One is orange and blue, and the other are yellow and blue. The motors alone are worth $30.00 each. Orville Shufelt of the Y.M.C.A. and Dunlop Mathias of 192 McDonnel street, owners of the model planes, have often travelled for miles to recover them but this time they are beaten, so they are appealing to farmers who will be working in the fields and children attending rural schools to be on the lookout for the models.

The boys explained that in flying these planes, they set the motor to run twenty seconds, then it cuts out, and the plane glides to a landing. The plane which travels the greatest distance wins the prize at a model aircraft meet.

Peterborough Boys Win Scholarships

Two ex-students of P.C.V.S. have won prizes and scholarships at Queen's University. Ronald Dick, who goes to Kingston tomorrow to receive his batchelor's degree, has won The Wilhelmina Gordon Foundation in English scholarship of $25; the Roberta McCulloch Scholarship in English, worth $100; a medal for English, and two other English prizes. Barrie Jack has won the Susan Near Scholarship in History, ($80), awarded for the highest standing in second year History.

Collegiate Gym Refused Nurses

Continuing the policy set down about six months ago, members of the Board of Education refused permission to the Nicholls Hospital and St. Joseph's Hospital to use the gymnasium at the Collegiate following the graduation on June 1, and June 10.

They granted these organizations the use of the auditorium as usual for the sum of $15.00, and the secretary was instructed to advise the reasons for the action. On urgings from the Departmental inspector the Board spent considerable money in having the floor surface in the gymnasium resurfaced, and then decided on a fee of $50 for its rental for dances, hoping the fee would be prohibitive. At the same time they stipulated any organization renting the room would have to leave the floor in the same condition as when they took it over.

The rule went into effect when the radio station, CHEX, rented both the auditorium and the gym, and they not only paid the $50.00 but $16.00 more to resurface the floor. In addition the Board was given every assurance that adequate police and supervisors would be on hand to see that no damage was done to walls, or furniture.

With that event disposed of, the Board looked for clear sailing on this annoying problem, hoping organizations wanting the auditorium and the gym, would take the former and switch any dance activities to the Legion Hall, which is quite close to the Collegiate.

Two other organizations were given permission to use the auditorium as follows: Boys Scouts Association, May 24, Sunday afternoon, for $15; Red Cross and Community fund, Sunday evening, May 17, at $15.

Schools Rapidly Nearing Capacity

Wartime Housing Limited was asked by the Board of Education at its meeting on Thursday night to make a survey of the educational facilities available before any more new houses are erected It was pointed out that while some of the city schools are now almost filled to capacity others had available room, hence schools to accommodate wartime housing children would not be necessary if there were a proper distribution of the localities where the wartime houses are erected

Members of the Board were also of the opinion that the ratepayers of Peterborough should not be saddled with the cost of upkeep of a new school erected by wartime housing, especially when the Board receives no revenue from these houses and also as there is plenty of space available in two of city schools.

The resolution of protest was moved by G. Wilson Craw and seconded by T. J. Carley, K.C.

The whole question arose out of the suggestion to build 250 houses on the Hatton farm in the west end. At present he children from the wartime housing project on Park Hill Road are being sent to the Queen Mary school with the result that both the schools in the west, Queen Mary and Prince of Wales, are rapidly approaching capacity. The King George school in Ashburnham is also filled and also the Queen Alexandra school in the north ward, only leaving the King Edward school, which has plenty of space available, and the old South Central school which still has a couple of vacant rooms.

Monaghan Road Traffic Hazard

Fear that an additional hazard to school children would be created if Monaghan Road was made a through street, was voiced at the meeting of the Board of Education on Thursday evening by K. S. Wightman, school inspector.

He told the Board he had learned that the City Council was contemplating this step, to speed up and facilitate the routing of traffic from the industrial section south of Wolfe Street. After a brief discussion the Board, on motion of D. V. Canning and D. G. H. Melton, decided to ask the City Council to consider further the extra danger to children if the project is carried out, particularly at Prince of Wales School and Queen Mary School.

"That stop sign on Reid Street is a silly thing; why doesn't the Council move it out to the corner of Sherbrooke and Monaghan Road and give some additional protection to the children," Dr. Moir remarked.

"There are special school area signs in place now but some motorists can't see them," Mr. Wighman said.

Inspector Wightman told the Board too, that the special black and yellow school signs were first-class, and he stated they had been placed by the city workmen in spots suggested on a map which he prepared. He paid special tribute to Alderman James Dutton for the interest he had taken in securing and erecting the signs. A letter of appreciation is going forward to the Council for this work.

War—25 Years Ago

By The Canadian Press

MAY 15, 1917. — Austrian destroyers sank 14 British naval patrol drifters in the Adriatic Sea. Gen. Philippe Petain replaced Gen. Robert Nivelle as commander of the French armies on the Western Front; Gen. Ferdinand Foch made chief of the general staff.

Submarines Stop Shipments Of Pineapples

"Peterborough will do without pineapples this week-end," George W. Duncan, manager of the fruit department of National Grocers, told the Examiner this morning.

"And not only Peterborough but the whole country, and it may be the entire continent, at least the United States and Canada. The last arrivals were a week ago today, and if there are any pines left in local stores after the week's demand it will be just the odd one. The market is bare, and we have no idea when there will be any more shipments from Cuba."

No pineapples have left Cuba since May 2, and there are no banana boats due for a while.

German submarines in the Caribbean Sea and along the Atlantic coast have tied up the West Indies fruit trade, Mr. Duncan said. "And now this week they have sunk several freighters in the St. Lawrence, so I have no idea what to expect in the way of shipments — and also when.

The United States government is trying to arrange a convoy system for the fruit ferries between Cuba and Florida, but that takes time. The trade has been told that boats have set out from both shores, going and coming, but were ordered back to port when patrols discovered that submarines were operating in those waters.

Ships are extremely important today, and the public is fully aware of that fact; so we just have to put up with conditions until something can be done about them."

Mr. Duncan said he did not know positively what supplies were left in the United States, but it was probable that the country was much in the same depletion as Canada.

A bright side of the fruit market is the comparative abundance of oranges. Both California and Florida have had big crops, and deliveries into this country have been heavier than usual.

Salvage Drive In Ashburnham Is Big Success

Ashburnham responded to the salvage campaign with a great volume of waste material, paper, rubber, metals and bottles.

"I think we cleaned up that side of the river," Mrs. Claire Collins of the Peterborough Women's Service Council remarked this morning. "It was really astonishing the way people brought out large quantities of stuff that will soon be put to good use."

Three houses on Carlisle Avenue dug up seven automobile tires. Rubber boots that had worn thin or with actual holes appeared from cellars and attics. Somebody took the trouble to roll out a big steel pulley about three feet in diameter and twelve inches wide at the rim.

Houses all along Rogers Street decorated their fronts for the occasion with mounds of material.

Alderman Glover said the native community had done a fine job in setting the pace for the rest of Peterborough, and from Mrs. Collins comes the information that the other sections will be combed in weekly turns, probably on Thursdays.

Collection of paper was slowed down during the afternoon by the service of only one truck until six o'clock when the transportation system broadened out. Members of the Canadian Women's Voluntary Service supplied volunteer helpers for the baling job in the old Fitzgerald building at the corner of Brock and Water Streets.

The scrap metal and rubber were taken to the lacrosse box on Townsend Street.

New Thousands Of Canucks Swell UK Units

AN EAST COAST CANADIAN PORT, May 15—(CP).—The ranks of Canada's fighting men in Britain have been strengthened by new thousands of warmen of the land and air, just arrived overseas in one of the greatest reinforcement convoys to leave here since the start of the war.

Guarded by watchful units of the British and United States Navies, the big transports carried to Britain the first detachments of Maj.-Gen. F. F. Worthington's armored division to leave Canada, besides a great contingent of airmen and reinforcements for many Army units already on the other side. Announcement of their safe arrival was made last night after an uneventful Atlantic voyage.

The armored vanguard included officers and men of seven regiments and squadrons for Divisional and Brigade Headquarters. Other Army groups included 121 nursing sisters, Ordnance Corps men, artillerymen, a radio location unit, Medical Corps troops, signallers, engineers, and a group that will set up a repair shop for all Royal Canadian Army Service Corps vehicles.

Some Aussies Too.

Among the airmen were some of the first Australian fliers to be completely trained for sky battle in their own country. With them were graduates of training fields from one end of Canada to the other.

Many of the soldiers, toughened by months of hard training and eager for battle, were veterans of the First Great War. One of these "repaint jobs" was Maj. G. A. Annand of Toronto, holder of the Military Cross.

A member of the Canadian House of Commons was in the sailing. He was Capt. W. E. Harris of Markdale, Ont., Liberal M.P. for Grey-Bruce. Capt. Harris was going to take a course in tank training and return to Canada as an instructor.

One notable group comprised the first graduates from among the Royal Air Force trainees who last year went from Britain to learn their deadly trade in the United States. The young sergeant pilots to a man were enthusiastic about the "wonderful" treatment they had received in the U.S.

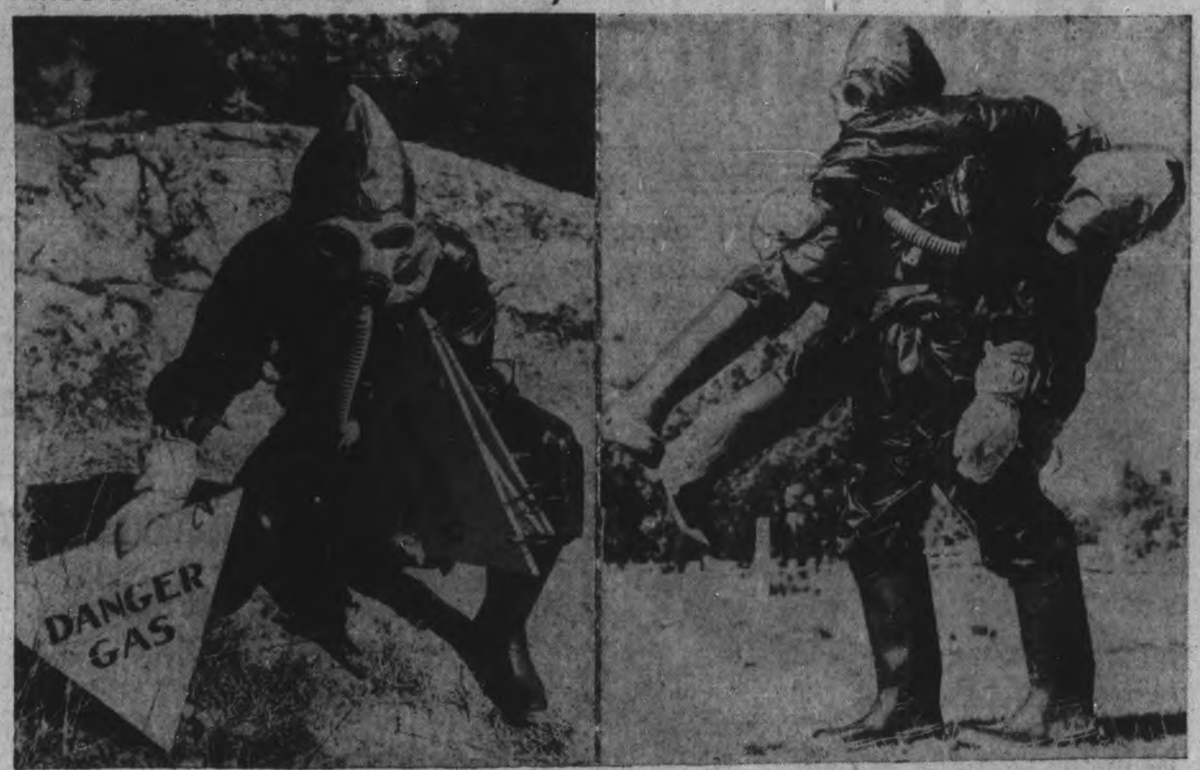
Canadian Naval Shore Stations Study Anti-Gas Precautions



The possibility of gas being used in the present total war becomes more than a remote possibility what with accusations being hurled against the Nazis by the Russians, and Churchill's warning to Hitler. Canada is prepared for such an attack. At a Canadian naval shore station a decontaminator, all decked out in the proper outfit, RIGHT, is being "rescued" by a buddy who is similarly garbed. In actual gas raids, men so attired would be more or less immune. A trainee is pictured, LEFT, placing a warning that gas has collected in a ground pocket.

Armored Units Reach S. England

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, May 15—(CP Cable3.—The Canadian 1st Army, spearhead of Britain's invasion forces gathering in the United Kingdom, moved a step nearer its final shape today as the first formations of the armored division commanded by Maj.-Gen. F. F. Worthington reached their Southern England training camps.

Part of a large convoy of army, Royal Canadian Air Force and general reinforcements, representative groups of officers and men from a number of regiments in the division will undergo special training at armored corps camps. Thereafter, as officers explained, "we will pass on what we have learned to other troops in the division."

Settling down was the order of the day for soldiers and airmen alike as they regained their land legs after an uneventful crossing in which the dropping of depth charges by the escort of British and United States warships give rise to the customary rumors of sub sinkings.

Millbrook News

Mrs. Percy Stinson was presented with a case of toilet preparations at the close of the Red Cross play on Saturday evening in appreciation of her untiring help with many details of advertising, costumes, etc., which were of decided assistance in making the two nights of the play such a marked success. Tom Belch, whose interpretation of the gangster role of Duke Hennigan won him much-merited praise, made the informal address, and Gordon Might offered the gift. Mrs. Stinson acted as prompter for the two nights, Friday and Saturday, when the play was given to capacity audiences in the Town Hall. At present $160 is in the hands of the Red Cross treasurer, H. A. Kerr, from the play, and some outside sale of tickets is yet to be accounted for.

Among local visitors home for Mother's Day week-end were Reg. Edmunds, R.C.A.F., Belleville; Corp. Clifford Wood and Mrs. Wood, with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wood; Rod Armstrong, R.C.A.F., with his mother, Mrs. H. R. Armstrong; Corp. Anglican Synod Meet Voted Out KINGSTON, Ont., May 15—(CP'.—The Synod of the Anglican Diocese of Ontario closed its session yesterday with the indication that there may be no session of the Synod next year. Members of the Synod, at their meeting Wednesday night, voted to go on record as being in favor of no meeting next year.

The matter was left in the hands of Rt. Rev. John Lyond, Bishop of the Diocese, after it had been pointed out that during the First Great War one session of Synod was cancelled.

The Synod approved a recommendation of the Social Service committee to effect that wherever possible a minister of the Anglican church should be present in court when a child delinquent case is being heard, when the person charged comes from an Anglican home. The Synod was told the matter of child deliquency was becoming a a very serious one.

Members of the Synod, after an address by Rt. Rev. R. R. Sherman, Bishop of the Diocese of Calvary, voted to accept an allotment of $6,400 for the apportionate fund of the Missionary Society of the Canadian Church.

Broiler Sales Begin Climbing

TORONTO, May 15—(CP).—The fresh dressed poultry market has eeen rather quiet, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reported. Receipts have been confined to broilers and a few old hen turkeys.

Arrivals of broilers have increased with the result quotations registered a decline.

More fowl are arriving, a little more in line with requirements. Demand for chicken is being taken care of from storage holdings. There has been a steady, normal movement of this class of poultry locally and out-of-town. A few lots of grade B milk-fed chicken have been sold locally in a jobbing way at 28 cents lb.

Offering of chicken from the Western Provinces have been on a basis of 29½ cents lb. for grade A milk-fed, 28½ cents lb. for grade B milk-fed but no sales were made.

For the old lot of old hen turkeys which arrived dealers paid 22 cents lb.

Dealers are quoting producers and country dealers, nominal:

Broilers: Grade A milk-fed 27 cents lb., grade B milk-fed 26 cents lb.

Fowl: Grade A, over 5 lbs. 24, 4½ to 6 lbs 23, 4 to 4½ lbs 22; Grade B, over 5 lbs. 22, 4½ to 5 lbs. 21, 4 to 4½ lbs. 20.

Gas Ready

Prf. W. Lee Lewis tells of his secret gas, Lewisite, which has been in the hands of the War Department of the United States for 25 years. If Hitler plans to introduce gas into total warfare, Uncle Sam is ready to retaliate with Lewisite. Lewis says that his gas is more humane than mustard because it is more deadly and acts more quickly. Although produced in World War 1, it was never used.

Coastal Patrol Gets 2 Vessels

LONDON, May 15 (CP)—Aircraft of the coastal command, continuing their efforts to prevent the Germans from using Norwegian coastal waters as shipping supply lines, bombed two ships during the night, the air ministry announced today.

Two Hudson bombers gave the coup de grace to a large supply ship which had been run ashore near Vagso, the ministry said. Bombs hit the ship and set it afire. It was described as a total wreck.

Another Hudson set fire to a heavily-laden supply ship as it was leaving Aalesund. The ministry's new service said the pilot went down to sea level to make his attack in darkness and "leap-frogged over the ship as he let go his bombs."

"Looking back, the crew saw bombs explode on the ship near the stern," the news service said. "Debris flew in all directions and thick oily smoke rose and spread until the ship's outline was almost hidden."

When last seen the craft was listing heavily.

Exchange Telegraph recorded a broadcast by the Bremen radio saying that "A British plane dropped leaflets in the northern suburbs of Paris this morning" and that it was shot down later by German fighters near Beauvais after a long chase.

Trent River Girl Is Honored At Jolly Shower

TRENT RIVER, May 15—(ENS).—Members of the Trent River United Church King's Daughters and Young Men's Classes gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cook on Tuesday evening to honor their daughter, Isobel, bride-elect of this month.

Miss Cook was presented with a hymn book by the King's Daughters. The address was read by Miss Jeryne Brown and presentation made by Miss Irene wood. Mrs. D. Dart presented a framed picture on behalf of the Young People's Society. Following this Miss Fay Hubble brought in a basket filled with red and white kitchenware shower presents. Miss Cook expressed her appreciation in well-chosen words.

Another feature of the evening was a presentation of a pair of vases to Miss L. Kidd by the Young People's League as a token of appreciation for her efforts in League work. The evening was spent in games and a social time enjoyed.

DRASTIC NEW REGULATIONS

restricting sales of new, retreaded, and used tires, new and used tubes, and retreading services

GO INTO EFFECT TODAY

Canada's rubber shortage is graver than ever. Not for many months will synthetic rubber be produced, and then only for the needs of the armed forces. Effective today, only a limited few, the owners of essential eligible vehicles, may obtain usable tires or tubes, or retreading services. Retail transactions must now be confined to sales between dealers and the eligible motoring public. Apart from such legal sales, no person may buy or sell, borrow or lend, barter, give away, mortgage, deliver, or receive any such tire or tube or retreading service. Eligible vehicle owners are divided into three classes, on this basis:

Class:	Who may buy:	What may be bought:	How purchases may be made:
"A"	Physicians, visiting nurses, firefighters, police, certain trucks, etc.	New, retreaded, or used tires; new or used tubes; retreading services.	To buy new tire or tube, retreading tire or retreading service, purchaser must apply for Ration Permit to the nearest office of Wartime Prices and Trade Board: (For used tire or used tube, see Class "C").
"B"	War technicians, War supply inspectors, Taxi owners, etc.	Retreaded or used tires; used tubes; retreading services.	To buy retreaded tire or retreading services, purchaser must apply for Ration Permit to the nearest office of Wartime Prices and Trade Board; (For used tire or used tube see below).
"C"	Food inspectors, Scrap buyers, Travelling repairmen, Rural school teachers, etc.	Used tires, used tubes.	A vehicle owner in this class may buy only used tires or used tubes. He must prove necessity to any authorized dealer and fill out, with the dealer, a Purchase Certificate. Classes "A" and "B" may also buy used tires and tubes under the same conditions.

FULL DETAILS OF THE NEW ORDER ARE OBTAINABLE FROM ANY TIRE DEALER

The tire dealers of Canada will see that the new regulations are obeyed but Government enforcement officers will also be on the watch throughout Canada and very severe penalties will be imposed for any infractions.

HERE ARE SOME OF THE RULES EVERY DEALER MUST OBEY:

1. He must become familiar with all the provisions of the new order.
2. Before making a sale he must satisfy himself that the purchaser cannot do without the tire he seeks—that the purchaser has no other vehicle in a lower class which he could use, and that he has no tire or tube (in storage, or on a vehicle in a lower class, or on an ineligible vehicle) which could be safely used in place of the tire he would buy.
3. He must receive, without allowance of any kind, a tire or tube of corresponding type and size, before selling another tire or tube.
4. He must make certain that he has received from the purchaser the proper written authority to enable him to make the sale, or provide retreading services.
5. If he cannot fill all his orders at the same time, he must give preference to vehicle owners in a higher class.
6. It is his patriotic duty to repair and legally resell all usable tires in his possession, and turn over at once to the nearest salvage agency any scrap rubber he has on hand or receives in the future, including all tires and tubes no longer serviceable.

Every person, whether a dealer or not, must report by May 31 to the Tire Rationing Representative at his nearest Wartime Prices and Trade Board office, all tires and tubes in his possession on May 15 which are not scrap, and which are not on the running wheels and one spare rim of each vehicle he owns.

KEPT FROM WORK BY BACKACHE

Suffered for 3 Years

Backache may be just bothersome; on the other hand, it may creep on and become chronic. Such was the case with the man who wrote the letter below—until he was induced to try Kruschen. To-day he has a different tale to tell:—

"For three years I was badly troubled with my kidneys. They caused me such severe pain in the back that I had to quit working. I tried many prescriptions, but they did me no good. One day I saw a Kruschen Salts advertisement. After using three bottles, my backache was entirely gone, and I can now work as well as ever. I shall never be without Kruschen Salts again."—J.E.

Unless the kidneys—or body filters—function properly, certain acid wastes, instead of being expelled, are allowed to pollute the blood-stream and produce troublesome symptoms; rheumatic pains for one, excessive fatigue for another. Kruschen Salts is one of the finest diuretics or kidney aperients available for assisting the kidneys to excrete acid impurities.

Kruschen is a British product, obtainable at all drug stores, 25c and 75c.

Allied Raiders Get Jap Ship, Hit 15 Bombers

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, May 15—(CP).—Lashing out suddenly at the western flank of the Japanese invasion bases north of Australia, Allied bombers last night sank a 3,000-ton Japanese ship at the former Netherlands island of Amboina and damaged two others, it was announced today.

At the same time other Allied air raiders attacked Rabaul, New Britain, on the enemy's opposite flank, plastering shipping in the harbor and raining explosives on 15 Japanese bombers surprised on the airdrome runway, an Allied communique said.

The new Allied blows emphasized warnings by Australian leaders that the battle of the Coral Sea has not ended the peril facing this continent and that only continued assaults upon the whole vast network of Japanese bases to the northwest and northeast can avert invasion.

The attack on Amboina, former Netherlands naval base, represented a round-trip flight of more than 1,300 miles from Allied raiders attacking from northwestern Australia.

The island, situated between New Guinea and Celebes, is 650 miles northwest of Darwin and about an equal distance southeast of Davao, Japanese base on the Philippine island of Mindanao.

Amboina thus is strategically situated as a springboard for a possible Japanese invasion thrust.

Set Docks Ablaze

In addition to sinking one vessel in Amboina harbor, the Allied raiders scored direct hits on one ship of 3,000 tons and another of 2,000 tons. They also set fire to docks.

At Rabaul, frequent target of Allied raids, three of the 15 enemy bombers surprised on the airdrome runway blew up and others were damaged if not wholly destroyed, headquarters declared.

Although Japanese fighters were in the air, the communique said, they did not engage the Allied planes.

No Allied losses were reported in either raid.

The Japanese, however, were reported to have lost two of six Zero fighters which attempted to attack Port Moresby on the southern coast of New Guinea. Allied fighters credited with shooting down the two planes were reported to have damaged a third.

Looking ahead to the time when the Allies expect to launch an offensive from Australia, army minister Francis Forde announced today that conscripted members of the Commonwealth's home militia soon would be given an opportunity to volunteer for service anywhere in the world.

The move is expected to help quell a parliamentary controversy over the defence act which forbid conscripted men being sent outside Australian territory. Opposition leaders recently tried unsuccessfully to force an amendment which would remove this limitation.

Ship Survives Three Torpedoes

NEW ORLEANS, May 15—(AP).—Sturdy medium-sized cargo ship survived three torpedos and between 17 and 20 shells from an Axis submarine and was safe in a Gulf of Mexico port to-day with loss of one life.

The ship had gaping torpedo holes in its sides and at least nine shell hits.

Holgar K. Mikkelson, chief mate died of shrapnel wounds and shock aboard a lifeboat. One other man, Radio Operator Sam A. Trecino, was injured by shrapnel. The other 36 crewmen are safe.

Patrol boats took survivors from rafts and lifeboats and a coastguard cutter put a line aboard the disabled ship and took it safely to port.

The crew found a large porpoise on the bridge when they went back aboard the ship. A torpedo had flung it 50 feet into the air and aboard the ship.

Pte. T. Nicoll and Mrs. Nicoll of Quebec visited a couple of days with the latter's grandmother, Mrs. W. Hatton.

Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. W. Lane were Mr. and Mrs. R. Nichols of Peterborough, Mr. and Mrs. E. Dunford and family, also Mr. W. Tully and family of Lakefield.

Readings Given At Guild Meeting

WARSAW, May 15 (ENS).—Mrs. Robert Tighe was hostess on Thursday to St. Mark's Guild. Mrs. Jackson presided and plans were made to make another layette to be given to the war committee. A reading, "Mother's Day", was given by Mrs. Jackson and another, "Farmer's Life", by Mrs. Thomas Davis. The June meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Donald Davis. The mystery jar was won by Mrs. Jackson.

W.M.S. Meets

The United Church W.M.S. held their May meeting on Thursday in the church basement. Mrs. George Taylor presided for the business period and the program was in charge of the Associate Helpers group. The study book was given as a travelogue with Mrs. Macauley, Mrs. G. Payne, Miss McCracken and Mrs. Welles giving the parts. The quarterly tea was served at the close of the meeting with proceeds mounting to $5.50.

Money for War Fund

The Town Hall was filled to overflowing on Friday evening when the Young People presented their play, "A Ready-Made Family." The characters were well chosen and played their parts well and the lively humor all through kept the audience in gales of laughter. The proceeds amounting to $45, were in aid of the War Fund.

Tea Held

The Mission Band held their meeting on Saturday afternoon in the form of a Mother's Day party. A program of vocal and instrumental music was followed by afternoon tea served at small tables covered with snowy linen and centered with tulips. Tea was poured by Jean Lonsberry and Doris Clysdale. About fifty mothers and children were present.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Keller, Queensboro, were guests on Thursday of Rev. E. D. and Mrs. Snelgrove.

Election Dodges

London, May 15 (CP Cable)

W. R. HIPWELL, Independent candidate in the Salisbury by-election, has applied for an injunction to prevent Prime Minister Churchill writing letters to a government candidate who has not yet been chosen.

"Mr. Churchill's amazing popularity is likely to embarrass would-be supporters of mine and influence them to vote for the party stooge," Mr. Hipwell declared.

He asserted government candidates at by-elections are usually able to wave approving letters from the prime minister at their meetings and otherwise obtain wide publicity through the prime minister's support.

500 Protest

MIDLAND, Ont., May 15—(CP)—A mass meeting of more than 500 persons here last night approved a resolution censoring the Department of Justice for taking criminal action against 14 shipyard workers at Midland and five at Kingston, Ont., and charged that strikes at both shipyards were caused by the government's war labor policy and the attitude of the shipyard management.

It urged that charges against the Midland workers be withdrawn and the practice of instituting legal proceedings be discontinuel in settling labor disputes.

RECTAL SORENESS AND PILE TORTURE QUICKLY RELIEVED

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from McDermid & Jury or any druggist and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended, and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money.—(Advt.)

Excelsior Class Banquet Aids War Work

To augment the funds for war work the girls of the Excelsior Bible Class of St. James' United church, closed their year with a mother and daughter banquet, which was a splendid success, last night.

The table decorations were all patriotic, with red and blue streamers on a white cloth which was also centred by a basket of lovely tulips. The class president, Miss Olive Morley, presided and acted as toast mistress.

Calling upon the pastor, Rev. F. W. Craik, for the toast to "the Church", tribute was paid to the class and its church work during these difficult days and highly commended. In response, the class and their guests joined heartily in singing "The Church's One Foundation."

In proposing the toast to the "Mothers", Miss Betty Mantell spoke of the deep sense of gratitude which all girls felt toward their mothers and challenged the class members to continue in their love and loyalty to all mothers. Mrs. William Thompson thanked the girls for their tribute to mothers and assured them of loving understanding and cooperation.

Mrs. Norman Buckley, one of the guests of honor, was introduced by the class teacher, Miss Jessie Martin, who outlined some of the class activities. Congratulating the girls upon their good work and especially upon the beautiful layettes sent by them through the "Red Shield" to England, Mrs. Buckley thanked them for their earnest endeavors in aiding the war work, adding that the layettes made by the Excelsior class were fit for "the King's children."

As a war guest, Mrs. H. M. Dunkerley, the speaker of the evening brought a vivid word-picture of conditions in war-bombed England. Her description of Peterborough, England was particularly interesting to the mothers and daughters. The food situation in the Old Land was a topic of special interest to women, who, in spite of "banquets" are trying to conserve for their country.

The class committee was ably assisted in the kitchen by Mrs. E. M. Davis and are to be complimented upon the success of their venture.

The evening's entertainment was concluded with the National Anthem.

Auxiliary to RCAF Holds Lilac Tea Y.W. Green Room

Lilacs and tulips set in great bouquets about the green room made a fragrant spring-time atmosphere at the tea held Thursday afternoon by the R.C.A.F. Women's Auxiliary, and a model airplane hanging from the ceiling served as a reminder of the purpose of the organization.

Guests were received by Mrs. George Graham, president of the Auxiliary, and were served tea by Mrs. C. Banks, Mrs. G. A. Roper, Mrs. F. E. Johnston, Mrs. Barbara Hickey and Mrs. D. Miller. Mrs. C. Banks was general convener.

On the tea-table, instead of the usual large bouquet, were set several small vases of violets and lily-of-the-valley. Mrs. F. D. Kerr and Mrs. W. L. Ferguson poured tea. A home cooking table, under the supervision of Mrs. Campbell and Mrs. W. Wheeler, offered delicious cakes, pies and cookies for sale.

North End Workers Hold Tea and Display War Work

The North End Workers, a group of ladies in the north end of the city who do a great deal of war work, held a charming tea on Thursday afternoon and evening to raise funds to continue their work. On display in an upstairs room of the home of Mrs. C. C. Doughty, where the tea was held, was some of the work done by the workers. A great deal has already been shipped overseas. The display included 19 quilts, as well as numerous baby garments, children's dresses and little felt slippers.

Mrs. E. H. Brown and Mrs. C. E. Doughty received the guests and ushered them into the charming tea room, decorated with colorful bouquets of tulips and fragrant bunches of lilac. Tea was poured by Mrs. Mitchell, Mrs. R. Batten, Mrs. F. W. Sayers and Mrs. Gertrule Elliott. The tea table, covered with a beautiful lace cloth, hand-made by Mrs. E. H. Brown, was centred with a bouquet of double white lilacs flanked with tall yellow tapers. Tea was served to the guests by Mrs. G. H. Kingdon and her committee.

A gift table was supervised by Mrs. J. C. Bateson and Mrs. W. G. Morrow and tickets on the quilt and cushion, anl on a lace table cloth were sold by Mrs. G. Puffer and Mrs. D. Humber. The draw for the quilt and cushion was made by Mrs Mary Rome and the holder of the lucky ticket was Mr. Alf Newton of Toronto. During the evening Ken Doughty drew for the table cloth, which was won by Mrs. E. Graham, Manning avenue.

Home and School

QUEEN ALEXANDRA

Open School was held on Wednesday evening when all the rooms of Queen Alexandra School were opened for inspection by parents and any visitors who cared to avail themselves of the opportunity to view the work of the pupils.

The teachers were present in each room, together with a number of mothers. Guests were welcomed by the president of the Home and School Association, Mrs. A. C. Nelson, together with Mrs. C. McBride and Mrs. E. S. Kingdon. It would be impossible to designate any one room as the most outstanding. Each room, with its own particular project was an interesting exhibit. For example, the mining of coal, the Good Health Store, the Robert Louis Stevenson book, "A Child's Garden of Verses," right up to the exhibit of Household Science articles in the 8th grade were all of the highest calibre, and showed a great deal of painstaking care on the part of teachers and pupils alike. Boys of the 8th grade acted as guides and during the exhibition refreshments were served in the kindergarten, by Mrs. A. E. Buck and her committee, aided by the girls of the 8th grade.

Piano music in the kindergarten was provided by pupils of the school, Misses Mary Lou Barrett, and Helen and Margaret Currie.

FUN WITH COLLAR BUTTONS

By PRUNELLA WOOD

BETTER place for Poppa's lost collar button is on your new handbag, or your new gloves, rather than behind the bureau on the carpet. New and entertaining buttons are always successful, though why a novelty which fastens no better than its forerunners is a hit, no one could explain.

This reminds us that it's novelty fun to wear your big glitter clips on your ears instead of earrings to get a splash effect; that you can clip the same trifles into the open toes of your shoes for evening swank; that three chiffon evening hankies caught at one corner each and fastened together beneath a dramatic flower piece to perch on your pompadour makes a swell evening hat. Floating hankies make a snood drapery.

This calfskin shoulder bag may be navy, brown, black or ginger. It closes with a collar stud and its strap can be adjusted to any shorter length. Capeskin gloves are also collar buttoned.

Are Your Friends Eager For Your Invitations?

By MARY MOORE

What is your stand on the cost of company meals?

I think when you invite guests to dinner they have a right to expect a top-notch spread.

However, I have an intimate friend who has known some lean years over a long life-time and she is still enjoying in restrospect the hospitality she could have dispensed if she had had to wait until she could afford a standing rib roast or a roasting chicken, before she had company.

But—she is a marvel of a cook. After talking to her for an hour on one of her infrequent visits to town I want to give you this company menu for May—inspired by her and served by me to some guests before passing it on to you.

I am giving you all the details because there are some of you who will follow a good tip to the letter when you read it.

This is a good tip.

Original Company Menu for Six

Chilled Rhubarb Juice Cocktail
Toasted Wafer
Italian Lamb Fricassee
Ribbon Egg Noodles
Separate Course of Asparagus with Drawn Butter Sauce
Frontenac Fruit Cup
Puffed Cereal Cookie Coffee

Chilled Rhubarb Juice Cocktail

Bring to boiling point a syrup made of 1¾ cups corn syrup and 1 cup water, then drop in 4 cups unpeeled red rhubarb, let it boil up then cover and turn off heat. Let it stand covered for about 15 minutes. This method of cooking rhubarb is plenty long enough to make this tender stalk soft. Then drain off the juice. You need between 4 to 6 ounces per serving—6-oz. glasses 2-3 full are a good size. Garnish with one small fresh mint leaf, dropped on the surface of the juice. Serve ice cold.

Italian Lamb Fricassee

I hope that title has you guessing To put it baldly it is shoulder lamb stewed in tomatoes, but the flavor once you follow these directions, is sensational.

For six people buy about 3½ lbs. lamb from the shoulder or any other part that will cut into nice meaty cubes about 2 inches square. Roll the meat cubes in flour, and brown them in some good hot dripping—I used chicken, but cooking oil or lard, or half and half lard and butter are good too. Do not use bacon fat. Turn them until they are brown on all sides, then put in stewing kettle with 2 No. 2 cans of tomatoes (that is 40-oz. or 1 quart), bring to boiling point and cover, and simmer at reduced heat for about 3 hours. During the simmering period add 1 bay leaf, 2 peppercorns, ⅛ teaspoon curry powder, ¼ teaspoon paprika, 1 tablespoon grated onion, 1 tablespoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper. The bay leaf and peppercorns should be fished out before serving. This stew will burn easily because of the combination of flour on the meat and tomatoes, so stir it often at first, and put a pad under it if you have one. Even if it does stick a little it will not taste. Serve in centre of large hot platter surrounded with border of

Ribbon Egg Noodles

Have boiling 2 quarts water and drop into it ½ lb. ¼-inch wide ribbon egg noodles (purchased from Italian grocer) and let boil uncovered until tender. Drain well and arrange in border around lamb on platter.

Separate Course Of Asparagus

Trim asparagus stalks at the bottom and stand them in top of double boiler (unless you have an asparagus cooker) and fill pot about ½ full of boiling water. Boil over direct heat. The steam will almost cook the tops—they only need to be tucked under the water for the last 5 minutes at most. Do not cover asparagus when cooking, it makes it go yellow.

Drawn Butter Sauce: One-third cup butter, 3 tablespoons flour, 1½ cups liquid in which asparagus was cooked (or if this sauce is used with boiled fish use stock in which fish is cooked), ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon lemon juice. Melt half the butter, add flour with seasonings, and pour on hot water gradually, stirring, until it thickens. Add remaining butter in small pieces.

(Order of serving this meal is outlined below.)

Frontenac Fruit Cup

This fruit cup can be more ordinary if you mix it all up, but the dessert chefs in famous hotels are noted for their ability to make every dessert a little piece of perfection. I copied this from one I was served in a famous hotel dining room.

Shred raw pineapple very finely, with cold meat fork—standing the whole peeled pineapple in the bowl. Sweeten one large pineaple with ¾ cup white corn syrup. Fill stemmed dessert gasses two-thirds full with this sweetened fresh pineapple. Over this place sliced strawberries in a ring around the outside edge, each slice overlapping the next. The strawberries should be washed and sprinkled with a little sugar before slicing. In the centre you will place about 5 or 6 slices of banana that have been dipped in a little of the leftover pineapple juice. Do not place a slice of strawberry in the centre—it is too common for this meal. Serve ice cold—it should be prepared early in the afternoon to be cold enough to serve at an evening dinner—it needs about 3 or 4 hours chilling.

Puffed Cereal Cookies

One egg white, 1-3 cup light brown sugar, 2 teaspoons butter, 1 cup puffed packaged cereal, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon vanilla. Beat the white of the egg very stiff, and while beating mix in the brown sugar. Melt the shortening and into this stir the puffed cereal, salt and vanilla. Fold in two mixtures together and drop by spoonfuls on a greased baking sheet. Bake at 250 deg. Fahr. until set.

Order Of Serving Meal

Pass the rhubarb juice cocktail in the living room. Stand each glass on a small plate on which place a small toasted buttered cracker. If you have no maid, the lamb fricassee and noodles should be on their serving platter and in the warming oven before you pass the juice.

Now take the cocktail glasses to the kitchen and bring in your hot plates and platter of meat and noodles. When this course is finished remove it, and bring in the asparagus in an oval bowl if you have it, and the drawn butter sauce in a silver gravy boat (if you have it) and serve on tea-size plates as a separate course. All things for this course must be very hot.

Remove the asparagus course, clearing off salts and peppers, butter, crumbs, and all things that do not pertain to the dessert course. Coffee in the living room.

If your guests are epicures your Frontenac Fruit Cup will create a mild sensation, and they will ask for the recipe for Cereal Cookies.

Good luck.

Women Canvassers Given Instructions For Drive

At a meeting in the recreation room of the Y.W.C.A. on Thursday afternoon, the ladies' division of the Peterborough Red Cross and Community Fund canvassers received their pledge cards and last minute instructions regarding the drive for funds, which begins today.

Mrs. Paige Rowell presided at the meeting and explained that the objective for the ladies' division was $4,000. People who found pledge cards in their envelopes for people who had left the district were instructed to return them to the office, where they would be allocated to someone in the right district.

Mr. Gordon Matthews addressed the meeting and explained that, due to the fact that the hotel could not accommodate more than 100 guests, not all of the 400 canvassers, could be present at the three dinners to be held during the week to hear reports on the progress of the drive, and explained how the divisions would be made.

Mr. Matthews also explained the divisions of the drive and the allocations made to each division. He said that the C.G.E. had fixed up the model of the Lift Locks which was used to measure the progress of the Victory Loan Campaign and that this would again be seen at its former location, the Customs House.

Mr. Ian McRae gave a short talk on the necessity of supporting the organizations which are to benefit from the fund, stressing the importance of each in the life of our community. These organizations are The Canadian Red Cross Society, Navy League, Salvation Army (local work), St. Vincent's Orphanage, Y.M.C.A. (local work), Y.W.C.A. (local work), Canadian National Institute for the Blind, Victorian Order of Nurses, and other services officially included by the Peterborough War Services and Community Fund Executive.

Music Pupils Of Marguerite Rome Give Fine Recital

Pupils of Marguerite Rome presented a recital of piano music at the Y.W.C.A. of Thursday evening, assisted by Louise Leslie, violin pupil of Roy Rome.

The following junior pupils took part: Arthur Batley, Beverly Edwards, Bobbie Dummit, Dorothy Johnston, Peggy Patterson, Eleanore McArthur, Floyd Roberts, Evangeline McArthur, Jean Graham, Joan Cowan, Margaret Morrison, Clara Mae Althouse, Carol Goldstone, Sheila Goldstone. Their playing gave evidence of enjoyment.

Louise Leslie delighted her audience with two solos, showing a fine bowing arm and a clear singing tone in the intricate rhythms.

After a short intermission the program continued with the senior pupils. "Romance in F", and the "Cat and the Fiddle" played by Pauline Zacks, and the Clementi Sonatina played by Joan Krough were brilliantly executed. "Tales from the Vienna Woods" and a polka by Englemann, played in a sprightly manner respectively by Marion Parks and Catherine Jean Wight.

Two duets, "Londonderry Air" and "Turkey in the Straw," were beautifully played by June and Muriel Craft. Joan Austin played "The Swallow," by Burgmuller with a delicate singing tone. Rubenstein's "Melody in F" played by June Croft received much applause. "Flirtation Dance" played by Louise Jarvis showed a fine technique. "Sunrise Echoes" played by Muriel Croft, a promising young player. Haydn's "Gypsy Rondo" and Mendelsohn's "Spring Song," played by Pearl Cowan, showed splendid technique on the part of the pupil. "Intermezzo" by Provost, and "Sonata in C" by Mozart, were played by Eleanore Chapman. The latter piece was especially good in the trill passages. Eleanor Carroll, a talented player, performed "These Yellow Sands," by Markham Lee, and a Valse by Chopin.

GOOD COLOR SCHEME

By ALICE ALDEN

BLACK and beige seems to have come to the fore as a Spring color combination. Eliazbeth Fraser chose this color scheme for an attractive frock, a two-piece design. The skirt has gentle front fullness, while the trimly tailored top has appliques of flowers which shade from pale to dark biege. It is buttoned from the high throat-line and belted in beige suede. The hat is of shiny black straw with misty beige veiling.

THE ENQUIRY COLUMN

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: My mother was a farmer's daughter and knew many ways of cooking vegetables we were not taught in school. I like asparagus when it first comes in and cooked and served "as is" with melted butter, but I would like a recipe for a rich cream sauce that my mother used to make. She used to cut the asparagus in one-inch lengths and serve it very hot. From this sketchy description could you send me a workable recipe? I think your page is practical and interesting to read, too.—Would-be Cook.

ANSWER: I'm glad you reminded me of this way of serving asparagus. I tried this sauce on my family before giving it to you—it is a nice change.

Old-Fashioned Creamed Asparagus

Cut asparagus in 1-inch pieces and cook in 1 cup boiling water, uncovered, adding a little water if needed before it is tender. Melt 4 tablespoons butter, add 3 tablespoons flour, stir well, then add ¾ cup top milk or cream, and ¾ cup of liquid in which asparagus is cooked and stir until thick. Add ¼ teaspoon pepper, ½ to ¾ teaspoon salt, and if desired, 1 tablespoon lemon juice (although I'm sure there was no lemon juice in your mother's). More butter and heavier cream will make this richer. Add cooked asparagus to it and pour into serving bowl. Garnish with chopped parsley.

QUESTION: My sister-in-law uses her electric refrigerator to make good frozen desserts. She made one with marshmallow, but I don't like to ask for the recipe. Could you give it to me It contained marshmallows and cherries and nuts.—Mrs. Shaw.

ANSWER: I have a Mousse that I used to make regularly because it was so popular. It contains 1 egg white and 1 pint of cream.

Marshmallow Mousse

One pint cream, 1 cup top milk, 6 marshmallows, ½ cup chopped nutmeats, ¾ cup powdered sugar, 7 maraschino cherries cut in pieces, ½ teaspoon vanilla, 1 egg white, beaten. Warm the milk, add marshmallows and beat well to dissolve them, then chill. Beat white of egg and fold in the sugar and vanilla when it is stiff. Beat cream very stiff and fold in together with the nuts and cherries. Freeze in trays of mechanical refrigerator about 4 hours.

QUESTION: You sometimes suggest using applesauce cake while warm, for dessert, with a little unsweetened whipped cream. I would like a good recipe for Applesauce Cake. The only one I can find is not very interesting. My 10-year-old daughter made the meat pancakes and her Dad liked them and was so proud of her.—Willa's Mother.

ANSWER: It is such a satisfaction when the children take pride in their work and really produce something to help you.

Applesauce Spice Cake

One cup white or brown sugar, ½ cup shortening, 1 cup thick unsweetened applesauce, 1 egg, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon nutmeg, ¼ teaspoon each cloves, allspice, ½ teaspoon salt, 1½ cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, ½ cup chopped walnuts. Cream the shortening and sugar, and add the applesauce and the beaten egg. Mix and sift the dry ingredients, add the nuts, and combine the mixtures, mixing well. Pour into buttered loaf pan or square pan 8 x 8 x 2 and bake at 330 to 375 deg. Fahr. for about 45 minutes.

This cake keeps well and flavor is good.

A SERVICE TO PETERBOROUGH
Y.W.C.A.
SWIMMING CLASSES

Each year over 200 girls and children learn to Swim at the Y.W.C.A. Pool, while many others learn the art of Life Saving and have been able to prevent serious accidents and save many from drowning.

Summer sports are much more enjoyable and safe to the swimmer and the healthful exercise of swimming helps keep one fit for strenuous days of work.

New classes are starting now at the Y.W.C.A. Most pupils under proper instruction learn to swim in 6 to 12 lessons, which means in a few weeks, and for a very reasonable price every girl can add to her achievements a most healthful recreation and also be better able to serve others.

CARIBBEAN CRISIS . . . .

By EATON K. GOLDTHWAITE

THE STORY.—Bill Talcott is accused of a serious shortage in his accounts by an auditor arriving with his successor, Halsey, who is taking over the management of an American chemical plant on a Dutchisland in the Caribbean. June Paterson, cousin of Bill's college roommate, and a detective, MacDowell, also have arrived with Halsey. As Bill and MacDowell hold an angry conversation, a scream is heard from the darkness outside, where June and Halsey have gone walking.

A STROLL IN THE NIGHT

CHAPTER IV

More than mere self-dramatization impelled June Paterson when she stormed from the bunglow. Her mood was climactic, an admission of defeat. Her immediate reaction was that she was acting like a fool; that her flippant treatment of Bill Talcott was as normal as the course she pursued with other males, and it was what he deserved.

It is true that she was spoiled. But she could not have been expected, then, to realize that her defence against masculine attack had been carefully woven about a memory. A curly-headed bronzed young giant who had performed seemingly impossible feats in the altogether impossible game of water polo. A breath-taking, handsome god who had come down from his heights to dance with her, to raise her above other mortals by talking to her as if she had been a woman of his own age and station. That through a dozen years a faded, yellowing snapshot had been her shrine, with bits of worship brought to it by the infrequent leaves of Capt. Lowell Byrd.

Strange how such a thing took roots, became imbedded; the memory of a smile, a handclasp, a small gallant service. The truth was relentlessly cruel. In memory she had come to accept Bill Talcott as her own.

It was all so unreal, so childish. There had been the opportunity to visit Saint Thomas, to study native art for her degree thesis. She could not admit now that it was to be near him, to revel in his strength, his cleanness, his complete manliness. To stand before him with the background of the tropic moon setting to flame her hair, to see his eyes alight with the glow of her presence.

She could not have been expected to know that Abas was worlds removed from Charlotte Amalie; that Anegada Passage bridged more than distance. "Garbage heap," the nicer people in Saint Thomas disaparagingly called Abas. And the shock of seeing him after so many years; dirty, smelly, unshaved. Hard. He was no longer the Bill Talcott of memory. A bitter, taciturn stranger whose eyes held repellent secrets had taken his place.

Desperately she hoped that he would never learn of her deception, that he would never question Lowell to discover that the idea of accompanying him back to New York had been hers alone.

"Funny," Halsey was saying. "You read and hear so much about the tropic moon. Here we are and it's black as pitch. Can hardly see your way about. Tough on the romantic notions of an old devil like me."

Halsey, she decided, was nice. He didn't stand around staring at and through her, didn't withraw into a hard shell when she tried to flirt. And he didn't try to order her around staring as if she were only 16 years old. Halsey was clean and finely drawn, resilient as a sabre. He looked as if he could be a lot of fun if you got to know him better. Quitely frankly she said, "I'm afraid we were foolish to come out alone. Perhaps Mr. Talcott was right."

"Talcott? Rubbish! Don't let him scare you with his boogie woogie. Regular stock in trade of our hard-bitten plant managers. Like to impress you. Nothing but silly twaddle. Talcott's trouble is that he's just been here too long."

They were on a strip of beach, the elbow of a deep lagoon. The sand was gray in the darkness, and dark irridescent water lapped at their feet. Rocks flanked them on the land side and stretched away and upward, funnel-shaped, to the black, cloud-ridden sky. There were no stars, no moon, and the fitful wind of the sea was damp. A hot breath freighted with odors of tangled kelp; a lax, reluctant curtain against the island's all-blanketing smell of nitrate. Suddenly, she was sorry for Halsey.

"It seems terrible to think that you must shut yourself away in this place," she said softly.

"Eh?" Halsey was startled. "What's this? Oh, come now! I'm afraid we've treated you shabbily. You shouldn't feel that way about Abas. I rather like the place. There's my job, you know. A man must work."

She felt his arm groping for her and did not draw away. "You've treated me as well as I deserved. I had no business coming here. I've caused a great deal of tension."

"You're not the cause of that, my dear," Halsey's voice was grim. "I'm sorry that I'm not at liberty to explain just what has happened. I trust that, as Talcott claims, there has been a mistake."

She had been looking at the water. Her face turned quickly. "I don't believe I understand."

"I can't tell you, my dear. I gather that Talcott is an old family friend. If he wants to reveal the matter, it's up to him.

He said it bluntly, biting off the words, and suddenly the implication was clear to June Paterson. Bill Talcott was suspected of speculation with the firm's money. It was utterly impossible. No matter how else he might have changed, Lowell's best friend was inherently honest.

She turned until her face was very near Halsey's. "There must be some mistake," she said in an unsteady voice. "I'm sure that whatever misunderstanding exists between you will be satisfactorily settled. He has been our friend for many years. We have only the highest regard for him."

Halsey's arm tightened about her, and frank admiration was in his eyes. "By Jove," he said softly.. "I can only say that, with a girl like you pulling for him, the man's a fool if he—" He broke off sharply, released and almost roughly pushed her away. Then in a strained voice he asked, "Care for a cigarette? Should have offered you one before."

She came near, raising on tip-toe to lightly brush his cheek with her lips. "You are very nice, Leonard Halsey," she said softly. "Thank you for that, and thank you for a cigarette."

He got one out for her after fumbling a bit. Offered it and stiffly held a match, the flame cupped in his hands. In a voice taut and furry as strained yarn he said, "I trust you understand my position, Miss Paterson. I'm a trouble shooter for Federal Chemical. I have about as much roots as sage brush; from month to month I never know where I'll be next. Maybe that's why I never married. Or maybe—" His voice died, came back stronger. "If there should be any—anything wrong here, I have to return to New York. Under company procedure the auditor remains in charge until a complete inventory has been made. If anything is wrong, it won't be pleasant. As a friend of Talcott's you may come to hate me in the next few weeks. I just want you to know that it's my job."

She said nothing, and Halsey, who had made a bad start with his match, was lighting another when she saw it. Her eyes distended widely and every vestige of color drained from her face.

Halsey felt rather than saw her fear. "What's the matter?" he cried sharply.

Her eyes stared, fascinated. Her lips trembled in feeble utterance, "Don't move—right behind you—a huge—"

Halsey whirled, and in that moment the shrill bleat of a whistle sounded from the opposite end of the beach. Like the clicking of a camera shutter June Paterson saw the tableau. Face to face with Halsey an incredibly huge native bared startling white teeth and lowered his head on massive shoulders. When she saw that he was not alone, that others stood in the darkness behind him, her fear gave vent to a piercing scream.

WAR OFFERS CHANCE TO MAKE A CAREMUL CHOICE OF MATES

Mixing Up of the Youth of Our Land Expands Their Matrimonial Horizon

A bit of the silver lining of the war cloud is that it will give the young people of the country a better opportunity than they have ever had before to make a discriminating choice of their mates. Heretofore the boys and girls have been mostly limited in the pick of their wives and husbands by their environment. Tommy had to marry Susie because she was the girl next door, and Marybelle was predestined to go to the altar with John because they had made mud pies together and graduated from the same class in Hi.

But now, with the boys being all scrambled up together in the army and being continually shifted from one camp to another, it is a different story. It throws the lad from Bird Song, Mississippi, on the doorstep of the girl in Rabbit Track, North Dakota, and sets the maiden in sunny California to teaching the down east New Englander how to jitterbug.

Probably when Uncle Sam started out to organize his defence forces he had no intention of becoming a match-maker, but you can see with half an eye how enormously this mixing up of the youth of the land expands their matrimonial horizon, and how much better chance it gives them of getting their hearts' desire in a life partner. For now they do not have to take what they can get. They look 'em all over and select the ones that hit their fancies.

It is folly to deny that, taking them as they come, all husbands and wives are pretty much cut off of the same bolt of cloth, and whether they are from the North or the South or the East or the West they average up about the same as to faults and virtues. But, for all of that, husbands and wives do differ from each other as one star differs from another star in glory, and it is the unique opportunity to compare the specimens produced by the different sections of our fair land that the youngsters of today are privileged to enjoy. And I hope to goodness they appreciate their blessings.

Four Types of Mates

Let us consider the four type of mates among whom our boys and girls will be able to pick and choose. Let us begin with the Northern man who always has a fatal fascination for the Southern girl because he represents the big, strong, silent hero of fiction, who is ice without and a seething volcano within, of whom she has read but never met.

Used to the facile loving-making of the boys she has grown up with, she takes his dumbness as a sign of deep feeling, and it is only after she has worn herself to a frazzle trying to make an impression upon him that she realizes that he is granite all the way through. Generally speaking—there are exceptions, of course, to every rule—the Northern man has more backbone than heart. He is a good provider and makes a better husband than he does a lover.

Pretty much the same thing may be said about the Northern girl. She is pretty and intelligent and chic and knows her way about. She is industrious and frugal, a meticulous housekeeper, and she will help her husband to make a fortune or get into the Senate, but she doesn't baby him or flatter him, and if a Southern man marries her he had just as well make up his mind to live on cold bread, the balance of his life.

The Eastern man and woman, especially the Bostonians and New Yorkers, are irresistibly alluring to the young inhabitants of the South and West. They are sophisticated, worldly wise; they represent all that ever went with evening dress, as Mr. Kipling used to say. Maud Muller is always flattered when an Eastern boy rushes her, but she had better watch her step because his attentions are generally without intentions. He is a good playboy, but when the regiment marches on he is more apt to say "please to have you" than "will you wait for me?"

A Can-Opener Cook

Eastern girls seldom bear transplanting and the man who marries one has to steel himself to endure her moans over living in a barbarous land, far, far from home. Also, if she is a city girl, having been brought up in a two-by-four flat, she is a can-opener cook.

In the West marriage is run on a fifty-fifty basis as it is nowhere else in the world, and it is folly for either a man or a woman with a head-of-the-house complex to espouse anyone west of the Mississippi. Living handy to the divorce mill, they stand no foolishness from their mates.

Western women were the first publicly to put on the pants. Also, they emancipated themselves from domesticity by substituting the cafeteria for the cook stove, but they make excellent wives for men who are not fussy about their food and who are fond of hiking.

Southern men are a natural as love-makers. They are born with a line of talk that will make any woman who is not stone deaf stop and listen. Unfortunately they do not always mean everything they say, so it is well for a girl to discount their "honeys" and "darlingest thing in the world" until they show up with a wedding ring. As husbands they are still gallant to their wives and generally treat them as politely as they do their secretaries.

Southern women are the true husband-spoilers, and if a man wants a wife who will baby him and tell him how big and strong and wonderful he is, Dixie is his best bet.

So there you are, boys and girls. Take your choice.

You'll never be satisfied with anything else once you see RINSO WHITENESS

JUST look at clothes washed in Rinso and see for yourself. They're not merely whiter . . . Rinso gives the whitest wash! The only true standard of whiteness is Rinso whiteness.

And Rinso is grand for washable colors, too, keeps them fresh as new. You'll marvel when you see how it helps all the clothes to last longer. You see, you don't wear them out with rubbing or scrubbing because Rinso's rich suds simply float every speck of dirt away. Whatever your washing experience, once you have tried Rinso you will never be content with anything else. Use Rinso next time you wash. Get the GIANT box at your store for extra economy.

Rinso -gives the whitest wash

I use the Most Flavorful Coffee— it's MAXWELL HOUSE

TRY IT TODAY SEE IF IT DOESN'T GIVE YOU MORE RICHNESS AND FLAVOR—FULLER BODY

Here's Why

1 The Maxwell House blend reaches the very peak of coffee goodness. It contains rare, extra-flavored, highland-grown coffees.

2 A unique roasting method captures every atom of extra richness in this perfect blend. It roasts every single bean evenly all through.

3 Maxwell House is packed in the only way that can assure you roaster freshness. The Super-Vacuum tin keeps all the air out—all the fragrant goodness in.

2 GRINDS

Ground to the right degree of fineness and always uniform.

Dainty Dressing Table Is Easy to Make

Trimmed With Daisies

Covered with dainty organdie, a packing case is transformed into a smart dressing table which will lend charm to any boudoir.

Daisies are tacked here and there to the three organdie ruffles, which range in color from white through creamy yellow and canary. More daisies edge the top, form at the centre a pretty bouquet, tied with black velvet ribbons.

And, if you place your table in front of a window, charming to use white organdie curtains with matching bouquets for tiebacks.

To make the table nail on your packing case a kidney-bean shaped top cut according to the dimensions in our diagram. Cover top, also make a skirt for the sides, in plain white sateen.

And now stretch over the top a layer of organdie. Cut perky organdie ruffles in graded widths, measuring twice the distance around front and sides for fulness. Hem edges, gather, and fasten to the foundation.

Find full directions for making this lovely table in our 32-page booklet—also how to make many other items for home and personal use. Among them are a bookrack table, novelty pillows, utility bathroom box, sewing stand, cellophane travelling sets.

Get your copy of "Hand-made Gift Novelties" send 15 cents in coins or stamps to Peterborough Examiner Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

"The Authority on Authorities"

REVERSING THE DUMMY

ONE OF THE greatest advantages in having a trump suit with four cards in your own hand opposite four in the dummy is that you can reverse the usual procedure if you wish and treat the dummy's holding as the main trump setup while using the trumps in your own hand for ruffing. The question of whether to do this or not depends upon various factors, especially that of which is the stronger holding. Ordinarily it is best to use that as the main suit and do your ruffing with the weaker one. As a rule, if you do it the other way, and ruff with the higher trumps, you may set up one or more trump tricks for the defenders.

North: ♠ J 8 6 ♥ Q 5 ♦ J 9 8 7 3 ♣ J 9 2

West: ♠ A K Q 5 ♥ 6 ♦ K Q 10 5 4 ♣ K 8 4

East: ♠ 9 7 3 2 ♥ K 9 8 7 ♦ 2 ♣ A 6 5 3

South: ♠ 10 4 ♥ A J 10 4 3 2 ♦ A 6 ♣ Q 10 7

(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♥	Dbl
Pass	1 ♠	2 ♥	4 ♠

No better example than this could be asked of what veteran players call "reversing the dummy." Walter L. Pate, New York attorney, who has been a world figure in tennis circles for years, and also a great bridge enthusiast, was the declarer, and showed from the start that he knew what he was about.

As soon as the diamond A was led, Mr. Pate began to do his card reading. He won the second diamond with the K and proceeded with his plan to set up the dummy. After laying down the spade A and K, he abandoned trumps because he wanted to ruff diamonds twice in his own hand, having read South for only two diamonds and North for five as well as for three trumps. Observing these tactics, he ruffed out the diamond 5 and 10, North having to follow suit. He later was able to drop the spade J with the Q, so that he lost only one trick in clubs and one in hearts in addition to the first one taken by the diamond A.

Just try to figure out what would have occurred if he had treated his own trumps as the main holding and endeavored to ruff with those in the dummy. He would have set up the spade J for the trick which beat him.

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠ J 9 6 5 ♥ 8 7 5 4 3 ♦ 10 9 7 ♣ 4

West: ♠ 10 7 3 2 ♥ A 9 6 ♦ A K J 6 ♣ 9 6

East: ♠ A K Q ♥ K 2 ♦ Q 5 4 3 2 ♣ A Q 2

South: ♠ 8 4 ♥ Q J 10 ♦ 8 ♣ K J 10 8 7 5 3

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

After bidding of 1-Diamond by West and 6 No-Trumps by East, doubled by South, who then led the heart Q, how should East play for his contract?

Amateur 'Spook' Overseas From Norwood

AN EAST COAST CANADIAN PORT, May 15—(CP).—A disillusioned amateur ghost, fed up with the haunting game as a too expensive racket, sailed with the latest movement of troops to Britain whose safe arrival was announced to-day.

R. N. Johnson of Norwood, Ont., explained how he had given up his spook activities in favor of the army.

"I tried to scare a chap by dressing in a sheet and waiting for him to pass a graveyard at home," said Johnson.

"Well, he came along and I dashed out, making the noises I had been told a ghost should make. But some fool woman was there too, and she promptly threw a hysteric fit.

"A cop was called and I was taken before a Judge who fined me $28 and costs. So I figure maybe I could make a better living by trying to scare Germans."

Spring Seeding Is Finished In The Bensfort District

BENSFORT May 15—(ENS). — Most of the farmers in the vicinity have finished spring seeding, in spite of the heavy rains. All report that the fall wheat wintered well. Most of the farmers sowed beyond the average acreage, thus lessening the spring crop. All fresh seeding of hay and grass and old meadows is from three to four weeks earlier, and prospects favor a good hay crop.

The recent cold spell was welcomed in order to slacken the rapid growth and to harden up the fresh shoots.

The average farmer in South Monaghan is planning on less hoe crop, such as turnips mangels, etc., on account of the shortage of help.

The early growth of pasture was welcomed as many were short of hay and feed, owing to the small crops last year. Cattle were turned out on pasture earlier than usual.

Newlyweds Honored By Fairview Friends

FAIRVIEW May 15 — (ENS). — Over 125 people gathered recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Reynolds to spend a most pleasant evening in honor of their daughter's, Greta, recent marriage, to Bruce Heard.

Mr. and Mrs. Heard were ushered to seats of honor by Miss Ferne Armstrong, while Gerald Harrison read an address and Opal Rosborough and Dorothy Tully presented two lovely gifts as tokens of esteem from the community: a very lovely mantel clock with chimes and a floor rug. Carmell Bell presented the Young People's gift, a lovely picture. Mr. and Mrs. Heard both expressed their sincere appreciation for the lovely gifts and extended a hearty invitation to all to visit them in their new home.

A number of tables of cards were enjoyed, and lunch was served.

Mrs. Cephas Heard and Mrs. Harold Lewis were hostesses at a delightful tea in honor of Mrs. Heard's recent marriage at the home of Mrs. Lewis. Those present were Mrs. Cephas Heard, Mrs. A. Reynolds, Mrs. Lorne Reynolds, Mrs. Clarence Mann, Misses Ferne Armstrong, Opal Roseborough, Dorothy Tully, Alfreda Milligan, Myrtle Leahy, Shirley McKee, Mildred Bulmer, Eva Poast, Phyllis McKee. Those unable to be present were Olive Bell, Eleanor Rosborough, Wilma Armstrong and Elda Bulmer.

Norwood Hears Miss Esplen Relate Holy Land Trip

NORWOOD, May 15 — (ENS). — The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was held in the Sunday School Room, with the president Mrs. Thomas Borland in the chair. The devotional exercises were conducted by Miss Lily Bongard and Mrs. Alfred Bongard, the reading taken from the Glad Tidings was given by Mrs. Alexander Innes and the topic was in charge of Mrs. Borland.

At a combined meeting of the missionary societies of the church the guest speaker, Miss Lilian Esplen of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Peterborough, took for her subject 'Holy Places I Have Visited." Her travels included the British Isles, Belgium, France, Switzerland, China and Japan.

Mrs. Thomas Borland was chairman of the meeting, and Mrs. R. K. Tedford, accompanied by Mrs. T. P. Rork contributed a solo.

There was a good attendance, including visitors from other Norwood churches, and an interesting and educational program was enjoyed.

Horse Shoe Club.

The annual meeting of the Norwood Horse Shoe Club was held recently in the Orange Hall, and the officers re-elected include W. H. Montgomery president, D. O. Ferguson vice-president, and Robert Leeper scretary-treasurer. There are about 30 members of the club, and some daylight matches have already been played. The grounds were officially opened with an improved lighting system on Saturday evening, and on account of the increased gasoline and tire restrictions it is expected that a greater interest will be shown in the game during this summer.

Women's Institute.

The May meeting of the Women's Institute, held at the home of Mrs. Alexander Innes, took the form of an annual meeting with election of officers. The reports of the work acomplished during the past year were presented, which showed 12 regular and one special meetings held. With a membership of 23, there was an average attendance of 11. Every Thursday had been set aside for sewing meetings for war purposes. The treasurer's report showed a balance of $47.89 on hand.

A letter of thanks from the I.O.D.E. was read, thanking the Institute for a donation of $5.00. It was voted to send $15.00 to the Jim Hunter fund, and give three quilts to the local Red Cross Society.

Mrs. Innes vacated the chair and the election of officers then took place, which resulted as follows:

Miss Maysie Buck, president; Mrs. George Oitment, vice-president; Mrs. William Gollcher, secretary-treasurer. Mrs. Graham, Mrs. H. Godin, Mrs. Oitment, directors, and Mrs. A. Gill district director.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem, after which a very nice supper was served by the hostess, Mrs. Daniel Rogers.

Apsley Branch Of Women's Institute Elects Officers

APSLEY, May 15 (ENS).—The Apsley Branch of the Women's Institute held their annual meeting on May 7 at the home of Mrs. Roland Tucker, with Mrs. Smith, president, in charge. The minutes of the last annual meeting were read as well as the last monthly meeting. Business arising from the latter was: Librarians appointed for the four Saturdays in May. The president also asked for a recording book for the Library.

The treasure chest was discussed. Five beautiful presents have been donated: a silk card table cover, table cloth, towel and wash cloths, a man's white broadcloth shirt, and a picture. Other present have been promised. Books of tickets were given to members to sell.

Mrs. N. Wilson, district director, gave an interesting report on the district executive meeting held lately in Warsaw, where it was planned to hold the district annual in a more central locality, Warsaw being chosen as the place for this instead of Apsley, as arranged last year. The report was adopted.

Report of standing committees came next. The president in a few words thanked the members for their co-operation during the year, and in spite of the small number of members the year had proven a successful one.

The financial report was read by the treasurer, Mrs. N. Wilson, and a balance on hand of over $20 was encouraging. The library lights are being paid for every three months. About $25 was made by holding card parties, mostly in homes of members and friends.

The president then asked Mrs. W. Lean to take the chair for election of officers for the coming year. All officers were returned but some of the conveners for standing committees were changed: President, Mrs. C. Smith; Vice-president, Mrs. T. H. Lean; Secretary, Mrs. R. Tucker; Treasurer, Mrs. N. Wilson; District Director, Mrs. N. Wilson; Directors: Mrs. W. Lean, Mrs. F. McFadden. Standing Committee Conveners.—Agriculture, Canadian Industrial, Mrs. F. McFadden; Historical Research, Mrs. W. Lean; Home Economics, Mrs. C. McColl; Social Welfare, Mrs. T. H. Lean; Citizenship, Mrs. R Tucker; Publicity, Mrs. C. Smith; War Work, Mrs. W. Lean; Voting delegates, Mrs. N. Wilson, Mrs. C. Smith, Mrs. C. McColl.

Plans to attend the district annual will be made later.

The meeting closed with "God Save the King." Lunch was served in pot luck style.

Twin calves were born recently on the farm of Mr. and Mrs. W. Earnshaw, Jr., Burleigh Highway. One is white and one red.

The second bingo was held on Friday night in the St. George's Hall in aid of Red Cross work. Many beautiful prizes have been donated. A good crowd turned out and a pleasant evening was enjoyed.

Hudsons Fire 3 Ships In 2 Convoys

Others Heavily Raked In Surprise Off Frisian Isles

LONDON, May 16.—(CP).—R. A. F. Hudson bombers set fire to three German supply ships and hit 'several' others in attacks on two German convoys off the Frisian Islands in the North Sea last night, the Air Ministry announced today.

The British pilots raked the convoys from a low level despite strong German escorts, a communique said. Five of the bombers failed to return.

It was the second sortie in as many days in wich three enemy ships were sunk or damaged. Yesterday the R.A.F. attacked a German minesweeping flotilla off Cherbourg, France, sinking one, leaving another sinking and damaging a third.

Hudsons of the Canadian demon squadron took part in last night's attack and scored direct hits on some ships but details of their success are not immediately available.

The Canadians were led by Flt.-Lt. Roy Christie, broad-shouldered North Bay, Ont., pilot, who until recently was an instructor at Brantford, Ont.

Other Canadians in Christie's crew were PO. V. Johnson, Vancouver, observer, PO. W. Garton, Winnipeg, air gunner; Flt.-Sgt. W. A. Brown, Edmonton, wireless operator and air gunner.

Mystery Death Of Boy 14 Probed

FORT ERIE, Ont., May 16 (CP)—Inspector Harry Noakes of the Criminal Investigation Bureau of the Ontario Provincial Police arrived here today to start an investigation into circumstances surrounding the death in Buffalo General Hospital yesterday afternoon of Kenneth Cutler, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Eber Cutler of Ridgeway, Ont.

The boy was taken to the Buffalo hospital from Douglas Memorial Hospital, Fort Erie, May 7 after having been admitted to the local institution May 2.

The boy first started to complain of headaches April 28 following his return to his home from the Ridgeway Public School. He gradually became worse and lapsed into a coma from which he never recovered.

Dr. George R. Stewart, his physician, called in Dr. Wallace B. Hamby, a Buffalo brain specialist who operated on the boy May 8, in an effort to save his life.

Fifth Disastrous Fire In Six Weeks Hits Northern District

A block-long smouldering pile of rubble marks the eastern half of the Minden business section, which was levelled by fire on Friday morning. This picture was taken looking north from the roof of Smith's barber shop, the only building on the east side that escaped. Fire started in the Brintnell bake-shop, location of which is given by the smoke stack, and ovens in the centre. Damage will run to more than $100,000, and police are investigating the possibility of incendiarism. (McGillen—Staff Photos.)

Minden Fire Said Work of Bug

Ovens In Bakeshop Seat Of Blaze Cold Twelve Hours

MINDEN, May 16.—(By Staff Reporter)—Indignant citizens of Minden village plan to have the Township Council make applications to the Fire Marshall's Department of Ontario to investigate the disastrous blaze that wiped out one-half of the business section in the hamlet of 500 people 51 miles north of Lindsay, in the heart of the Haliburton Highlands, on Friday morning.

Following on the heels of four other conflagrations in the same district, the Minden fire, has the entire north country in arms, and suspicion is growing that a fire-bug may be responsible for the blaze. This rumor is strengthened by the fact that the fire which levelled nine buildings, and caused damage estimated at $100,000 started in a bakeshop, the oven of which had been cold for twelve hours.

Awakened By Dog

The fire started at 4:25 Friday morning with an explosion that smashed windows in the bakeshop, and awakened the townspeople, but there is a more sinister angle to the picture. Earl Hewitt, who operates a transport business with his brother told a reporter that at four o'clock his dog awakened him by barking. He got up feeling that a prowler was around, but could see nothing, not even a sign of activity in the village. He claims the dog will not bark unless some person comes close to the building at night, and the Hewitt building is less than 500 feet from Brintnell's bakeshop where the fire started. Hewitt was just getting back to bed, when the explosion took place.

Other residents tell of seeing a stranger in the village the night before, while the majority just state that there have been too many fires in the district for it to be just coincidence.

The chain of disastrous fires started about two months ago, when the grain elevator at Mariposa near Lindsay, owned by Hogg and Lytle and damage totalled $100,000, then came the Omemee Tannery blaze which crippled a war industry threw 96 men out of work, and did damage exceeding $150,000. The third fire was the worst of all, and started in a sawmill at Kinmount village. Before the fire exhausted itself, every building and dwelling in the heart of the town was lost, including a $6,000 fire engine owned by Fenelon Falls, and about an acre of young pine trees. The loss in this fire was put at $200,000. Two weeks ago, the general store, a service station, and two large residences burned in the village of Gelert in Haliburton eight

Victory Ridge In Sight Says Premier

Have Weapons Now Yorkshire Men Told, Play Rough As Hun

LEEDS, England, May 16.—(CP.)—Prime Minister Churchill told Yorkshire workers to-day that if Britain's enemy "plays rough, we can play rough too."

Declaring that the Empire's brave men now have weapons as well as courage, the Prime Minister said in a public speech:

"Here in the 33rd month of the war none of us is weary of the struggle. None of us is calling for any favors from the enemy.

"If he plays rough we can play rough too. Whatever we have got to take we will take and we will give it back in even greater measure."

He said the point whence it will be a downhill fight to an Allied victory now has come into sight.

25,000 Out to Cheer

A throng estimated at 25,000 stood in a public square to hear the Prime Minister as he spoke from the steps of Leeds town hall, standing before a huge Union Jack.

Elaborating on his remark that a downhill fight now lies ahead, the Prime Minister said "We have reached the period in the war when it would be premature to say we have topped the ridge but we see the ridge ahead now."

Nazis Not Anxious Now.

The Prime Minister said the enemy is not ready "to come to this island" because "he knows of our arrangements for meeting him" which are "improving in power and efficiency every day."

A "large portion" of the German air force is engaged on the Russian front, Mr. Churchill added.

He said the cause of the United Nations appeals to all those "not already gripped by tyranny" or "reduced to its insidious vice."

"This cause is shared by all the millions of our cousins across the Atlantic who are preparing night and day to have their will and

MONTREAL, May 16 (CP)—Residents along the St. Lawrence River shore near the scene of the torpedoing of two freighters told naval authorities that one or more Nazi submarines were seen in the vicinity just previous to the sinking, it was reported here last night.

A report received here from one fishing port said the U-boat was seen close to the beach Monday night. From another point a report said a U-boat turned its searchlight on a wharf and then disappeared.

Fighting Yunnan Governor Upsetting Japs

CALCUTTA, India., May 16 (AP)—The Japanese apparently have failed in an attempt at lightning conquest of China's Yunnan province, thanks to Lung Yuen, defiant Chinese governor who rallied his weakening troops, and to daredevil Chinese and American fliers who ruled the air.

The story of how a Japanese push stalled near Paoshan a week ago, leaving the enemy with a tough, expensive campaign still to fight came today from members of the American volunteer group who were in battle.

These fliers gave the laurels to Governor Lung Yuen, a former Chinese warlord and trusted confidante of Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek. They said he organized a successful defence of the province almost overnight, stiffening the leadership of the scattered Chinese 6th army retreating from the Shan states of Burma.

An advance enemy detachment had raided the environs of Paoshan itself when the governor assumed the military responsibility.

Within 48 hours, the American fliers said, the Japanese had been driven back from the Salween River and even now, although the invaders have been reinforced, Chungking reports the Chinese still hold the west bank of the river in strength and the Japanese still are 55 miles from Paoshan, which is on the Burma road about 125 miles

Huns Fail To Destroy Spans Leave Guns In Retreat, Russ Swarm Across Donets

Berlin Claims Kerch Town Harbor Fallen, Reds Wreck Leading Tank In Charge Block Road, Wipe Out 60 Others, 130 Trucks

LONDON, May 16—(CP).—A Stockholm dispatch, relayed in turn by the Vichy French news agency and Reuters, said today that the Red army, flanking Kharkov to the south, had breached the German defences at Lozovaya in a drive to cut German communications with the entire front south of that point.

Henry C. Cassidy, Associated Press staff writer in Moscow, reported German defenders of Kharkov ousted from a further series of firing lines and many communities today despite strong resistance and armored wreckage marked their roads of retreat before the tank-paced legions of Marshal Semeon Timoshenko.

(Unconfirmed dispatches to London said there was street fighting in northeastern suburbs of Kharkov, reported seat of Field Marshal Fedor von Bock's southern command, and that the Russians now were crossing the Donets River on a 70-mile front between Belgorod and Zmiev for the widening offensive).

The army newspaper Red Star said the German high command had planned to launch a spring offensive of its own on the Kharkov front and was sending considerable reserve forces to the most menaced point for local counter attacks. These, it said, had failed to achieve the expected effect.

Fail to Wreck Bridges

Captured orders of the 610th Reserve Infantry Regiment disclosed plans for destruction of river bridges and munitions stores in the withdrawal, but the Germans failed to blow up the spans and they abandoned both guns and ammunition when the Russians struck, Tass said.

The Soviet Information Bureau announced that "our troops destroyed 255 guns, damaged more than 250 tanks and brought down 40 enemy planes" and the Kharkov offensive was declared to be developing irresistibly.

A Kharkov front correspondent of Pravda wrote that a battle of armored forces had left one field "a cemetery of German tanks." Guerillas were reported striking heavily at withdrawing Nazi units.

Stubborn fighting was reported to have continued during the night on the Kerch Peninsula, where Red Army men seek to hold a potential springboard to the Caucasus.

(There was no immediate comment from Moscow on a German high command assertion that Axis forces had captured both the town and harbor of Kerch, the Peninsula's major port.)

Red Star reported that Russian planes in the Kharkov offensive had blown up the leading tank of a long Nazi column to block at road, silenced anti-aircraft guns by dive-bombing, and then reduced more than 60 tanks, 130 trucks and other vehicles to a burning an dtwisted mass.

German airmen attempted to intervene, but 14 of their planes were downed in air duels, Red Star said.

British Dig In At India Pass, Save Wounded

By DREW MIDDLETON

LONDON, May 16—(AP).—British forces in Burma were reported to-day digging in to repel a fresh Japanese assault on the northern Burma backdoor route to India, while wounded soldiers and others who have had to abandon their equipment or lost their units were being moved through mountain passes into India.

The R.A.F. gave support to the weary defenders of Burma with a destructive attack from high and low levels on the airdrome at Akyab, Japanese-held port on the Bay of Bengal about 89 miles below the Indian frontier, official reports said.

A British source declared that the Japanese troops thrusting toward India have made contact with the British in the Upper Chindwin River Valley north of Shwegyin, enemy-held Burma town, and an

Torpedo Crashes Raft Killing 6

MATAPEDIA, Que., May 16—(CP)—Survivors of the first ship ever to be torpedoed in the St. Lawrence River said today that six men listed as missing undoubtedly lost their lives when the second of two torpedoes fired by a Nazi submarine crashed into a life raft and then smashed into the ship.

A party of survivors passed through here on their way to Montreal, and one of them, Joseph Stirling of Glasgow, said that the life raft was at the side of the ship when it was crushed by the missile fired by the German raider. Stirling was in a lifeboat not far from the raft and the explosion "knocked one of the men in our boat about 10 feet out into the water." The man was picked up again safely.

Eighty-six persons in all were aboard the ship the first of two sent to the bottom early in the week by the U-boat. In the other sinking, there were 31 survivors with one man dead and 11 missing.

See Hun Caught, Big Offensive Unready

Kerch Push Believed Isolated Move Already Threatened By Kharkov Breach

Written for The Canadian Press
By Maj.-Gen. Sir Charles Gwynn

LONDON, May 16—(CP Cable).—Berlin's announcements are conflicting as to whether the attack in the Kerch Peninsula is the beginning of a German spring offensive or, as appears more likely, merely an isolated action.

If it is proposed to use the peninsula as a jumping-off point in an invasion of Caucasia, there would be much to be done even after the capture of Kerch before the attempt could be made.

Russian resistance moreover now has been supplemented by their own counter move which Marshall Semeon Timoshenko has launched on the Kharkov front.

South of Kharkov, the Russians have held a salient for some time and a successful drive towards the river Dnieper there would threaten German positions in the Crimea. If Timoshenko's forces succeed in going forward to any marked degree, the Kerch offensive might have to be reconsidered and such a Russian drive would also likely impede seriously any future German advance from Taganrog towards Rostov.

Meanwhile in the Crimea resistance offered on Kerch indicates its capture will be no easy matter, and the Russian Black Sea fleet may make the collection of suitable craft required to transport heavy material of an invading army difficult.

Main Attack Not Ready?

On these grounds, I suggest the German operation is an isolated one both geographically and in time, and that the offensive on the main front line may not be launched for some weeks. There are few indications that it is yet in readiness.

For an isolated operation in Kerch, the Germans have special opportunities to concentrate great numbers of aircraft and this they appear to have done, using their dive bombers against defending troops rather than against their communications.

Owing to the short distance bombers have to cover, protection against such attacks must depend less upon interception than upon counter attacks on airdromes where the masses of bombers required to produce such a crushing effect may be very vulnerable.

If the German claim of the use of new weapons is true, the Kerch operation may be partly of an experimental nature to test their value and give experience in their use. A particularly heavy mortar is said to be one of the new weapons, which introduces problems of mobility and ammunition supply.

Gas Warfare Outlook

Reports the Germans are using gas are still unconfirmed, but obviously there is a chance this year will see gas warfare. I am not convinced, however, that the Germans will face the risks this would involve, especially after Mr. Churchill's announcement of the British attitude, and American concurrence.

The German General Staff cannot have forgotten the feelings of their own troops in the last war on the subject. German prisoners toward the end of the war, although Allied use of gas had not reached anything like its full potentiality, bitterly condemned those on their own side who had initiated gas methods.

There are other reasons why the Germans may hesitate to start the employment of gas. They must be aware that the Russians have made an intensive study of and prepar-

Japan In Rice Control Seat

Conquests Enable Pressure On 375 Millions

PALO ALTO, Calif., May 16 (AP)—The conquest of southeastern Asia has put Japan in position to play a gigantic pressure game against the rice-eating part of the world, which embraces about 40 per cent of all mankind, say Stanford University food experts.

Rice is the mainstay of life for more than 750,000,000 people, about half of whom live in countries which do not produce enough of the grain to meet the needs of their own populations.

Up to now the rice-deficient countries, principally India and Ceylon, have depended largely upon Burma, Thailand and French Indo-China for additional rice supplies. Now Burma, Thailand and French Indo-China are dominated by Japan.

Japan itself is a part of the rice world, the other component countries being China, India, Ceylon, Burma, Thailand, French Indo-China, Korea, Formosa, the Philippines, the Netherlands Indies and other islands off southeast Asia.

Isolation Gone For States

Leaders Begin To Realize Post War Changes

WASHINGTON, May 16 (CP)—As the initial shock of war on the United States begins to wear off, the American people are starting to think more and more of the kind of world they wish to see at the end of hostilities.

Their thinking so far has not been organized in one particular groove but in all sections of the country there appears to be a general acknowledgment that isolation for the United States is a physical impossibility in a post-war world. This thinking generally is predicted on the assumption that the United States must co-operate fully in a world-wide program of peace, social and econmoic freedom.

Within recent days, two men in opposite political camps, Vice-President Henry A. Wallace and Wendell Willkie, 1940 Republican presidential candidate, have appealed to the people to be bold in carrying out post-war responsibilities in reorganizing the world.

A poll of six Senators, Democrats and Republicans, revealed that each believed the time is approaching when the United Nations must give serious consideration to the broad principles on which they expect to rebuild a war-shattered world.

GOVERNMENT INVESTIGATES DEVELOPMENT OF ALBERTA'S SANDS

Canada Looks Into Its Oil Resources

Alberta Tar Sands Quick Source, Study N.S. Shale

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, May 16—(CP).—Development of Canada's petroleum resources is being investigated by geologists in widely-separted parts of the country, the House of Commons was informed at the closing sitting of the week.

Suggestions came from several members that Canada might help to meet the oil shortage situation by developing oil shale fields in Nova Scotia the tar sands of northern Alberta and the deposits in the Peace River country.

Munitions Minister Howe told the House that geologists were conducting investigations looking towards development of the Dominion's petroleum resources.

Mr. Howe was under questioning of members with the House in committee of the whole on the war appropriation bill resolution.

John R. MacNicol (Con. Toronto-Davenport), who said he travelled widely every year at his own expense and would continue to do so, seeking methods of greater development for Canada, brought up the question of oil development in the Fort McMurray, Alta., area and the Peace River district.

Percy Black (Con. Cumberland) made an appeal for development of oil shale areas in Nova Scotia. Mr. Howe said he had no knowledge of them but would have a report made by his departmental experts.

Immediate Source

But the Minister said the oil deposits in northern Alberta, the Peace River and Fort Norman, N.W.T. districts, long looked upon as a possible reserve supply of oil now were considered a source of "immediate" supplies.

"A very intensive study of the tar sands is under way at the present time," said Mr. Howe. This was organized by the Department but assistance came from the oil companies and the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company.

miles from the village of Minden. Loss was $15,000. To cap the list of five, the Minden fire on Friday morning roled the loss column up another $100,000 at least. The cause of every one of these fires is still obscure.

Heard Slight Blast

W. Winch of the Rockcliffe Inn at Minden, was one of the first to notice the fire on Friday morning. He is a light sleeper, and heard a slight blast, and the crash of tinkling glass. He reached the building about the same time as Earl Hewitt, and he stated he paid special attention to try and detect any trace of a chemical odor, but could not notice any. The rear part of the bakeshop was an inferno. Mr. and Mrs. Brintnell and their four-year-old daughter, Barbara, were awakened by the two men, and the three who had been asleep above the bakeshop raached the street safely clad only in their night clothes.

The villagers organized into bucket squads and roof watchers in short order, but they could not save the buildings on the east side of the street. There was no looting, and no spectators, everybody worked.

Walter Welch, brother of Reeve Welch, and postmaster at Minden for the past 12 years, rallied his staff, including his daughter Ila, Mrs. Maude Campbell and Mrs. Etta Brintnell, and collected every bit of mail in the post office, filling about twenty mail bags with mail and literature. He crossed to the opposite side of the main street, and by the light of the flames made up the outgoing mail which normally leaves the village by truck at five in the morning.

"We had plenty of light," Miss Welch remarked. Today the postmaster has parked the post office sign on a chair on the sidewalk, opposite a store which is used during the tourist season as a restaurant and is owned by another brother, S. W. Welch.

Pump Saved Stores

Citizens of the village were free in their praise of Thomas Archer and his two sons, of Matabanick Lodge, who raced the 13 miles from the lodge to the village with a Johnson fire pump and 400 feet of 2-inch hose. The pump threw water from the Gull river, and the stream from the hose played on huge canvasses in front of building opposite the fire and saved that section. The heat was so intense that shop windows were cracked and the paint peeled off the store fronts. W. Winch was caught in a heat blast between two buildings, and the back of his sweater burst into flames, searing his back. Another fire-fighter doused the sweater with a pail of water.

The fire burned fiercely fed by the dry wooden structures, and before three hours the entire business block was a smouldering heap of ruins. All told, nine buildings were burned, as follows: Hartle's general store, Easton's butcher shop, Brintnell's bakeshop, Taylor's garage, the post office, the office of The Minden Echo, a weekly newspaper; Mrs. Lott's restaurant, Dawson's real estate office, and Hartle's service station. A vacant fruit store was practically demolished also.

Picturesque Village

Minden is one of the most picturesque villages in the north country, and came into being more than a century ago, when lumber companies invaded the section to take out the stands of white pine. Nestling on the banks of the Gull River in a cosy green valley surrounding almost entirely by towering pine clad hills, the village is remembered by tourists for its clean appearance and natural beauty. It has a population of about 500, and is the shopping centre for a host of large summer resorts in the nearby lakes. Highway 35 running north from Lindsay to Dorest passes through the village.

ation for just such a German move and are not likely to be specially vulnerable to its use.

Moreover the synthetic rubber on which the Germans mainly rely for their own protective equipment against gas lacks the pliability of natural rubber and is unsatisfactory for the purpose. There is a possibility the Germans may employ a new form of gas, but scientists are confident none can be discovered which would pentrate standardized protective equipment.

It is possible, however, I believe, to employ variants of well-known gases which would produce unfamiliar symptoms in casualties caused where protective measures had been neglected. This might give rise to rumors that protection was ineffective against a new gas and might therefore have a considerable effect on morale.

Dive Bombers Relied Upon.

It is clear, despite the remarkable achievement of the Russian air force, that the Germans will continue to be able to use dive bombers with great effect and in this connection too much should not be expected from the claim that R.A.F. action has forced the Germans to retain 50 per cent. of their fighter strength in western Europe.

This figure would certainly not apply to bombing aircraft required to take part in a Russian offensive. Nor can it be expected that R.A.F. attacks on German productive establishments will have an immediate effect in the Russian theatre, for it must be assumed the Germans accumulated reserves of aircraft during the winter sufficient to maintain an offensive over a considerable period. Air losses the Germans suffered during the winter probably were not as heavy among their dive bombers as among their fighters and transport planes.

Glancing Back 25 Years

Italian armies under Gen. Luigi Cadorna launched their biggest offensive of the war May 14, 1917, with the capture of Trieste as the ultimate objective. The following day it was announced that Gen. Pétain had replaced Gen. Robert Nivelle as commander of French armies on the western front. This move resulted from the failure of the French offensive in the Champagne in which Nivelle had hoped to inflict a knockout blow to German opposition in that sector.

There has been no general British retreat from Burma, the commentator declared.

He said an interpretation yesterday of recent communiques to mean that there had been a general withdrawal across the border was shown by the latest report from the British Commander, Gen. The commentator exlained that those soldiers who have lost their units or equipment were marching to India to rest and re assemble their fighting gear.

The commentator said Chinese elements still were in the area between Mandalay and Myitkyina, Burma.

British sources predicted that Gen. Alexander might attempt to form a defensive line in Upper Burma to pin down the Japanese who otherwise would be used against the Chinese.

Seymour East WI Re-elects Mrs. Jesse Locke

CAMPBELLFORD, May 16 (ENS).—The election of officers and reports on the Kemptville Conference to which two delegates were sent, formed highlights of the annual meeting of the Seymour East branch of the Women's Institute held at Mrs. Burke Stephens' home.

Their capable president, Mrs. Jesse Locke, who was subsequently elected for her fourth term to that office, presided for the meeting during which it was announced they would make a cash donation of $10 towards the current Red Cross drive.

Five members, Mrs. E. C. Pollock, District Representative, Mrs. Jesse Locke, Mrs. John Thompson, Mrs. George Craighead, Mrs. Alex Milne, were appointed delegates to the District Annual to be held May 22nd at Dundonald Hall, Lakeview Branch.

Mrs. John Thompson presided for the election of officers and the following were named: Honorary president, Mrs. James Shillinglaw; president, Mrs. Jesse Locke; 1st vice-president, Mrs. E. C. Pollock; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. George Ingram; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. John Thompson; pianist Miss Doreen Pollock; conveners—educational, Mrs. Stollery; health and child welfare, Mrs. Jesse Locke; economics, Mrs. Alex Milne; agriculture and Canadian industries, Mrs. Burke Stephens; legislation, Mrs. George Craighead; historical research, Mrs. John Thompson; Canadianization, Doreen Pollock; peace education, Miss Edith Gibbons; community activities and relief, Mrs. John Murray; publicity, Miss Elsie Rannie.

Pyjamas and housecoats, a project undertaken by them last October, were modelled by members of the Institute sponsored Girls' Club the Jannie Canucks. Misses Elsie Rannie, Thelma Wallace, Dorothy Eagleson, Doris Locke, Jean Murray, Enid Hay, Doreen Pollock, all assisted with this display.

Kemptville Conference

As a further important contribution to the meeting delegates Jean Murray and Doreen Pollock gave a comprehensive report on the 5-day Kemptville Conference. Miss Murray began her share of the report by quoting remarks from an address by Miss Florence P. Eadie, director of the junior program, Women's Institute Branch, who, under the topic "What Can I Do?" discussed Canada's partnership with the Allied Nations. She told the 80 girls that all were partners either active or passive, helping or hindering according to what they did, how they did it and by how much or little they did.

Another topic which Miss Murray felt deserved attention was "Food for Victory," a subject constantly in the minds of Institute members. Miss B. Lucille Bridges, director of home economics at the Kemptville School, lead this discussion and asked the natural question of the dietitian "Are you eating the food which will give you the highest standard of health?" In her opinion victory would come to the nation or group of nations whose standard of morale and health was highest. She reported the result of a survey made in the principal Canadian cities, where it was found the diet generally was deficient in vitamins A, B, C, iron and calcium. Proper cooking and the inclusion of such things as dried beans, carrots, whole grain cereals, tomatoes, citrus fruits, cheese, green and yellow vegetables, liver, milk and dark molasses, in the diet, was one way of overcoming this.

The need for increased production was keynoted in the address of Principal M. C. McPhail, Kemptville Agricultural School and he ounselled the girls to do all that they could to help on the farm: "If you are ahead with your work it is your duty to help your neighbor."

from the Burma border.

(The Chinese Central News Agency said today the invaders had suffered more than 4,000 casualties in Yunnan in the last week.)

Tough Governor Lung was reported to have ordered the execution of a disgraced former army general when he ignored an opportunity to commit suicide. Then, it was said, Lung directed the annihilation of 30 Japanese whose raid on Paoshan had been repulsed.

Cheered by a virtual ringside view of bombing Japanese positions along the Salween on May 6 and 7, dispersed Chinese troops on the west bank reorganized and, with fresh reserves, closed in on the enemy from all sides.

For the first time in the fighting in Burma and China, the Japanese lacked air support and without it they were forced into flight.

This was May 8. Japanese communications were broken first.

Then waves of planes blasted 100 enemy trucks and killed hundreds of troops. Chinese ground forces turned their own trucks around and gave chase.

Disorganization spread through the Japanese spearhead— the Red Dragon armored division with 3,000 men and hundreds of vehicles—and the enemy forces headed back toward the Burma frontier.

Again, the exploits of the A.V.G. gave the ground force a big helping hand, not only as fighters but also as bombers.

On May 7, four Kittyhawk fighters were loaded with 500-pound Russian-made bombs each, and attacked a steep, narrow road winding down a mountainside to the Salween shore aiming to blast away Japanese-travelled hairpin turns.

The road was nearly 9,000 feet high and cloaked in storm clouds. The mission was only partly successful but that afternoon the A.V.G. planes were loaded with six 35-pound bombs each, Chinese-made this time.

The four Kittyhawks skimmed the Salween Gorge until they spotted a cluster of tents shielded from Chinese artillery across the river by a rocky ledge. They let go their explosive and fragmentation bombs from scarcely 100 feet. Chinese troops, in a later advance, confirmed they had hit an enemy field headquarters and wiped out about a score of officers.

Later, when the enemy brought in more reserves, the A.V.G. went far afield with a 400-mile flight into enemy territory to bomb the Hanoi air base in French Indo-China.

In all, the A.V.G. brought down eight Japanese planes and probably destroyed or damaged another 11 on May 5 when 92 raiders tried to wipe out their newly-established base near Paoshan.

Quilting was resumed for the remainder of the afternoon. Then a lovely supper was served by the hostess.

Traffic Mishap Develops Unusual Angle

COBOURG, May 16 — (ENS). — Kenneth Williams of Bloomfield was found guilty by Judge Sheldon Smoke of Peterborough when he appeared in county court yesterday on a charge of dangerous driving. Harry Deyman represented the Crown and A. R. Willmott appeared for the accused.

The case resulted in the unusual conclusion of a car owner being convicted for the offense of the driver. In this instance the owner was Williams and the driver as Louise Johns of Trenton, the latter dying after the accident. A charge of drunk driving against Williams was withdrawn.

The background of the case was an accident which took place in Murray township, near Trenton, on November 20 last year. According to Crown evidence, Williams and Louise Johns were backing out of a service station, the woman at the wheel. The car backed into the path of a transport driven by Nick Genolie of Toronto who was unable to turn completely clear on account of another oncoming transport. The transport driven by Genolie caught the corner of the Williams car and swung it around the driver of the car sustained injuries, afterward dying.

Unable To Trace Kidnap Call

LONDON, Ont., May 16—(CP)—As the Wood baby kidnap entered its second week, police said today that Friday's anonymous telephone call by a woman to the Hamilton Spectator newspaper office remained the only new lead in the past 24 hours.

The woman said that when "the Children's Aid Society" returns her child to her she would give back the London baby.

She gave no further clue but it started authorities on a re-check of Children's Aid records, pointed especially to recent cases of children taken from parents and of attempted adoptions.

Police Chief Earl Knight said this morning he had received no further word from Hamilton police but he presumed that efforts to trace the phone call had failed.

To accelerate the Children's Aid check, police sent word to the C.A.S. convention in Toronto asking Fred Cristall, superintendent of the local society, to give delegates details of the latest tip.

As hundreds of shoppers streamed by a downtown grocery store in mid-afternoon April 8, six-months-old Barbara Ann Wood was snatched from her buggy without any apparent eye-witnesses to the crime. The mother Florence Wood, 29, was inside shopping at the time.

FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

TORONTO, May 16 — (CP). — Wholesale fruits and vegetables remained unchanged today.

TO FIGHT FOR THEIR HOMES,
Their Wives and their Children . . . and Yours

It is no less important therefore that they who fight for us should know that those they leave behind will be given every care and looked after when necessary. It keeps up their morale to know that everything is fine at home.

This is one of the big jobs of the Salvation Army. It takes considerable money to do this work. That is why we appeal to you to give liberally so that this very important work may be carried on and made even more effective.

Tuesday, Day of Conflict In Christ's Last Week

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for May 17 is Matthew 21:23—23:29, the Golden Text being Mark 12:10, "The stone which the builders rejected, The same was made the head of the corner.")

The day of conflict, when our Lord disputed with the scribes and Pharisees, sternly telling them where they erred, in their ways of living and in their thinking. He knew very well that His days on earth were now numbered. His enemies would destroy Him as the person, Jesus, the carpenter, but by so doing would exalt Him to the skies forever.

These elders of the church gathered around Him as He was in the temple, apparently on friendly terms with Him, asking Him questions, which they craftily hoped would anger the people so that they could arrest Him. Their queries and His answers only went to show how inferior they were to Him in holiness and mentality.

At first they asked Him by what authority He taught and who gave Him this authority. They really had a right to ask this, as they were the rulers of the temple. Jesus answered by asking them a question: The baptism of John, whence was it? from heaven or of men?

What could they say? If they said it was from heaven, the natural question rose, Why then did they not believe in him? And if they answered that it was of earth, the people would rise and overcome them, for to the people John was the last of the great prophets. They were stumped, as we say, and admitted they had no answer. Then, said Jesus, I will not answer your question.

Parable of the Two Sons

Then the Lord told them a story which involved another question: A man, He said, had two sons. He asked them to go to work in the vineyard. The first said he would not, but later was sorry and went to work. The second said "I go," but did not. Which did the will of his father? Naturally, the one who worked. The lesson of that parable was that many who thought themselves righteous and kept the letter of the law, did not do the will of the Heavenly Father; but those that at first seemed rebellious and rejected the command, later repented, accepted the Lord and the work assigned them. The first were these same elders of the church who rejected the Master; the second those who believed in Him.

The second parable concerned a man who had a vineyard which he leased to husbandmen to work for him. When the fruit was ripe he sent his servants for it, but the men beat and killed the servants; others who were sent were also killed, and finally the man sent his son, saying, "They will reverence my son." But they plotted to kill him also and to take his inheritance, the vineyard. The Scribes and Pharisees saw Jesus meant them by these wicked men, and Himself as the son whom they meant to kill (for well He knew what they were plotting), and were furious about it, but could do nothing because the multitude took Him for a prophet.

Parable of Marriage Feast

We have not room for the entire story of the king who made a feast for his son's marriage and invited his friends, who proved too busy to come. The second call was given, but no one responded, so the king sent his army and destroyed these false ones, and told his men to bring all they could find in the highways and byways, good or bad. They did so, and the wedding was furnished with guests. One, however, had arrogantly come to the feast without putting on the gala clothes provided, and him the king threw out "into outer darkness" because he was selfish and disloyal.

Then Jesus was asked if He thought it was lawful to pay the Roman taxes, which were humiliating to the Jews. It was a legitimate question, but Jesus answered, "Shew Me the tribute money," and when it was brought, "Whose image is this, and superscription?" They answered, "Caesar's." "Render therefore unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's; and unto God the things that are God's." This is one of the most complete and most crushing answers ever recorded. And probably the next is His answer to the lawyer who asked Him what was the greatest commandment in the law: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy mind." He said, and further, the second is, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

Then in indignation and sorrow Christ called these men hypocrites who kept the letter of the law, made long prayers, were called Rabbi," etc., but neglected the poor, misled their concert, worshipped only the gold of the temple; paid their tithes but omitted judgment, mercy and faith. "Woe unto you!" He cried, and then sorrowfully, prophesying the ruin that was to come in a generation: because of their blindness and stupidity, "Behold, your house is left unto you desolate. Ye shall not see Me henceforth, till ye shall say, Blessed is He that cometh in the name of the law."

Rev. W. Howard To Preach St. James' S.S. Anniversary

Rev. Wilbur Howard, a graduate of Emmanuel College 1941, and Victoria University, Toronto, has worked his way up in the Canadian Youth Movement. As a boy he was in Trail Ranger and Tuxis work in Grace United Church in Toronto. Later the boys' groups elected him to the Ontario Boys' Parliament in which he has since held practically every office of importance, and won general esteem. As a result of these years of faithful apprenticeship this young man has received the appointment of Boys' Work Secretary of the Religious Education Council of Canada, an appointment which has been greeted with widespread appreciation by young people and board members alike. He is helping Canadian youth to be willing and efficient workers in the Church.

Rev. Mr. Howard will preach at St. James' United Church on Sunday. He will also give an address at the open session of the Sunday School at 3 o'clock.

REV. WILBUR HOWARD.

St. Paul's Church To Mark Its 109th Anniversary

St. Paul's Presbyterian Church is on Sunday observing its 109th anniversary with special service. Rev. Dr. M. B. Davidson of Central Presbyterian Church in Galt will be the special speaker and at the evening service Dr. Harvey Donney, noted baritone and now with the R.C.A.F. at Trenton, will be the special soloist. Dr. Donney and the choir are giving a special recital after the evening service.

In those 109 years St Paul's has only had six ministers. Rev. J. M. Roger in coming from Scotland in 1833 started the first Presbyterian church in Peterborough and he along with Dr. E. F. Torrance who succeeded him ministered to St. Paul's for almost 75 years. Then followed Rev. Dr. Robert Pogue who resigned in 1926 and since then there has been Rev. William Allan, Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr and on the first Sunday, 1942, Rev. Dr. J. D. Smart commenced his ministry in St. Paul's.

The congregation is one of the largest in the city having a membership of over 1,100 and Martin Chenhall, A.R.C.O., the organist and choir leader who is one of Peterborough's outstanding musicians has been with the congregation for almost 25 years.

Desired Men to Think Gospels Reveal that Jesus

Rev. E. R. JAMES

The High Priest said unto Jesus: I adjure Thee by the living God, that Thou tell whether Thou be the CHRIST, THE SON OF GOD. Jesus saith unto him, Thou hast said.—St. Matthews 26:63.

You constantly hear this statement: It is the teaching of Jesus that matters. Do not worry your head over the creeds and other outworn dogmas of bygone days. Follow the teaching of Jesus: Be gentle, help the poor and care for the sick. In a word be a Good Samaritan and you will be fulfilling the teaching of Jesus and following in His footsteps. This is the important thing. This makes a tremendous appeal to many people largely because they have seen dogmatic Christians hard, bitter and uncharitbale in their behaviour.

"The teaching of Jesus" is a half truth. A very important half. But "The Teaching about Jesus" is equally important. "What manner of Man is this that even the winds and the waves obey Him" is the tremendous questions in the minds of the Apostles.

The young Carpenter of Nazareth is standing before the highest ecclesiastical Court of His nation, the Sanhedrim. The High Priest administers to Him this most solemn oath: "I adjure Thee by the living God." The Prisoner accepts the oath and answers the plain question of the official Head of His nation: "Tell us whether Thou be the Christ, the Son of God?" Simply He answers: "Thou hast said." The High Priest rending his garments, according to ancient practice, exclaims: "He hath spoken blasphemy." The whole Court condemns Him to be worthy of death because He claimed to be the Son of God.

A careful study of the Gospels reveals that Our Lord rarely gives a straight answer to a straight question. Why. Because he desired men to think.

A deputation comes from John the Baptist with the vital question: "Art Thou He that should come or do we look for another?" Take heed to His reply. "Go and shew John the things which ye do hear and see." John must think and arrive at the answer.

The Master gathers a small band of men to be His Apostles. The inspired writer pointedly says "That they might be with Him." Primarily that they might discover His secret. He did not openly and plainly tell them. They had their own ideas of what manner of man the Christ, the Anointed of God, should be. He was to be the redeemer of Israel. The haunting, thrilling hope that he would free them from the Roman yoke and found an earthly Kingdom. "Jews over all" was the ideal. Modern.

Towards the end of His earthly ministry the Mothers of Zebedee's children, demands that her two sons, James and John, should sit one on the right hand and the other on the left in His Kingdom.

At the close of two years teaching and close association with Him the Lord asks the all important question: "Whom say ye that I am?" Simon Peter answers: "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." He has made the great discovery about Him. No wonder the Lord with deep emotion utters the blessing: "Blessed art thou, Simon Bar Jona, for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but My Father which is in Heaven."

Simon Peter does not yet realize the full meaning of the confession. Through much thought and tribulation of mind Simon Peter, a Jew, will give Divine honors to Jesus of Nazareth the value of God.

Only on two occasions does the Lord reveal Himself plainly. To the Samaritan woman: "I that speak unto thee, am He." To the beggar to whom He has restored sight: "Thou hast both seen Him and He it is that talketh with thee."

To plain simple hearted men and women He is willing to reveal Himself. To them His invitation is: "Come unto Me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give rest unto your souls."

At the same time this does not relieve us from thinking and striving to grasp the mystery that God became Man and that in Jesus Christ we have the revelation of what God is like. "He that hath seen Me hath seen the Father" is our Lord's own claim.

The Primitive Church passed through much tribulation and men and women gladly laid down their lives, dying in fearful torture, because they believed in the "Teaching about Jesus," that Jesus is the Son of God.

THOMAS SAID UNTO JESUS, MY LORD AND MY GOD.

Tuesday—The Day of Conflict ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matthew 21:23—23:39.

On Tuesday of Passion Week Jesus entered the temple and was questioned by the scribes and Pharisees as to His authority for teaching; Jesus refused to answer unless they told Him whether John the Baptist's baptism was from heaven or of men.

Jesus talked to these men in parables, telling them first of the man who had two sons. He commanded them to go work in the vineyard, but the first said no, but later repented and went to work. The second said, I go, but he did not obey his father.

Then He told the parable of the householder who had a vineyard which he rented to husbandmen. These men killed the servants sent by the master, and finally, when his son went to them, they conspired to slay him [illegible] and keep the vin[illegible].

When the chief priests and Pharisees had heard these parables, they realized that Jesus meant them by the wicked ones, but they were afraid to lay hands on Him because the people took Him for a prophet.

Canadian-Russian Relations

Great interest will be felt in Mr. King's announcement that the Government is considering the appointment of a Canadian envoy to Russia; true, he said, that many matters would have to be discussed before the move was made, but at least some action is being taken in the matter. Canada and Russia are now in the fellowship of the United Nations and the sooner a better understanding between them is achieved, the better it will be for everybody.

Mistrust and even positive hatred of Russia has existed in this country in some quarters for many years. Part of the fault lay with Russia herself, for she did nothing to show herself in a favorable light and permitted action in her name in such countries as Canada which was certainly not calculated to improve our opinion of her. And a part of the fault lay with those Canadians who lost no opportunity to talk about the horrible conditions which, upon no reliable evidence, they believed to exist in Russia; communism and capitalism are incompatible, but it has been obvious for some time that capitalism is becoming more socialistic, whereas Russian communism has been growing less Marxian; it is unlikely that the two will ever meet but they may soon be within hailing distance of each other. Only Canadians who have committed themselves to a blind defence of the status quo can still keep up the old anti-Russian feeling.

Not only are Canada and Russia allies, but they are also strikingly alike in their physical and geographical natures, and an exchange of ideas might help them both. And although many people will deny it, the Russian character and the Canadian character have several points of similarity; this may be a matter of climate. It must be clear to anyone that it is better for Canada to be friendly with Russia than to maintain an attitude of mistrust toward that country; we of the United Nations must hang together for the peace as well as for the war, and we cannot take Russia's help now if we expect to kick her in the face later.

Let us hope that the Government will not be too long in making its decision to send an envoy to Russia and to receive one in return. A Litvinov or a Maisky would be welcomed here by the majority of Canadians and a friendship might spring up which would be of the utmost advantage to both countries.

No News Is Bad News

It is hard to understand the announcement made by the Minister for Naval Affairs that nothing more will be revealed about the sinkings in the St. Lawrence and that no further sinkings will be disclosed. This policy does not appear to be directed so much at the enemy as at the Canadian public which is understandably apprehensive about these attacks in our own waters. Germany has more information about the attacks and their success than we have, and has made great capital of them. Admittedly it is quite a feat to penetrate into a country by its principal waterway and sink two ships, and this could only have happened if the defences of that country were caught off guard. We need have no fear that Germany will minimize this feat. But it is no part of our duty to aggrandize it, and that is what Mr. Macdonald's course of action seems likely to do.

It is highly necessary to keep from the enemy any information which may be of use to him and sometimes this involves keeping it from our own people as well. But the St. Lawrence sinkings present no such case. The enemy apparently knows all about them and we know next to nothing. In fact, we know just enough to stir up a mass of rumors and fears and apprehensions and forseeings which will be very hard to silence. Would not a frank statement of the case, or most of the case, be better?

The feat of sinking two ships in the St. Lawrence is a remarkable one and one which must give us a shiver, but it must not be taken as the beginning of submarine warfare on a large scale in and about Canada. Submarines must have bases, and this means that they must confine their activity to the Atlantic. Such escapades as this dash into the St. Lawrence are daring feats attempted rarely and almost impossible to achieve in force. It has given us a nasty shock, but we need not anticipate much of this sort of naval warfare. But if Mr. Macdonald swears himself to silence on the subject we cannot be blamed if we are nervous. This is decidedly a case where no news is bad news.

Canadian Actress Honored

Canadians who take an interest in the drama will be glad to hear that Miss Judith Evelyn, one of the most successful of the younger New York actresses and formerly a resident of Toronto, has been awarded the Delia Austrian medal by the Drama League of New York for her distinguished performance in Patrick Hamilton's thriller, Angel Street. The medal is given for the most distinguished performance of the season, and it has been won in former years by such well-known stars as Katherine Cornell, Maurice Evans and Sir Cedric Hardwicke.

In Angel Street, which was originally produced in London under the name of Gas Light, Miss Evelyn plays the part of a sensitive and nervous Victorian lady whose villainous husband is attempting to kill her by the somewhat novel method of frightening her to death. She is the central figure in the play, and the eventual discovery of the plot and the rescue of the lady by a Scotch detective makes it a first-rate mystery thriller. In Britain the part of the lady was played by Gwen Ffrangcon-Davies, one of the most accomplished of modern actresses, so Miss Evelyn follows a distinguished path.

Judith Evelyn is the latest of many fine actresses whom Canada has given to the American stage, and we owe much to these players. Although circumstances force them to find their fame and their opportunities abroad they are, in the main, good Canadians still, and they do much to make this country known and to bring honor upon it. A country may be respected for its wealth and industry but it will only be loved for its artists.

Mail And Special Providence

The deputy Postmaster-General, Mr. T. P. Coolican, says that a "special providence seems to look after the post-office." But it is well-known that Providence helps those who help themselves and the post-office has done its best, and an excellent best it is, to protect the mail going from this country to England and returning therefrom. According to information recently issued at Ottawa, only 14 losses of mail through enemy action have occurred since the outbreak of war. Out of a total of 750,000 bags of mail all but 26,230 arrived safely at their destination. Of course, 26,230 bags of mail is a large quantity, but it is only a little more than 3 per cent. of the total amount.

The mail service to Britain at present is most satisfactory. It is possible to carry on a business correspondence almost as expeditiously as in days of peace and it is rarely that such a correspondence is disrupted by loss at sea. Many British firms have adopted the expensive but prudent method of sending a duplicate of all their overseas letters a fortnight or so after the original, to make sure that the message will reach the proper destination. Our mail service is one of the best things about the British Empire, and even a war prevails little against its special providence.

The London Kidnapping

Everyone in the Province must feel sympathy for Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wood of London, whose six-months-old daughter, Barbara Ann, was stolen from her carriage outside a grocery store a week ago yesterday. Although the Provincial Government has offered a substantial reward and the police and many private citizens have searched diligently, no trace of the child has yet been found.

Kidnapping is usually undertaken with the hope of exacting a substantial payment for the return of the child. No such motive is possible in this case, for Mr. and Mrs. Wood are not in a position to pay any sum which would make such a dangerous crime worth while. No suggestion has yet appeared that the child was stolen as an act of venegance or spite against the parents. Apparently the crime was committed wantonly, and for this reason it is probably the work of someone of unbalanced mind. Such cases are not infrequent. Sometimes the culprit is an adolescent girl who takes the baby thinking that it will make a pleasant toy; sometimes it is a childless woman or one recently bereaved who seeks to comfort herself by stealing another's baby.

Whatever lies at the root of the London mystery the distress of the parents and the probability that the infant is suffering from poor care makes it a case to arouse the strongest sympathy and indignation. The laws against kidnapping in this country are severe, and when the culprit is found public opinion will expect them to be exercised to their fullest extent. But as the days draw on and hope grows less, it is sympathy for the unhappy parents which will be uppermost in the public mind.

Protect The Wild Flowers

Every spring thousands upon thousands of wild flowers are picked by city and by country people in this district and adorn their homes for a few hours before they become wilted and die. The trilliums, better known as the white lily, are now in full bloom and soon the lady slippers will be appearing by the washtub-full on the local market.

All this is the result of people who never think of the untold damage which they do when they remove these beautiful wild flowers from their natural surroundings. Every trillium pulled means a dead bulb at its root, for once the flower is pulled the root dies and the same is true of the lady slippers and many other varieties of our wild flowers. A number of years ago the woods in this district were filled with wild flowers every spring but now in those same woods only a few stunted flowers may be found.

Wild flowers are a thing of beauty, but are they not much more beautiful in their natural surroundings than decorating a mantel or a table in a house?

NOTE AND COMMENT

Can the number of escapes from Bowmanville have anything to do with Canada's Open Door Policy?

"High Licenses Urged to Curb Stray Dogs" says a headline. High fences will do it too.

A girl in York Township has been charged with stealing nine bicycles. Clearly she has taken too drastic a view of the scrap-collecting campaign.

Toronto's Police Commissioners are worried by the number of resignations from the Force in recent months. What does "Toronto the Good" need with a Police Force anyway?

The Strawberry Shortcake season is with us again. The Kingston Whig-Standard complains that too many restaurants interpret this name as meaning short on berries.

Japanese pilots, we read, are given exploding parachutes or none at all in order that they may never live to be taken prisoner. When a Jap takes to the air he takes to it permanently.

The fate of the German these days is a hard one. Seventeen men have been executed in the Reich for "defeatism" whereas over two million have been shot in Russia for optimism. Hardly worth while to be a German these days.

"Air raids produce more noise and dirt than loss of life or injuries," says Sir Archibald Wavell. Germany has shown that air war may produce misery and terror, but it will not subdue Britain. Can air war alone subdue Germany?

The British Labor Minister and the Ministry of Information have agreed to discontinue periods of spurt production and inspirational speeches to British workers in war industries, as these merely upset steady work. When people are as determined as the British are now they work better without benefit of gab and the shenanigans of efficiency experts.

Some time ago we were asked to reduce our national consumption of pork, and we did so, knowing that it was needed in Britain. But now beef is becoming hard to get, and we hear that considerable quantities of it are being shipped to the U.S., which does not sound like a war emergency measure. Considering the extent to which the Government controls prices and goods in this country this seems a very curious situation to have arisen, and we should like to know why it has arisen and how long it is going to last.

MASS BLACKOUT

Through the shallow moonlight
The spasmodic drill
Of a siren whistle
Penetrates the still,
Throwing up a mountain
To stand off men and men
So neither shall be witness
To the other then,
When multitudes of street lights
In the lap of town
Drop without reluctance
Into blackened ground,
And wardens like Orion
And dogs like Sirius
On the south sky's margin
Are watching over us.
And who but moles among us
Would bury in the dust
When heaven's starry banner
Flows flag-like over us.

The Mind of H. L. Mencken

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

THERE is no better reading than a book of quotations; you may read for five minutes or five hours, you may change the subject when you will, and you never have time to become bored with the style of a single author. But about most quotation books there is an air of impersonality and catholicism which is a little chilling; the wisdom of the great is sandwiched with those catchy but simple-minded sayings which we call proverbs, and is forced to rub shoulders in uneasy fellowship with the platitudes of stupid, though eminent, men; anything may be included if it is well enough known; currency is the only standard of admission. But now we have a quotation book compiled by Mr. H. L. Mencken which bears the stamp of a strongly individual choice, and consequently it is the best book of its kind for general reading that I have ever seen. Bartlett and the New Oxford Dictionary will keep their places on the shelves as works of reference, but Mencken's book will find its way to the bedside table or to any spot where a curious reader may spend a few idle minutes.

Henry Louis Mencken has done much for his age and for his country, though many people affect to hold him in slight regard. He has been a valiant fighter for the causes of common sense and good taste in the U.S.A. and he has made many bitter enemies in the field, but he has also won a host of admirers. His writing has almost always been marked and marred by an exuberance of style which alienates readers who admire the commonplace and the temperate; unfortunately it also alienates many of those who soon tire of invective and hyperbole. But with Mencken the style is the man, and he could no more hold his passion for violent expression and bizarre phraseology in check than he could stop breathing. In small doses his writing is tonic; as a steady diet it becomes a bore. But it is always the production of an original, brilliant, richly-stored and sprightly mind.

TOO many people know Mencken only as an iconoclast, and on the strength of this superficial view they condemn him utterly. He has all his life fought against crudity and stupidity in the life of his nation, and he has naturally made many enemies; his attacks upon some aspects of religion, in particular, have made his very name obnoxious to thousands of people who have not troubled to examine his writings. He has also been accused of being an enemy of democracy, because he has attacked many abusers of democracy. But Mencken will be remembered as a careful and erudite student of the English language as it is used in the United States, and his fine book, "The American Language" will, with his book of quotations, be the basis of his future reputation. Mencken holds, quite rightly, that it is ridiculous to suppose that a country like the States, which has a population of mixed origin and great vitality, will use the English language in a form which English scholars would consider pure; he has given much time to deciding what changes in syntax and usage have taken a permanent place in American speech and writing, and what the probable future of English in the U.S. will be, he has boldly declared that an American language exists, distinct from, though closely related to, the English language which we in Canada still make shift to speak and write.

Mencken's quotation book, which has just become available in Canada, is called "A New Dictionary of Quotations On Historical Principles From Ancient and Modern Sources"; the most striking think about it, on a first examination, is that it has no index. Instead it is arranged under headings in alphabetical order, and this system seems to work very well. Closer examination reveals that it is very much a Mencken book; most quotation books are works of edification, but not this one. Under "Faith," for instance, we find many of the usual quotations from authors who thought that faith was a beautiful thing and then we run across this: "The beast faith lives on its own dung," from the works of Swinburne. This is refreshing; too many quotations on the side of the angels make dull reading and dull thinking. Similarly, under "God" we find many pious and profound remarks, and also the strange Polish proverb, "God can shave without soap." And a terse and disconcerting piece of cross-indexing reads: "Orangutan—see Husband."

In an excellent preface Mencken explains the general plan of his book, and shows why he has planned it on historical principles; many sayings are adapted and re-coined from generation to generation, and in this book the earliest traceable form is given and the rest are omitted. Excellent new translations are given of several Latin and Greek quotations which have hitherto had clumsy English forms. Of the choice of quotations the author says: "I have included many authors and books that have been strangers, hitherto, to such collections, and I have made new searches of those already familiar. Some immemorial imbecilities have been added deliberately, on the ground that it is just as interesting to note how foolish men have been as to note how wise they have been. These last, at worst, help toward one end that I have always had in mind—to make the book readable, to give the reader who seeks only entertainment something to content him. There is no reason why a book of quotations should be dull; it has its uses in idleness as well as in study." So far as I may judge after several hours spent with the book, the author has achieved his purpose fully; it is a wonderful book for an idle man or a busy one, and it is certainly the most original quotation book now available.

• Burma Written Off

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, May 16 (AP)—The battles for Kerch and Kharkov in Southwestern Russia necessarily hold the war news spotlight, but word that a gallant British force some 5,000 strong has escaped a menacing Japanese trap in Burma gives a welcome twist to reports from the Oriental battle area.

It had appeared there was little chance of escape for that remnant of the pitifully small force of British and Indian troops which fought as courageous a rearguard action all the way from Rangoon to India as British history records.

As it was, the survivors got away, like the men of the B.E.F. at Dunkirk, with only such fighting equipment as they could carry on their backs or in their hands. What was left of their battle-worn heavy equipment falls into Japanese hands as scrap metal.

With British evacuation of turbulent, steaming Burma, its conquest by Japan is all but complete. Eastward, by every indication, Chinese forces are mobilizing in strength behind the Salween to limit Japanese incursions into their homeland from the south and west. The fate or present disposition of other Chinese troops is obscure.

LOSS OF OIL SERIOUS

Weather portents still point, however, to a prolonged suspension of major hostilities along the Indian and Chinese borders of Burma. The wet monsoon is already blowing up from the Indian Ocean, and the rains it brought added immeasurably to the difficulties of the final British retreat, as it helped also to avert the closing of the Japanese trap about them.

Burma must be written off as another tragic disaster and a grave new complication for China and her United Nation allies. Loss of Burmese oil sources, although Japan stands to gain little from them herself in the immediate future, is a serious matter. It vastly increases the problem of keeping the Allied war machine on Oriental fronts fueled and lubricated. Planes, tanks and other war machines must be fed from distant American or Middle Eastern oil-fields across seas haunted by enemy submarines.

The disastrous end of the chapter in Burma has another implication as to Japan's next move. The war front in Burma may be weather-bound for some months, but the wet monsoon does not similarly deluge Australia or its vitally important eastern island ramparts across the Coral Sea.

MUST REGAIN "FACE"

Every bulletin from General MacArthur's headquarters since the trouncing administered to a Japanese flotilla in that sea has reflected expectation of a renewal of the Nipponese jab, whether it is aimed at Australia itself or at obtaining bases on islands along the sea lanes from the island continent to the United States.

Japanese land, sea and air forces released by the fall of Corregidor in the Philippines and the virtual end of the Burma campaign are available. Japanese military prestige, tarnished for the first time in this war by the Coral Sea defeat, calls for strong action to redeem it. American Army and Navy opinion expects a greater assault and MacArthur's planes are combing the countless islands north and east of Australia for indications of a new enemy concentration.

In London unidentified diplomatic sources are quoted as saying Hitler has caught such a Tartar in Marshal Timoshenko in Russia that he is already pleading with Tokyo to turn north against Siberia. The strength and breadth of the Red Army assault in the Kharkov area is said to have taken Der Fuehrer by surprise.

With Moscow and Tokyo just sealing a new peace compact between their respective puppet regimes in Manchukuo and Outer Mongolia, it would take a new display of Japanese infamy to strike at Siberia by surprise. And, unless surprised, Red defensive forces are apt to give as good an account of themselves in the East as they are giving at Kharkov and Kerch in the West.

• Still At Sea

THE question is, can we now do what we were unable to do last autumn—form a Second Front? Last autumn it might have been argued that the demand came from people who were politically enthusiastic but strategically ignorant. In the last few weeks, however, it has been voiced by spokesmen of our Allies—by Litvinov, by Maisky, by Sikorski.

The Daily Herald has never posed as a strategical adviser. It has always pointed out that persons who have no knowledge of the forces available are ill-qualified to suggest the most valuable disposition of those forces. It draws the attention of the Government, nevertheless, to the renewal of the demand for a Second Front. It asks: If Britain cannot yet form a decisive Second Front, why do Britain's Allies continue to urge it? Surely the only explanation is that the co-ordination of Allied strategy is not yet complete—that the Allies do not yet sufficiently understand one another's difficulties or appreciate one another's potentialities.

Whatever the reason, no good can result from a series of Allied demands for more positive British military action, followed by a profound British silence. Either we are over cautiously refraining from action; or else we are not convincing our Allies that our present efforts represent our utmost. Either our strategy is at fault, or our diplomacy.—Daily Herald (London).

• Guns From Canada

TOO LITTLE, we believe, is being told to this country of the extent of Canada's war effort, which has been overshadowed by reports of what America is going to do. And by saying that we do not belittle the present output and the immense plans of the United States. What reminded us of this was a glimpse at a book which tells something of what one company in Canada is doing in its Ordnance Division — the Otis-Fensom Elevator Company. It is claimed that these ordnance works form the largest intermediate anti-aircraft gun plant in the British Empire.

What particularly interested us was the reproduction of posters which have been exhibited in the works. One runs: "Our first 1,000 guns may save Britain." Another reads: "Every lost-time day of this plant means five guns lost to the fighting forces."

The President (Mr. W. D. Black) is, we believe, a friend of Lord Riverdale. In a letter to a Trade Union official he says: "The operations of this company, now almost exclusively devoted to war purposes, are going forward in a genuine spirit of public trusteeship."—Sheffield Telegraph.

TO PREPARE THE SOLDIERS

A chamber of horrors may be used in every army training unit soon.

Experiments have been carried out by the War Office to get men used to the poise of battle and the sight and sound of dive-bombing, because men who have been through it declare that it is the noise that frightens.

A soldier is sent alone into a dark room, which is equipped with sound films and dummy guns.

As he handles the guns, he hears the noise of bombs and dive-bombers.

At the same time, through special streoscopic glasses, he watches films which show 'planes diving on him.

All the time someone outside lobs dummy hand grenades and bombs into the room, so that the soldier is choked with the fumes of burning cordite and deafened by real explosions, too.

After three or four spells of this most men can go into battle with iron nerves.—London Daily Herald.

A Bible Message For Today . . .

For thus saith the Lord God: Behold, I, even I, will both search my sheep, and seek them out....I will seek that which was lost, and bring again that which was driven away, and will bind up that which was broken, and will strengthen that which was sick....And I will set up one shepherd over them, and ye shall feed them, even my servant David; he shall feed them, and he shall be their shepherd.—Ezek. xxxiv, 11, 16, 23.

Then said Jesus unto them again, Verily, verily, I say unto you, I am the door of the sheep....I am the good shepherd, and know my sheep, and am known of mine....And other sheep I have, which are not of this fold: them also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice; and there shall be one fold, and one shepherd.—John x, 7, 14, 16.

Little children, let no man deceive you: he that doeth righteousness is righteous, even as he is righteous. He that committeth sin is of the devil; for the devil sinneth from the beginning. For this purpose the Son of God was manifested, that he might destroy the words of the devil. — I John iii, 7, 8.

SOME "GOOD" MEN STUPID

SOME years ago Bertrand Russell wrote an entertaining essay on "The Harm That Good Men Do," in which he showed the handicap to progress which can plainly be attributed to men who are "good" but unenlightened.

A leading banker used to say to his family: "Don't worry about the bad people. There are not many of them, anyway, and the police will take care of them as a rule. It is the stupid people who make most of the trouble."

Nature punishes stupid people with as much ferocity as people punish what they consider to be wickedness. We, at least, should not condone as leaders people without imagination, intelligence or courage—merely because they are good.

The British invented the tank—and ironically enough the battle tactics that enabled the Nazis to crush nearly all Europe. They got the idea from the British Army exercises of 1927.—London Daily Sketch.

✚ Symbol of Mercy... Charity and Love

Against a background of suffering and sacrifice—against a sky darkened by the smoke of war—shines the Red Cross, symbol of mercy, charity and love . . . Bringing skilled nursing and medical care to the wounded and the sick . . . Providing refuge, clothing, food for the victims of bombing . . . Remembering the lonely men who are prisoners of war — forwarding parcels to them, forming a link between them and their loved ones here at home . . . Succouring rescued sailors . . . organizing the nation's blood donors. With so many vital tasks to perform, the Red Cross most urgently needs your help. You cannot turn a deaf ear to this appeal. We must give—give gladly—give generously.

TORONTO, May 16. — (CP) — Sportswriters these days think twice about calling an athlete "courageous" or "gallant" when other men are being brave with their lives instead of just a few minutes of hard breathing. But here's an item anyone could go heavy on, even in wartime:

Pete Gray was one of the big reasons why Three Rivers, Que., beat Pittsfield 6-2 in a Canadian-American League contest last week. He batted in four runs with three singles and played an outstanding game in the outfield. He's one good man our army couldn't use. He has only one arm.

Paddock Patter:

Scotty Craigmyle, who has ridden on Canadian and American tracks for 17 years, has told Bob (Calgary Herald) Mamini he's going to retire after the 28-day Winnipeg meeting ...Craigmyle's best riding was in distance races and there he really shone. No accurate estimates available yet on the supply of thoroughbreds on Canadian tracks this year ...That means it probably will be good.

Incidentally:

Eddie (Winnipeg Free Press) Armstrong recalls the day about 11 years ago when the biggest sports banquet in Manitoba sports history was held ...Honored were: Winnipegs, Allan Cup; Elmwood Millionaires, Memorial Cup; Varsity Grads, European and world hockey tournament champs; R. J. Gourley's Canadian champion curling rink; and Frank Stack, international indoor speed skating titlist.

Officials of the Stuart Tennis Club in Montreal are considering adoption of a one-ball service to conserve supplies...A good idea... In all but highest tennis company the first serve is just to show how hard the player can bash a ball into the net...Rod Laflamme, former Canadian cross-county ski king, has joined the Canadian Active Army in Ottawa...He'll be an anti-aircraft man. Dick (Lethbridge Herald) Matthews records that Don Colley, Mel Lunde and Doug Lane of Lethbridge Maple Leafs have joined the army.. Another player in Leafs' drive to the Alberta senior hockey crown a couple of months ago was Dick Gray, now in the R.C.A.F.... Mathews writes that Pete Slobodian (whose real name is Slobodzian), Garth Boesch and Hec Negrello of the same club will be in the air force in a few weeks.

DOCTORS CHECK KIDNEYS FIRST

Because they know that healthy Kidneys remove from the blood the waste matter —the excess acids and poisons, formed by the ever-changing human body as it decays and rebuilds itself. But if the Kidneys fail, illness surely follows. Backache, Rheumatic Pains, Impure Blood, Lack of Energy, Too Frequent Urination, Sleeplessness, Headaches—all may result from faulty kidneys. SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

Everything is set for the gala opening of the City Softball League at the Ashburnham Bowl Monday night when Manager Roy Parnell's Adam Hat Royals will tangle with Manager Jimmy Ellis' Plaza Billiards. The Royals, of course, are the former Chesterfields and the Plazas are the Peterborough Hockey Club squad who hope to repeat their ice triumph during the past winter with the capture of the City League softball title. The rivalry between the two outfits is intense and there should be plenty of excitement everytime the squads meet. Manager Ellis went on the air last night to predict a Plaza victory in Monday night's affair and Manager Parnell will come back this evening over station CHEX with a counterblast in which he will claim a sweeping win for Royals. They can't both win, of course, but there is nothing to prevent them both from trying hard and the surest thing about Monday's battle is that the Royals and Plazas will do exactly that. It will be fought out all along the line with no quarter asked or given.

* * * * * *

Neither pilot has announced either his starting pitcher or his exact lineup for the opening tussle. For the Royals the pitching choice will likely be Fraser, the Toronto twirler or Holmes a Campbellford recruit, with Mowry. the hard-hitting catcher behind the bat. As for the Plazas it is probable that Manager Ellis will start either Dave Wilson, former Hastings heaver or big Tom Parsons. formerly of the Omemee Black Hawks. The peppery Eddie Starr will do the catching for the hockey squad. As for the rest of the lineups our guess is that the Royals will have an infield composed of Arnold Smith at first, Maurice Giardino at second, Earl McNabb, shortstop and George Hawks at third while the outfield will probably be Russ Scriver, Bob Parnell and Phil Pryde. As for the Plazas Manager Ellis has a flock of players including Art Heal, Bun Kingdon, Joe Blewett, Din Reilly, Johnny Godfrey, Johnny Jonnston, Don Crowe. Julian Wade, Webb Starr, Curly Scriver and the boss himself who will be found holding down the initial sack.

* * * * * *

The proceeds of the opening game will be handed over to the British War Victims' Fund and the league management is hopeful of a record first night crowd and a record collection. There will be three draw prizes and the more you donate the more chances you have to grab off one of the awards. The first is a Kenwood blanket, and the other two are an Adam hat, donated by Ed. Riley, sponsor of the Adam Hat Royals and $5 worth of fishing tackle or other merchandise presented by Spiros Zakos, sponsor of the Plaza Billiard team. There will be brief opening ceremonies in which Ald. Max Swanston, Ald. Floyd Curtis and Dave Leether, Peterborough representative on the O.A.S.A. executive will take part. Then Umpire-in-Chief Harold Dormer will get the ball game under way at 6.30 o'clock. It is the first big night of the summer sport season and because of that fact and the cause that is to benefit should really pack the customers in.

Braves Step Up

The National League monopolized the show under the big top yesterday, with all four games scheduled in the American loop knocked out by bad weather. And the big news in the senior circuit was the fact that the Boston Braves, picked by no one to land anywhere in particular, climbed up into second place yesterday, passing the Pittsburg Pirates. And Casey Stengel's surprising club didn't have any easy picking in making the hop because they had to come from behind to beat the St. Louis Cards while the Pirates were being tossed for a loss by the Dodgers. Javery held the Cards to five hits but at that it looked until the closing stages as if all he was going to get out of that fine performance was a loss. The Braves were 2 to 0 behind when they went to bat in the eighth frame. They succeeded in pushing two runs across to tie the score and came back with another single counter in the ninth to take the verdict. Harry Gumbert pitched most of the game for the Cards but the loss was chalked up against Rookie Beazley who led out a rescue expedition in the late stages.

* * * * * *

The New York Giants continued their amazing display of power at the expense of the Cincinnati Reds yesterday. triumphing 13 to 5 in a game in which the Giants thirteen-hit attack was sparked by three home runs. That sensational rookie Williard Marshall exploded two of the circuit clouts, his 5th and 6th homers of the season and the mighty atom Mel Ott drove out his fourth of the campaign. Schumacher and Carpenter carried the New York pitching burden and the Reds used Starr, Derringer, Blackwell and Turner in a vain attempt to stop the New Yorkers who won 13 to 5. The Giants are playing fine ball under Mel Ott and with more effective pitching might be up threatening their neighbors from Brooklyn.

* * * * * *

The Bums by the way are giving every sign of being a club that is pointed for another crack at world series honors this autumn. They handed their nearest rivals, the Pittsburg Pirates an 8 to 3 hammering yesterday with Whit Wyatt pitching steady ball to hold the Bucs to eight hits. Truet Sewell was the starting heaver for Pittsburg and the loss was marked against him, although he did not finish the game. In the fourth game of the National League card the Chicago Cubs won a close game from the Phillies 2 to 1. The losers outhit the Chicago crowd 9 to 5 but Passeau who was on the firing line for the Cubs took a leaf out of Boston Jim Tobin's book and won his own game with a homer.

Hockey Carries On

The decision of the National Hockey League at its conclave yesterday to carry on next season is just what most folk expected. No one can say right now what playing material will be available but at all events the clubs will make the best of the situation. Veteran players and juniors will fill the gaps caused by the departure into the armed services of many of this season's regulars and while the hockey may not be quite as good, the competition will be just as keen and the public will be satisfied. There is a place for sport even in the midst of war and fans will be glad that the league is to go on in spite of the difficulties. They will overlook any shortcomings, realizing that military responsibilities must come first.

Red Creighton has got himself a lacrosse berth for the summer. The irrepressible Robert who is now employed in Toronto has been signed on by the Etobicoke Indians and is slated to look after the goalie's duties for that senior squad. And he is not the only member of the family to break into the game with the same outfit for his two brothers Gerry and Emmett, both of whom learned their lacrosse here are out with Etobicoke. Murray Scruton, manager of the Indians says about the Creightons: "That guy Annis Stukus had better start attending all the practices. We have a new defenceman named Gerry Creignton and he may take Stuke's job away from him. There's another Creighton called Em. They are brothers of the new goalie. Em has a mop of flame-thatched hair and would sooner fight than eat. He loves to eat."

Sporting Chili Con Carne: Brooklyn's hopes of repeating in the National League were given a big buildup yesterday when the draft board changed Pete Reiser's classification to 3-A which means the champion batter of the National loop is not likely to be called for some time....Nick Strincevich hurled his first game for the Maple Leafs last night and made an impressive start by blanking the Rochester Red Wings 3 to 0.... The National League has a new batting leader. He is Lamanno the rookie catcher of the Cincinnati Reds who is cutting into the ball at a .360 clip, but Pete Reiser is closing in fast....Sammy Angott will never come closer to losing his world lightweight title and still retain it than he did last night when he had to come up off the floor to grab the decision from Allie Stolz in a fifteen-round torrid scrap at New York....There will be an open practice for the Peterborough juvenile softball team at Riverside Park on Tuesday the players are asked to note. The kids have been rained out of their last three attempts to get in a workout.

Other Four Clubs In League Support Entry Of Red Dutton

TORONTO, May 16 — President Frank Calder and his National Hockey League colleagues emerged from an unusual brief and brisk annual meeting here Friday afternoon with a twenty-six-word communique told the sports public the major organization in the world's fastest game planned to operate in 1942-43.

"Mr. Calder's statement covers everything we want to say at this stage," one N.H.L. official said. "We are at the command of the Canadian and United States Governments, and we don't want to get tangled up with the unfortunate publicity that haunted us a year ago."

What the communique didn't reveal was that National League officials had been asked to vote on the advisability of permitting Brooklyn Americans to continue operations as a tenant of Madison Square Gardens and, naturally, a box-office rival of New York Rangers.

Boston Bruins and New York Rangers voted against the survival of Mervyn (Red) Dutton's Amerks. Detroit, Toronto, Chicago and Canadiens voted in favor of the club.

Red Compares Figures

"I had seven dollars in my pocket when I took charge of the Americans six years ago," roared Manager-President Red Dutton of the bubbling Amoiks, "and I'm not going to be shoved out into the cold at this stage of the game. I have made the Americans a money-making proposition. I have not been extravagant, and put the club on a paying oasis."

It was his answer to a question regarding reported voting of N.H.L. delegates on his beloved Americans.

"I've lost Charley Raynor, Norm Larson, Bill Benson, Murray Armstrong to the Canadian armed forces" Dutton roared on, "but I'll come up with as good a club as the rest of the circuit can offer. I'll probably lose more players. But I don't see why I should drop out of the picture."

"Americans were a better box-office attraction than Canadiens and Chicago on the road last winter," Dutton added. "At home the Detroit Red Wings, who finished up in the Stanley Cup finals, only outdrew us by a few thousand. We took in more money at home than Canadiens did. Why, then, should we get out of hockey "

Art Ross, manager of the Boston Bruins, was in Toronto for Thursday's meeting of the N.H.L. club owners, but left the same evening for Quebec to join Asistant Manager Dit Clapper on a fishing trip. Boston was represented Friday by R. R. Duncan, solicitor for the Bruins.

Talk Drillon Trade.

"Certainly we are opposed to the Americans as the second club in New York," Lester Patrick of the Rangers said. "There's no secret about that. There are a dozen reasons why we don't want and don't need a second club at Madison Square Gardens."

What about the Americans as an entry from Brooklyn?

"Swell idea," Patrick declared. "But what will they do for ice? I've heard that Brooklyn talk before, but there still isn't a rink. We'll welcome Americans as a real Brooklyn rival. Great publicity angle."

Although Chicago, Detroit, and Rangers were reported as discussing a player deal with Toronto Leafs, with conversation centring around Gord Drillon, right wing sharpshooter, who was benched during the Stanley Cup finals, no definite progress was made.

One way and another, it was a quiet, serious conference that National League delegates indulged in on Friday. All officials were inclined to pass over business affairs as quickly as possible when questioned by newspapermen. "This is a non-talking meeting," one N.H.L. manager declared. 'We ran into far too much trouble last year in Winnipeg as a result of passport-permit negotiations. We want no more of that. We've nothing to say apart from Mr. Calder's statement."

Leafs Best Road Club.

National League statistical experts learned at Friday's meeting that the best road club during the 1941-42 season was Toronto Leafs, who played to approximately 256,000 customers away from home. Boston Bruins followed with 252,000. Rangers attracted 248,000, Detroit, 219,-00, Americans 204,000, Canadiens 194,000, and Chicago 183,000.

Top box office attraction at Maple Leaf Gardens last winter was the Boucher-coached Rangers, drawing 70,000 patrons. Bruins were right behind with 69,000. Chicago, Detroit, Americans and Canadiens finished in the order named as Toronto turnstile magnets. Canadiens drew only 42,000, but three of the games were mid-week affairs.

Special The Examiner By a P.C.V.S. Student

Flags for the record war sales in April were awarded this week to three war conscious forms. In the first group Grade XII A Academic took over top position with an average sale of $4.25 per student. Stewart Brown accepted the flag on behalf of his form. The runner-up was XII B where the average was $1.83. X C came within a few cents of shattering all former records when Miss Brown announced that the average per pupil was $19.50. Clayton Selkirk represented this wide awake form. XI A was the runner-up with a $3.51 average. Among the lower form IX C held the flag for the second successive month but received little help from the mediocre average of $1.03. Helen Davis was presented with the flag. How about some competition?

Total sales for the week amounted to $245 in War Savings Stamps and $112 in Certificates. Keep 'em selling!

The Echoes

In a cover designed to trap even the most indifferent students "The Echoes" was avidly devoured by Collegians who had waited two weeks longer than last year to pore over their beloved year book. Between the nightmarish masterpiece of Gord Diplock lie 74 pages of delightful nonsense and articles of more serious vein. The lack of an autograph page was soon solved by the suggested expedient of using pictures or articles but in many cases the dedication page is doing yeoman duty.

The "Pic Pages" present newsy photos of school activities and that shot of the Junior Boys' Basketball team is about the most intimate view of future strategical plays that most of us will ever see.

One of the best editorials seen in "The Echoes" in recent years is that of Bob Carley's, "The Value Of A High School Education." Editorials by Maureen Brown, Davis Graham, and Jim Hooper reflect the feelings of all P.C.I.'ites.

Penny Week

Next week is Penny Week at the Collegiate and other schools of the city. This Penny Week is not a new idea—it was first introduced last year and the grand sum of $44.60 was collected by the systematic savings of Collegiate students. Clare Collins visited the school on Friday morning and put across an appeal for the success of this drive that will help swell the local drive for $60,000 for the Peterborough Red Cross and Community Funds.

Elocution

Brenda Rogers and Paul Moore won their silver medals for Verse Speaking among the Grade Niners at the annual competition sponsored by the P.C.V.S. Dramatic Club after four on Thursday. Chosen from the 18 contestants by Misses White and McGregor, and R. L. Hale, these pupils rank high among the young hopefuls of the Dramatic Club—1944.

Alden Gourley opened the contest with a speech on the value of the art of elocution and introduced the following students: Donald Smith, Florence Dockrell, Barney Loftus, Edith Armstrong, Don Earle, Helen Lyon, Jack Braund, Brenda Rogers, Douglas Head, Shirley Connor, Paul Moore, Aubrey Purdy, William Skene, Audrey Perth, Don Payne, Marion Vosburg, Lindsay Brownn and Jean Marchen.

Remarkable appreciation of the poems was shown by the contestants and Mr. Hale commented that the task of the judges was far from easy. Two types of verse were spoken—lyrical and dramatic—and the suitable emotions were caught by most of the students. Don Payne and Marion Vosburg were the runners-up in the contest.

While the judges were coming to a decision Alden Gourley outlined the aims and ideals of the Dramatic Club in a very entertaining speech. This has been the second contest of this kind and much credit should be given to the teachers of contesting pupils and the Dramatic club.

War Work By G.A.A.

The Girls' Athletic Association rounded off a very successful year on Friday morning with presentations totalling $80.00 to four war work committees. Miss Mildred Bailey paved the way with a speech outlining the war work accomplished by the G.A.A. this year and she announced that a total of $130.00 had been donated to various organizations and funds.

Norma Wallace presented cheques of $25 each to Ken Smiley of the Kinsmen Milk for Britain Fund and F. G. Mann of the B.W.V.F. Fifteen dollar gifts were given to the Chinese Relief Society in Toronto and to Dorothy Kirn of the War Work Finance Committee.

This is a magnificent effort for a society with such a limited means of raising funds. Congratulations!

Mobile Kitchen Notes

Word was received from England this week concerning the mobile kitchen and it was vitally interesting to Collegiate students. Sir Vincent Massey announced that the kitchen will be presented to the Civil Defence Workers of England and that all suggestions will be carried out regarding inscriptions and the actual presentation. Pictures and newspaper clippings will be forwarded after the ceremony that will be attended by four Peterborough boys —Flight Lieut. Gerry Wooll, Sgt. Grant Smedmore, Sgt. Hugh Davidson, and Lieut. James Hall.

At the Students' Council meeting on Thursday it was decided to put the surplus from the mobile kitchen fund into the Councils' funds until another war effort is undertaken and then it will be returned to the committee in charge. Lindsay is attempting to purchase two universal carriers—let us set ourselves to another task with redoubled effort at the earliest moment.

Teasettes

School pins and rings may be ordered on Monday or Tuesday at Room No. 79. Samples are on display in the camera club showcase and should be examined carefully by every student. Terms are strictly cash and orders will be filled three weeks from Tuesday.

The Camera Club bicycled to Lock No. 22 on Wednesday for their annual outing and photographic results will be seen soon. The group lunched under the spray from the dam and returned home at 8.30. One camera fiend spent nearly half an hour preparing for the super shot of the day but just as everything was made ready for the crucial moment—the sun went behind a cloud and stayed there. Many of the pictures obtained will be entered in the club competition.
